HALL'S GLEN NEWS

What the People in That Locality are Doing. Debate on War.

Mr D. Brown called on friends in the village a few weeks ago.

Mr. J Crowe, a student of Albert College, Belleville, is spending his Christmas holidays amongst us.

Mr A. Nelson made a flying visit to his former home here last week.

Miss L. Crowe has returned home again to spend Christmas with her mother.

Mr. H Cofflestone is visiting at the home of Mrs. M. Little.

A number of the boys here, constituting a masquerade, entertained the wedding guests at Mr. N. Payne's.

Mr. H. Crowe has just returned from visiting distant friends and expects to spend his vacation here at home

A large number from the neighborhood attended the concert given by the pupils of Mr R. Lynn's school on Friday evening last. A number of visiting friends also contributed to the programme by delivering short impromptu addresses.

A number of friends and relatives partook of a sumptuous Christmas dinner at the home of Mr. A. Darling

Two young men left this vicinity recently for the annual Apsley tea meeting, and as several days have passed since their departure, and no account of their return has yet been made, we think that some misfortune has befell them by the way, or else the anniversary has been postponed for a few days, owing to the cold, unfavorable weather.

The H. S. L. society, which was organised on the 15th inst, held its first regular meeting on the Thursday evening following, and already shows signs of rapid progress. The entertainment consisted of a debate, "War and Intemperance," and was well managed by the leaders and their assistants, and was listened to with interest.

On January 5th a literary entertainment will be given and will evidently be of interest and profit, for the programme committee are hard at work and will spare no pains to maintain the high standard previously attained.

Mr. W. Carveth left the village last week for his limits, where he has been busily engaged hauling wood to market.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

Lever's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is better than other soap powders, as it also acts as a disinfectant.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS--1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognised agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully became accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant; contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandisement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to, pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localisation of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

WILD WESTERN DUEL.

Fusillade Between Mounted Police and a Desperado At Moose Jaw.

Moose Jaw, Dec. 28.—A lively duel between an American desperado named McLean and the Mounted Police occurred on the station platform here last night, in the course of which twelve shots were exchanged. McLean had engaged in a row in a restaurant, and two police corporals, Foxwell and Barnes, went to arrest him. They were unarmed, and he defied them at the point of a revolver. Foxwell slipped away while McLean covered Barnes, and ran for revolvers at the barracks. Meanwhile a spectator, taking in the situation, slipped a revolver to Barnes, unnoticed by the desperado, and just then Foxwell returned, accompanied by Constable Bouchier, both heavily armed. McLean was ordered to surrender but his answer was to fire point blank at Bouchier. Barnes returned the fire, and so did the other officers. The police did not want to kill him, so shot low, one bullet smashing McLean's knee cap. He emptied his revolver before surrendering. Spectators in the station threw themselves on the floor to escape bullets. McLean was taken to Regina jail last night.

Against Paper Combine.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 28.—Attorney-General Moody late yesterday began a suit by petition in the United States District Court here on behalf of the United States against the General Paper Company and other paper and pulp companies, comprising what is known as the "paper trust," under an act of Congress, approved July 2, 1890, entitled "an act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

Burglars At St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, Dec. 28.—Two robberies were reported to the police as having occurred Monday night. One of them was at the grocery store of B. C. Turville. Turville reports that five turkeys and seven chickens are missing. The other robbery was at the store of James Kane. Some tobacco and other goods were taken from the shelves, and about $4 in cash from the till.

Locked Up Spirit Wrestlers.

Winnipeg, Dec. 28.—The last bunch of spirit-wrestling Doukhobors, four in number, who have been hovering around the immigration sheds, were locked up Monday evening to prevent a chance of mishap to them in the severe weather. They were charged with vagrancy and will be given long sentences to remove them from being a nuisance.

Admiralty Blamed.

London, Dec. 28.—(C. A. P.)—The Melbourne press comments on the failure of the Admiralty to fulfil its agreement with the Commonwealth. Of the two new second-class cruisers promised more than a year ago, only the Challenger has arrived, though the subsidy was promptly paid.

Death of Lady Boswell.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—Sir H. Montagu Allan is in receipt of a cablegram announcing the death of Lady Boswell, third daughter of Sir Hugh Allan. Lady Boswell's end came suddenly on Saturday at Blackader, her country place, near Edinburgh. Particulars have not yet been received.

Escapes From Jail Guards.

Toronto, Dec. 28.—John Edmonds, aged 30, a mulatto, slipped away from among two score fellow-prisoners at Toronto jail yesterday morning and half an hour later the guards found it out. Edmonds has not been re-taken, but guards found the convict's clothes in a freight car.

ENGINE FLUE BLEW OUT

Fireman Harry Chambers of Lindsay Lost His Life.

Tremendous Violence of the Blow-Out Hurled Chambers Back On the Tender and Rolled Him in Ditch—When Picked Up He Was Found to Be Dead—An Unknown, Stealing a Ride, Was Badly Scalded.

Toronto, Dec. 28.—By an accident which, while not enormous in itself, has seldom been known to have a fatal termination in the history of railroading, Harry Chambers, fireman, of Lindsay last night lost his life.

The mishap occurred about four miles out of Bobcaygeon on the Lindsay branch of the C.P.R., about 8.30 p.m. yesterday. The train was a passenger one of three cars, which is employed on a short run between Burketon and Bobcaygeon, the line put into operation by the road the beginning of last August. The train makes connections with the Montreal express, which arrives at 7.30 p.m., and with the local, which leaves the Union Station at 5 p.m.

Leaving Burketon at about 6.45 p.m. it was approaching Bobcaygeon when the engine flue blew out with such tremendous violence as to demolish a section of the cab. Chambers was hurled back on the tender and rolled into the ditch. When picked up he was found to be dead.

An unknown young man, aged about 21, who had been stealing a ride in front of the engine, was badly scalded from the knees down. Engineer Henry of Bobcaygeon escaped unharmed.

Chambers' home was in Lindsay. He was 26 years of age and unmarried.

The train was delayed about four hours, an engine arriving from Burketon after midnight.

Five Men Badly Injured.

Keewatin, Dec. 28.—A serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock at Foley Bros. & Lawson's construction camp, three miles west of Keewatin, when the men at work struck an old unexploded charge, causing a terrific explosion, which fatally injured one man and seriously injured five others about the eyes, hands, arms and legs. The injured men were taken to Rat Portage on the work train, which was hauling rock from where they were at work. They were all foreigners.

G.T.R. Fireman Hurt.

Hamilton, Dec. 28.—David McShee, G.T.R. fireman, whose home is at Shelburne, but who has been boarding at 14 Clarence square, Toronto, had his leg smashed at the ankle yesterday morning at Harrisburg in a head-on collision between the accommodation train due here at 11 o'clock and a freight. The engines were both badly wrecked, and the passengers shaken up.

Coasted Into Wire Fence.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—D. B. Picken was probably fatally injured by running into a barb wire while tobogganing on the park slide Monday. His throat and face were terribly lacerated by the barbs, and the shock of the collision knocked out several teeth. He is not expected to survive the accident.

Killed By a Fall.

Barrie, Dec. 28.—Fred. Partridge, a laborer employed by the G.T.R., stumbled and fell into the big cement oil tank at the new shops, Allendale, on Sunday night. He fractured his skull and died an hour later. He was an Englishman and had been with the G.T.R. only a month. A wife and two small children survive him.

Thirty Seven in Danger.

New York, Dec. 28.—Efforts to learn whether Capt. Nicholson and the crew of the British tramp steamer Drumelzier are still aboard the vessel, which is aground on the bar at Fire Island, have been unsuccessful, and last night the life-savers were still watching from the beach in the hope of communicating with the ship. The captain would not let the life-savers take off his crew Monday when the seas were running so high, and yesterday it was too late to help them. The Drumelzier's crew consists of 32 men, with Capt. Nicholson, First Mate Hutchinson, Second Mate Smith, Third Mate Richardson and Chief Engineer Wood.

Woman Drinks Poison.

Winnipeg, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Isbister, a married woman, with a family of two children, committed suicide by poisoning here at midnight yesterday. No cause is assigned.

One Man Killed.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 28.—The Christmas celebration here wound up with a fight in the foreign quarter, in which one man was killed and three badly wounded. Four men are under arrest. The fatality was the result of a clash between Croats and Huns.

Hunter Gets Bail.

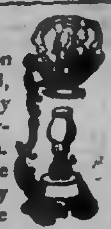
London, Dec. 28.—(C. A. P.)—Graeme Hunter, known as the "boss" union smasher, and Gavin Cooper were yesterday charged at the High Court, Glasgow, with defrauding emigrants to Canada by representing that they would get suitable work on arrival. It was stated on behalf of Hunter that it was necessary to obtain "precognition" in Canada, if not to bring witnesses, and the case was adjourned. Bail was allowed.

A. W. Donly Appointed.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—A. W. Donly has been appointed Canadian commercial agent in Mexico. He is a brother of Hal B. Donly, the Liberal candidate in Norfolk in the late election.

New Whaler For British Columbia.

Dartmouth, Eng., Dec. 28.—The Orion, a new steam whaler, from Christiania, left this port yesterday for Victoria, B.C., as a new feature in North Pacific whale fishery.



A Siege

The matrons of the Edison Orphanage at Lowell, Mass., U.S.A., wrote they had a siege of whooping-cough in their institution. They said that every case was promptly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene. Its value in coughs and colds was so great they always kept it ready for use. You know how it's used, don't you? 'Tis heated by a vaporizer and you inhale it. Write us for a book that tells all about it.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists, or sent express prepaid on receipt of price. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit including a bottle of Cresolene, complete $1.50. Send for free illustrated booklet. Leeming, Miles Co., Ltd., Agents, 288 St. James Street, Montreal, Can.

INABILITY, NOT REFUSAL.

Why Leamington Cut Off Pere Marquette Water Supply.

Leamington, Dec. 28.—This town has not refused the Pere Marquette Railway a supply of water. The town has been unable for nearly a week to get fuel enough to run the pumping station. Hence the lack of water. There was no refusal, simply inability.

Several car loads of coal for the town were delivered to the Pere Marquette at its yards at Walkerville on Dec. 15, but they had not reached here on Dec. 23. To use the words of a prominent citizen: "The freight situation in the Pere Marquette is infernal."

Let Shippers Sue.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—The Railway Commissioners are now looking into the case of the Pere-Marquette Railway. Mr. Bernier is of the opinion that the proper course to pursue is for the shippers to take proceedings against the railway for the delays caused to their shipments, and for other cases Mr. Mills is looking into the matter to see if the Commissioners cannot proceed direct against the company.

SYMPATHY WITH FRENCH.

Roman Catholic Bishops and Archbishops Send Letter to Paris.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—All the Roman Catholic bishops and archbishops of Canada, from Halifax to Vancouver, have forwarded a letter to Cardinal Richard of Paris, expressing the deep sympathy of the Canadian church with the bishops, clergy and faithful of France in these days of trial and persecution. Their lordships claim that war has been declared against Christ.

The letter was probably agreed upon at the recent gathering of prelates at Three Rivers.

The episcopal letter refers to the painful effect created in the bishops' minds at each new attempt of the French Government on the rights of the church.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Conservatives of Leeds nominated John R. Dargavel on Tuesday.

The Rev. F. Chisholm is in the field as Prohibitionist candidate in Leeds County.

Conservatives of Leeds have renominated their old member, Walter Beatty.

Mr. Whitney will address the electors of Centre Simcoe at Barrie on Wednesday night.

The Conservative convention of Haldimand County on Tuesday nominated Michael McConnell, who accepted the nomination.

At a meeting held at Montreal Tuesday night, presided over by Hon. E. J. Flynn, it was decided to hold a Conservative provincial convention not later than June.

At a meeting of the executive of the Ottawa Conservative Association Tuesday night, it was decided to call a convention on Jan. 3 to nominate a running mate for Dennis Murphy.

East York Conservatives have nominated Alex. McCowan as their candidate for the Legislature. Six ran, but Mr. McCowan was elected on the first ballot, and the nomination was made unanimous.

The Liberals in the Mountain (Man.) electoral division will meet in convention on Jan. 3 to select a candidate to contest the forthcoming election rendered necessary by the retirement of Thomas Greenway.

There was only one named offered in nomination at the Conservative convention in Waterloo on Tuesday afternoon. That was Dr. Lackner, who has represented North Waterloo in the Provincial House for the past two years.

Hon. W. A. Charlton was the only candidate whose name was placed before the South Norfolk Liberal convention, all the other nominees retiring in his favor Tuesday. The Minister of Public Works addressed the convention for an hour. Hon. George P. Graham contrasted the platform of Mr. Whitney, as endorsed by the conference held at Toronto, with the policy of the Liberal convention, and appealed for the election of Mr. Charlton.

Plans For Toronto Warehouse.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—The Commissioner of Customs, in company with the chief customs inspector and the chief architect of public works, left yesterday for New York to look into the interior plans of the customs examining warehouse there. The Government will utilize whatever ideas can be gathered, when it shortly undertakes the erection of new examining warehouses in Toronto and Winnipeg.

Tired all the Time

Mrs. George Beattie, Carr's Brook, Colchester, Co., N.S., writes:—"Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time, and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good, and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends."

GOLD WATCH FOR MR. TROMBLEY

C. G. E. Anglers Club Honors its Chef.

AN APPRECIATIVE ADDRESS

Presentation was Made on Saturday Night A Jovial Companion and a Painstaking Official.

The C.G.E. Anglers' Club sprang a surprise on their genial chef, Mr. John Trombley, on Saturday night, when they gathered at his house and presented him with a beautiful gold watch and chain and an address, which was read by Mr. Patterson.

The presentation was made by ex-commodore J. Wilson.

The address was as follows:—

Mr. John Trombley,

Chief cook.

Dear Sir,—The members of the C.G.E. Angling Club take this opportunity of expressing their hearty appreciation for the very many favors you have conferred on them in the past four years. We have always found you a jovial companion and a painstaking official in looking after the inner wants of the hungry fishermen. No matter how large the denizen of the deep, your ability as "Chef" had no limit.

We ask you to accept this token as a slight remembrance of the many hours we have whiled away around the camp fire. May we ever see your benign countenance at our outing and festive boards, feeling that when you provide no one goes hungry.

Wishing you and your family a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the members: John Wilson, J. A. Sharpe, R. H. Shepherd, J. A. Brown, A. W. Patterson, J. Begley, W. T. Millard, J. Williams, L. Patterson, W. H. Smith, F. A. Simpson, F. Bradburn, C. Gilbert, G. Tovey, H. Latimer, M. Breckenbridge, T. Molden, J. McCabe, F. Post, E. Sanders, G. Scott, W. Hill, N. Munroe, F. Howson, J. Y. Gerrard, J. O'Brien, J. Panter, F. Ruetsch, J. Fuller, J. T. Anderson, R. McKeown, J. Mills, F. Drotcher, F. Pope, D. Carlyle, J. Glover, J. G. Scott, F. A. Taylor, R. E. Layfield, S. Bennett.

Mr. Trombley was very much surprised, but managed to thank the club for their gift and kind words.

STILL ANOTHER CASE

The New System Treatment, Anti-Pill, continues to work wonderful Cures.

When Dr. Leonhardt of Lincoln, Nebraska, gave Anti-Pill to the world he had unbounded faith in the treatment, but he did not foresee the world wide and wonderful results it is now achieving in the cure of disease.

Here is the story of another Anti-Pill victory:

"For many months I have been troubled with dyspepsia, dizziness in my head, cold chills and suffered most of the time from constipation, and was unable to do my housework. I tried every kind of pill and medicine that either the doctors or myself could think of, and finally tried Anti-Pill. This treatment has practically made a new woman of me. I am able to do all my own work. The dizziness has all gone, my stomach feels much better, and I am no longer troubled with constipation. I cannot praise Anti-Pill too highly." — Mrs. Thos. Tabb, 287 Emerald Street North, Hamilton, Ont.

Mrs. Tabb's letter is only one of many.

CONCERT IN SMITH

Christmas Tree and Entertainment in Town Hall.

A very successful and enjoyable concert and Christmas tree was given in Union Temperance Hall on Thursday evening, the 22nd inst., by the pupils of the Fourth Line School. From experience the people of the section had looked forward to an enjoyable evening and they were not disappointed. The hall was crowded to the doors, which augurs well for the library. The proceeds, $17.50, is to be spent on new books for the school library. The programme was varied and interesting and was presented in a very pleasing manner. Mr. Andrew Young acted as chairman very acceptably and besides addressing the audience himself, he called to the platform, Mr. T. D. Young, (the Sec. Treas. to make a few remarks. The recitations and dialogues were entertaining and the patriotic choruses were given in splendid spirit. A special feature of the programme was the Good-night Drill given by eight little girls, who appeared in white gowns and night caps and carried candles to light them to bed. This drill fairly brought down the house. Another item worthy to mention was the Dairymaid's Drill by the larger girls of the school. The audience could not fail to be impressed by the pretty jaunty-looking Dairymaid's of the Fourth Line. The tree was laden with presents and in this part of the entertainment a great many had a share. Among beautiful gifts on the tree, was a lovely five o'clock tea set, presented by the pupils to their teacher, Miss Courtney, of the Fifth Ward.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

WHERE DO YOU BUY YOUR Clothing?

This is a very important matter and still many men appear to think it of no consequence.

They buy just anywhere they happen to see something that strikes their fancy.

But there's a difference in stores, as well as in clothes.

Some stores go in for "cheapness," others for quality. Which do you prefer?

A Russian Superstition.

In Russia there is an old superstition that the child who is praised in the nurse's presence is certain not to thrive. Therefore, if the foster mother is carrying in her arms a beautiful child who excites admiration from those who stand by, she will spit on the ground to avert the bad luck that would otherwise visit not only the child, but herself.

Hairsprings.

The hairspring of your watch weighs only one-twentieth of a grain per inch. One mile of such wire would weigh much less than a half pound.

Mouth and Nose Sponge.

One way to prevent the dust from entering the throat and lungs while sleeping is to tie a small sponge over the mouth and nose. A person can breathe all right through the porous sponge and it takes up the dust which would otherwise be inhaled.

The New Hampshire Rifles.

The first rifle company in New Hampshire was organized in Henniker in 1818.

What Mill Feared.

John Stuart Mill could get little pleasure from music in the later years of his life because his overstrained mind reasoned that "music was only a combination of notes and mathematically considered the time must come when all such possible combinations would have been exhausted."

German Teaches Welsh.

It is a notable fact that the best Welsh grammar is written in German, by Dr Sattler.

Glasgow.

Glasgow is the biggest city in Scotland in area as well as in population. It covers fifteen square miles, and its yearly rental is $21,250,000.

The Shamrock.

Those who believe that one of the ten lost tribes of Israel settled in Ireland lay stress on the fact that "shamrakh" is the Arabic word for trefoil, which, under the name of shamrock, has been made the national bloom of Ireland.

Cigar Boxes.

There are something like 15,000,000 cigar boxes used in the United States annually.

The Finest Mosaics.

The mosaics in the Church of St. Mark in Venice are the finest in the world. They cover 40,000 square feet of the upper walls, ceilings and cupolas and are all laid on a gold ground.

Ingenious Ants.

The green ants of Australia make nests by bending leaves together and uniting them with a kind of natural glue. Cook saw hundreds at a time on one leaf drawing it to the ground, while an equal number waited to receive, hold and fasten it.

LOCAL MASONIC INSTALLATION

Officers of Peterborough and Corinthian Lodges

INSTALLED LAST EVENING.

The Annual Gathering Was Signal Success and Proved an Enjoyable Occasion—A Presentation Made to Local Lodges.

The festival of St. John the Evangelist, which fell on Tuesday, Dec. 27th, was a red letter day in the Masonic calendar. All over the Dominion, and for that matter, all over the civilized world, the fraternity, gather to install the officers elect for the coming Masonic year. It is a time of brotherly greetings and brings together the members of the craft who do not often get to the lodge.

The Installing Master was Rt. W. Bro W H. Walkey, assisted by the retiring Masters of the respective lodges. Under his able direction, and with his thorough command of the work the ceremony proceeded smoothly, and drew from the brethren warm commendation. The list of officers installed are given following:

On opening the lodge an interesting event took place being the presentation to the Masonic body by Bro. Walter J. Francis of a set of columns and gavels, to replace those so long in use. Additional interest attaches to the event because of the columns and gavels being made from oak taken from the bottom of the lock at the outlet of Little Lake. The oak planks were built into the lock at the time of its construction and were removed when making repairs last fall. During its long service the oak had become perfectly black, and when worked up by Bro. Francis made a very handsome set. The gavel used by the Master of the lodge bears a silver plate with the following inscription:—

Columns and Gavels
made from Oak Sills of Whitlaw's Lock,
Peterborough.
Used from 1837 to 1904.

Presented to Masonic Lodges by by Bro. Walter J. Francis.
St. John's Day, 1904.

In receiving the gift the presiding officer complimented Bro. Francis for his timely and handsome gift, and assured him that the lodges would highly value the articles and remember the donor.

The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, the several offices, in both lodges, being filled, as follows:—

After supper had been disposed of the programme of the evening was taken up, in the following order:—

Toast List

☆

The King and the Craft
"Never losing sight of the allegiance due to the Sovereign."

☆

The Grand Master and the Grand Lodge of Canada
"A superstructure perfect in its parts."

☆

Canada
"Where's the coward that would not dare to fight for such a land?"

☆

The Newly Installed Officers
"I've touched the highest point of all my Greatness."

☆

The Visiting Brethren
"The oftener you come the more we'll adore you."

☆

The Retiring Officers
"Held in high estimation by their Brethren and Fellows."

☆

The Installing Master
"Rising to eminence by Merit"

☆

Junior Warden's Toast
"Happy to meet,
Sorry to part,
Happy to meet again."

The chairman of the evening was Rt. Wor. Bro. W. H. Walkey; the vice-chairman, W. Bro. M. A. Morrison. On the right and left of the chairman were placed the retiring Masters, W. Bro. H. Nesbitt, Corinthian Lodge, and W. Bro. J. G. Wilson, Peterborough Lodge, and as well the newly installed Masters of the two lodges, W. Bro. H. R. H. Kenner and W. Bro. R. F. Morrow.

The 'King and the Craft" was duly honored. The 'Grand Master and Grand Lodge of Canada" was responded to by Rt. W. Bro. Wm. Miller, and by Rt. W. Bro. B. Shortly, both of whom referred to the personnel and work done by the Grand Lodge and its functions in relation to the welfare and progress of the Craft.

Bro. Coward, one of the members of the famous Westminster Choir Company, and who is now in Canada on business in connection with the objects of the organisation, sang during the evening several songs, and the treat of hearing him was one enjoyed very much by the company.

W. Bro. M. A. Morrison proposed "Canada," in well chosen remarks, followed by the company singing "The Maple Leaf."

"The Newly Installed Masters" was proposed by W. Bro. J. Crane, and replied to by Wor. Bro. Kenner and W. Bro. Morrow. The brethren were delighted with the address given by W. Bro. Kenner, who spoke at considerable length, and was most warmly applauded. W. Bro. Morrow also spoke of his recognition of the responsibilities of the office and of his intention to do all that he could do to merit the approval of the lodge.

A pleasant interlude was made by Bro. Gliddon, who gave a cornet solo.

W. Bro. Dr. Greer proposed "The Visiting Brethren," which sentiment was acknowledged in neat speeches by Bro. Coward and Bro. Simpson, of Ottawa, and by Bro. Rev. W. Major, of All Saints' church.

"The Retiring Officers" was proposed by Wor. Bro. Kenner, and responded to by the Masters of the lodges who had vacated the chairs. "The Installing Master" received just recognition and well deserved commendation in a brief introduction by Rt. W. Bro. A Gibson, and to which Rt. W. Bro. Walkey made brief acknowledgement.

The evening closed with "The Junior Warden's Toast," and the National Anthem.

NEW SCHOOL TRUSTEES

There Will be No Contest—All Elected by Acclamation.

GOOD TEACHERS NOW ENGAGED

And There Are Great Prospects for Conservatory of Music.

SOME EMINENT INSTRUCTORS

Herr Klingenfeldt, for Violin Department; Prof. Fairclough, for Organ; Herr August Wilhelmy, for Voice; Pupils are Beginning to Register.

The Peterborough Conservatory of Music will open very shortly, and Principal Gliddon is now in a position to make definite announcement with reference to the staff of teachers and other matters that will be of interest.

The very handsome building at the corner of Hunter and Rubidge-sts., which is now known as the Conservatory of Music, has been fitted up in a manner exceedingly well adapted to the requirements of the institution. The class rooms are large, well lighted and ventilated and everything has been done looking to the comfort and accommodation, to say nothing of the instruction, of those attending. The arrangement is such indeed that the Conservatory immediately suggests a musical atmosphere, most consistent with its purpose

Pupils are already beginning to register, and the lesson hours are being assigned. The teachers are very enthusiastic and in extending Principal Gliddon the very best wishes for success in his undertaking, it is also very easy to see that it is starting under most favorable auspices. Teaching will begin on January 2nd. What promises to be a most popular feature so far as association of pupils with their friends is concerned will be the weekly recitals given by pupils under the different teachers. For this feature a large recital room will afford excellent accommodation

Mr. Gliddon to-day announces the engagement of the following local teachers:—Miss Alice Roger, Miss Helen Davies, Miss Foy, Prof. Davies, Mr. Gilbert Markle and Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

The services of a number of eminent Toronto instructors have been obtained for certain days during each week. Herr Klingenfeldt, of the staff of the Toronto Conservatory of Music has been secured for the violin department; Prof. W. E. Fairclough, for the organ department. He is on the University Board of Examiners and the staff of the College of Music and is organist of All Saints' church. Herr August Wilhelmj, son of the great violin master and who is connected with the staff of the Metropolitan School has been engaged for the vocal department of the Peterborough Conservatory. Thus it will be seen special care has been exercised in the selection of the very best musical instructors. The Peterborough ladies and gentlemen who have been engaged have all had wide experience, and those from Toronto are men who besides being artists of note, have come into prominence as most successful instructors.

There is a most encouraging outlook for the Conservatory of Music, and doubtless there will be a large number take advantage of its opportunities.

A Rare Chance.

For the balance of this week China Hall will place on sale all of its fine Ornaments, Vases, etc., at cost prices and under. This will be a great opportunity to get a good piece of China at cost price, and in some cases less than cost price. See the display in the south window—$15.00 pieces for $10.00; $10.00 articles for $6.00; $7.50 ones for $4.50, etc. One-third or more off everything in fine goods. Three days only, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Come hear Rev. Dr. Chown in St. Paul's church to-night. Subject, "Local Option" Discussion.

ONTARIO ELECTIONS

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lend, or agrees, or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, offices, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting, is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable, under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be seen from the above that neither of us can personally or through another, give or lend any money during the election.

PLEASING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. Jas. Stubbs Gives Fine Exhibition of Views in Charlotte St. Church.

The anniversary entertainment of the Charlotte-st. Methodist Sunday School, was held in the Sunday school room last evening. There was a large number of the scholars present and also many of the parents and friends. The programme was varied and interesting and proved highly enjoyable. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Jolliffe occupied the chair.

The main feature of the evening were the stereopticon views and moving pictures given by Mr. Jas. Stubbs, with the Edison Projecting Kinetoscope. Mr. Stubbs has given exhibitions with this machine in Peterborough several times, but he had added many new ones since his previous appearance here, and last evening the views thrown upon the canvas were very fine.

Mr. Stubbs told in eloquent language the story of the life of Joseph, illustrating his narrative with many beautiful colored pictures. Scenes in England, Canada and other countries were also shown. An illustrated recitation "Curfew must not ring tonight" by Mr Stubbs was another enjoyable contribution to the programme. The moving pictures were wonderfully clear and steady, the comic ones, such as "Irish Mike and the Steam Roller" provoking much amusement.

During the evening the Sunday school orchestra was heard to advantage in several numbers. Enjoyable phonograph selections were also given by Mr. Stubbs. A dialogue given by a score of the scholars was very well rendered and met with an enthusiastic encore. The entertainment was in every way satisfactory and enjoyable.

GOOD TEACHERS ARE VERY SCARCE

Department of Education Adopting Temporary Expedient.

LOW SALARIES THE CAUSE.

Great Lack of Properly Qualified Teachers for High Schools—Other Occupations are More Profitable—The Natural Remedy.

The opinion has been given out by Dr. Seath, Provincial High School Inspector, that owing to the scarcity of properly qualified teachers, the Department of Education may be forced to issue permits to teach in High Schools and Collegiate Institutes to teachers not having the required legal standing, until the next examination at the Normal College in Hamilton.

A gentleman interested in education, discussing the above subject this morning, stated that the natural remedy for the difficulty was an increase of salary for teachers. In order to qualify for the teaching profession it was necessary to put in four years at the University and one at a School of Pedagogy. The salaries offered at the present time were not sufficient to induce one to remain in the profession when opportunities, for which their education fitted them, existed and offered far better returns.

Dr. Seath reports a great lack of properly qualified teachers for High Schools. One principal told him that an advertisement for a teacher at a salary of $1,000 has been in the papers for a fortnight, without a single application having been received in reply. At another Collegiate there were two positions, carrying a salary of $1,000 and $800 respectively, waiting to be filled.

"In one case," Dr. Seath said, "I advised the School Board of a certain town to advertise again and offer higher salaries."

The cause of the scarcity is, according to Dr. Seath, the prosperous condition of the country and the greater inducements offered in other occupations. The only way to meet the difficulty, and one which many boards have been obliged to adopt, is to offer increased remuneration.

Desert Water Trails.

Countless men and women have perished in the deserts of the southwest for lack of rain. Yet had they known how to find it the water was there, often so close that a shallow well would have brought it, says the author of "The Land of Little Rain." There were numberless living things all about them, night traveling creatures, whose well worn trails would have led them to it. The trails begin far back in the scattering sands and hills and converge in a one span broad, white, hard trodden way in the gully of the spring, and why trails if there are no travelers in that direction?

The land is scarred by these thin, far roadways of rabbits and what not of furry folk that run in them. Venture to look for some seldom touched water hole, and so long as the trails run with your general direction you can be sure you are right. But if they begin to cross your path at never so slight an angle to converge toward a point to the left or right of your objective, no matter what the map says or your memory tells you, trust the trails. Their makers know.

"Tips" in the Land of Tips.

Hundreds of men who are fond of sport are compelled, says the London Mail, to refuse tempting invitations to country houses because of the "tipping terror" which is in them.

Here is the little "bill" which confronts the English country house visitor:

The coachman or chauffeur..........	£0	10
The butler who smiles at him......	1	0
The man who valets him..............	1	0
The head keeper who "places" him..	1	0
The under keeper who looks at him.	0	10
Total ($20)..............................	£4	0

The above items are based on a three or four days' shoot. For a fortnight's stay the figures would be nearly trebled.

In one large house a collection box is placed in the room of each guest. Into this box the guest places a general offering to indoor servants.

The hostess holds the keys of the boxes, and these are opened at the end of the season, when the contents are divided equally among servants.

Cold Congests the Kidneys

TO PREVENT INFLAMMATION SET THE KIDNEYS RIGHT BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Sitting in a draught, exposure to cold and dampness, sudden changes of temperature are the frequent causes of congestion of the kidneys.

Pains in the back over the kidneys may be your first warning.

Other symptoms are a constant and pressing desire to urinate. The urine is scanty and highly colored and sometimes passed with much pain and smarting.

Then there are headache, loss of appetite and flesh, deposits in the urine, sleeplessness, pains and cramps in legs, constipation and diarrhoea alternating and general feelings of discomfort and distress.

Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills bring relief and cure more promptly than any other treatment because of the direct and combined action on kidneys liver and bowels.

All the excretory organs work in sympathy and can greatly assist one another in carrying off the waste matter.

Hence it follows that when the kidneys, liver and bowels are at once invigorated by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills relief is prompt and certain.

If neglected constipation of the kidneys is almost sure to result in inflammation and Bright's disease.

Mr. R. Beach, 285 Sherbrooke st., Peterborough, Ont., states:— "About two years ago I became subject to cramps, which were caused, I was told from acute digestion. I was so bad that I would be laid up for weeks at a time. These attacks came on periodically and distressed me greatly.

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and have found them a wonderful medicine. They have entirely prevented a recurrence of my trouble, corrected the derangement of my digestive organs, and made me feel like a different person."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

TABLE TIPPING.

An Experience of Andrew Lang That is a Puzzle to Him.

I was once laying my hands alone on a little table which spun about the room. No doubt I moved it, but I did so "automatically." I did not consciously exert any force. I said, "Ask the table a question," and a lady remarked, "Where are the watches?" The table then tilted. The others used the alphabet in the ordinary way. I did not know what was tilted out, but they told me that the message was, "The watches are in Frank's pocket in the children's room." I asked, "What watches?" and the lady said, "I gave two to Frank to take to the watchmaker, and he does not know what became of them."

"No more do I," I said and thought no more about it. Frank was a boy, a nephew of the lady. I scarcely knew him by sight. Two months later when I was in France Frank's father, who had been present at the table tilting, wrote to tell me that I "was the devil!" The watches had just been found in an old greatcoat of Frank's in a drawer in the children's room, which was not a room in the house where the table was so well inspired. Nothing else of the sort ever happened to me. It was an "automatism." I did not know what the table "said" till I was told, and of the watches I knew nothing at all. I simply do not understand the case. But "spirits" did not even pretend to be mixed up in it. The least inconceivable psychic explanation is that Frank, who was at school, "wired" on to me without knowing it a fact which he had forgotten and that I without knowing it made the table tilt out the answer.

Frank at that time was a queer, visionary boy, "a sensitive," but to do all this was rather out of his line. The skeptical theory would be that Frank, having heard the story and accidentally come upon the lost watches, put them in the place where the table said they were, "and the same with intent to deceive." But I did not even know that there was a room in his father's house called "the children's room."—Andrew Lang in Harper's Magazine.

Names of Horses.

The practice of naming horses after eminent persons is common in England and France, but in Russia it is considered disrespectful by some judges of manners. A Russian sportsman has christened a promising filly Elenora Duse as a mark of his esteem for the celebrated actress. He is severely rebuked in the Russian papers. "If this should be tolerated," they say, "we shall be having horses called after Tolstoi and other national worthies. Nay, Kuropatkin himself will be saddled or turned out to grass. The censor ought to stop the abuse of the names of Christians. Is the holy synod asleep?" A Russian may call his dog Caesar or Pompey, for they were pagans, and their memory is not revered by members of the Orthodox church. But suppose some reckless subject of the czar should call his horse Pobiedonostzeff. What will the holy synod say then?—London Chronicle.

The Most Powerful Searchlight.

The most powerful searchlight ever designed or built was recently finished at the famous Schuckert works at Nuremberg, Germany, where the manufacture of giant searchlights has been made a specialty.

Some idea of the illuminating power of the great instrument may be gained from the fact that if it were possible to set it upon a hill or tower 800 feet high its rays could be detected from a distance of nearly eighty-five miles. Its candle power, at 316,000,000, is so great as to be almost incomprehensible in figures. When the searchlight for the Heigoland lighthouse was turned out at the Schuckert works some time ago it was considered a wonder, but its candle power is only 10,000,000.

Negotiations are in progress for securing this enormous instrument for one of the United States lighthouses.

The Leap Year Letter.

The "leap year letter" is written with a tiny bow of ribbon accompanying every line. Thus:

If for me your love is true
Send me back this bow of blue.
If you have another fellow
Just send back this bow of yellow.
If of me you often think
Do inclose the knot of pink!
If your jealousy is keen
Remember 'tis the bow of green.
If you care to see me no more
Send back the little lilac bow.
If on the contrary your love's aglow
Pin on a note this crimson bow.

New Use For Trolley Transfers.

A lawyer's clerk in Brooklyn has found an entirely new use for trolley transfers. His work necessitates a lot of car rides, and at the end of the first week his expense account for transportation seemed pretty large. His employer paid it doubtfully, and the next week the clerk to prove his honesty got a transfer ticket every time he boarded a car. He didn't use any of them, but filed them away in his pocket until pay day, when he turned them in to his boss as vouchers. His expense bill hasn't been questioned since.

Poverty in Russia.

The poverty of Russian peasants is instanced by recent figures showing that, notwithstanding the long nights, the average use of the cheapest kind of crude petroleum is only four or five quarts per head in a year. Much time for work is thus wasted. Many peasants remain in bed from 4 in the afternoon till 8 in the morning.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

Her heart beat tumultuously, and her whole form trembled. Her weak health made the agitation of her mind painfully evident—so much so that when a few moments later Sir Ralph was announced and walked into the dimly-lighted drawing-room he was absolutely shocked at Laura's appearance.

He took her hand, he looked into her face, but the commonplace words he had meant to say died unspoken on his lips.

"You are ill," he said at length, in a broken voice.

"Yes," she answered, almost in a whisper.

"I heard you had been ill, but—I did not expect to see you thus."

"I am nervous; anything upsets me now," said Laura, trying to take her hand from his, but Sir Ralph held it fast.

"How you tremble! Does it make you more nervous seeing me?"

"Yes—but I wished to see you," answered Laura with a great effort.

"And I have wished to see you; I have thought of this meeting hour after hour during the long dreary weeks since my accident."

Laura gave a fluttering sigh, and Sir Ralph led her to a seat on a couch near, and stood before her watching her face by the flickering firelight.

"What you have gone through!" he said, suddenly and passionately. "Your life of late has, I believe been terrible to you."

"I have suffered very, very much," answered Laura, in a broken voice.

"I can see it, I can see it! Laura do you know I came here to-day with a deliberate purpose—to ask you to end the struggle which is destroying you?"

"Yes, it must end," said Laura faintly.

"You shall never regret it," continued Sir Ralph; and he sat down by her and caught her hand in his. "My life shall be devoted to you, and as soon as it is possible we shall be married."

"No, no, that can not be," half-whispered Laura, drawing back.

"It must, it shall be! My dear, dear one, you love me do you not?"

"Yes," answered Laura, with faltering lips; "I will not deny it. The news of your accident—that wicked woman Anna Lindsay said your fatal accident—nearly killed me."

"Did this cause your illness?" asked Sir Ralph, eagerly, bending nearer to her. "I feared as much. I judged of your feelings by my own."

"Yes, Miss Lindsay read out of the paper that you had been thrown from your horse—and—and she added you were fatally injured. Oh, I shall never forget that dreadful day," continued Laura, rising excitedly. "When—when I recovered consciousness, I lay in misery—lay thinking you were dying—until the doctor told me."

Sir Ralph rose also, and went and leaned against the mantelpiece, and Laura saw by the firelight that his face was very pale and haggard.

"Are you really better now?" she said, more gently.

He put out his hand and drew her to him.

"When will you come to me, Laura?" he said. "When will you end all this?"

She did not speak, she stood there looking up at him, there was a great struggle in her heart.

"There would be no happiness for us," she said, presently, in a low, faltering voice.

"Oh, yes, yes, there would! Besides, is there any happiness for us now?"

"No, no, indeed," moaned Laura.

"Laura, what I told you before is absolutely true; had you cared for Mr. Gifford, did I not know that you care for me, I would never have urged this upon you; I would never have spoken to you of my love. The fault is not ours; that wretched girl parted us, and we have found this out when it is still not too late to snatch some sort of happiness at least."

"It could never be the same," said Laura, in a broken voice.

"I know that," answered Sir Ralph, half-impatiently, half-fondly. "No, never the same, Laura, as if you had married me long ago when I asked you first. But whatever it may be, it must be better than the living death you are suffering now."

For a moment or two Laura made no answer. She stood there by his side, her hand in his, and the flickering firelight showed her face to Sir Ralph's eager eyes.

"Of what are you thinking?" he asked, quickly.

"Give me a little time to think," answered Laura, slowly; "give me a few days."

"A few days will seem an age to me."

"I will write to you," went on Laura. "There is something I wish you to know—the reason why, when you asked me to be your wife, I said it could not be."

"No reason will affect me now, Laura."

"Still I wish you to know. I have thought this all over during my illness; I—have prayed for strength—"

"For strength for what?"

"To—tell you everything."

Her head dropped lower, and a moment later Sir Ralph saw a tear roll down her cheek.

"Do you not completely trust me?" he asked, tenderly.

"Yes, I trust you—completely trust you; but go now, Sir Ralph. I—I am not very strong."

"I know that very well, and I do not want to tire you. But when shall I come again?"

"Not until you get my letter—after that—"

"I shall come; do not be afraid. Nothing that you can write to me will change my feelings toward you; but if you wish me to go now—good-by. How soon will you write?"

"In a day or two—give me till then. Good-by."

She almost whispered the last word, and Sir Ralph remembered long afterward the yearning look of tenderness in her dark eyes as she raised them to his. He bent down; he kissed both her hands, and as the door closed behind him Laura fell on her knees and buried her face in her hands.

"Oh, God, give me strength—give me strength!" she prayed aloud. "Mine is all gone—give me strength to resist his will!"

It was piteous to see her kneeling there, struggling against the great temptation in her heart.

"Why was I born?" she asked, rocking herself to and fro in her misery. "But I must see him no more —I dare not see him now."

CHAPTER XXV.

Two hours later, when George came in for dinner, he found Laura sitting in the drawing-room, looking very pale, but composed. She mentioned Sir Ralph's visit, and said she thought he still looked very ill.

"Did he stay long?" asked George.

"No, only a short time; but talking has tired me, so I will say good-night, George."

"You had far better sit up for dinner; I met Anna coming in, and she said you ate nothing for lunch."

"No, I am too tired; good-night, George." And she held out her hand to him, but George bent down and kissed her face.

"Well, good-night, then," he said, and so they parted. But Laura did not retire to rest when she reached her own room. She locked the door first, and then went up to the brass-bound escritoire in which was hidden away the letter her dead father had left her. She drew this out and read it through once more, and a deep sigh died on her quivering lips. But this time she did not return it to the escritoire. She laid it on her ordinary writing-desk, and sat down and wrote a long letter, over which she shed many bitter tears. Then she addressed an envelope, and in this envelope she placed her own letter, and then that of her dead father's. She sealed this letter, and having put it in her desk, she commenced to write another letter, which seemed to cost her even more pain and trouble than the first.

"Poor fellow, poor fellow!" she murmured, as she wrote on. She paused for words; she sighed; she seemed half to repent her purpose.

"But no, no; I can bear it no longer," she said, half-aloud. "Anything is better than such a life—a life of misery, deceit, and lies."

So her second letter was written at last, and this also was placed in her desk, and then she lay down to rest, but not to sleep. All through the long winter's night, the long dreary hours, she lay awaked struggling still with her own heart. On one side lay a dimmed happiness, on the other well-nigh despair.

The gray morn found her pale and exhausted, and she sank into a restless slumber until the servant brought up her breakfast and letters about half-past eight o'clock. On one of these she seized eagerly and tore it open. Danvers Park was printed on the envelope, and it was from Lady Danvers. It was as follows:

"My Dear Mrs Gifford: I shall be delighted if you will come to me for a few days. I have heard with deep regret of your illness, and I am sure the change here will do you good. I also have been far from well, as I have never quite thrown off the effects of the bad cold which prevented my meeting you at Harewood in November. Therefore, we must help to nurse each other. Will you come tomorrow? And if you will, telegraph to me when you get this, and a carriage will be waiting to meet you whichever train you settle to travel by. My husband sends his kindest regards to you, and will be so pleased to see you, and I need not say that I shall. Please tell Mr. Gifford, with my compliments, that any day he can join you we shall be delighted.

"Always most sincerely yours,
"LUCINDA DANVERS."

Laura read this letter over, and then gave a sort of gasping sigh. Presently she rose, put on a dressing-gown, and rang the bell! When the maid answered it she sent her down with a message to George.

"Tell Mr. Gifford," she said, "that I wish to see him before he goes to the office this morning."

WITH SHAME AND GRIEF

Is Russia Covered Owing to Concealment of Facts.

Outspoken Article By the Russ Reveals Most Surprising Defects in the Russian Navy—Superhuman Task Imposed Upon Admiral Rojestvensky — 150,000,000 Roubles' Worth of Warships Lost—Criminal Waste of Time.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 28.—In an outspoken article in reply to a recent letter of Admiral Birileff, which appealed to the Russians not to openly criticize the condition of the navy, The Russ yesterday declared. "The time is passed for silence, in view of the fact that the 'old' system of concealing facts is responsible for the loss of 150,000,000 roubles' worth of warships, and has covered us with shame and grief. It would be absurd to hide defects that can still be repaired in the ships which remain at Cronstadt, and Libau. We have already criminally wasted enough time." The Russ enumerates the defects in the ships still in Russian waters, averring that the "peculiarities of structure of several of the vessels destined for the far east make the voyage dangerous, and the torpedo boats are in such a shocking condition that it is a matter of surprise that the authorities accepted their delivery. Torpedo boats intended to reinforce Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky must clearly not be despatched with the numerous defects that have been proved to exist in them." In conclusion The Russ says: "Even if Admiral Rojestvensky is a clever leader and his 12,000 comrades are heroic sailors, every one knows that we have imposed on them an almost superhuman task in consequence of our not being furnished with a true account of the gravity of the events which have occurred since the fatal night of February 8."

A Britisher Examined.

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Dec. 28.—The British steamer Bellarden, from Montevideo, December 4, which sailed from here yesterday for Antwerp, reports that a large Russian vessel steamed alongside of her on December 22 in latitude 11 north and longitude 23 west, examined her with the aid of two search-lights, and then withdrew eastward.

No News From Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Dec. 28.—No further news reached here yesterday from the defenders or besiegers of Port Arthur.

Red Cross Fund Suffers.

New York, Dec. 28.—A St. Petersburg despatch to The Herald, dated Dec. 26, says: Owing to the wholesale misappropriation of Red Cross funds and material, which has entirely estranged public sympathy, no one will subscribe to the fund. It is announced officially that a complete and thorough reorganization will be made. At the same time a loud outcry has been raised against the commissary department for having failed in its duties.

Possible Shortage of Food.

Since Prince Khilkoff has returned the trans-Siberian railroad has been working most erratically, causing much trouble, as the accumulated stores have been consumed, and now the army is depending upon what the railway brings. The cold is causing intense suffering.

Baron von Spaun Will Serve.

Paris, Dec. 28.—Admiral Baron von Spaun of the Austro-Hungarian navy, who, at the opening session in Paris, December 22, of the international commission to inquire into the North Sea incident, was unanimously elected the fifth member of that body, has agreed to serve on the commission.

Reid Slated For Britain.

Washington, Dec 28.—Secretary Hay and Assistant Secretary Loomis had a long conference with the president yesterday regarding the changes that are to be made in the diplomatic service on March 4. The talk with Mr. Hay related entirely to the changes among the ambassadors. After the conference it was formally announced that Whitelaw Reid will succeed Joseph H. Choate, as ambassador to Great Britain. W. W. Rockhill, chief of the bureau of American republics will succeed Edwin H. Conger as Minister to China.

Working Herself Through College.

Toronto, Dec. 28.—A despatch yesterday from Springfield, Ohio, stated that the long-missing Toronto girl, Anna Corkwell, has been found by her mother. She was working to pay for her tuition at college. "Her mother wanted her to come home, but she was averse to this."

Expansion of England.

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 28.—Great Britain has assumed control of the legal and financial administration of the Tonga Islands, the native chiefs consenting.

WELCOMED BY FARMERS

Heavy Rainfall Has Filled the Cistern and They Are Glad.

Frozen Ground Will Prevent the Soil, However, From Getting As Much Benefit As It Should—Rejoicing Over the Rainfall Are the Fruit-Farmers of the Niagara Peninsula—Blizzard in the West.

Toronto, Dec. 28.—The rain that fell yesterday will be of considerable benefit to the farming community. In many localities cisterns were dry and the farmers had to haul water a considerable distance for their stock. The fall of yesterday will replenish the cisterns to some extent and fill up the creeks.

The drought was, however, so long drawn out that the farmers were greatly retarded in their fall work. No rain had fallen for some months previous to yesterday, and the soil in many localities was so hard that the plow could scarcely go through it. The ground is now frozen up so hard that whatever water falls at this time will run off and the soil will not get the benefit it should.

In the Niagara Peninsula.

St. Catharines, Dec. 28.—The benefit from the heavy rainfall Monday night is widespread in the Niagara Peninsula and the suffering farmers could not have received a more welcome Christmas box. Every creek and pond in this district had been dried up because there had been no rain for months.

Monday night's heavy downfall was the first rain which has fallen here since October. People in Thorold, where there is no water-works system, were very thankful for the rain, for it filled up cisterns which had been dry for months. Many farmers were compelled to draw water for miles for their cattle, and many had sold their stock in consequence.

It was greatly feared that the winter would set in without rain, which would have been a calamity hard to estimate the consequences of. Never before in the history of the country has the Niagara Peninsula been so dry. As an example, it might be mentioned that the Twenty-mile Creek, which never before gave out, has been dried up for some time.

The rain is a particular boon to the fruit farmers, but in many cases it is feared that it comes too late to save the fruit trees. Though there is not yet enough water, even if no more comes, the situation is immensely improved.

Want It to Keep On.

Glen's Falls, N.Y., Dec. 28.—The long continued drouth which has seriously threatened the water supply in this section of the state was broken by the heavy rain which began yesterday. If the rainfall continues thirty-six hours, all danger of a water famine in this and nearby towns will be averted as sufficient water will be stored in reservoirs to last until spring.

Ice Causes Many Accidents.

Toronto, Dec 28.—The freezing rain was responsible for several accidents yesterday. Robert McNaughton, a caretaker at the Armories, had his ankle sprained and went to the Emergency.

Allan Sutherland, 706 Dundas street, fell on Victoria street and broke his right leg. He was taken to the General Hospital.

Mrs. Bake, 55 Nelson street, fell on Cumberland street, broke her right thigh and was taken to Grace.

John Johnston, G.T.R. brakeman, slipped from the icy roof of a freight car and was badly shaken up. He was taken to the Emergency.

On Sunday morning, Rev. Charles Duff, pastor of Brock avenue Congregational Church, fell and broke his left arm.

Arm Breaking in Berlin.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—The damage to fruit trees in this vicinity, although considerable, was not as great as had been looked for as a result of the storm. Farmers were up in the early hours, but to their great satisfaction found that in most cases the ice had dropped off the trees, leaving them practically unhurt. But the farmers are seriously handicapped by the vile condition of the roads. Telephone and telegraph wires were down in different parts of the country, interrupting communication during the greater part of the day, and a few lines are still closed. The slippery condition of roads and walks in town make traveling dangerous, both for vehicles and pedestrians. Several instances of persons breaking arms by falls have been reported.

Electric Wires Clogged.

Toronto, Dec. 28.—The railway despatchers have been bothered considerably during the past 24 hours by the ice-bound state of the wires, which created considerable confusion in the transmission of messages. The passenger train service was not hampered apparently, but movement of freight cars was held somewhat in check. Some local trouble was caused the C.P.R. lines at Galt, an electric wire breaking and falling across them during the morning. It was not until well on in the forenoon that working order was restored.

Worst Storm in Years.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—One of the most severe storms of recent years has raged between the Rocky Mountains and the great lakes yesterday, causing much trouble to street car, railroad and telegraph companies. The latter were the greatest sufferers, as the blizzard was preceded by a heavy fog and drizzling rain. The intense cold and terrific gale coated the wires with ice, and later threw the poles to the ground. Railroad trains were badly delayed, some being 24 hours late. Street car traffic practically was at a standstill.

Western Cities in Blizzard.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec 28.—This portion of the southwest was in the grasp of a genuine blizzard, which extended through Missouri into Oklahoma and Indian Territory. Snow fell to a depth of nearly a foot and, driven by a high wind, drifted badly. Railway trains in every direction were delayed. At some points, particularly north of Kansas City, in Iowa and Nebraska, telephone and telegraph wires were rendered useless by sleet for many hours. The thermometer was close to the zero mark, a fall of 35 degrees within 24 hours.

Fell 20 Degrees in Two Hours.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 28.—The blizzard that has been raging in the west struck St. Louis and vicinity yesterday and there was a fall of 20 degrees in temperature in less than two hours.

Traffic Tied Up.

New York, Dec. 28.—Rain and sleet, with rising temperature, following the recent heavy snowstorms, have greatly impeded traffic in and about New York. Telegraphic communication has been considerably handicapped, and nearly all through trains from the west and north are delayed owing to slippery rails. In the city the rain and sleet, which froze as soon as it struck the ground, made walking hazardous and inconvenient, and wherever there was a grade on the surface roads there was great trouble. On the elevated lines brilliant electrical displays marked the passing of trains over the ice-coated third rail.

Up through New York State many wires were down and those which were not could only be operated slowly. Service to Chicago was greatly delayed. In New England the conditions were better, but to many points business was moved slowly.

Many Vessels Weatherbound.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—The Maritime Exchange reports its wire from this city to the Delaware breakwater and intermediate stations in trouble. It is believed, however, that many vessels are in the harbor at the breakwater awaiting better weather. No vessels had arrived at this port up to 10 o'clock yesterday.

Snowstorm At the Capital.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—Ottawa is in the grip of a severe snowstorm, which has been raging since an early hour yesterday morning.

HAMILTON MAN'S TRIALS.

James Mills, Jr., Ejected From N.Y.C. Train and Arrested.

Utica, Dec. 28.—James M. Mills, jr., of Hamilton, Ont., son of James Mills, lawyer, of 2424 Seventh avenue, New York City, was ejected from a New York Central train in this city Monday night and locked up in police headquarters. As a result the railroad will be made defendant in a suit for damages.

Young Mills was on route from Hamilton, Ont., to New York, to spend the holidays with his relatives. He had a through ticket to the metropolis and occupied an apartment in a Pullman car. West of this city he had an epileptic fit, from which he quickly recovered. When the train reached Utica he was taken into custody on complaint, it is alleged, of the railroad authorities, who charged disorderly conduct.

Young Mills spent Monday night in the lockup, first, however, getting into communication with his father in New York over the long distance telephone. He explained his predicament and the elder Mills started at once for this city. Yesterday he secured his son's release from custody and the two went on to New York. The young man's father declares that he will institute an action for damages against the Central-Hudson Company.

WHAT DO YOU CARE? YOU'VE GOT YOUR HEALTH.

Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment—They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of to-day does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately starts to look up another. He always looks forward and keeps on hustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or even feels like it has either a small nature or some physical weakness.

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—resulting from the thousands and thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure. Wherein lies their greatness? In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the sound properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without let or hindrance to rest and grow sound and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That is what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only let it alone themselves but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact you forget you have a stomach when they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c. a box.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

First Death in Earl Grey's Retinue.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—The first death in Earl Grey's retinue occurred yesterday, when Ernest Fein, chief groom of the bed-chamber, died of pneumonia. He came out on the Bavarian about three weeks ago and was 28 years of age. It is said that like many other Englishmen when first coming to Canada, he despised an overcoat, and went skating on a cold day insufficiently protected. He caught a severe cold from which pneumonia developed. He will be buried in Beechwood Cemetery in the Rideau Hall plot.

Atlas Liner Ashore.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 28.—The German third-class cruiser Bremen, which returned here from Port au Prince, Hayti, reports that the Atlas Line steamer Valencia, from New York, Dec. 15, for Inagua, Cape Haytien, is ashore in a bad position at that place, and that she is likely to be a total wreck. The vessel is lying on her side in the mud and her decks are being washed by the sea. It is likely that the wrecking steamer Premier will go to the Valencia's assistance.

Fire At Rideau Hall.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—The new Governor-General and his family had an exciting time last evening, when fire broke out in the chapel at Rideau Hall. The body of the chief groom of the bed-chamber was placed in the chapel. In some way a blaze caught between the floors. The city brigade was called out, but the fire was extinguished with very slight loss.

The Pope and the Indians.

London, Dec. 28.—At the audience which the Bishop of New Westminster (B.C.) had with the Pope Monday. His Holiness made many enquiries regarding the bishop's diocese. The Pope was greatly interested to learn that it contained 10,000 Indian Catholics, and sent them a special benediction.

Bleeding Protruding Piles

Mrs. James Brown, Hintonburgh, Carleton, Co., Ont., writes:—"I suffered from nearly every form of piles for twenty years, both here and in the Old Country, and have tried nearly every remedy. I am only doing justice to Dr. Chase's Ointment when I say that I believe it to be the best remedy obtainable for bleeding and protruding piles, of which it has cured me."

New Year's Reception.

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. met a few evenings ago and outlined the programme for the annual Red Letter Day on Monday, Jan. 2nd, 1905. There will be a continuous musicale in the parlors from 2 to 5 on that day. Also games and gymnastic exhibition. A basket ball match with a visiting team is the feature for the evening.

PETERBOROUGH

A VENERABLE PASTOR CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

Pe-ru-na is a Catarrhal Tonic Especially Adapted to the Declining Powers of Old Age.

In old age the mucous membranes become thickened and partly lose their function.

This leads to partial loss of hearing, smell and taste, as well as digestive disturbances.

Peruna corrects all this by its specific operation on all the mucous membranes of the body.

One bottle will convince anyone. Once used and Peruna becomes a life-long stand-by with old and young.

Rev. J.N. Parker.

Strong and Vigorous at the Age of Eighty-eight.

Rev. J. N. Parker, Utica, N. Y., writes: "In June, 1901, I lost my sense of hearing entirely. My hearing had been somewhat impaired for several years, but not so much effected but that I could hold converse with my friends; but in June, 1901, my sense of hearing left me so that I could hear no sound whatever. I was also troubled with rheumatic pains in my limbs. I commenced taking Peruna and now my hearing is restored as good as it was prior to June, 1901. My rheumatic pains are all gone. I cannot speak too highly of Peruna, and now when 88 years old can say it has invigorated my whole system. I cannot but think, dear Doctor, that you must feel very thankful to the all loving Father that you have been permitted to live, and by your skill be such a blessing as you have been to suffering humanity."—Rev. J. N. Parker.

A Bishop's Letter.

T. H. Lomax, D. D., Bishop 2nd Dist. A. M. E., of Charlotte, N. C., writes:

"I recommend your Peruna to all who want a strengthening tonic and a very effective remedy for all catarrhal complaints."—T. H. Lomax.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The seniors had a good workout last evening in final preparation for to-night's big match with Queen's. Nearly all the team were out and showed up in good shape. The forward line is playing great hockey and should make things more than interesting for the Collegians' defence. "Maggie" Whitcroft had a workout with the team and showed that he had not lost any of his old time speed. It seemed quite natural to see his dazzling rushes.

The West End Hockey Club challenge any local junior team average age 16 or under to a game.

The locals are in fine shape for to-night's game, which should prove one of the fastest of the season. Dr. Lionel King, an old Peterborough forward, will referee the contest.

Queen's will have practically the same line-up to-night as on their appearance here last season. Knight will be found missing out their forward line, but his place will be filled by Jack Williams, one of the stars of the champion Beechgroves Frontenacs.

The Young Nationals defeated the Aberdeen on Monday in a fast game. The teams lined up as follows:—

Nationals—Goal, L. Giroux; point, C. Conroy; cover point, K. Pentland; forwards, E. Coughlin, J. Gorman, O. Giroux, M. Nicholl.

Aberdeens—Goal, H. Hickey; point A. Wade; cover point, H. Harrison; forwards, E. Ray, C. Lech, E. Harrison, W. Clancy.

Referee, M. Jamieson.

The ice is in fine condition for to-night's game with Queen's, and the match should be fast and exciting. It is the first senior game of the season, and a large crowd will likely be in attendance to get a line on the locals.

The usual weekly City League games will be played to-morrow night. The Farriers and Verniers meet in the first game at 8 p.m. This should be a good contest. The Farriers are very strong, but the Verniers have signed some good ones and are not to be despised. The Earl Greys and T.A.S. cross sticks for the second game, which should be an easy thing for the Abstainers, judging by the form displayed by the two teams in last week's games.

There certainly should be some star hockey players turned out here in a year or so. This year there are all kinds of junior teams with better uniforms than the O.H.A. teams of three or four years ago ever dreamed of having.

The juniors will play an exhibition game with Port Hope here on Friday night. This should be a good contest as both teams are evenly matched.

In all probability at the conclusion of the junior game on Friday night there will be a match between the senior team of 1897 and the present team. This will certainly be a great game, and an opportunity will be given of seeing the stars of years ago line up against the prize performers of the present day. Of the old team Wasson, goal; Hollingshead, cover; Graham, left wing; Lionel King, rover; Walter Phelan, centre, and Roger Davidson, right wing, are at present in town, and have agreed to play 15 minute halves. H. King will likely play point. This contest should attract one of the biggest crowds of the season. The present team will line up as follows:—Goal, Fitzparick; point, Ford; cover point, Crowley; forwards, Morgan, Pargellm Cavanah, Whitcroft and Hall.

A meeting of the City League Executive was held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The following players applied for and were granted certificates—

Earl Greys—Percy Doughty.

Verniers—H. Ellis, W. Miller, M. Miller and Frank Bradburn.

T.A.S.—T. McGrath and T. Defarge.

The following amendment was brought in and carried—

That all players who have ever played Senior or Intermediate hockey—exhibition games excepted and excepting those who have already been granted certificates—be debarred from participating in any schedule game of the City League, and when a player leaves the City League for any other—Guild League excepted—he forfeits his certificate and right of a player in the City League, excepting in the case of an exhibition game.

It was decided that all games must start exactly on time, the first at 8 p.m., and the second immediately after the first.

The Peterborough team for to-night will be as follows:—

Goal—Wasson.
Point—Ford.
Coverpoint—Crowley.
Rover—Cavanah.
Centre—Parnell.
Right Wing—Morgan.
Referee—Dr. Lionel King.

The Karhot hockey team will practice tonight after the hockey match, when the following players are asked to be out—Dormer, Craig, Winch, O'Detta, Gross, Campbell, Gilmon, Quinn, Allen, B. Patterson, Martin, Distin and Kingscote. The team to play in Bobcaygeon on Friday night will be picked at this practice.

THE RING AND MAT.

The following letter has been received from B. W. Green, the little Englishman who was knocked out in the third round last Friday night:—

Sporting Editor,
Peterborough Review.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly put the following notice in your paper. I claim that my fight with Pete Barry at the Bradburn Opera House, Peterborough, last Friday night was not justice, that I knocked out my thumb in the first round, and that the blow that won the fight for him was only a chance blow, he landing the blow when I was away back on the side where the people could not see me. I dropped my hands to walk to the centre of the ring as I thought the referee had nodded for me to do so. Hearing that the same club are about to put on another show within a couple of weeks, I would like to meet Barry for 15 rounds at 122 pounds. I think he weighed more last Friday night; a purse to be put up and winner take all. I am confident that I can wipe out the defeat that Barry is credited with winning. A match can be made by means of an answer through this paper. Hoping to see an answer soon, I remain, yours,

BERT W. GREEN,
115 pound Champion,
Birmingham, England.

CHRISTMAS "AT HOME."

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Meldrum was the scene of a pleasing "At Home" yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Meldrum received and entertained her friends between four and six o'clock and was assisted by Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Bradd, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. W. H. Robertson and Miss Caldwell. The young ladies in the tea room were Miss Lillian Hall, Miss Jennie Hall, Miss Eva Bradd, Miss Irwin and Miss Mollie Meldrum. The appropriate Christmas decorations of the house were very effectively arranged, holly being extensively used. In the evening Mrs. Meldrum gave a delightful dance for her daughter, Miss Mollie Meldrum, who is home from Branksome Hall, Toronto, for the holidays. About seventy of her friends were present.

Interest From Start to Finish

Referring to the lecture delivered by Rev. Father Kelly, of Lapeer, Mich., who spoke in Charlottetown, P.E.I., the Daily Patriot says:—"For over an hour the refreshing stream of his eloquence flowed on, reaching deep channels of thought, and anon changing into cataracts of more brilliant oratory with the rainbows of wit beautifying the fiery imagery. Apt stories inimitably told, original ideas incomparably expressed, an appealing doctrine forcibly expounded, were features of an address that compelled interest from start to finish." Rev. Father Kelly lectures in the Opera House, Peterborough, on Monday evening, January 2nd, in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital and House of Providence.

—The report of a presentation of a valuable set of silver knives to Mrs. Stubbs by her young ladies Bible class in George-st. church, as well as considerable other local matter is held over until to-morrow.

There Will be Two New Faces on the Separate School Board.

Nominations for Separate School Trustees were held this afternoon in Murray-st. school, and the result is an election by acclamation in every ward. There will be two new faces at the Board, Mr. J. R. Burns from Ward 3, who takes Mr. J. J. Lynch's place, it being that gentleman's intention to stand for Alderman. Mr. T. J. Lane will fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Mr. Clancy.

Following are the nominations, their movers and seconders:—

Ward 1—M. L. Henry, by J. Goslin and D. Hobbins.

Ward 2—James Murty, by J. Hickey and J. Clancy.

Ward 3—J. R. Burns, by J. J. Lynch and J. Murty.

George Ball, by J. Murty and J. J. Lynch.

Ward 4—T. J. Lane, by J. Clancy and J. Hickey.

Ward 5—Jas. Hourigan, by J. Hickey and George Ball.

On the expiration of the time Mr. John Corkery, the clerk, declared the candidates named for the respective wards, elected by acclamation as stated above.

PERSONAL.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been nominated for Alderman, I have, at the request of a large number of my friends, consented to become a candidate.

I earnestly ask your votes and influence, and will, if elected, do all in my power to safeguard your interest and to advance the welfare and prosperity of our enterprising town.

Thanking you in anticipation of your generous support, and wishing you all the compliments of the season. I remain,

Your obedient servant,

J. J. LYNCH.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having been nominated for Alderman, I again solicit your vote and influence.

During the past four years that I have had the honor and privilege of representing you, I have endeavored to discharge my duty and responsibility of the office in a faithful and zealous manner.

I do not intend to make a personal canvass, but take this means of soliciting your support.

If elected I will fill the position as well as in the past.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am,

Your obedient servant.

JOSEPH BATTEN.

Peterborough, Dec. 27, 1904.

TO THE ELECTORS.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the urgent solicitation of a number of ratepayers of Peterborough, I have accepted nomination as Alderman for 1905.

As it will be impossible for me to make a personal canvass, I take this opportunity of soliciting your vote and influence.

If elected my voice and vote will always be found advocating measures calculated to advance the interests of our town, in the prosperity of which I am so largely interested.

Wishing you a prosperous and happy New Year.

I am, yours truly

ADAM HALL.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Your vote and influence are solicited in my interest as Alderman for 1905. If elected I will endeavor to look after your interests in a faithful, earnest and intelligent manner. I am personally known to a large number of you, and trust that you will give me your support.

My views on the issues of this campaign I hope to place before you on Thursday night, and, if they meet with your approval, I trust you will not forget me on election day. I do not intend to make a personal canvass. Wishing you all a bright and happy New Year, I remain, yours obediently,

THOS. J. BEGLEY.

Election of Aldermen.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been again nominated for Alderman for a second term, I have consented to become a candidate and solicit you vote and influence.

My past twelve months' experience at the Council Board justifies me in saying that every effort is necessary to judiciously restrain the annual expenditures of the town. Should you again honor me with your support my aim will be to safeguard the interests of the town by such economic expenditure as is consistent with the welfare of our growing municipality.

Your obedient servant,

ROBERT HICKS.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

At the request of a large number of friends, I offer myself as a candidate for Alderman of the Town of Peterborough for 1905.

It is impossible for me to make a personal canvass of all the electors, and I take this means of soliciting your vote and influence. Although my nomination is endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council, I retain a free hand to act in the best interests of the masses, and will give my best efforts to safeguard and advance the interests of all citizens.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year, I remain, yours respectfully.

JOSEPH CROWE.

Municipal Council of 1905.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

As a candidate for election to the Municipal Council of 1905, I solicit your assistance to effect my election.

I am in favor of municipal ownership of our utilities and a strong policy to encourage the location here of additional manufactures. By push and energy I think this can be accomplished, and if favored with your preference I will endeavor to show that my work will merit approval.

Yours respectfully,

G. J. TOVEY.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

A. A. McINTYRE

Respectfully requests your vote and influence in his favor as a candidate for Alderman for the year 1905.

If elected, he will use every effort in support of economic government, and give the same careful attention to the best interests of the town as he would do to his own business.

He wishes all his fellow citizens a happy and prosperous New Year.

A CARD.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Having been requested by a large number of ratepayers to stand for election for Alderman for the coming year, and I am opposed to personal canvassing, I take this means to let you know that I am in the field, and ask for your hearty support. If elected I will endeavor to do my duty for the best interests of the town.

Wishing you the compliments of the season.

I am, yours respectfully,

JAS. CLANCY.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been nominated for the position of Alderman on the Municipal Council for 1905, and having decided to enter the contest, I take this means of respectfully asking your support. It is not my intention to make a canvas, as I do not believe that is the most advisable manner in which to place one's self before the electorate, but in the event of my election I will devote myself, to as great an extent as possible, to the best interests of the town, giving them as close and undivided attention as I would the transaction of my own business.

I take pleasure in wishing you the compliments of the season.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT H. LEARY.

Christmas Bargains

The Aftermath of Christmas !

The holiday shopping is all over, and the store is beginning to settle down to normal ways again. Our Christmas business was greater than it has ever been before, and our vast stock was pretty well picked over. Of course, this picking leaves in its wake many things that are tumbled and bedraggled, and these have no place in a clean, fresh stock. So we've put them out and put hurry-out prices on them, just to make them tempting. Intrinsically, just as good as ever, merely lost a part of their good looks, that's all, and for this you get the reduction on

THE QUALIFICATION OATH.

These Who Registered for Dominion Election Will Have to Repeat That Formality.

The days of registration in Peterborough for the Provincial election will be Friday, Saturday and Monday, January 6th, 7th and 9th. The Board for Peterborough consists of his Honor Judge Weller, Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., police Magistrate, and Mr. John Moloney, local registrar. Persons who registered for the last Dominion election will have to repeat the formalities in order to have a vote.

Following are the clauses of the oath to be taken for qualification by an applicant for registration.

1. That you are a British subject and are of the full age of 21 years.
2. That you have resided within the province 12 months next preceeding the 6th of January, 1905.
3. That you are now and were on the said day and for 3 months next preceeding the same, a resident of and had your home in this municipality.
4. That you now reside at (street and number).
5. That you are not entered on the revised list of voters, &c. &c., entitled to vote.

Exceptions are made in the case of lumbermen working out of the County, of College students and of mariners.

PEAT FUEL COMPANY.

New Concern Which Makes an Auspicious Start—Satisfactory Test.

Announcement has been made of the incorporation of the Condensed Peat Fuel Company, with a capital of $40,000, and head office in Peterborough. The incorporators are Ernest Vivian Moore, mining engineer; Alfred Lawrence Davis, insurance agent; David Henry Moore, Crown timber agent; George Morrice Roger, barrister-at-law, Peterborough and Walter Alan Sadler, of the City of Toronto.

The property on which the new Company will conduct operations is situated near Victoria Road. It is understood that the process to be adopted in the manufacture of peat entails considerably less expense than any other hitherto adopted, great outlay having formerly been necessitated in means of artificial drying. Although none of the peat made by the new Company has been placed on the market, it has received a test and been found to be most satisfactory.

TRADES COUNCIL MET.

A well attended meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held last evening, with the president, Mr. George Stone in the chair. The feature of the occasion was an address by Ald. Frank Adams on his by-law, which provides for a vote being taken on the question as to whether a change is desired in the payment for granolithic walks from frontage to general tax.

This question is one which is receiving considerable attention by the Trades and Labor Council and one of the planks of their municipal platform refers particularly to this department of expenditure. Ald. Ad-

EXPRESS TRAIN KILLS HORSE

The T. Lush Bakery Rig Meets With Another Adventure.

THE HORSE WANDERED AWAY

Engine Struck the Animal, Barely Missing the Rig—Driver Was Delivering Bread on Perry Street—An Unfortunate Occurrence.

A few days ago T. Lush's bakery rig had a close shave from demolition by a street car. Last night it had another mishap, and, while the rig itself was not damaged, the horse was given a rapid transit to the happy hunting grounds. Shortly after five o'clock, Jas. Downing was delivering bread on Perry-st., near Park. While he was dispensing the staff of life to one of the houses the horse wandered away and proceeded across the C.P.R. track on Park-st. when the express west bound swooped down on the outfit. It was all over in a second. The life of the horse was snuffed out, and he was cut off from the rig as nicely as though a huge knife had done the job.

It was a very unfortunate accident, and it appears that no blame can very well be attached to anyone, except the horse, whose undoing was caused by an inclination to wander. In moving quickly from house to house it can hardly be expected that a baker should repeatedly tie his horse. The bread in the rig was removed to Mr. R. C. Braund's store for the time being. The horse was 15 years old.

CHRISTMAS-TIME WEDDING

Miss Alberta M. White to Mr. Thomas E. Greystock of Otonabee.

One of the pretty weddings of Christmas time was solemnized at the home of Mr. Benjamin White, Smith township, last evening, at 6.30. The bride was his daughter, Miss Alberta M. White, and the groom was Mr. Thomas E. Greystock, of Otonabee. The home was very effectively decorated in holly and evergreen. Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of George-st. Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride, who was unattended, wore a handsome travelling gown of plum colored suiting, with white silk waist, which was trimmed with very old lace and chiffon. Among the many beautiful presents to the bride was a gold watch and chain, the gift of the groom.

An excellent wedding dinner was served after the ceremony, Mr. Harry Long catering.

Mr. and Mrs. Greystock will reside

OLD RESIDENT GONE

Demise of Thomas Murphy of Ennismore At Age of Ninety-three.

The death occurred last evening at St. Joseph's Hospital of Mr. Thomas Murphy, one of the oldest and most respected residents of the township of Ennismore. The deceased had reached the ripe old age of ninety-three.

The late Mr. Murphy was born in Ireland in 1812, and came to this country in 1825, settling near Cobourg. Seven years after he came to Ennismore, where he has lived ever since. He was known and liked throughout the district, his amiable qualities and kindly disposition endearing him to all. His death is mourned by his wife, two daughters and a son. The daughters are Mrs. L. Lyons, of Rochester, N.Y. and Mrs. F. S. Fleuchaus, of Utica, N.Y. and the son is Thomas Murphy, who is in Dakota.

The funeral will take place at 8.30 o'clock on Saturday morning from the residence of his nephew, Mr. John Shanahan, [illegible] McDonnel street, to St. Martin's church, Ennismore and thence to the Ennismore Cemetery for interment.

DEATH OF MRS. DEVLIN.

The many friends of Mr. W. J. Devlin, Hunter-st., will be grieved to hear of the loss he has sustained in the death of his beloved wife, Ellen Halpin, which unhappy event occurred this morning. The deceased has been ailing for about nine months and her death was not unexpected. She was forty-five years of age. She had always been a most faithful wife and loving mother, and her taking off will be a great loss to her family.

Her husband and five children survive her. The children are Loretta, Joseph, Agnes, Veronica and Mary all living at home. Mr. Cornelius Halpin of town is father of the deceased and Messrs John, Michael and Thomas Halpin, of town and Mr. Patrick Halpin, of Toronto, are brothers. Miss B. Halpin, Lake-st., is a sister.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 263 Hunter-st., to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery for burial.

LET US FORGET.

Don't forget that nearly 90 per cent of the clergymen of Ontario are denouncing the Ross Government for their acts during the past five years.

Don't forget that honest Conservatives punished their leaders by voting them out of power. Let honest Liberals follow their example.

Don't forget that the Globe said there were barnacles on the ship of state and that they are still in the same old place.

Don't forget that honest Liberals all over the country are denouncing the crookedness of the Ross Government and its machine.

Don't forget that there is lumber enough on the opposition side of the house to make two or three Cabinets as good as the one now in charge in Ontario.

Don't forget that the importation of bogus ballot boxes was only one more step forward in the crooked work of a certain section of the Liberal party.

Don't forget that in two out of the three election trials this fall against Conservatives the judges decided there was no corruption.

Don't forget that Mr. Ross has to go back 20, 30 and 50 years to get cases of Conservative corruption to offset the awful work on West Elgin and the Soo.

Don't forget that the receiver is as bad as the thief.

Don't forget that the Government through its attorney-general's department has screened the members of the "machine" by not prosecuting them.

Don't forget to contrast the Mowat Cabinet of giants (Mowat, Pardee, Hardy, Fraser and Ross) with the pigmies now in office.

Don't forget that Mr. Ross promised a prohibition measure and then refused to give it because his party might lose a few seats.

Don't forget the Minnie M. and the Yankee pluggers.

Don't forget that Mr. Ross had Mr. Gamey's letter in his private desk.

Don't forget that the West Elgin ballot boxes were burned while in the custody of the Government in the legislative buildings in Toronto.

Don't forget that there is a school book monopoly.

Don't forget that the Government claimed to have a surplus of nearly eight millions, but that the auditors could find less than two millions.

Don't forget that Pritchet swore he had a class of deputy returning officers teaching them how to switch ballots.

Don't forget that the Ross Government is a goner, so get in the band waggon and send a supporter from West Peterborough.

OTONABEE COUNCIL

Business Transacted at the Last Regular Meeting.

Council met pursuant to statutory enactment; all the members were present.

The Councillors appointed to arrange for an outlet for "R. Doris" drain, reported that the parties interested arranged the matter themselves.

The clerk was instructed to bill H. P. Kennedy with $2, Inspector McCallister's charge for inspecting his slaughter house, and found unsanitary, and M. Y. Crowly, $1.00 for Inspector McCallister visiting his farm and ordering a dead animal to be buried. On motion Wm. Stewart's dog tax was refunded as the dog had been removed out of the municipality and paid tax in another municipality. The reeve was authorized to sell trees on the road allowance opposite lot 15, concession 13 and 14.

The reeve resigned his office with a view of becoming a candidate for County Councillor. Councillor Moore also intimated that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the council for next year. The following accounts were passed:—Robert Carey, clerking at the Armstrong sale, $1.50; Daniel Hayes, damages for road through his farm for drawing gravel, $4.00; Wm. Nelson, cedar, $6.00; Hastie rep. account, $5.05; R. Hope, sawing bridge covering, $4.03; wood for J. Douglas, $2.00; M. Y. Crowley, gravel, $24.90; S. Thorn, gravel, $4.00; Jas. Rose, repairing water trough, 50 cents; Wm. Wedlock, plank, $55.27; John Dinsdale, sanitary inspector, $4.50; Wm. McCallister, $16.00; D. McCarthy, gravel, $2.20; Indian department, gravel, $2.40; R. W. Esson, picking stones off road, $1.25; Z. Renwick, drawing gravel for cement culverts, $1.50; W. Drummond and A. Shearer, making cement culverts, $43.75; J. Deyell, gravel, $9.82; R. J. H. Short, gravel, $18.78; N. Doris, drawing gravel for culverts, $6.60; S. Mather, rep. account, $2.35; D. Kelly, gravel, $14.30; J. A. Drummond, 90 cents; S. Clancy, rep. account, $3.50; John Deyell, sessional allowance, $22.00; road commissioner, $15.00; J. Fife, sessional allowance, 24 R.C., $15.00; J. Carey, sessional allowance, 24 R.C., $15.00; J. Moore, sessional allowance, 22 R.C., $15.00; W. J. Porter, sessional allowance 22 R.C., $15.00.

NORWOOD'S WEEKLY BUDGET

Many People Spent Their Christmas There —Nominations for County and Township Councillors and School Trustees.

Norwood, Dec. 21, 1904.

Nomination of County Councillors was held in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon, Dec. 19. Councillors W. T. Buck, of Asphodel and Thos Curtis, of Havelock, are again candidates. Mr. Jas. Andrews, former Reeve of Asphodel, is also in the field.

After the official nomination Mr Chas. O'Reilly was appointed to the chair and called on each of the candidates for a speech.

Councillors Curtis and Buck reviewed the work of the County Council during the past term and thought they were justified in asking the renewed confidence of the electors.

Mr. Andrews thought a good thing should go around and as a County Councillor got a good education and enlarged views by coming in contact with men of weighty judgment and wide experience, he asked the ratepayers to return him on polling day.

Previous to her departure from Norwood, Miss Newton, who has been teaching in the senior room of the Public School during the Model school term, was presented by her pupils with a beautiful fountain pen.

Mr. David Harrison has purchased from Mr. Robt. Stewart, his brick house on Pine street, at present occupied by Mr. Jas. McCracken, for the sum of $800.

A RUNAWAY

A team of horses belonging to Mr. T. Smith, attached to the bus, were left standing in front of the McGregor House on Saturday morning, previous to meeting the local, and when the driver returned in a minute or two he found the horses missing. A search was made and the bus was found in front of Mr. T. Rabid's house near the Catholic church but the horses were not found till after 5 o'clock in the evening. When found they were regaling themselves at Fitzpatrick's straw stack, about three miles this side of Warsaw, having gone about nine miles. One of the horses was somewhat cut about the legs, but otherwise they appeared to be none the worse of their run.

Mr. D. Pettigrew is spending Christmas at the home of his father, Dr. Pettigrew, Peterborough.

Among others we noticed the following who spent Christmas here:—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. F. Campbell at Mr. J. B. Pearce's; Mr. Alex. Calder at Mr. Jas Calder's; Mr. Jno Moore at Mr. C. J. Seright's; Mr. Arthur Hall at Mr. F. J. Pearce's; Mr. Russell Pearce at Mr. J. B. Pearce; Mr and Mrs. B Mowray at Mr. Geo. Livingston's; Mr. C. H. H. Wender at Miss Stewart's; Mr. John Harper, of Peterborough at Mr. Jas. Harper's; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Squire at Mr. Jas Harper

The nominations on Monday evening in the Town Hall were largely attended and resulted in a large number of candidates being entered in the field both for Councillors and School Trustees.

The nominations for Reeve were Messrs. A. Breault and C. E. Pakenham For Councillors—Messrs. H. Fry, Wm. Spence, B. W. Squire, Wm Webster, Thos. Waller, Coleman Elliott, A. B. Greenbank, C. J. Searight, Hugh Scott and F. H. Bert. For School Trustees the three retiring members were nominated, viz. Messrs. J. T. Squire, P. W. Reynolds and Thos. Robson and also Messrs. A. S. Harrison, Thos. Waller, Jas. Ruddan, J. Doherty, H. Drain and W. H. Brethon.

There will be a contest for Reeve as both nominees said they would stay in the field. We understand the old council will seek re-election and sufficient of the other gentlemen nominated will stay in the field to make a lively contest.

The office of School Trustees will be hotly contested as there are a good number of excellent candidates to choose from.

Christmas passed off very quietly in our little town. The day was so cold and there not being any rink the people stayed in pretty generally and very little stir was seen on the streets.

The Christmas entertainment in the Baptist Church was well patronized and all who attended had a happy and enjoyable time.

NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION.

The annual New Year's reception of the Y.M.C.A. will be held on Monday, Jan. 2nd, from 2 to 6 p.m. The special features include a calender exhibit and an exhibit of painting and drawing by Miss Amy Bennett's class. There will be a short programme in the gym from 4 to 5, besides games and a musicale in the parlors. All young men are invited to call at the building and enjoy a good time.

CHRISTMAS REMEMBRANCE

Mrs. Stubbs' Bible Class Present Her With Set of Silver Knives.

The members of Mrs. Stubbs' young ladies' Bible class of the George-st. Methodist church Sunday school honored their teacher in a very appropriate and pleasing way at this gladsome season of the year, when they assembled and presented her with an elegant set of silver knives, accompanied by the following address:—

Dear Mrs. Stubbs,—Once more the wheel of time has brought us the happy Christmas tide, the season of thanksgiving and thank-offerings; the great Christian festival that is so intimately associated with warmth, light and joy, that gives to those that are privileged to enjoy it, year by year, an overflowing kindliness and earnest desire, that on this day at least all shall be happy, and we find none more deserving of our remembrance than our dear teacher.

We are bound together by ties of love and friendship, and, as unity is strength, we should be a great power for good in the service of our Master.

We would ask you to accept this little gift accompanied by our love and esteem, and best wishes for a very merry Christmas and many happy and prosperous years to follow.

Signed on behalf of your School class.

ETHEL MILLER.

Mrs. Stubbs thanked the young ladies for their great kindness to her and spoke of the pleasure it had given her, to be associated with the class so many years, and the encouragement and help she had received from them in the Sunday school work. She wished them a happy holiday time.

FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Not an Unusual Instance

"I used Pyramid Pile Cure and have not had any trouble since. I have been a sufferer with piles for twenty years. I think it is the best remedy on earth for piles. Hoping this may help others to use this remedy." Mrs. J. D. Teller, R. F. D. 20, Sparta, Mich.

It is a singular fact that although many women suffer from piles or hemorrhoids, they frequently do not have proper treatment because of a delicacy women have in mentionion such a subject. Especially is this the case with those who have no husband or brother in which they can confide; and a physician is seldom consulted until the pain and agony incident to piles becomes unbearable.

Thousands of women have suffered longer than did even Mrs. Teller, always experiencing slight or temporary relief, if any, from the various remedies used and finally settling down to the conviction that a cure in their cases was impossible. Pyramid Pile Cure has come as a boon to all such, as it seldom, if ever, fails to effect a permanent cure. It is sold by druggists for fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address, upon receipt of price. Absolute secrecy is guaranteed, and no name is ever used without the consent of the writer.

It is suggested that those interested write to Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the causes and cure of piles, as it is free for the asking.

Lever's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is better than other soap powders, as it also acts as a disinfectant.

LATE T. J. BYERS.

Was a Resident of Peterborough for About Twelve Years.

The funeral of the late Mr. T. J. Byers took place Tuesday at Omemee and was very largely attended by friends, who in his death deeply deplore the loss of one whom they held in his esteem. The late Mr. Byers was for 12 years a resident of Peterborough, and proved himself in every way a citizen worthy of the high place which he held in the regard of those with whom he came in contact. He is survived by a wife, three sons and two daughters—Sidney and Herbert, of Winnipeg. Bert, of town; Mrs. W. Mitchell and Miss K. Byers, of town. The brothers are William, of Millbrook. John W., Mrs. S. Cunningham, Miss Caroline and Mrs. Vincent, of Peterborough. The late T. J. Byers was a member of St. Luke's church.

Test the Kidneys

Allow the urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time it is clouded or has left a sediment at the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. As a means of invigorating the action of the kidneys and making them strong and healthy, there is no preparation so prompt and none so thorough as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

ACCLAMATION IN DUMMER

Reeve and Township Councillors Returned Without Opposition.

The municipal nominations for the office of Reeve and Councillors for the township of Dummer for the year 1905 was held in the town hall, in the village of Warsaw, on Monday, the 26th day of December, 1904, at the hour of 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The Reeve and Councillors of the past year were nominated. After the hour to receive nominations expired the following names were declared elected by acclamation, viz:—Christopher John Darling, Reeve; and William Miles, James J. McDonald, John A. Patterson and Edward Martin Councillors for 1905.

There will be an election for County Councillor, as Messrs. E. Hawthorne, D. Moloney and Thos. Webster are standing for election for the 5th division of the County Council of the County of Peterborough.

HARRY COWIE IS EDITOR

A copy of the Winston Mail, Arizona, has been received, and it is a pleasure to note that Mr. H. E. Cowie, son of Mr. Wm. Cowie, of town, and who received his early newspaper experience in Peterborough, is editor. The paper is newsy and bright, and is undoubtedly appreciated by the people of Winston. The copy received is dated December 24th, and an item of interest reads as follows:—

"The Winston Fire Department have arranged a splendid series of sports, including saddle races, burro races, Indian pony races, and a variety of other sports with which they will endeavor to entertain the citizens of Winston and vicinity at the baseball grounds to-morrow afternoon (Sunday, Dec. 25th), commencing at one o'clock."

Over in Arizona they do not allow Sunday to have any significance when it cuts in on a day like Christmas.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS--1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received, at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is, the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandizement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

WHERE CROWDS JOSTLE AND PUSH

Very Poor Accommodation For Rush at Postoffice.

WOMAN'S PURSE WAS STOLEN

Great Discomfort Experienced — Clothing Damaged in the Crush — Christmas Week Revealed That Peterborough Is Only a Country Village as Regards Postoffice Facility.

During the past few days many evidences of the lack of accommodation at the post office have come to general notice. The utter absurdity of only one public delivery wicket has been emphasized over and over again. Tuesday, for instance, and on Monday large crowds pushed and shoved in order to get their turn. Men, women and children were in the mix-up, and the discomfort and dissatisfaction must have been very great. Just how long this condition of things in conection with the Peterborough post office will continue is not definitely known, although for some time improvements have been talked of. The general public are justified in looking for a change some time prior to the next general election.

Mrs. Bushnell reports that Tuesday while standing in the crowd waiting for her mail at the post office her purse, containing the sum of $8.00, was snatched from her hand, and she found it impossible to move in order to locate the thief.

Another lady states that Monday morning she had eight fur tails on her collarette, but when she had escaped from the crowd about the wicket there were only four left.

A little girl standing in one corner of the office on Saturday presented a pitiable spectacle. She had endeavored to get as far as the wicket with a present for some friend. On her way there, however, the parcel was knocked out of her hand, and with big tears in her eyes she looked at the remnants, which had passed through the grind of a couple of hundred feet.

"There has been a parcel in that office for me for the last three days," indignantly remarked an old man yesterday. "but every time I get here there is a great big crowd in front of the wicket and I can't get near it."

The above are only a few of many instances that came under general notice, and point to the entirely inadequate accommodation of the post office here. There will be mighty little glory here in the Mulock surplus as long as these conditions remain. The Peterborough office is one of the most profitable in Ontario, and it is unreasonable that it should have dimensions which are in fact smaller than those in many a town half the size.

Tired all the Time

Mrs. George Beattie, Carr's Brook, Colchester, Co., N.S., writes:—"Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time, and did not seem to have life or energy, enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good, and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends."

An Upset.

Mr. George Cochrane, County Constable, and Mr. Jas. G. Armstrong, one of the candidates for the reeveship in Smith, had a spill while coming down Smithtown hill yesterday. The cutter slewed around and upset the occupants, who escaped without injury.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

SHOVEL COMPANY MAY NOW PROCEED WITH OPERATIONS

when the Company had recently placed some of their material on the premises, he was surprised since he had received no notice from the Trust Commissioners. He felt that he still wished to retain possession of the lot, and expressed the opinion that there was much vacant property in town suitable for manufactory purposes. He, however, did not wish to stand in the way of any Company which the Council saw fit to encourage.

Mayor Roger reviewed the history of the case, and had decided that the best thing to do was to bring all of the parties together to thresh it out.

Mr. D. O'Connell pointed to the necessity of immediate action in the adjustment of the difficulty. The Company had been assured, he understood, that there would be no trouble in getting the lots required, and were willing to comply with a by-law which would enable them to get on the grounds immediately. Arrangements had been made for the erection of a foundation, and it was this material that Mr. Kennedy complained of. The erection of the buildings would be lengthwise from Perry street, with a railway siding between and it would be necessary to encroach 46 on the buildings owned by Mr. Kennedy. The latter was regarded as an over-holding tenant, and it was for the Council to say immediately whether the Company was to be allowed access to the property for the purpose of erecting a factory. If the lot in question could not be obtained another would have to be secured either in this town or in some other.

Mr. W. H. Moore, the chairman of the Town Trust Commissioners held that they had little to say in the matter, but rather were governed by the Council. If the land was not required for any purpose such as referred to, the Commissioners would allow Mr. Kennedy to still occupy the property. His lease had expired, no rental had been paid, but if he was entitled to compensation, the speaker would not assume that the Commissioners should pay it. If a by-law meant immediate possession to the Company, they would give Mr. Kennedy the necessary notice.

Mr. Kennedy stated that there were no negotiations with him in regard to the property. Had it not been for the proposal of the Lock Company in the summer time he would have taken steps to secure a new lease.

Mr. Stratton expressed the personal opinion that Mr. Kennedy should receive some remuneration in the matter and he suggested $100 or $150, Mr. Kennedy to have his own buildings.

Mr. Kennedy stated that if he had opportunity to again secure the property for use, it would be of much greater value than the plan proposed. Once the buildings were taken down they would be worthless to him.

After a further conference, Mr. Stratton announced that an agreement had been arrived at whereby Mr. Kennedy would receive two shares in the Company, amounting to $200 and a release of his rent of the property up to the present time, the Company allowing his building to remain there so long as the property was not required.

This appeared to meet with general approval, and the above resolution was carried, pending the passing of a by-law. The adjustment of the rent question was considered a matter between Mr. Kennedy and the Town Trust Commissioners.

The Council adjourned.

Arch Made of Horseshoes.

One of the quaintest arches is that to be seen over the entrance to a smithy in Amesbury, in Wilts, England. It is made entirely of horseshoes.

Hissed the Audience.

A curious incident happened not long ago in a German theater. There were only seven persons in the house, most of whom were in the pit, and they hissed the performers. Then the whole company came on the stage and outhissed the visitors.

Didn't Like School.

At Kallstadt, Bavaria, a six-year-old boy set fire to his parents' house "in order," he afterward confessed, "to burn his school books, as he did not want to go to school."

Points of Beauty.

At a recent beauty show in the east end of London the points on which the judges had to base their decisions were: (1) Has she a clean face? (2) Is it beautiful? (3) Is it the most beautiful? (4) Is the beauty natural?

Randall Cantuar.

In all his official correspondence the archbishop of Canterbury signs himself "Randall Cantuar," the latter word being an abbreviation of "Cantuaria," the ancient name of Canterbury.

Costly Chippendale.

A suit of Chippendale furniture belonging to an old London family has just been sold privately at Saffron Walden for £1,800. It comprised a settee on six legs, twelve chairs and five stools, eighteen pieces in all. The frames were of walnut, elaborately carved, with cabriole legs and claw feet.

Diamond Drills.

It is calculated that when every precaution has been taken a diamond drill working in rock of average hardness will wear away about one carat for every fifteen feet bored.

Water, Hot and Cold.

Hot water, if taken a cupful on rising and another when going to bed, will help to reduce the weight of a stout person. Cold water, unless taken with meals, will not increase flesh, but has a tendency to harden and make it firmer.

CITIZENS OF BARRIE GREET THE LEADER OF OPPOSITION

Mr. Whitney Splendidly Received in Centre Simcoe.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO MR. GAMEY

Says That Barring Mr. Ross He is the Intellectual Superior of Any Man in Ontario Cabinet—An Effective Reply to Recent Speech of Mr. Ross.

Barrie, Dec. 29.—Mr. Whitney, in his speech here last night, paid a tribute to R. R. Gamey. He declared that the Man from Manitoulin was an able man. He named over the members of the Ontario Government, and said, "barring Mr. Ross, there is not one of them mentally superior to R. R. Gamey."

Mr. Whitney spoke in the interests of A. B. Thompson, Conservative candidate. Centre Simcoe is one of the constituencies which the Conservatives hope to redeem, and the political atmosphere is already waxing warm, especially in the county town.

A Blinding Blizzard.

A blinding blizzard, one of the worst ever known in Barrie, was blowing, but the meeting was well attended, and the audience most enthusiastic.

Mr. Davidson carried the constituency for the Liberals at the last election by a majority of 49. C. E. Hewson is the present Liberal candidate.

Mr. Thompson, who was loudly applauded, in rising, thanked the audience for the reception. He said he was once more a supplicant for their votes, and trusted he had not shown himself unworthy of confidence. Discussing the questions of the day, he said that provincial affairs limited the party to but a few planks, which were largely matters of finance and education, and gave very little room for a difference of opinion. One question which would have to be decided in this election would be the moral welfare of the Province of Ontario. The Ross government has degraded and debauched the province by its political crimes, and should be defeated.

Mr. Whitney made a few promises, but his deeds proved him to be a man of ability and honesty.

J. S. Duff reviewed the difficulties which have beset the Reform party in the last two years, which has forced Mr. Ross to his present appeal to the country. He thought the Gamey exposures, if they had done nothing more than expose the scandal in the crown lands department, had been of great service in showing the corruption of the province, and the result of this investigation was the cause, and only cause, of the resignations of Hon. Messrs. Stratton and Davis. The Simcoe representatives, Messrs. Davidson and Tudhope, lost their greatest opportunity in not speaking out against their party when these exposures were made. If the Conservative leaders did what Ross and his party had done, the Conservatives would be the first to turn their leaders out.

Greeted With Enthusiasm.

J. P. Whitney, introduced as the coming premier, was greeted with great enthusiasm, the audience standing and waving Union Jacks. Across the front of The Globe to-day were the words, "Remember Ross." Coming thru the snowstorm to-night, he thought of these words, and asked the electors to "Remember Ross." Some of the followers of Mr. Ross might think that if no reference was made to his speech delivered in Barrie, he could not defend himself, but a man who had a majority of the electorate of the province at his back should be able to defend himself against a man who was willing to be a minority premier.

In 1889 he introduced a bill to punish bribery with imprisonment as well as by fine, but the government voted it down, and yet Mr. Ross claimed to be the party favoring punishment for corrupt practices. The Conservative party was on record in punishing electoral corruption, but the Liberal party had not punished election crimes. On the contrary, many of the participants had been rewarded with lucrative positions, after conviction.

He had been charged with voting against the appointment of a minister of agriculture, but this charge was false, as there was a minister of agriculture before Mr. Ross became premier. He voted against separating the offices of minister of works and agriculture, as at that time there was no need for increasing the number of portfolios.

Mr. Ross told the electors at Kapanee that there was no wrong in the West Elgin elections. He said this in the face of McNish's confession, drawn by Mr. Aylesworth, in which he acknowledged that the ballots had been interfered with and thrown away. Then there was the declaration of 80 Conservatives that they had voted for the Conservative candidate, and only [illegible] ballots were returned as so marked. It was difficult to deal with statements made in such a contemptible way.

It is Trust Funds.

Mr. Ross laid claim to having money in the bank. Perhaps he had; but people often have money in the bank, and it is no proof of wealth. It might be trust funds. Political purity can only come by the party system, for without party leaders there can be no responsibility, but when one party became corrupt, it is the duty of the adherents of that party to give the opposition a chance to rule until their party has been in opposition long enough to purify it, or until the party in office has not done its duty according to the opinion of the electorate.

In provincial politics there are not the great questions of policy to be found, as in the federal parliament. Party lines are not drawn so tightly. The policy regarding schools, forests, mining and affairs affecting the province, important as they are, are not questions which allow of that difference of opinion found in questions of national importance. In Great Britain, there is no permanancy to governments. The people elect a government to-day, and in the by-elections go against it until a fall. It is this continual change that accounts for the perennial purity of the politics of Great Britain.

The Conservative Policy.

Mr. Whitney then briefly reviewed the Conservative policy, in which he enunciated a law reform which will simplify division court procedure, and allow but one appeal.

He proposed to make a department of mines, with a minister who should come from New Ontario, and who will be competent to deal with the varied interests assigned to that department.

He supported the building of the Temiskaming Railway, but the party was opposed to any more bonuses to railways.

He believed the present disposition of great timber areas was wrong, especially in regard to the pulpwood. The sale of timber limits by public advertising is all right.

He favored agricultural schools, not agricultural colleges. Agricultural schools are schools to be established in various parts of the province, which will be opened in the winter months, so that farmers' sons can attend them without interfering with the busy work of the farm. Lectures will be given by professors from the agricultural colleges. The money for their maintenance will come from the timber of the province.

It is the intention of the Conservative party not to allow Cap Sullivan to exploit the timber limits of the province.

Against Excessive Rates.

Transportation companies are taking from the farmer money in inequitable freight rates. He favored memorializing the Dominion government to have this injustice removed.

In the matter of education he was opposed to schoolbook barons erecting large houses out of the people's money and favored schoolbooks at cost. A consultative council of teachers should advise who would be the most acceptable member of the government to be minister of education.

All obstacles in the way of municipal ownership of franchises should be abolished. Sewerage, an important question in small towns, should be treated by the government with a similar policy to that adopted with good roads.

Having briefly enunciated his policy he said that the legislature would be better shut up and locked with a padlock for ten years than that it should be allowed to continue the appalling immorality that continues in the province.

Tribute to Mr. Gamey.

Speaking of Mr. Gamey he said, "Mr. Gamey is an able man." Then mentioning the seven members of the Ontario legislature, he said: "Barring Mr. Ross, there is not one of them mentally superior to R. R. Gamey." The report of the commission had said Gamey got the money. Gamey got the petition against him dismissed. Gamey got the government patronage, and appointed officials. Gamey's letter giving allegiance to the government did go to Mr. Ross, but the evidence did not prove that the money came from Stratton. What good, he asked, was it, if the commissioners found the first four statements true, if there was no truth in the fifth?

Mr. Whitney then spoke of the various occasions on which he had been approached in reference to a coalition government, but on this he would wait until Mr. Ross delivered himself.

On Temperance Question.

Someone in the audience asked what about Ross and the temperance question? Mr. Whitney replied that he was glad he had been reminded in reference to this matter. He had nothing to say about Mr. Ross on this question. He would leave him to the friends he had deceived with false promises for many years and would speak for Whitney. Prohibition, as the people understood it, was an impossibility in this province. People might talk about it, but it couldn't be. He would be bold enough to be honest and honest enough to be bold. An enforcement of the existing law freed from partisan officialism would hardly be recognized. As enforced to-day the liquor license act is used as a reward for party hacks and punishment for political opponents.

He thanked the Simcoes for the men they had sent to support him in the past and hoped that Centre Simcoe would again send him a supporter. He did not want to boast, "but there is not a locality in which gains are not being made." He was rather afraid to say it, as the party might be too confident. Conservatives must remember that an enemy opposes them that sleepeth not. That enemy is gnashing his teeth with iniquity. He has cast off all shame and will fight as he never fought before. Every constituency must fight as the it feared the result. There would be no fear of the result. If the Conservatives came into power, then the people will be the judges, and he asked nothing more than that his party should be judged for its acts by the people.

Forced to Suspend Business

Many business and working men neglect the first slight attacks of Rheumatism and Neuralgia and let it gradually develop until they are forced to suspend business and lie home ill. The same case is found with neglectful women who are absorbed with their house duties and other matters and totally blind as to their own condition and needs. The great Provincial Appointments.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—Another quiet day passed yesterday in Queen's Park. A Cabinet Council was held by the Premier and a few of the Ministers at 4 o'clock. Besides routine business the following appointments were made:

Thomas Johnson, to be law stamp distributor, district of Muskoka.

Alex. L. Smith, to be police magistrate, Alexandria.

Thomas H. Lloyd, to be police magistrate, Newmarket.

Miss Ida Morris, to be local registrar, clerk of the county court and registrar of surrogate for the County of Renfrew, pro tempore.

The establishment of a high school in the village of Rockland was also authorized.

French Catholic Church.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 29.—The French Catholic population of the City of Winnipeg has increased so rapidly that it has been decided to build the Church of the Sacred Heart, which will hold services entirely in French. Rev. Father X. Portelance, formerly of the Sacred Heart, Ottawa, has been appointed parish priest, and has arrived here to commence the work of organizing the new parish. The new church will cost between one and two hundred thousand dollars. A whole block has been purchased for it and its missions, situated between McDermott, Bannatyne, Lydia and Marguerite streets.

Harryett Still in Jail.

Belleville, Dec. 29.—Judge Teetzel at Toronto, issued an order allowing bail in the case of Samuel Harryett, in jail here on the charge of conspiracy. It was difficult to get the order, and apparently it is also difficult to get the bail, as yesterday afternoon Mr. Harryett was still in Castle Appleby. It is said that three of the sureties of $25,000 each have been secured, but the fourth is not yet forthcoming, though it is expected shortly. Mr. Harryett is expected to spend New Year's Day with his family.

Christmas Present Kills.

Buffalo, Dec. 29.—Grace Sullivan, aged eight years, was accidentally shot and killed yesterday by her brother, Daniel, aged 12. He was about to show her how an air-rifle which he had received as a Christmas present worked, and not knowing that it was loaded, pointed it at her and pulled the trigger. The bullet entered her left eye and lodged in the brain.

Whirled to Death.

Baden, Dec. 29.—A young man named Jacob Jemieson, whose home is near Moulton Station, Welland County, was killed about 3.30 yesterday afternoon at Sherk & Snider's flour mill, where he was employed as miller. His clothing got caught in the shafting, and he was whirled to death before assistance could be rendered.

Died Aged 104.

Elmira, N.Y., Dec. 29.—Israel Burt, a pioneer of this section, died at his home at Ridgebury yesterday, aged 104. He was born near the place where he died, and up to his 100th year had never ridden on a railroad. He was taken to New York at the expense of a New York newspaper and shown the sights for a week.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—Dr. Osler, regius professor of medicine at Oxford (Eng.) University, yesterday opened the new medical library here in a characteristic speech, full of good advice to the students.

Just a Criminal.

Cleveland, Dec. 29.—Dr. Allen McLean Hamilton, a noted criminologist, reported yesterday that Mrs. Chadwick is not insane but is instinctively criminal.

SHOVEL COMPANY MAY NOW PROCEED WITH OPERATIONS

Secured the Right to Enter on Site Chosen for Their Factory.

AGREEMENT REACHED WITH THE TENANT

Mr. Kennedy to Receive Two Shares of Shovel Company's Stock, and to be Relieved of Payment of Rent Since May—Letter Regarding Insurance Rates in Ward Five—Board of Works Report—Council Winds Up More Business.

The Council again devoted a couple of hours last night to winding up the business of the year. The members of the Town Trust Commissioners, and representatives of the Peterborough Shovel Company were present, and the topic for discussion was the arrangement with regard to the lots used for some years by Mr H. P. Kennedy as stockyards, and which are now required by the Shovel Company on which to erect their factory. It appears that Mr. Kennedy's lease ran out in May last, but he took no action to renew it, in view of the proposal by the Lock Company to locate there. Recently, however, this firm decided to adopt another site and now the Shovel Company will build on it. Acting on the authority of a resolution passed by the Aldermen, material necessary for foundation was placed on the property, yesterday, but Mr. Kennedy still held that he was a tenant, having received no notice to quit. After a discussion of the matter the following resolution was moved by Ald. Best and seconded by Ald Morrison—

That in the arrangement with the Shovel Company, the value of machinery to be placed in the building be $12,000 and that provision be made that the Company cannot dispose of part or parts of the land, but that it must be dealt with en bloc, and used for manufacturing purposes, and that the Town Trust Commissioners be asked to give the Company possession immediately.—Carried.

A by-law will, it is understood be put through later.

The Board of Works and Finance Committees presented reports at the meeting.

There were present Mayor Roger, Aldermen Adams, Best, Hicks, Johnston, Mason, Scott, Rush and Morrison. Messrs W. H. Moore, chairman, Jas. Stevenson and Richard Hall Town Trust Commissioners; Arthur Stevenson, their Secretary, and Messrs. J. R. Stratton, W. Rudkins, R. H. Fortye and D. O'Connell for the Shovel Company.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From D. W. Dumble pointing out that, as there was going to be another sitting for registration of manhood suffrage votes, places for registration will be required, and the town must pay the expenses, according to statute. The Clerk was, on motion instructed to take the necessary steps to provide the accommodation required.

From the Davis-Thompson Company, referring to the fire insurance rates on properties in Ward 5. There seems to be a misunderstanding or some trouble between some of the companies, as well as the underwriters Association, as to whether the properties there should not rate the same as similar properties in other wards.

The question of rate on one particular risk had been raised by one of the Companies, when the writers were informed that Peterborough rates did not apply to Ashburnham, notwithstanding the fact that the latter village had been incorporated with Peterborough. In the opinion of the Davis-Thompson Co., the rates in all of the wards should be the same, and in fact since incorporation, they had applied similar rates. Of course, the Council understood that formerly the key rate of Ashburnham was higher than that of Peterborough. There was no doubt, however, that until thre matter was put right with the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, trouble would arise from time to time and they suggested that the Council take the matter up with the Underwriters, with a view to a proper understanding. Referred to the Mayor and Chairmen of Finance and Fire, Water and Light Committees.

From J. S. Robinson, Toronto on behalf of the National Sanitarium Association.—Received.

From the Peterborough Lock Company, stating that they relinquished any claim to the lots owned by the town south of Rink street and north of Perry and west of George street, under the by-law, as it was not the intention of the Company to accept them under the terms and conditions therein contained.—Received.

From J. T. Wright, stating that he would not be able to act as Deputy Returning Officer for Division No. 8, and recommending Jas. McDonald.—Received.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Best presented the following report—

To the Council of the Town of Peterborough:

Gentlemen.—Your Board of Works beg leave to report as follows—

1. We recommend that the time for the completion of Mr. John Robson's contract be extended to May, 15th, 1905, provided the Town Solicitor reports that doing so will not prejudicially affect the Town with respect to the contract and bonds.

2. We recommend that the Inspector of sewer construction be allowed full time from the commencement of the work, as recommended by the Engineer.

3. We recommend that the recommendation of the Town Engineer that the balance of $304.30 that has been retained from Mr. J. E. Hayes on account of his sidewalk contract, be paid to him, be adopted.

4. Your Board has been informed by Mr. Learmouth that the owners of the bridge over the old Dickson Co. dam, have no objection to the Town repairing it for foot passenger traffic, provided their rights are not prejudiced.

5. We recommend that the first cost of the concrete mixer be paid out of the general rates.

6. We recommend that John Robson be paid 85 per cent. on the sewer work completed this year, in accordance with a report from the engineer, provided the Solicitor advises that doing so will not prejudicially affect the town with respect to the contract and bonds.

7. We recommend that the Town Trust Commissioners be furnished with a statement of the amount of gravel taken from the pit this year, as requested by them, with the understanding that no charge shall be made for it.

8. We recommend that the Street Commissioner be authorized to provide two snow ploughs from the Peter Hamilton Co. at a cost not to exceed $30 each.

9. As there was an error of $9.00 made in reading Mr Zimri Blodgett's tender for snow ploughing in the northern district, we recommend that he be paid $9.00 in addition to the amount stated in the by-law at the end of the season.

10. We recommend that W. Taylor & Co. be paid $46.43 in full of their account for cement pipe purchased by the town in the year 1904.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

ACCOUNTS PAID

Ald. Adams presented the following report.

To the Council of the Town of Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee begs leave to report and recommend that the following accounts be paid—

W. J. Moin	$ 14 00
A J. Radion	8 00
Canadian Contract Record	4 40
Union Publishing Co	7 50
E. R. J. MacPherson	1 35
Peterborough Light & Power Co	6 00
J. J. Lynch	25
G Walter Green	25 80
Drummond & Duffus	10 73
Commissioners of the Town Trust	325 00

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

On motion of Ald. Adams, seconded by Ald. Scott, the Mayor and Clerk were instructed to sign and seal a petition asking the Lieut.-Governor in Council to approve of By-law 1108. This provided for the raising of $10,000 to meet the capital expenditure of the Water Commissioners for 1904.

A by-law was passed appointing John Milan deputy returning officer for division No. 8, in place of J. T. Wright, for the municipal elections.

BY-LAWS

A correction was made in Ald. Adams' by-law—providing for change in the method of assessment for granolithic walks—the amendment providing for the vote of freehold electors only, according to law.

The by-law providing for submission to a vote of the question as to whether a change in the method of payment for granolithic walks is desirable, was read a third time and passed.

SHOVEL COMPANY

The Council now went into a consideration of the Shovel Company's application. Hon. J. R. Stratton addressed the meeting. He pointed out that the Company was anxious that a by-law be passed giving them possession of property required in order that erection might begin immediately on the buildings. The Council had agreed to grant the whole instead of part of the property to the new Shovel Company, and a confirming by-law was now necessary. They were prepared to take the good faith of the town with regard to application to the Legislature. There was no doubt but that this feature would present no difficulty. In the old by-law the amount of machinery to be installed was placed at $25,000 value; this would have to be changed to $12,000 as the equipment would of necessity not be so extensive. Otherwise the by-law was acceptable to the Company, and it was understood that the town should receive $4,000 for the lot if stipulations were not carried out. The buildings would be larger than was formerly proposed. The town could safeguard itself with regard to the property in any manner in which it saw fit. The Company would build its warerooms in the summer and provision had been made for railway sidings. As much machinery as was wanted for immediate use would be installed at the first, and it was hoped that requirements would soon call for still greater equipment. The Company was willing that Mr. Kennedy should retain part of the property until they were in a position to use it. But the new buildings would extend some 46 feet onto the premises which he was occupying. The Company had no desire to embarrass him whatever and the question was one for the Council to decide. The machinery for the factory would be arriving very shortly.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy addressed the Council stating that he had a five-year lease of the property, which expired in May last. He had allowed it to do so on account of the proposal by the Lock Company and later by the Shovel Company. He considered himself a yearly tenant and

MR. BRADBURN'S MEETINGS

Opening One Will be Held on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd at Bensfort.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the popular Conservative candidate, who is conducting a vigorous and energetic fight in West Peterborough will commence a series of meetings throughout the riding next week.

The opening meeting of the campaign will be held at the school house, Bensfort on Tuesday, January 3rd.

On Wednesday, January 4th, a gathering in his interest will be held in the town hall, Centreville and on Thursday, January 5th, another meeting will be conducted in the Town hall, North Monaghan.

All the meetings will begin at 7.30 o'clock sharp and a large attendance of the electors is particularly desirable.

All who favor a change in the present administration and the end of the reign of corruption, bribery and malfeasance of office and the inauguration of clean, honest and progressive government, should make it a point to be present.

Mr. Bradburn, the candidate, and other prominent speakers will address the gatherings.

Remember the dates, Bensfort, January 3rd, Centreville, January 4th and North Monaghan town hall on January 5th.

MASS MEETING TONIGHT!

All Electors Invited to Opera House to Hear Candidates Speak.

A ratepayers' meeting will be held this evening in the Opera House at 8 o'clock when the aspirants for municipal honors will address the electors on the various civic issues and lay their views before the people.

It is expected that each man will have something of interest to say, while the water commissioners will be afforded an opportunity of discussing the $20,000 by-law for the extension and improvement of the present system.

The $12,000 by-law for the repairs and reconstruction of bridges and the opening of certain streets will also be considered, as well as Ald. Adams' by-law to submit the question to the ratepayers as to whether they are favorable to bearing the entire cost of granolithic walks by general tax

Are you in favor of progress and development for Peterborough? If so vote for Johnston, Crowe and Begley for Aldermen

A Decided Treat.

Speaking of Rev. Father Kelly, of Lapeer, Mich., who will lecture in the Opera House on Monday night next January 2, on "The Dream of Equality" the Boston Daily Globe says:—"The educational value of the lecture cannot be over-estimated. It was a masterly exposition, interspersing history with apt illustration, pointed anecdote and witty comment. At the close of the lecture Father Kelly received 'an ovation.'"

The proceeds of the lecture will be in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence. The lecture will be under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. Admission 35 and 25 cents.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

To the Electors of the town of Peterborough:

Ladies and gentlemen:

I have again the honor to request your vote and influence in my favor as a candidate for election to the Council of 1905.

If favored I will exert myself in the best interests of the town.

Yours respectfully,
E. F. MASON

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lends, or agrees, or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, offices, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting, is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be seen from the above that neither of us can personally or through another, give or lend any money during the election.

REV. DR. CHOWN ON LOCAL OPTION

Addresses Mass Meeting in St. Paul's Church.

SOME ADVICE TO ELECTORS.

Political Corruption Will Never be Banished Entirely Until the Bar Disappears—More Christian Men Needed in Politics—The Fight in Smith Township.

The public meeting in St. Paul's church last night to hear Rev. Dr. Chown, of Toronto, secretary of Temperance and Moral Reform of the Methodist Church, speak on local option was fairly well attended, considering the disagreeable weather and the slippery condition of the sidewalks.

Rev. J. G. Potter was the chairman, and among the clergymen present were:—Rev. Dr Torrance, Rev. Dr. Crothers, Rev. J. G. Lewis and Rev. Ellwood Bowerman, of Selwyn, secretary of the Smith Local Option Committee.

After devotional exercises Rev. Dr Chown began his interesting and eloquent address. He first paid a tribute to late Dr. Cavan and his connection with the Lord's Day Alliance and the great temperance cause. The weakness of the temperance cause to-day is that too many Christians simply regard it merely as more reform instead of a great moral reform forming the web and woof of our Christian religion. They look upon moral reform as outside of the sphere of the church's work as leading up to religious life, but not constituting the very essence of it. When the Church of God becomes so that it sees the law of Christ written upon all these questions, and that personal consecration should be placed behind them for their solution, then the destruction of these evils will not be far off.

In all great reforms there are three periods—agitation, education and legislation. We had on the temperance question passed through the period of agitation and were now on the period of education and on the confines of legislation. The final purpose of the people is to inspire men to good work. The liquor trade stands in direct antagonism to this. All men would have to face the final test on the great day of judgment. The divine command was to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and comfort the sick. The liquor traffic stood in direct opposition to the principle of all true life and could not be harmonized with the teaching of the Lord and Saviour. We must have ideals and by our fruits would we be known. The liquor trade bore bad fruit. Although garbed in respectability in days gone by, it was now being shown forth in its true colors, and it was generally admitted that it could not live. The whole thing had come to be regarded as a public nuisance and caused terrible havoc to humanity. When we stood idly by and allowed it to go on he thought posterity would be digging us up to measure the size of our skulls to see if we had any brains at all in having permitted all this to exist. We want to let the light of Heaven fall upon it and not get our impressions of the trade from a Grit gathering of a Tory conference, where it might not look so bad. The fundamental ethical teaching of Jesus Christ is the infinite value of men over things; yet we allow 4,000 men to go down to drunkard's graves in Canada every year, and still we call ourselves Christians. It was hard to determine which is worse the drunkard, the drunk maker or the maker of the drunkard maker. He could see no difference in this respect before God. He who voted to keep the saloon is a saloon keeper, yet some raised the question of personal liberty, which was the most un-British word they could use. The keynote of British character is duty and the characteristic of a true Briton is consideration of the feelings of others. When man talks of a personal liberty that he must exercise to the detriment of others, let him go to the backwoods and not live under the blessings of civilisation.

LOCAL OPTION.

Dr. Chown believed in local option and thought it could be successfully enforced. As to the Scott Act, there was doubt for a long time as to whether the Dominion or Provincial authorities were to enforce it, and finally it was left largely to the temperance people. He believed that the Act was fairly well enforced where political expediency declared that it could be done. But a great change had come to pass since then. The late Provincial Secretary, Mr. Stratton, had by his energy done much on behalf of the enforcement of the liquor laws by putting in operation the forces of the Government, and $4,000 had been placed in the estimates to secure the services of the detectives, and otherwise give effect to the law. The speaker also read a letter from E. Saunders, chief officer of the department, that the new Provincial Secretary, Hon. G. P. Graham, would carry out the enforcement of the license law. Mr. Whitney had also declared, that, if elected, he would use the full power of the Government for the strict carrying into effect of the license laws of the province. When this temperance question had raised the greatest difficulty in the recent Liberal convention and had also been the subject of a resolution in the Conservative conference, a new dream had come over the politicians, and it was recognized that the temperance vote was to be catered to.

The penalties for a violation of the local option law were satisfactory—a fine of from $50 to $100 for the first offence, and two months' imprisonment or over for a second offence, without the option of a fine.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

Dr. Chown said that political corruption would never be cast out entirely until the liquor traffic was banished, as the trail of corruption generally lead to the bar. When political corruption gets down to the level of the machine the machine will employ whiskey. We needed a resurrection of conscience on this great issue. All government is of God, and in casting our votes we simply put men in public positions to express His will.

The speaker touched upon the sacredness of the ballot, and remarked that in local affairs we often robbed ourselves of efficient service, by introducing partisan politics. Political parties had reversed the standard of Jesus Christ, who said: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and all these things shall be added unto you." Men sought prosperity first and Christ last. In casting our ballot it should be for a man who looked in the same direction with regard to some great moral issue that we do. The man might not be so extreme perhaps, as we are, but, if he did not look in the direction indicated, he was not worthy of support. The Christian man should even take a higher ground and recognize that this is God's work. The duty of the hour was a programme that would appeal to the manhood of the church. Before you cast another ballot ask yourself the question, does the man represent me; is he fit to be in the position of authority to represent the will of God among men and the establishment of the Kingdom of Christ on earth. The great need of to-day is more true Christian men in the political life of our country.

Rev. E. Bowerman, of Selwyn, spoke briefly of the progress of the local option campaign in Smith, and said they were endeavoring to elect a council so that if the people declared for local option the third reading would be given the by-law, and the council stand by the temperance people in enforcing its provisions. He trusted that the town clergy would say something on behalf of the campaign next Sunday, and added that the two-fold object of this fight was to do away with the treating system and abolish the bar. If this was done there would be no hotels in Smith, and there were none now in Douro, Ennismore and other adjoining townships. He asked those in Peterborough who had votes in Smith to poll them for the by-law on Monday next.

A vote of thanks to Rev. Dr. Chown was moved by Rev. Dr. Torrance and Mayor Roger, and, after a short discussion, in which Dr. Chown said that local option had proved successful in Toronto Junction, Blenheim and other places, the meeting dispersed.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, DEC. 29, 1904.

How Balzac Worked.

In twelve years Balzac wrote seventy-nine novels besides an abundance of tales and newspaper articles. When in full swing he led the life of a recluse, refusing to see even his most intimate friends. He usually went to bed at 8 o'clock, after a light dinner, and got up at 2 in the morning to resume writing. At 6 he took his tub, lying in the water one hour, after which he drank a cup of coffee. Werdet, his editor, was then admitted to bring proofs, take away corrected ones and wrest, if possible, fresh manuscript from him. From 9 he wrote till noon, when he breakfasted on two boiled eggs and some bread. From 1 to 6 he continued his writing. For six weeks or so he would keep this up; then he would mysteriously disappear for months.

Old Time Controversies.

Old time controversies were often vigorous in language. In a controversy with Milton concerning the divine right of kings Salmasius called his opponent a puny piece of a man, a homunculus, a dwarf not having a human figure, a bloodless being, a creature of skin and bones, a contemptible pedagogue fit only to flog boys, a rhinoceros, a hangdog looking fellow. The great English poet not only answered in kind, but entered into an extensive correspondence with people in Holland to obtain petty gossip and scandalous anecdotes concerning his opponent.

Broiled Squirrel.

For broiled squirrel you must be sure the squirrels are young. Wipe well inside and out with a wet cloth but do not soak them, as this draws out the blood and makes the meat dry. Cut in halves down the back and broil over a clear fire. When done lay on a hot dish, spread with butter, season with pepper and salt and serve with broiled rashers of bacon and tart jelly.

Cleaning White Wool Shawls.

Shoulder shawls of white wool yarn and the various other articles now so popular in crocheted and knitted work never look as well after water has touched them as before. A dry wash is best for such white wool things. Take an excellent white flour and rub each article in it exactly as if you were washing it in liquid. Two or three rubbings may be necessary.

Croup Comes Suddenly.

HENCE THE WISDOM OF KEEPING IN THE HOUSE THE MOST EFFECTIVE CURE.

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

Slight hoarseness in the evening is the only warning of croup.

About midnight the child awakes—coughing—that peculiar metallic—cough called croupy, which strikes terror to the mother's heart.

Then begins the struggle for breath, and if relief is to be obtained treatment must be prompt and effective.

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success.

It is wonderfully prompt in loosening the cough, clearing the air passages of the head, and soothing the excited nerves.

People who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on, and the danger which accompanies it, usually keep some of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house for use in case of emergency.

For bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma, and every form of throat and bronchial trouble, this great family medicine is a quick and certain cure.

Mrs. E. H. Robinson, Tupperville, Kent Co., Ont., writes:—"My husband and baby had very bad colds and coughs, and seeing Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine advertised I decided to try it. The result was highly satisfactory, as both were promptly cured."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

THE EXTRA TOUCH.

It is Fascinating, but it is the Enemy of the Simple Life.

A business man of great promise failed in spite of it in one of our suburban towns lately. A shrewd friend of the family thus diagnosed the bankruptcy: "Jack made enough to live on and could have kept on making it right along, but Louise wanted the extra touch. She knew just how to put it on, and in the end she put it on Jack's financial difficulties."

Other women have done the same. The extra touch is the most delightful thing in the world when it can be afforded. It gives distinction to the commonplace novelty, to routine things, grace to life. Yet, like other extras, it has the trick of running up accounts out of all proportion. If it does not cost money its expenses in time and vital force are equally great. The extra touch in dress means either a great deal of money spent or a great deal of time expended, and few women can afford either unless they stint in more important directions.

The extra touch in social affairs often costs beyond all proportion. The exquisite nicety of table service attained by some hostesses means continual trouble with servants and enormous laundry bills, to say nothing of fret of mind. Distinctive entertainments involve money, brains, time or all three. The extra touch is the enemy of the simple life. The average household is much better off without it. Yet its fascinations are such that those of us who cannot reach it still sigh for it, and those who can are seldom wise enough to refrain from its temptations and complications.—Harper's Bazar.

A TRUSTY CONFIDANT.

Have a Nice, Soft Pillow in an Unobtrusive Corner.

It is essential in every home to have a comfortable lounging corner. It may be only a large, old fashioned sofa or it may be a fashionable sofa bed, but let it have plenty of pillows and be reasonably soft.

Five minutes' rest on such an article of furniture will serve to loosen strained nerves and prevent many a family row unless of course several members of the said family desire the haven of refuge at the same time. Then only a little unselfishness can cover the breach of the peace.

Instead of walking off worries by a long, tiresome tramp or confiding in an untrustworthy friend use a nice, soft pillow for a confidant. Bury the offending head in the soft depths of the comforting cushion, and if the tears want to come let them come. The cushion will not tell anybody. It is surprising to find how readily tears run themselves dry when allowed a free course, and it is a relief to a weary or discouraged brain to have a comfortable cry now and then in an unobtrusive corner.

KITCHEN HELPS.

A wide and shallow teakettle is a good thing to have in the kitchen. It boils water in a hurry.

To keep new tin dishes and pans from rust rub them over with lard and heat them in the oven.

The taint of fish may be removed from the blades of knives and the prongs of forks by rubbing them with a piece of lemon peel.

A kitchen table, after scrubbing and rinsing, is greatly improved by having boiling water poured over it. This scalds and whitens the wood.

Stained enameled saucepans may often be made to look like new by boiling them out with water to which a little chloride of lime has been added.

Kitchen knives can be sharpened very satisfactorily upon the edge of a common milk crock or any other stone jar. It is gratifying to note the way they will cut up a chicken or slice bread after just a few whets.

Healthy Girls.

It is no longer fashionable with the fair sex to feign delicacy, nor are the girls of the coming generation actuated by an insane desire to appear fragile and genteel at the expense of health. The score of buxom, bright eyed young ladies one will meet in any of our public thoroughfares any afternoon is ample evidence of the truth of the assertion. No longer do the fair ones seem wan and pale to look upon, nor is their style of locomotion suggestive of effort; but, on the contrary, nearly all seem strong and lithe of limb and with cheeks suffused with the ruddy glow of health. Doctors generally agree that there is far less sickness among the sex than had formerly been the case, and this could be attributed solely to the glorious practice young ladies had of late acquired of testing their capabilities as pedestrians and in engaging in other forms of light physical exercise. It is to be hoped that the good work will go on.—McCall's Magazine.

Beauty and Intelligence.

Notwithstanding human superiority, mankind is as much a part of nature as any other of its facts. For this reason the standard of beauty may be applied to woman. But the dual nature she possesses deprives her of consideration solely upon that ground. If she is emulous of tributes of infinitely higher worth than the adulation paid to physical perfections, she must be intelligent in that broad sense of the word that embraces character. A woman without intellect is the most insipid thing in the created universe. Be she ever so handsome, she is but the lees of good wine, a mere aromatic suggestion of what she is not. By the laws of her life beauty alone can never afford her the commendation which it brings to the birds, the flowers and the sunset. She is separated from these by the width of a soul.—Baltimore Herald.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

George came upstairs a few minutes later, and after a word or two, Laura placed Lady Danvers' letter in his hand.

"I should like to go, George," she said.

George read the letter, and looked very well pleased.

"Of course go, my dear," he answered, "the little change will be the very thing for you."

"I think it will do me good," answered Laura, slowly and painfully.

Something in the tone of her voice struck George, for he looked at her quickly.

"You look very far from well this morning," he said. "When do you think of going, Laura?"

"To-day, if you send a telegram for me."

"Certainly, my dear, if you think you are really well enough to go to-day."

"Yes, yes, I am well enough," said Laura, and a strange wistfulness came over the expression of her face as she stood there looking at George.

"What train will you go by then?" he asked.

"The two train will suit best, I think."

"I will write out a telegram to Lady Danvers then to say you will go by that train, and I'll order a carriage to take you to the station, but I am afraid I can't meet you there to see you off, as I have an appointment with a man at two o'clock. So mind you wrap up warmly, Laura, and let me hear from you as soon as you arrive at the Park."

Laura made no answer, she was still looking at George, and her face was very pale.

"And you'll want some money, I suppose, little woman?" continued George, good-naturedly.

"No, George, I have enough," she answered, and her lips quivered as she spoke.

"Well, I must be off. The carriage had better be here at a quarter to two. Are you sure there is nothing you want?"

"No, George, nothing."

"Good-by then, dear, and take care of yourself. Tell Lady Danvers I'll come over on Sunday to see you. Good-by again, Laura."

He stooped down and kissed her white face as he spoke, and warmly clasped her hand. And Laura's hand lingered in his also. Again she looked in his face.

"Good-by, George," she said, in a very low and faltering voice; "and—thank you for all your kindness to me."

"What nonsense, little woman—be sure you write."

He smiled, nodded, and went away; and thus the husband and wife parted, and Laura stood still after he was gone, and there was great sadness on her face.

"Poor George, poor George," she murmured.

After awhile she roused herself. She had much to do, and the rest of the morning she spent arranging her affairs as though she were going on a long journey.

She went down to luncheon, and found old Mr. Gifford and Anna Lindsay, who knew she was going to start for Danvers Park at two o'clock.

"The change will do you good, I hope, my dear," said Mr. Gifford, kindly, for she was a great favorite of his.

Anna Lindsay said nothing, but she thought the more. She thought it was absurd if "Mrs. George" were well enough to go visiting that she could not dine with the family at home.

"She's going to meet Sir Ralph, I suppose," she reflected. "Well, we'll see."

In due time the carriage that George had ordered came to the door, and Laura's luggage was carried down to it. Then Laura went to her father-in-law and kissed his wrinkled cheek.

"Good-by, Mr Gifford," she said, gently; and the old man warmly returned her greeting.

"You must come back looking quite well and strong," he said; "and please give my best respects and remembrances to Lady Danvers."

"Yes," answered Laura; and as she spoke she looked wistfully round the room, and then, after shaking hands with Anna Lindsay, she quitted Red House.

George came back only in time for dinner, and inquired all about Laura's departure, and then the evening passed in the usual quiet fashion.

"There will be a letter from Laura in the morning," George said, as they sat playing their rubber; "she promised to write as soon as she arrived at the Park."

But the morning came there was no letter from Laura, and George felt surprised, and rather annoyed.

"She has missed the post, I suppose," he said, going on with his breakfast the while; "her letter will come probably in the middle of the day."

But when the midday post was due, for which Anna Lindsay watched, there was still no letter from Danvers Park. George felt so sure that there would be that he sent a young clerk up to Red House to bring it down to him at the office, and Anna Lindsay had the pleasure of writing a few lines to her cousin to tell him that no letter had arrived. Upon which George telegraphed to his wife at Danvers Park, asking her to write at once, and he might have received a letter in answer to this by the last post, but none came.

The next morning, however, brought a letter from Laura, which George eagerly tore open, and then as he read it his face suddenly paled.

"What does this mean?" he said, in an agitated voice.

"What is the matter?" asked Anna Lindsay, hastily, who was watching his face.

"This is the most extraordinary thing, the most unheard of thing!" went on George, in increasing agitation; "this is from Laura, but she's not at the Park, has never been at the Park! She has left her home—she must have gone out of her senses!"

"No," answered Anna Lindsay, rising, her face flushed with vindictive triumph, "it means she has run away with Sir Ralph Woodland. I have long foreseen this."

"You have long foreseen this?" repeated George, blankly, staring at his cousin.

"Yes, I was not blind," continued Anna. "I told you, George, only you would not listen to me, how she fainted when she heard of his accident; she has never been the same woman since; and besides, I once overheard him say something to her—"

"What did you overhear him say?" asked George, sternly.

"I heard him say in this very house that he could not keep away from her; that even when he thought her most unworthy he could not forget her; that he had bought Harewood to be near her. George, as sure as you are standing there, these two have gone off together, and they were lovers, I am certain, before you ever married her!"

Anna poured all this out with extraordinary bitterness, her red-brown eyes glittering with excitement, and George listened with absolute amazement.

"You heard this," he said, passionately, "and never told me? It is folly; I don't believe a word of it! Laura never saw Sir Ralph until she went to Danvers Park—never; it is impossible!"

"They were lovers before she ever went to Danvers Park," answered Anna, doggedly. "No, I never told you, George, because you would not have believed me; you would have said I was jealous, but for all that I am speaking the truth, and you'll find she is with him now."

"She says here," said George, again looking at Laura's letter, which he still held open in his hand, "that she is with no one; that she is alone, and means to remain so. She must be mad; she nearly starved before—"

"She'll not starve now," interrupted Anna. "She's with her fine gentleman, she considered no one in Red House good enough for her."

"Be silent! How dare you say such things!" cried George. "She has left me because she was unhappy about something—because—because, perhaps, I did not suit her." And George's voice faltered and broke as he said the last words.

"What does she say in her letter?" asked Anna.

George made no reply; he looked again at the letter, but when Anna drew nearer to him, as though for the purpose of reading it, he folded it and put it into his pocket.

"Why, here is a letter from Danvers Park," now said Anna, lifting a letter which had come by the same post as Laura's, but which until now had lain unnoticed on the table. "This is from Lady Danvers herself."

George eagerly stretched out his hand and opened the letter which his cousin held, and as he read its contents his face grew more agitated and unhappy still.

"Dear Mr. Gifford," Lady Davers had written, "a telegram arrived here for Mrs. Gifford this afternoon, but as I had previously received a telegram from her to tell me that she had been prevented coming here, I think it best to enclose the telegram for her to you, as it may prevent some possible anxiety. Trusting nothing serious disappointed us of her proposed visit, I remain,

"Very sincerely yours,

"LUCINDA DANVERS."

"Good heavens! this looks as if it were all planned," cried George. "Her visit to Lady Danvers has been a blind."

He flung Lady Danvers' letter on the table as he spoke, and Anna Lindsay unbidden took it up and read it through.

"Of course her visit to Lady Danvers was a blind," she said. "She sent a telegram somewhere by Jane, the housemaid, the day Sir Ralph Woodland called, after he was gone, and Lady Danvers' invitation arrived the next morning. Do you see, George? They had arranged to fly together when he was here, and the pretended visit to Lady Danvers was to get away more easily."

CATARRH

The only Sensible Treatment.

How absurd to think of curing catarrh with tablets, tonics and blood purifiers. These so-called cures (?) go first to the stomach, then into the intestines, mix with the food and the excretions, are taken up by the blood, and eventually an infinitesimal part may reach the nose. If you had an acute attack of indigestion, would you put the medicine up your nose and expect to be relieved. Vice versa, how can you cure catarrh by dosing the stomach?

Japanese Catarrh Cure is an aromatic, antiseptic pomade. It is inserted in the nostrils, melts at the temperature of the body, and reaches every part of the afflicted tissues. It soothes and heals inflammation, kills the germs of catarrh, clears the head, stops all discharges, and sweetens the breath.

Japanese Catarrh Cure is sold by druggists everywhere, 50c.

Home Dyeing

"Maypole!" At last. Here's a cake of soap that dyes—not a powder that makes mess and trouble all over the house. Maypole yields brilliant colors that cannot fade. It dyes to any shade. At last home dyeing is made pleasant, sure, safe.

Made in England but sold everywhere.

ACTION BY A PRINCESS

Wants Name Vindicated From Some Accusations Made.

Personal Relations of the Princess Radziwill With the Late Cecil Rhodes the Mainspring of the Suit—Her Career An Interesting One—Two Years' Jail For Forgery—How She Worked Big Fellows.

London, Dec 29.—The Daily Chronicle states that Princess Radziwill will bring an action against the executors of the estate of Cecil Rhodes to vindicate her character from accusations in connection with her personal relations with Mr. Rhodes.

Princess Catherine Radziwill was sentenced to two years' imprisonment by the Supreme Court of Cape Colony, April 30, 1902, for forgery in connection with notes purporting to have been endorsed by Mr Rhodes. She was released from prison in August, 1903. The Princess is the daughter of the Austrain Count Dymski, formerly one of the great landed proprietors of Galicia. She eloped with Prince Radziwill on the eve of the day set for her marriage to a wealthy manufacturer. About four years ago she appeared in London, where she lived in luxurious style. Subsequently she moved to South Africa, where she attempted to float evidences of credit purporting to have been signed by Cecil Rhodes, but which were repudiated by him, several suits tried at Cape Town finally culminating in her conviction. It was alleged by the London papers that Mr. Rhodes' death was due to the worry which she caused him and to the fact that he was obliged to return to South Africa in the hottest weather to prosecute the case against her.

TWO SETS OF TRUSTEES.

School Section No. 4, Emily, Has Separate School Question.

Lindsay, Dec. 29.—Downeyville, Victoria, has a separate school question at S. S. No. 4, Emily. There are only four Protestant ratepayers. Yesterday morning at the annual school meeting Father Breberton, who was a public school trustee, announced that under instructions from Bishop O'Connor of Peterboro, he had organized the territory into a separate school section, that the other trustees had agreed to act with him as trustees in the new organization and that the school property had been transferred to them. About 30 ratepayers were present. Not many of them besides the four Protestants objected vigorously to the priest's course and demanded without avail that the books be handed over to them. Later the objectors met and elected public school trustees under the direction of Inspector J. H. Knight, who was present. Legal action is being instituted against the separate school board to get control of the school property.

A BREWERY WRECKED.

$30,000 Fire in Cosgrave's, Toronto, On Wednesday Night.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—The fire department was up against its first battle of this winter, and in a heavy gale and frigid atmosphere did creditable work at a blaze which caused some $30,000 loss to the Cosgrave Brewing Co., Limited, at Queen and Niagara streets. The fire occurred just after 6 o'clock, and although when first seen the blaze was at its incipient stage, the slight time elapsing between the giving of the alarm and the arrival of the firemen was sufficient to give the fire good headway. The fire was confined to the manufacturing plant and malt kiln, the malt house, offices, barley houses and new ice plant being untouched. The loss is made up of $10,000 on hops, $10,000 on malt damaged by water and $10,000 on buildings. The machinery damaged is not expensive, but the company will be shut down for at least a month. Other breweries were quick last night in proffering assistance.

Killed a Canadian.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 29.—Joe Guilmette of Woonsocket, R.I., yesterday was found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing Mathias Mongoon, whose home, it is believed, was in Ontario, Canada. The crime was committed on Oct. 17 last. The men, who had just returned from the harvest fields, were thought to have quarreled over the summer's earnings. The victim was shot and his head was crushed with some blunt instrument. The body was then dragged to some underbrush, and was not found until some time later.

SEE PORT ARTHUR FALL

Japanese Have Mounted Big Guns On 203-Metre Hill.

No Truth in Story That Russian Torpedo Boat Destroyers Escaped and Landed in Vladivostock—Gen. Kondrachenko Meets Death in the Fortress, and Gen. Stoessel Has Been Injured By Falling From His Horse.

Che Foo, Dec. 29.—It is reported here that the Japanese in front of Port Arthur have mounted two 28-centimetre guns on 203-Metre Hill.

No Torpedoes Escaped.

Che Foo, Dec. 29.—The persistent rumor which has been in circulation for the past two weeks that several torpedo boat destroyers had escaped from Port Arthur and succeeded in reaching Vladivostock, is denied by the officers of the British steamer Ellmay, which arrived here from Vladivostock yesterday. These officers say that the cruisers Rossia and Gromboi are in good shape.

Russ General Killed.

Tokio, Dec. 29.—Trustworthy advices from Port Arthur confirm the report that Gen. Kondrachenko has been killed and that Gen. Stoessel has been injured by falling from his horse. Gen. Smilnoff is also reported wounded.

Jap List of Dead.

Tokio, Dec. 29.—The navy department publishes a list of nine officers and 65 men who were killed while on special duty.

The army department publishes a list of 23 officers killed and 56 wounded, presumably at Port Arthur.

Food Prices Are High.

Tokio, Dec. 29.—Reports from Port Arthur say the garrison is confident in the belief that relief will arrive before March 1. Despite its heavy losses Nov. 26 and subsequently the garrison is said to be cheerful and resolved to continue the struggle as long as a single soldier remains. The army claims to have sufficient provisions to last until February. The navy possesses about one month's stores. The price of food in the beleaguered fortress is high. Beef is a rouble and one-half per pound, horse meat is six copecks per pound, dog meat 25 copecks per pound, turkeys 150 roubles apiece, eggs 160 roubles per hundred. The Russian rouble to-day is worth about 77 cents.

Getting Ready For Spring.

Huanshan, Dec. 29.—Everything continues quiet along the front of the hostile armies. There is little expectation of a decisive movement till spring, when it will be possible for both sides to throw in strong reinforcements to commence the campaign in earnest. In the meantime the chief business of the Japanese seems to be regarding their communication eastward.

They have an unusually full equipment of narrow guage field railways, one of which connects General Kuroki's base at Shadedzi with Fengwang with a branch to Saimtsza. A supplementary line is being laid in connecting Liaoyang with Haicheng. There is an important line of warehouses along the Yalu River and many bridges have recently been constructed with a care unusual in field operation. This elaborate system has been seriously threatened by Gen. Rennenkampff's raids southeastward.

There are evidences that the Japanese are strengthening and fortifying their line of communications toward Corea, which necessarily will absorb a considerable force.

Mines Off Coast of Formosa.

Washington, Dec. 29.—The U. S. State Department has been officially informed that mines have been placed in Kelung Harbor, northeast coast of Formosa, and that shipping has been notified.

Cossacks Die of Bubonic.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 29.—It is officially announced that a disease, whose characteristics are similar to bubonic plague, has appeared among the Kirghizoo Cossacks in two settlements of the Ural territory, resulting in nineteen deaths between Nov. 24 and Dec. 26. The localities have been declared to be infected with the plague.

Moscow Zemstvo Adjourned.

Moscow, Dec. 29.—The Zemstvo adjourned indefinitely yesterday evening after the adoption of this resolution: "This Zemstvo deeply moved by the Government note in regard to proceedings at Zemstvo meetings, is unable to continue its business with the necessary calm, and therefore adjourns sine die."

The resolution was signed by thirty-four delegates and seven voted against it.

Death Followed Operation.

Fergus, Dec. 29.—On Monday morning Byron Moir, about 19 years of age, eldest son of Forbes Moir of West Garafraxa, was going across the railway track to look after some stock on another farm, when, owing to the dense fog, he started to cross the track but was struck by the step of the hind car a few inches above the knee. After consultation it was found necessary to amputate the leg. The shock was too severe, as at midnight he died.

Another Fire Victim.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—Another victim has been added to the list of the dead as a result of the fire in Perrault lane on Christmas morning, in the death of Ida St. George, who was taken from the building so badly burned that there was no hope for her recovery. The victim was 19 years of age.

He Played With a Revolver.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—John Farmer, aged 15, was brought to the General Hospital from Claremont yesterday. While toying with a revolver, he got a bullet in the right thigh.

F. W. MORSE APPOINTED.

General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—The first circular issued by Mr. Charles M. Hays as President of the Grand Trunk Pacific announces that Mr. Frank W. Morse, Third Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Railway, will retire from that company on January 1st and thereafter devote his time exclusively to the interests of the new transcontinental. As Vice-President, and General Manager he will have general supervision and direction of all departments. His headquarters will be at Montreal. Mr. E. H. Fitzhugh, Vice-President and General Manager of the Central Vermont branch of the G.T.R., will succeed Mr. Morse. A successor to Mr. Fitzhugh has not yet been announced.

Ottawa to Toronto Via Kingston.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—At a mayoralty campaign meeting here last evening, Mayor Ellis announced that he had reason to believe that the G. T. R., which is to take over the Canada Atlantic Railway, will construct a line from Ottawa to Kingston.

This would connect with the main line, and would allow of a train being run direct from Ottawa to Toronto, and would do away with the present changing of cars, as required when going to Toronto on the C. P. R.

The Mayor says the city will not be asked to contribute any share of the cost.

VALUE OF APPRENTICES.

Gurney Company's Estimate of Those Enticed From Its Service.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—The Gurney Foundry Company have begun action against the Western Foundry Company of Wingham, claiming $19,000 because the defendant company is alleged to have enticed away 15 apprentices and workmen. The taking of evidence was begun yesterday by the master.

W. H. Carrick, first vice-president of the Gurney Company, referring to one apprentice, Mallory by name, said he estimated his services at $25 a day, but the wage he got was 66 2-3 cents. Other men are declared to have been worth from $25 to $75 a day to the firm. Some have returned to its employ. Ordinary apprentices are valued at $5 a day. The trouble dates back to 1903, when the Western Company was started.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger—It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

Banquet to Sir Fred Borden.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—Whole-souled good-fellowship and jovial good humor marked the banquet given Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia and Defence, at the officers' mess-rooms in the armories last night. The banquet was a gratifying success, a hearty, wholesome meeting, that bred enthusiasm in the cause of the militia in general and left no sting behind. Sir Frederick's speech dealt largely with the issues local to Toronto and district.

Eugene Blackford Dead.

New York, Dec. 29.—Eugene G. Blackford, president of the Bedford Bank of Brooklyn, and a well-known ichthyologist, died of apoplexy, at his home in Brooklyn last night. Mr. Blackford was commissioner of fish and fisheries of the State of New York in 1879, and had published many papers on fish.

Re-Arm British Army.

London, Dec. 29.—The War Office has placed orders for sufficient 18½ pounder field guns to practically re-arm the whole of the British army.

Fortune Teller Closed Out.

Pittsburg, Dec. 29.—Through the interference of Manager Harry Davis, of the Avenue Theatre, yesterday afternoon, Anna Eva Fay was forced to surrender to the District Attorney and her show has been closed. She had a hearing before Alderman Toole on a charge of fortune-telling, and she and her managers are to have a hearing to-day on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the public. Alderman Toole reserved his decision in the fortune-telling case. Miss Fay has had crowded houses for five weeks, many of her patrons being society women.

Manitoba Dentists' Desires.

Winnipeg, Dec. 29.—The Manitoba Dental Association met yesterday and drew up a resolution to present to Parliament, asking for legislation to enable dentists with Dominion certificates to practise in Manitoba and thus do away with local examinations. Their solicitor is now preparing the details of the resolution which will be presented to a general meeting of the association in two weeks' time.

Bleeding Protruding Piles

Mrs. James Brown, Hintonburgh, Carleton Co., Ont., writes:—"I suffered from nearly every form of piles for twenty years, both here and in the Old Country, and have tried nearly every remedy. I am only doing justice to Dr. Chase's Ointment when I say that I believe it to be the best remedy obtainable for bleeding and protuding piles, of which it has cured me."

New Year's Reception.

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. met a few evenings ago and outlined the programme for the annual Red Letter Day on Monday, Jan. 2nd, 1905. There will be a continuous musicale in the parlors from 2 to 5 on that day. Also games and gymnastic exhibition. A basket ball match with a visiting team is the feature for the evening.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and the pleasures of life. HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Karnot team for Bobcaygeon to-morrow will be as follows:—Goal, Kingscote; point, Dormer; cover point, Winch; forwards, B. W. Grose, C. Campbell, R. O'Dette, L. W. Gilman.

The above players are asked to be at the Grand Trunk station at 8.10 o'clock Friday morning in order to take the train for Bobcaygeon via Lindsay.

Port Hope will be here tomorrow night for a game with the juniors. This should be a fast and exciting contest as the two teams were about evenly matched last year. The local juniors will line up as follows—Goal, Fitzpatrick, point Squires, coverpoint Moore, rover H. Long, centre McFarlane, right wing Smith, left wing Hall. Dr. Lionel King will referee.

The City League games tonight should furnish some good hockey. The Farriers and Verniers come together in the first contest, and the T.A.S. and the Earl Greys in the second. The wise ones are selecting the Farriers and the T.A.S. as winners, but the other teams can be depended on to put up a hard fight.

George street Guild will practice this evening on the Y.M.C.A. rink between 6.30 and 8. All members are asked to be in attendance.

The following junior teams are asked to be at the rink for a practive game tonight:

Goal, Fitzpatrick, point Squires, coverpoint Moore, forwards H. Long, Smith, Hall and McFarlane.

Goal, Kingscote or Ferguson, point Winch, coverpoint McDonald, forwards Doughty, S. Rush, Mulhern, Todd.

The games tomorrow night promise to be decidedly interesting. At 7.30 o'clock the juniors meet Port Hope in an exhibition game, and as the bunch from the front are very strong, a great contest may be looked for. The second game will be between the "Has Beens" and "Never Was,'" the former consisting of the old senior team of '97 and 98, and the latter of the present intermediate team. The teams will line up as follows—

"Has Beens"—Goal, Wasson; point, Hollingshead; coverpoint, Crowley; forwards, Lionel King, Roger Davidson, "Scottie" Phelan and Chris. Graham.

"Never Was'"—Goal, Fitzpatrick; point, Ford; coverpoint, Meagher; forwards, Morgan, Parnell, Cavanah, Hall.

—The Eko Camp rooms on George-st., were the scene of a pleasant social gathering last evening. The Marioana Orchestra, of Toronto, discoursed sweet music, and thus made the occasion more delightful. Not a few old friends home for Christmas were present, and the opportunity was taken to renew old acquaintances.

—The marriage of Mr. Geo. Dunham, of Seymour, and Miss Maggie McGregor, of Otonabee, was celebrated this afternoon at St. Andrew's Manse. Mr. W. W. Rutherford, of Seymour, was groomsman, and Miss McGregor was brideamaid. The Rev. J. G. Potter officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Dunham left on the C.P.R. train this afternoon for points west.

AN UXBRIDGE WEDDING.

Miss Lollie Long and Mr. Walter Barringer Were the Principals.

The principals in a pretty Christmas wedding at the residence of Mr. David Long, Uxbridge, on Monday morning were his eldest daughter, Miss Lollie Long and Mr. Walter Barringer, who for some time has been on the staff of the Peterborough Review. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. McEwen, pastor of the Baptist church. The bride was given away by her father and wore a handsome travelling suit of brown. She was assisted by Miss Lillie Barber, while Mr. Will Barringer, brother of the groom, was best man.

After a delightful wedding dinner and the expression of much congratulatory sentiment by friends, the young couple left for a wedding trip in the West. They intend making Peterborough their home, and are now residing at [illegible] Hunter street.

VISITORS WON EXCITING GAME

Locals Lose Their First Match of the Season.

QUEEN'S THE VICTORS BY 9-8

Good Crowd and Fine Hockey—The Score at Half-time Was 5-4. The Locals Made a Fine Showing Against the Speedy Visitors—Cavanah the Star.

The Peterborough Intermediate O. H.A. team went down to defeat by a score of 9—8 last night, in a game with Queen's University, Kingston. About 600 people saw the match which was a fine exhibition of hockey. It was a trifle slow in spots as both teams were not in the best of condition, but at times the players wakened up adn played lightning hockey. Neither aggregation displayed much combination work, the goals nearly all being due to individual rushes. The locals were, if anything, a little superior as far as combination went.

The Collegians had their strongest line-up which is the same as played here last season, with one exception. On that occasion they were defeated by 6—3 in a hotly contested game. Last evening they were more fortunate, managing to win out after an exciting struggle, by the narrow margin of one goal. The game was of a see-saw character, abounding in end to end rushes. Queen's had not much advantage over the locals in the first period or in the last part of the second, but in the first part of the second half the locals went rather to the bad, and the Collegians got three in the load. Capt. Cavanah's bunch rallied, however, and scored two goals in quick order. Only the fine blocking of the visitors' defence and a little hard luck prevented them from winning out. Their playing surprised a lot of people who have not been watching the practices, but the wise ones were confident that they would give Queen's a hot argument.

For Peterborough, Cavanah, at rover, was undoubtedly the star, and it is doubtful it there was a better man on the ice. He had speed to burn, checked hard, and shot with the velocity of a 6-inch gun and the accuracy of a King's prizeman. His rushing was very brilliant, several times taking the puck the whole length of the ice. His shooting capacity is evidenced by the fact that he scored five of Peterborough's eight goals. Graham, at left wing, was as fast and clever as ever. He held the speedy Williams, of last year's champion juniors to perfection. He was always in on the goal-keeper. Morgan also put up a good game, although not in the best of condition. He has improved wonderfully in his stick handling and his shooting is deadly. Parnell, at centre, demonstrated that he is fast enough for O.H.A. hockey. He is a speedy skater and a good stick handler. The forwards played a fine game and when their combination gets into shape they will be able to make things decidedly interesting for any defence they may run up against.

The defence was also strong. They checked hard and relieved well. Their only fault was that they allowed themselves to be drawn out too much, giving the visitors' forward line a chance to break through. Wasson, between the flags, has had no practice, but put up a good game, turning aside many bad looking shots and clearing quickly. Ford, at point, checked and blocked well. He also made a number of fine rushes, two of which resulted in scores. Crowley, at coverpoint, was a very hard man to pass. He checked hard and made some nice dashes. He appears to be the right man in the right place.

For the visitors, Richardson, at left wing was easily the star. He is one of the fastest men that ever played here, and scored most of the Collegian's goals on brilliant rushes. When he got going it seemed impossible to stop him, and several times he took the puck through the whole Peterborough team for a score. Walsh, at rover, was also very fast, and his rushes were pretty to watch. The other forwards were fast and good shots, although Williams was held down by Graham too effectively to do very much.

Their defence was very strong. They played well in on the goal and refused to be drawn out, consequently the local forwards were forced to shoot at long range. Mills, in goal, was certainly a fine performer, stopping shot after shot ticketed for the nets and clearing very quickly. Macdonnel, the lanky point, was a second goal keeper, turning aside many a well-meant attempt at a score. He was a veritable stone wall and lifted well. E. Sutherland, the speedy little coverpoint, put up a great game. He is a very clever stick handler, as well as a hard check and good lift.

Dr. Lionel King was a very satisfactory referee. His duties were light, as the game was comparatively clean.

The teams were as follows:

Queen's		Peterborough
	Goal.
Mills		Wasson
	Point
Macdonnell		Ford
	Cover
E. Sutherland		Crowley
	Rover.
Walsh (capt)		Cavanah (capt)

This is a long, loose-fitting coat, with broad shoulders and close-fitting collar — made in Scotch Tweeds, Irish or Scotch Homespuns or Irish Friezes.

Every detail in the manufacture of this coat, as well as every Semi-ready garment, receives the closest attention. We have spent hours merely to select the best silk thread for the button holes.

The average merchant tailor cannot afford the time to spend on each detail of this kind—because he represents 25 per cent of the working staff. With us our hundreds of employees can continue their work, while two or three are looking after such details.

It means a lot to you to know that every detail has been carefully looked after before you see it—that is one reason why we can offer to give your money back for any cause.

It is worth many sales to us to discover where we can make an improvement.

Semi-ready Tailoring

CRESSMAN'S, PETERBORO'

THREATENED TO STAB.

There was an exciting moment or two in the post office this morning, when two boys proceeded to settle a grievance within the somewhat limited space allowed to the general public there. One of the lads had a bad black eye, and he had it in for the other, who, apparently, had been the aggressor a moment before. Words grew hot, and suddenly the boy with the eye drew a big knife, and, assuming a threatening attitude, exclaimed, "If you come near me I'll kill you!" There were men standing near who chose rather to laugh at the scene than to knock the youngsters' heads together and make them cease hostilities. A woman finally stepped between the lads, who thereupon withdrew. The Italian instinct seems to be developing.

PROF. TUCKER DEAD.

Prof. R. Tucker, well-known as a fiddler, and who was committed to the gaol the other day on a charge of vagrancy, died last night. An inquest was held this morning, Mr. W. H. Hamilton being the foreman of 12 good men and true. Evidence was received from Dr. Caldwell and a verdict was returned that deceased had died from natural causes. He was 70 years of age.

DISLOCATED HIS HIP.

Mr. G. W. Armstrong, 354 Stewart-st. is a victim of the slippery pavements. He was returning from work at the Wm. Hamilton Company's on Tuesday evening, and on Reid-st. fell in such a manner as to dislocate his hip. He was removed to his home and a doctor was called. Mr. Armstrong is progressing favorably but it will be some time before he is able to be out again.

A Coming Treat.

One of the best concerts of the season will be that held under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. on January 10th, in the opera house. Miss Jessie Alexander, who has always been the favorite with Peterborough audiences, but who has not been heard here for some years, is one of the artists, while H. M. Field, the well-known piano virtuoso, is another. As this will be the best concert of the season a packed house is assured. The admission will be 75 cents, 50 cents and 25 cents.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been nominated for Alderman, I have, at the request of a large number of my friends, consented to become a candidate.

I earnestly ask your votes and influence, and will, if elected, do all in my power to safeguard your interest and to advance the welfare and prosperity of our enterprising town.

Thanking you in anticipation of your generous support, and wishing you all the compliments of the season. I remain,

Your obedient servant,

J. J. LYNCH.

Municpal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having been nominated for Alderman, I again solicit your vote and influence.

During the past four years that I have had the honor and privilege of representing you, I have endeavored to discharge my duty and responsibility of the office in a faithful and zealous manner.

I do not intend to make a personal canvass, but take this means of soliciting your support.

If elected I will fill the position as well as in the past.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am,

Your obedient servant,

JOSEPH BATTEN.

Peterborough, Dec. 27, 1904.

TO THE ELECTORS.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

At the urgent solicitation of a number of ratepayers of Peterborough, I have accepted nomination as Alderman for 1905.

As it will be impossible for me to make a personal canvass, I take this opportunity of soliciting your vote and influence.

If elected my voice and vote will always be found advocating measures calculated to advance the interests of our town, in the prosperity of which I am so largely interested.

Wishing you a prosperous and happy New Year.

I am, yours truly

ADAM HALL.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Your vote and influence are solicited in my interest as Alderman for 1905. If elected I will endeavor to look after your interests in a faithful, earnest and intelligent manner. I am personally known to a large number of you, and trust that you will give me your support.

My views on the issues of this campaign I hope to place before you on Thursday night, and, if they meet with your approval, I trust you will not forget me on election day. I do not intend to make a personal canvass. Wishing you all a bright and happy New Year, I remain, yours obediently.

THOS. J. BEGLEY.

Peterborough, Dec. 28th, 1904.

Election of Aldermen.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been again nominated for Alderman for a second term, I have consented to become a candidate and solicit you vote and influence.

My past twelve months' experience at the Council Board justifies me in saying that every effort is necessary to judiciously restrain the annual expenditures of the town. Should you again honor me with your support my aim will be to safeguard the interests of the town by such economic expenditure as is consistent with the welfare of our growing municipality.

Your obedient servant,

ROBERT HICKS.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

At the request of a large number of friends, I offer myself as a candidate for Alderman of the Town of Peterborough for 1905.

It is impossible for me to make a personal canvass of all the electors, and I take this means of soliciting your vote and influence. Although my nomination is endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council, I retain a free hand to act in the best interests of the masses, and will give my best efforts to safeguard and advance the interests of all citizens.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year, I remain, yours respectfully.

JOSEPH CROWE.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

W. J. JOHNSTON

respectfully solicits your vote and influence to secure his election as Alderman for the Town of Peterborough for the coming year.

He wishes to thank the ratepayers for the cordial support accorded to him in the past.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

Card to the Electors.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having been nominated as a candidate for election to the Municipal Council, I solicit your vote and influence in my behalf.

If elected I shall endeavor to serve the town to my fullest capacity and carefully guard its interests.

Yours respectfully,

R. H. BRADBURN.

Card to the Electors.

Municipal Council of 1905.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

As a candidate for election to the Municipal Council of 1905, I solicit your assistance to effect my election.

I am in favor of municipal ownership of our utilities and a strong policy to encourage the location here of additional manufactures. By push and energy I think this can be accomplished, and if favored with your preference I will endeavor to show that my work will merit approval.

Yours respectfully,

G. J. TOVEY.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

A. A. McINTYRE

Respectfully requests your vote and influence in his favor as a candidate for Alderman for the year 1905.

If elected, he will use every effort in support of economic government, and give the same careful attention to the best interests of the town as he would do to his own business.

He wishes all his fellow citizens a happy and prosperous New Year.

A CARD.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Having been requested by a large number of ratepayers to stand for election for Alderman for the coming year, and I am opposed to personal canvassing, I take this means to let you know that I am in the field, and ask for your hearty support. If elected I will endeavor to do my duty for the best interests of the town.

Wishing you the compliments of the season.

I am, yours respectfully,

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been nominated for the position of Alderman on the Municipal Council for 1905, and having decided to enter the contest, I take this means of respectfully asking your support. It is not my intention to make a canvas, as I do not believe that is the most advisable manner in which to place one's self before the electorate, but in the event of my election I will devote myself, to as great an extent as possible, to the best interests of the town, giving them as close and undivided attention as I would the transaction of my own business.

I take pleasure in wishing you the compliments of the season.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT H. LEARY.

Christmas Bargains

The Aftermath of Christmas!

The holiday shopping is all over, and the store is beginning to settle down to normal ways again. Our Christmas business was greater than it has ever been before, and our vast stock was pretty well picked over. Of course, this picking leaves in its wake many things that are tumbled and bedraggled, and these have no place in a clean, fresh stock. So we've put them out and put hurry-out prices on them, just to make them tempting. Intrinsically, just as good as ever, merely lost a part of their good looks, that's all, and for this you get the reduction on

Men's Mufflers, Ladies' Mufflers, Ladies' Silk Waists, Ladies' Silk Skirts, Muslin Pillow Shams, Ladies' and Gent's Silk Handkerchiefs, Fancy Rafia Baskets, Bevel Plate Hand Mirrors, Fancy Handkerchief Boxes, Ladies' and Children's Coats, etc.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

—Prepare to date your letters 1905.

—Buy a diary and keep a record of your acts.

—The Colonial Hockey Club will meet to-night at 9 o'clock at the rink for important business.

—George Wright, charged with vagrancy at the Police Court this morning, was remanded for eight days.

—Mr. W. H. Greer, of Brandon, Manitoba, is at the Cavanagh House, buying all classes of horses fit for use in the Northwest.

—Friends will learn with regret of the death of the 2-year-old son of Mr. Hector Baker, Park-st., the cause of death being diphtheria.

—The best points in some of the aldermanic platforms are set out in their election cards which appear on last page in today's Review.

—Messrs W. G. Morrow and Wm. Irwin have been appointed directors of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, to succeed the late R. B. McKee and A. A. Cox. Mr. A. L. Davis has been made Vice-President in succession to Mr. McKee. A dividend of three per cent. has been declared on the operations of the company for the past six months, making a total of six per cent. for the year.

—A pretty and somewhat unique wedding, at which a daughter was her mother's bridesmaid, occurred in Belleville Wednesday afternoon when Prof. J. Frith Jeffers, M.A., Principal of the Belleville Business College and a former principal in Peterborough Collegiate Institute, was married to Mrs. Faustina Turner, eldest daughter of Mrs. D. H. Foster Dundas street.

—A big brick wall of a shed at the rear of the Oriental hotel, fell in the other day and covered up several crates of English crockery in Mr. C. B. Routley's establishment. The wall was about 100 feet long, 16 feet high and 14 inches thick, and damaged Mr Routley's goods to a large extent. The debris has now been cleared up, and Mr. Routley is offering the parts of the dinner ware that were not broken, at a big sacrifice.

—An excellent attraction is promised all those who will go to Bradburn's Opera House on Monday night next, to hear Rev. Father Kelley, of Lapeer Mich., lecture on the "Dream of Equality." The Grand Rapids Evening Press says of him: "Father Kelly, from reports was eminently an interesting personage, but probably few of the persons who went to the Auditorium last night were prepared for the masterful effort with which they were favored. Father Kelley is an orator in everything that the phrase implies. Figuratively speaking he carried his audience along with him." He will be here under the auspices of the Kinghts of Columbus in aid of St. Joseph's hospital and the House of Providence. The admission fee is 25 and 35 cents. Be sure to hear the eloquent lecturer on Wednesday evening, January 2nd in the Opera House 1d

THE BARBERS' BANQUET.

The local organisation of the Barbers' Union met around the festive board last evening and had a most pleasant and sociable time. About thirty were in attendance. The banquet took place in Long's Palm Gardens, Mr. Long catering in his usual excellent style. The menu left nothing to be desired and was done ample justice to. Afterwards the usual toast list was run off, Mr. E. Mitchell acting as toast master in faultless fashion.

Lover's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is a boon to any home. It disinfects and cleans at the same time.

AN OLD RESIDENT GONE.

Mr. Robert White Expired This Morning After a Long Illness.

The death occurred this morning of one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. Robert White, one of the proprietors of the White House hotel. The deceased had not been in good health for some time and his death was not unexpected.

The late Mr. White was born in Ireland and was seventy-nine years of age. He came to Peterborough sixty-seven years ago and has been a resident of this community ever since. He for many years conducted a flourishing livery business, one of the first established in Peterborough. He also drove the stage coach between Peterborough and Port Hope, which was the only means of transport between the two places in those days.

During the last twelve or thirteen years of his life Mr. White was one of the proprietors of the hotel on Charlotte-st. which bears his name.

Mr. White during his long life in Peterborough had endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, and the community as a whole will be sorry to learn of his demise.

His wife and six children survive. The children are Messrs. Frank, Augustus, Margaret and Josie, of town; Mrs. J. Lawrence, of Toronto, and Mrs. F. J. Bell, of Montreal.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for burial.

GEORGE ST. EXTENSION.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to a say a word on what is to my mind a very important matter, namely, the extension of George-st. to the Exhibition grounds. I would like to ask if the ratepayers of the town, which we are all so proud of, are going to allow our main street to be dubbed off and twisted around at Lake-st. Why not secure the right of way now when it can be had at so small a figure instead of having to purchase and tear down buildings in the future at an enormous cost.

Those taking the initiative step in this matter will, I am sure, have the hearty approval of the ratepayers.

Yours respectfully,
RATEPAYER.
Peterborough, Dec. 29th, 1904.

The view expressed in the above letter should be read by every ratepayer in town. At the present time the lots necessary for the extension of George-st. straight to the driving park are easily obtainable, and it can readily be seen that expenditure thus called for will in a short time be made good by the return from properties which will front on the new extension. There are at present quite a number of houses going up in that portion of the town, and the opening of the new street would undoubtedly tend to create a fine residential section. The by-law should receive a large vote next Monday.

Johnston, Crowe and Begley if elected as Aldermen, will deal with all citizens without fear or favor, and act to the best of their judgment in all questions brought before the Council.

REPORT IS DENIED.

Louis Fobert is Largely Interested in Chemong Park Hotel.

During the temperance campaign in connection with the local option by-law in Smith, it appears that at some of the meetings reports have been circulated to the effect that Mr. Louis Fobert, of Bridgenorth, has no interest in the Chemong Park Hotel, and that Mr. Wm. Irwin is sole owner. Mr. Irwin called on the Review to-day to state that this is not correct, and positively asserts that Mr. Fobert is largely interested in the Chemong Park hotel property.

THE "NOT OUT'S" DANCE.

An Enjoyable Affair—Many Out-of-Town Guests Present.

One of the most enjoyable little dances of the season was that which was held in the Foresters' Hall last evening by the "Not Outs." The success of the affair is due to Miss Helen Davidson as treasurer, and Miss Edith Aylmer as secretary, and those who were present, about seventy in number, were much pleased with the arrangements made for their enjoyment.

Mrs. Aylmer, Mrs. R. S. Davidson and Mrs. R. R. Hall were the patronesses, and many visitors were present from Toronto and other places. One of the features of the dance was the pretty programmes, which had all been prepared by the young girls themselves, and were doubtless valued as a souvenir of the event. The music was furnished by the Marioni Orchestra, of Toronto.

ROBBERY IN SMITH.

Sneak Thief Caught in the Act by Farmer of That Township.

A daring robbery was nipped in the bud on Thursday morning by a Smith farmer, who with great presence of mind and quickness of action succeeded in capturing the culprit single handed.

Mr. J. Sanderson, who lives in Smith township heard sounds of trouble coming from his hen house the other morning and upon investigation he found a large owl making a meal of one of his fine hens, which at the price poultry is selling just now, are worth their weight in gold. He succeded in capturing the monster and yesterday morning it was brought to town. It is a very large and handsome specimen of the Virginia oat oyl and attracted much attention when put on exhibition in the window of Wm. O'Brien's tobacco store."

Music by Charlotte-st. Church orchestra.

The evening program starts at 8 o'clock.

Relay Race between Arrows and Eagles Basket Ball teams—5 minutes.

Special Gymnastics by Senior L. Corps—10 minutes.

Basket Ball game between Arrows and Eagles of the Intermediates.

Piano Selections.

There will be no charge for either programme. Ladies and gentleman heartily invited to both.

AN ENNISMORE TREAT.

Mr. R. M. Roy Showed Some Excellent Views—Programme of Music.

An entertainment which proved very delightful to a large number of people was given in St. Martin's T.A.S. Hall, Ennismore, last evening. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick was in the chair. The feature of the occasion was "A Trip Through Ireland" an illustrated lecture by Mr. R. M. Roy, who displayed on canvas a large number of very fine views. He also had an interesting collection of illustrations of the Russo-Jap war. These give an excellent idea of important features of the great struggle now going on and it is hoped that at a near date Mr. Roy will be given an opportunity to show these views in Peterborough.

An enjoyable programme of vocal and instrumental music, choruses and recitations was also given last evening in Ennismore, and enthusiastic applause was accorded those contributing.

FRIDAY, DEC. 30, 1904.

Election day on Monday.

Remember you can vote for twelve candidates on Monday

Peterborough has exactly the same complaint as St. Thomas about a jam at the post office, on Christmas day, and a correspondent offers free delivery as the remedy.—St. Thomas Journal.

The work of organization on the part of the Conservatives of West Peterborough is now in good shape and the prospects of Mr. Bradburn redeeming the riding grow brighter each succeeding day.

"Remember Ross"
And by your cross
Knock him out
Of the job of Boss,
For on 25th of Jan.
J. P. Whitney is the man.

Nearly all the candidates last night referred in no measured terms to the disgraceful state of affairs and utter lack of proper accommodation at the post office. The general tenor of their remarks was that nothing would meet the needs of a place the size of Peterborough, except a free mail delivery system. The new council might very properly take up the matter and cease not in its efforts until the object so much desired is attained.

We think we have said enough to show that while the party system is inevitable in provincial and federal affairs there is no excuse for its existence in municipal affairs, says the London Advertiser. Where it is applied to a municipality serious evils may creep in. A municipal government touches the average citizen more closely than a federal or a provincial government, and has more power to inflict injustice. The money of the taxpayers cannot be spent to the best advantage or the strictest justice meted out to all classes of citizens when a municipal council studies every act with relation to its effect upon the fortunes of a political party. A municipal council, in doing its full duty, must sometimes give offence to influential party men manufacturers, who want lower assessments, public franchise corporations, which have contracts with the city, ratepayers who want improvements and so on. There is a great temptation to favor those of the same political persuasion because of the bearing such an action may have on provincial and federal elections.

The public meeting in the opera house last night, although not largely attended, was very interesting from a ratepayers' standpoint, and the issues of the municipal campaign were fully and freely discussed. All the candidates were given a good hearing and promised, if elected, to keep Peterborough's prosperity always in view and to do everything in their power to induce more industries to locate here. The electors have a field of nineteen men from which, on Monday next, to elect twelve good men and true to look after interests. Although five of the old representatives have stepped aside there are other capable aspirants, who should, if successful at the polls, render good service at the Council Board. Mr. T. F. Matthews made some strong points as to why the by-law to raise $20,000 for waterworks extensions and improvements should be carried. Ald. Adams also explained very clearly his by-law in favor of the payment of granolithic walks by general taxation rather than by the frontage system. Mayor-elect Best gave an admirable review of the town's financial position, and retiring Mayor Roger also made a short, but hopeful speech. The news columns of the Review contain a complete and impartial summing up of the points scored by the different speakers, and the report should be read by all the ratepayers in order that they may be able to intelligently cast their ballots on Monday next for the best men.

The clergy are after the Ross government in earnest. Another reverend gentleman in the person of Rev. Nathaniel Smith, who now resides in Toronto, finds it necessary to speak out in condemnation of the corrupt and shameless record of the Ross administration. He is a life long Liberal and, like the Rev. Dr. Hossack, tells the Premier a few things in unmistakable terms. He addresses his open letter to Mr J. P. Whitney and endorses the position of Rev D. C. Hossack. Then he says: "Though I have all my days been a Reformer or Liberal, following as was the case of Mr. Hossack, the guidance of my father, and though I have been abused by word of mouth and through the press because I have fought for Liberalism, and especially for Mr. Ross, yet I intend to withhold my support, such as it is, from Mr Ross in the future.

"I believe that though Mr. Ross is a man with good intentions and good desires, he has not the courage of his convictions. He appears to most people in this province to be a wobbler. He has been so afraid of losing office, so fond of political power, that rather than lose that office and power he has been recreant to his most sacred obligation."

Mr Smith deals at length with the premier's treachery to his prohibition promises and then points out the opportunity before Mr. Whitney if returned to power on the 25th day of January, saying: "And if you are next you may do a great service to your country which an angel might covet you to do. You may, in the first place set your face against all political corruption, that foul thing which has made Canada, and especially Ontario, politically infamous before the civilized world."

THE TOWN "SCOUNDRELS".

Respectfully submitted by our own humorist.

Nineteen aspirants! Great Scott!
The Mayor—First Best!

We shall probably have to submit to Lynch law; there will be times when "Old Crowe" will not come amiss; it is better to drink than to eat. It is to be hoped the Council will not all be Leary and that their transactions will not Begley. At all events we may rest assured that "Honest Joe" will not "Batten on the spoils of office." Then we have O'Brien—if he isn't the "salt of the earth" he is made of it. We may reasonably expect the Mason to build on a solid foundation and the eve of another election will surely be Adams' temptation. The Clans of the town will shout for the bold McIntyre, Duncan the brave. While the latter is there we shall be able to hold fast the boat's painter. A certain candidate with canvas spread, Saw 'er sail away with him.

To-vey or not To-vey! That is the question! With so many fish in the net there must be a fair Hall.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

WHY SHOULD HE OBJECT?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—Mr. Stratton is very indignant at the rumor that Mr. Whitney is going to stump the East riding. Well, all I can say is, that if Mr. Stratton thinks he is going to run for the East riding some time himself, I don't see what he can object to in Mr. Whitney or any other man, coming and letting a little daylight into the state of affairs in Ontario, which Mr. Stratton, as well as Mr. Ross, deserves credit for. If Mr. Stratton wants to run here at the next Dominion election, let him run, but he will not be running on velvet. Yours truly,

ELECTOR.

LOCAL OPTION IN EARNEST.

To the Editor of the Review.

A most enthusiastic nomination was held at Bridgenorth on Monday last. One needed to be present but a few minutes to be fully convinced that two parties were in the room. The great issue was, license or no license, banish the bars or allow them to run. Both were for electing reeve and councillors favorable to their cause.

After the nominations were closed a local option committee met and decided to support such candidates as would use their influence to enforce the by-law if the majority of electors so voted.

As temperance workers we have come to the conclusion that the only way to secure temperance legislation is to elect temperance men from township council to Legislative Assembly. We therefore ask the temperance supporters of Smith not only to vote for the by-law and banish the bars, but to vote for men who have stood, and will stand, for enforcing the law and carrying out the wishes of the people in this regard.

Sincerely yours,
ELLWOOD BOWERMAN.
Selwyn, Dec. 27th, 1904.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

To the Editor fo The Review.

Sir,—The person who signed himself, "One of the Sufferers" did not strike hard enough, which is the only mistake he made. It is a crying shame that a town the size of Peterborough, with nearly fifteen thousand population, does not have a free mail delivery. There are other towns with not half the population of Peterborough that have their free mail delivery. We have reached a time in our history when we must either go ahead or go back, and this question of free delivery will be a sign to the outside manufacturing world who will be the first to take notice if our town is going to the front or allowing other smaller places to pass us by.

It remains with the Aldermen elect to grasp these go-ahead ideas or will they still allow a patient but long suffering public to be crowded in that one small room in the post-office, where many men and women having worked hard all day, call for their mail, and find they have to stand and wait a long time before they can be waited on. Many of them have a long distance to walk. It is a shame that the people have to put up with such a state of affairs. Suppose there were two wickets placed in the post office. It would not relieve our position much. It would not be a free delivery, as the majority of the citizens wish to have. It is to be hoped the merchants in the centre of the town will not be selfish enough to try and deprive their neighbors living in the suburbs of the town from having a free postal delivery, and that before very long.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain,

ADVANCE PETERBOROUGH.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.

A temperance meeting in support of the local option by-law for the Township of Smith, was held in the Town Hall there on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Andrew Fairbairn occupied the chair.

Rev. T. W. Leggott was the first speaker, and was followed by Rev. S. D. Chown, of Toronto, who made a very forcible address in favor of the local option law, which was listened to very attentively by those present, and will no doubt have an effect in bringing about local option.

The roads were so slippery, owing to the rain, that the attendance was not as large as could be desired, but showed that those who did turn out were ardent temperance workers.

NOMINATIONS.

The following is a list of municipal nominations—

Reeve—F. J. Moore, nominated by Mr. John Cooper and R. H. Alford.

E. A. Tanner, nominated by R. C. Strickland and John Dinwoodie.

Mr. Moore has since resigned.

Councillors—A. J. Kidd, nominated by R. C. Strickland and O. Rodgers.

Robert Lennox, nominated by Jno. Dinwoodie and J. P. Strickland.

George Baptie, nominated by R. C. Strickland and Chas. P. Tanner.

Robert J. Duff, nominated by R G. Clifford and Robert Carter.

Frank Burgess, nominated by W. F. Trude and G. Fitzgerald.

J. W. Cornish, nominated by Geo. A. Baptie and F. A. Kilbourn.

Mr. Baptie and Mr. Duff have since resigned.

The Council is now elected as follows—

Reeve, E. A. Tanner, and Councillors Kidd, Lennox, Burgess and Cornish.

School Trustees—Dr. J. B. Fraser, nominated by F. A. Kilbourn and C. S. Tanner.

R. G. Clifford, nominated by C. S. Tanner and Geo. A. Baptie.

Charles S. Tanner, nominated by F. A. Kilbourn and J. W. Cornish.

Jas. W. Redpath, to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Mr. G. R. Hilliard, nominated by Mr. W. F. Trude and F. J. Moore.

The trustees were all elected by acclamation.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

SOME BENSFORT BRIEFS.

There Is Scarcity of Water In Some Places—Reeve Buckham Retires.

Since the mail route is done daily, delivery of daily papers has materially increased. The new post office is considered to be a staying accommodation.

Rather more than the usual number of sheep have been done up by dogs recently. The "ill-wind" is most for their sport, as there is no legal provision for returns to the owners of sheep so killed.

Mr. J. A. Porter recently secured by purchase the premises at Centreville, where he has been postmaster, and in business for some years.

As the autumn was almost free from the usual rains, many are the complaints of the scarcity of water. This is felt most where the supply is not sufficient for the stock, and where they are not within convenient reach of the river, lake, or creeks.

As Mr. John Buckham has announced retirement from the reeveship, the name of his successor is said to be either Mr. W. R. Morrison or Mr. J. W. Dawson. The field is not new to these, as they have both served admirably in municipal capacity. Mr. Buckham has been reeve efficiently of South Monaghan quite a number of years, was elected last time by acclamation and is retiring only on account of press of other work claiming his attention. He has not met defeat in any of the elections he has contested.

Mr. D. N. Dodds spent the week ending 17th in western Ontario, and specially arranged to attend the winter exhibition at Guelph. He thinks the exhibition was quite a success, and that more from here should make it a point to attend. The poultry exhibit was a special feature which would in itself be good return for the time and outlay of the trip.

MARRIED IN KEENE

Miss Lena Cummings to Mr. John R. McIntyre—Other Villagl News.

On Dec. 21st, at 7 p.m., at the residence of Mr. W. G. Read, his sister-in-law, Miss Lena Cummings, was married to Mr. John Richard McIntyre, by Rev. D. D. McDonald. The bride looked charming in a gown of cream silk voile with silk trimmings and carrying a bouquet of cream roses. Her going-away gown was of red broadcloth, with hat to match. The bridesmaid's dress was of crepe de chene with chiffon trimmings, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. G. W. Cummings, of Chicago, and was supported by Miss Della McIntyre, while Mr. Harry Burnham ably assisted the groom. Miss Maggie Bryce played the wedding march, and after the ceremony and during the congratulations rendered a vocal selection with her usual ability.

A sumptuous repast was served, after which a very pleasant evening was spent in games and songs. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre will reside in Keene. Mrs. McIntyre will be at home to her friends on and after Jan. 2nd, 1905. The presents were very beautiful.

The executive committee of the reading room have arranged for a free social for its patrons in the town hall, Keene, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 18th, 1905.

The Keene Curling and Skating Rink Co. intend holding the first carnival of the season on Friday evening, Jan. 20th.

The rink is now in full swing and Ranker McIntyre in charge.

In the list of candidates for the Otonabee Council the name of Mr. John Carew was omitted. Mr. Carew is out for one more term. Carew and Porter ought to be returned, as four new men being elected would not be to the best interests of the township.

The following officers for Keene Masonic Lodge, No. 374, G.R.C., A.F. and A.M., were installed on St. John's Night, Dec. 27th, 1904, by W. Bro. McCamus:—

Hugh Fife—W.M.
R. Humphries—I.P.M.
S. J. A. Smithson—S.W.
W. G. Robertson—J.W.
Jas. McNeil—Chaplain.
R. N. English—Treas.
John M. Shaw—Sec.
R. J. McCamus—S.D.
R. Hope—J.D.
T. J. Johnston—D. of C.
Wm. Sharp—G.S.
John Duff—J.S.
W. D. Robertson—I.G.
A. D. Anderson—T.

After the lodge closed the members held the usual supper, &c.

At the annual meeting of the ratepayers of S.S. No. 4, Otonabee, Mr. David Wallace was unanimously elected school trustee in the place of Mr. John Keefe, and Mr. Andrew Shearer was again elected auditor.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, DEC, 30, 1904.

JOHN FIFE IS REEVE.

Retained by Acclamation. News From Indian River.

The entertainment given in the Baptist Church on Friday evening last was a decided success and the Xmas tree was beautifully decorated

Mr. Joseph Devlin, of the C. P. R. wire gang is home for his Xmas holidays.

The young folks find their way to the river and spend a couple of hours on the glare ice.

The nomination for the Otonabee Council was held on Monday last. For reeve, Mr. John Fife and Mr. J. Moore were the only names. Mr. Moore resigned in favor of Mr, Fife, leaving Mr. Fife elected by acclamation. Mr. Fife has held the office of councillor for the past five years and did his work to the best of satisfaction, thereforehe deserves well the reeveship as he is capable of filling the position.

For councillors there are a number, of whom are—Messrs W. B. Stewart, C. Howson, R. Humphries, J. J. Grady, W. J. Porter, J. Carey and T. J. Walsh. Messrs. Porter and Carey have represented the council for the past two years.

McCALL—SAMPSON.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sampson, Pleasant View, Hope township, on the 28th inst., when their second daughter, Miss Gertrude, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Wm. Henry McCall, of Douro township, Peterborough.

The bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march which was beautifully rendered by Miss Charlotte Coyte. The bride looked charming in cream voil, with lace trimmings, while her eldest sister, Miss Ada, of New York, acted as bridesmaid and was becomingly attired in pale blue. The groom was assisted by Mr. Walbert McMillan, of Peterborough. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. E. B. Lanceley, of Port Hope, the numerous guests retired to the dining room where a most bountiful dinner was served.

The presents received were both costly and numerous, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held by her friends.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a handsome gold watch and chain and to the bridesmaid a gold brooch set with pearls.

The happy couple left on the 8.30 train for their future home in Peterborough amid the best wishes of their many friends.

Tired all the Time

Mrs. George Beattie, Carr's Brook, Colchester, Co., N.S., writes:—"Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time, and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good, and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends."

GIFT TO TEACHER.

On Dec. 22nd a concert was given for the benefit of the pupils of S.S. No. 12, Douro, which was largely attended by the parents and friends, who gathered there to do honor and bid farewell to our teacher, Miss O'Neil. All regretted very much that she is leaving here. Miss O'Neil was presented with a handsome ladies' work box and a purse of $11, accompanied by an appropriately worded address, in which the pupils expressed appreciation of one whom they had held in high regard. Miss O'Neill thanked the pupils for their kindness.

SECOND SERIES OF CITY LEAGUE

Two Matches Decided Last Evening in the Rink.

THE EXPECTED HAPPENED.

Farriers Defeated Verniers — Earl Greys Went Down Before T. A. S.—Small Attendance and Only Fair Hockey—Farriers Not as Strong as Was Thought.

Only a very slim crowd saw the weekly City League games at the Brock-st. rink last evening and judging by the class of hockey displayed the attendance at the next games will be smaller still. The hockey was of the "shinny variety and very little fast playing was done. The main interest attached to the matches was in the good showing made by Verniers and Earl Greys, the so-called weak teams, against the Farriers and T.A.S. Many expected to see a walkover for the last two teams. The Verniers however played good hockey and the Farriers could only gather in four goals after the hardest kind of a game, abounding in tripping, cross checking and other rough work. The second game was cleaner The Earl Greys showed up well against their speedy opponents.

THE FIRST GAME

The first game between the Verniers and Farriers resulted in a victory for the latter by 4—1. The score at half time was 2—1. It was a most bitterly contested game and several mix-ups occurred. A large number of players of both sides adorned the fence for rough work.

The showing of the Farriers was a disappointment to many of their supporters, who had expected to see them win in the easiest kind of way. Their forward line did not pick up very well, although some good individual playing was done. Smith and Nicholls were the stars of the firing line and scored most of the goals. The defence were strong and the Vernier forward line could make but little impression upon them.

For the Verniers, Miller at rover was the star. He was about the fastest man on the ice and handled himself well. His rushing was very fine. Delaney played a fast game at centre. The defence checked hard and the Farriers had their own troubles in breaking through. The losers scored their first and only goal almost before the game had started, Miller doing the trick on a nice rush. The Farriers wakened up however, and scored two goals before half time. They added two more at the beginning of the second, which made the final score 4—1 in their favor.

Wm. Crowley made a strict and impartial referee.

The teams lined up as follows:—

Farriers		Verniers
	Goal
Thornton		Hillier
	Point
Simpson		Ellis
	Cover
Blade		Anglesey
	Rover.
H. Long		Miller
	Centre
A. Long		Delaney
	Right Wing
Smith		Mulligan
	Left Wing
Nicholls		Henderson.

THE SECOND GAME

The T.A.S. and Earl Greys clashed in the second contest. It was a fairly good game although considerable "shinny" was played. The Abstainers played fast hockey and won out by 10—4, the half time score being 5—3.

For the winners, Deforge and Callaghan were the stars, playing lightning hockey. Both are fast skaters, clever stick handlers and good shots. They did most of the scoring for the T.A.S. The defence was strong and the Earl Greys very rarely broke through.

McFadden, Daughty and Gilbert did the best work for the Earl Greys. Laing played a star game in goal, blocking many hard shots.

Harry Morgan refereed to the satisfaction of both teams.

The teams lined up as follows:—

T.A.S.		Earl Greys
	Goal
Derocher		Laing

Dorris		Seward
	Cover Point
Foley		Brand
	Rover
Callaghan		Howson

Will Preach Anniversary Sermon

Rev. Caleb Parker, of Norwood, will preach the anniversary sermons in George-st. church on Sunday, 8th January, morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Parker is one of those who took part, as a volunteer, in the suppression of the Northwest rebellion, residing at that time in the vicinity of Fish Creek.

MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN ISSUES DISCUSSED BY CANDIDATES

the current year's taxes. This could be done, and no addition be made to the debenture debt—provided the Legislature will give authority to change the existing debenture debt on this account from the present frontage tax, to a general tax. With the increase in the assessment for 1905 over 1904, there would be about $7,000 additional taxes raised for 1905 more than in 1904, by the same rate. If the cost can be reduced to the figures given by Mayor-elect Best, three miles of walk could be built for about $7,800. I am of the opinion that it would be better to not increase the debenture debt $100,000 or $110,000 that will be necessary to build the 36 miles yet required to complete the system of cement walks in the town, if the present system is continued. If you endorse the proposal, it will be the duty of the Council to give the question due consideration, and I would urge every voter who is the owner of property to vote for the by-law.

IN BETTER CONDITION.

Ald. Mason expressed the belief that, having served one year in the Council, he was in a better position than ever to serve the best interests of the town. He would do all in his power to encourage industries, and expressed himself as opposed to all unnecessary expenditure. With reference to wages for teamsters, he said he was not very conversant with the question, but any men that he employed were well paid. If teamsters earned $3.50 they should receive it. He promised to give all civil affairs the same consideration as he did in his own business.

WIDE-AWAKE COUNCIL

Mr R. H. Leary now addressed the meeting. He stated that if he went to the Council he wanted a free hand to use his best judgment in furthering the best interests of the town of Peterborough. If elected he would give careful attention to the duties entrusted to him. His opinion was that there should be a wide-awake Council in this progressive town. There were greater possibilities than even in view, as the result of the opening of the Trent Valley Canal. Mr. Leary was inclined to the opinion that every industry should start on its own bottom. The facilities here were unsurpassed. He expressed himself in favor of Ald. Adams' stand on the pavement question. If elected, he promised that he would do the best he could for the town of Peterborough.

JAMES O'BRIEN.

Mr. James O'Brien, who is a new candidate for the Council, expressed himself as determined to use his very best judgment in the public interest, if he was honored with their confidence. He held that there should be improvement at the post office, and parties who made promises in that regard should be given no rest until the work was done. With regard to opening streets, Mr. O'Brien said the sooner this was done the better, as in a few years it would be impossible. Mr. O'Brien was very well received.

THE MAYOR-ELECT.

Ald. Best, who will be mayor for 1905, was now called upon, and he was given a hearty reception. He thanked the citizens for the unexpected honor they had conferred upon him. He recognized the responsibilities of the office, and with a good strong Council he hoped that the town's affairs would be conducted along business-like lines.

Ald. Best reviewed the public work done in the town, and read a statement of expenditure in that connection. Following is the length of sewers and concrete walks to date:—

PUBLIC WORKS.

Sewers—Completed to end of 1904—Brick, 9150 feet, 15 inch pipe 11,197 feet 12 inch pipe, 19,381 feet; 9 inch pipe, 18,143 feet; 8 inch pipe, 889 feet, making a total of 11.14 miles. In 1904 there were built 2,474 feet of 12 inch sewer, and 4,364 feet of 9 inch sewer, bringing the grand total up to 12.40 miles. Of the 1904 contracts there were 300 feet of 12 inch sewer, and 1,356 feet of 9 inch sewer, or 31-100 of a mile not completed.

Concrete walks—Completed at the end of 1904—4 ft. walks, 13,962 lineal feet; 5 ft. walk, 21,516 feet; 6 ft. walk, 4,693 feet; 8 ft. walk, 3,189 feet; 10 ft. walk, 10,008 feet, or a total of 10.11 miles. In 1904 there had been built 1,289 feet of 4 ft. walk; 21,008 feet of 5 ft. walk; 3,841 feet of 6 ft. walk, and 335 feet of 10 ft. walk, a total of 5.01 miles, or altogether 15.12 miles.

With reference to the town's debenture debt Mr. Best read the following statement:—

Sewers:—
Outfall sewer	$ 21,000 00
Built as local improvement and debentures issued	75,071 56
Built as local improvement, 1904, say	8,500 00
	$104,571 56
Sidewalks:—
Built and denentures issued	$ 58,685 09
Built in 1904, debentures not issued	14,000 00
	$ 72,685 09

Of the above totals, $55,615 for sewers and $32,183.87 for sidewalks is being provided by a local improvement tax, and these two works will also be chargeable with their share of the work done in 1904.

The total debenture debt at the end of the year 1904 is as follows:—

For local improvement works	$161,556 66
For schools	61,900 00
For waterworks	272,000 00
For all other expenses	194,200 00
Total	$689,656 66

Of the above total, debentures have already been sold for $657,156.65, and the interest and sinking fund to redeem them is being raised each year as follows:—

Public schol supporters	$ 61,900 00
Water Commissioners	262,000 00
Frontage tax	93,099 84
The whole town	240,156 81
	$657,156 65

The debenture debt at the end of 1903 was offset to the extent of $100,000 made up as follows—G.T.R. mortgage bonds, $30,800; sinking fund invested in school debentures $3,000; in town debentures, $44,062.96; sinking fund in the Ontario Bank, $14,842.87.

DEBENTURE DEBT.

There were $10,000 of waterworks debentures to be sold, and $22,500 for local improvements. Leaving waterworks out of the question the amount expended on other work, $417,656.65, represented about seven per cent of the assessed value of the town, and Mr. Best questioned whether it would not be advisable to save as much as possible the town's limit in issuing debentures, which was in all 10 per cent of the assessed value. A period of depression might come which would emphasize the wisdom of such a course. The legislature might extend the town's borrowing powers in this respect, but this course was considered inadvisable. Necessary work might be made chargeable to general account. Ald Best pointed out that a great saving had been made in doing pavement work by day work during the past year. He regarded Ald. Adams' bylaw as having been sprung rather suddenly. It involved many important points requiring consideration. He did not think any municipality, except, perhaps, Barrie, had adopted a system similar to that advocated, and he considered that difficulty would, as an instance, arise in connection with residents in parts of the town where walks might not be laid for years, yet the tax for walks would be charged. He contended that the charge for walks was now about equally divided as between the town and the property owners, the extensions at the corners making up for fully one-tenth of the frontage.

Mr. Best expressed himself in favor of reasonable encouragement to industries, and said that he hoped something would come out of the proposition made by a manufacturer of steel cars in Buffalo to build a Canadian plant, employing at the outset 700 hands. In conclusion he again thanked the people for the honor they had done him, and hoped that they would find that their confidence had not been misplaced.

Ald Best during his speech read a statement showing that the assessed value of property in town for 1904 was $5,497,199; for 1905 it was $5,984,739, and allowing for reductions of $9,125 by the Court of Revision, and $1,500 by the judge, the net increase for 1905 was $376,925.

Mayor Roger expressed his appreciation of the courteous hearing that had been given the speakers. He emphasized the importance of the by-law to provide for expenditure of $12,000 on municipal works, such as the reconstruction and improvement of bridges and opening certain streets. This work was most necessary, and the by-law should be carried by a good vote. He expressed his thanks for the courtesy and support that had been extended him. He was sure that the interests of Peterborough would be well looked after in future, and in conclusion wished the people a prosperous New Year.

Test the Kidneys

Allow the urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time it is clouded or has left a sediment at the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. Hon. A. G. Blair Becomes Manager of Roller Bearing Co.

Toronto, Dec. 30.—Hon. A. G. Blair has been engaged by the Toronto Roller Bearing Company as its counsel to take up the work of organization of kindred companies in the United States, Great Britain and in foreign lands. He will also take a seat on the board of directors, and becomes managing director in connection with the organization work.

The above statement was issued last night by the company. The Toronto Roller Bearing Company is the proprietor of all the patents, of which there are a large number issued in the United States, Great Britian, different European countries and throughout the world, protecting the Henderson Roller Bearing inventions.

FRANCE PREPARING.

Toulon, France, Dec. 30.—Owing to the crisis in Morocco, the navy yard here shows the greatest activity. Preparations are going on to have a naval division consisting of the battleships Charlemagne and Iena and two cruisers in readiness to proceed to Morocco if the crisis accentuates.

Convicts Break For Liberty.

Sacramento, Cal., Dec. 30.—One hundred and fifty convicts at the Folsom State Prison made a break for liberty while they were being brought from work at a rock crusher yesterday, and in the fight which followed one prisoner was shot dead and Guard Jolly shot through the cheek. All the convicts were armed with dirks, but their endeavor was not successful.

A THOUSAND JAPS FELL

After Months of Sapping and Mining Rihlung Fort Taken.

Another Fine Position Captured By the Japanese—An Important Vantage Point, and the Doom of Port Arthur Further Sealed—Attacks of Russian Cavalry Repulsed With Small Loss—A Cossack Prince Killed.

Tokio, Dec. 30.—A report from headquarters of the third Japanese army before Port Arthur received here on Wednesday, Dec. 28, at midnight, says:

"On Wednesday, Dec 28, at ten o'clock in the morning, the left centre column of our army, following some heavy explosions on the frontal parapet of Rihlung Mountain, charged and occupied the parapet under cover of fire from heavy guns and constructed defence works despite the enemy's fire.

"At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when our occupation was practically assured, we charged and occupied the inner lines of heavy gun positions, subsequently dislodging a remnant of the enemy's force stubbornly holding the gorge fort, which we occupied and captured the entire works."

Jap Casualties One Thousand.

Headquarters of the Japanese Army before Port Arthur, via Fusan, Dec. 30.—Rihlung fort was captured at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, with a thousand Japanese casualties. Seven dynamite mines, exploded at ten o'clock Wednesday, made breaches in the front wall through which a large body of Japanese troops charged under cover of a tremendous bombardment and captured the first line of light guns. A bitter fight resulted in the capture of the fort. The garrison, numbering 500 men, escaped.

Rihlung fort, situated on Rihlung Mountain, formed part of the inner circle of the chain of forts defending Port Arthur. Rihlung is situated about two miles from the outskirts of the town of Port Arthur, from which it bears due northeast. The fort just captured is a mile and a half west of the east Kekwan fort, recently captured by the Japanese. The possession of these two forts should make a most important breach in the fortifications of Port Arthur.

From Rihlung Mountain, which is nearly opposite 203-Metre Hill, it would appear that the Japanese will be able to reach anything in the harbor and town which the Japanese heavy guns on 203-Metre Hill are unable to hit, thus making it apparently impossible for the Russian second Pacific squadron to make use of Port Arthur, even should the Japanese content themselves with holding the strong positions they now occupy.

Captured 43 Guns.

Tokio, Dec. 30.—(1.30 a.m.)—The Japanese captured forty-three guns when Rihlung fort was taken.

Russian Cavalry Repulsed.

Tokio, Dec. 30.—Manchurian army headquarters reporting yesterday, says "On Dec. 27 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Russians with heavy field guns bombarded the Shakhe River railroad bridge in the neighborhood of the station and the Russian guns at Tallantun shelled Chihsiangtun and Shulintzu. Russian cavalry attacked Heilintun at sunset on the same day, but were repulsed by Japanese cavalry. At 5.30 o'clock on the same evening the Russian cavalry enveloped the Japanese pickets, who were reinforced and finally repulsed the enemy. The Japanese casualties were three men killed."

Prince Yildaroff Killed.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 30.—General Sakharoff, in recording recent reconnoitering operations, reports that a Cossack officer, Prince Yildaroff, has been killed.

KUROKI STILL LIVES.

Answers a Telegram of Congratulations, Showing He Is O.K.

Berlin, Dec. 30.—A convivial circle at Dortmund sent Gen. Kuroki in September a card of enthusiastic congratulations on his military success, and has now received the following answer:

"On the battlefield in Manchuria, Nov. 5, 1904.—How I rejoice to be congratulated at so great a distance upon our victories. As you know, we are pupils of German tactitians, hence I have double pleasure in being congratulated by German men. With special regards. Your obedient servant, (Signed) Kuroki."

The above letter from General Kuroki removes all doubt, if any existed, that General Kuroki is alive.

Russian Member Recalled.

Paris, Dec. 30.—The members of the international commission of the North Sea incident were surprised yesterday to hear Admiral Kasenakoff, the Russian member, had been recalled.

Drumelzier Abandoned By Crew.

New York, Dec. 30.—The steamer Drumelzier was entirely abandoned by her captain and crew yesterday afternoon. Soon after 15 of the men had been taken off by the Sandy Hook life-savers, the remaining members of the Drumelzier company, including Capt. Nicholson, were rescued from the steamer by the life-saving crew of Oak Island. This accounts for the 29 members of the Drumelzier's company.

Shooting After Snowballing.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 30.—The police are looking for Louis Price, 16 years old, who shot William Turner, 12 years old, Wednesday. The boys were out hunting together. Price had a small rifle. The lads got to throwing snowballs at one another, and, in the midst of the quarrel, Price fired at the smaller boy. The bullet lodged in the muscles of the boy's back. The wound is not considered serious.

ONTARIO ELECTIONS

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lend, or agrees, or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, offices, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting, is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be seen from the above that neither of us can personally or through another, give or lend any money during the election.

MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN ISSUES DISCUSSED BY CANDIDATES

They Assert Their Stand With Regard to Questions Prominent in Public Importance at the Present Time.

POSTOFFICE CONDITION STRONGLY CONDEMNED

Unanimity of Feeling That There Should be Better Accommodation—The Teamsters Looking For Higher Wages—Candidates of Trades and Labor Council Explain Their Platform—Ald. Adams Gives an Exposition of Change Suggested in Payment for Granolithic Pavements—Says it will Mean No Iujustice to Those Who Have Been Paying for Five Years—Mayor-Elect Best Reviews the Record of Board of Works, and Gives Statement of Expenditure.

Judging from the size of the audience in the Opera House last evening on the occasion of the public meeting called for the discussion of municipal affairs, the remark made by a gentleman who was there early that "there does not seem to be much interest taken in these affairs" had some jestification. There were hardly more than a score present at the hour for opening, but as the evening wore on the attendance swelled to about 150. There were on the platform, His Worship, Mayor Roger, Aldermen Henry Best, (mayor elect,) Frank Adams, E. F. Mason, Joseph Batten, W. J. Johnston, Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, and the following new candidates for municipal honors, Messrs T. J. Begley, Jos. Crowe—who with Ald. Johnston will represent the Trades and Labor Council in the contest—R. H. Leary, James Clancy and James O'Brien.

Questions which have been prominently before the public for some time and which may be termed the issues of the campaign were ably discussed by these speakers, and there was remarkable unanimity among the speakers that the best interests of the town should be safeguarded. The old Aldermen gave brief accounts of their stewardship and asked a renewal of that confidence which had been reposed in them. The meeting listened with appreciation to the arguments advanced and frequent applause marked popular pronouncements.

ALD. BATTEN

His Worship, Mayor Roger, was in the chair. He suggested that a time limit of five minutes be placed on the speeches of aldermanic candidates and that fifteen minutes be allowed the mayors. He first called upon Ald. Batten. That gentlemen said that this order had existed from the first, in order that all might get a text from his speech. Four years ago he told the ratepayers that he would do everything in his power to advance the interests of the town. A great deal of progress had been made in that time, and he was prepared to say that the Aldermen had done the best they know how. As chairman of the Property Committee, he had endeavored to do the best he could. The first thing he had been instrumental in doing was the removal of taxes on the town powder magazine, thus doing away with a yearly expenditure. The town buildings had also been greatly improved and they were a credit now to the municipality. Ald. Batten said he again proposed to stand for election, but he intended to do no personal canvassing. If the people considered he had done well, he would be pleased to receive a renewal of confidence; if not, he was satisfied to remain at home. Ald. Batten expressed himself in favor of municipal ownership and hoped that the time was not far distant when the town would own a power plant. He believed also in advertising the town, that the name of Peterborough should ever be kept before the general public, in order that the day might be realised when the town would become a large industrial centre.

TEAMSTERS' WAGES.

Mayor Roger read a letter from the Teamsters' Union, requesting that the candidates be asked if they were prepared to favor an increase in the wages of teams employed by the corporation to $3.50 per day. This matter, it was claimed, had been overlooked by the Council.

ALD. JOHNSTON

Ald. Johnston was the next speaker. He referred to the harmonious relations existing in the Council and also between the business, professional and workingmen, and it was apparently recognized that one could not very well get along without the other. He did not represent any one particular class, but stood for the best interest of the town. The Trades and Labor Council were in favor of a mixed Council and he believed this was a wise stand to take.

Reviewing the platform of the Trades and Labor Council, Ald. Johnston expressed himself in favor of the appointment of an assessment commissioner as a step towards establishing a more equitable taxation. A plumbing and building inspector should also be appointed, his opinion being that the town engineer might take charge of this work, while two good men might look after the sidewalk and road construction, which in some places would stand improvement. The assessment commissionership would be a permanent office, the idea being to have one man where now there were four. Ald. Johnston advocated free postal delivery. The town was growing rapidly; it was one of the best in the Dominion of Canada, and the time was not far distant when it would become a city. No narrow-minded policy should be maintained towards the encouragement of conditions that made for the advancement of the town. He expressed approval of the by-law having in view the extension of Hunter and George-sts. For the past year Ald. Johnston said he had only been getting an education, and if elected again he would do his very best in the interests of the town. He for one would do what was fair and square to better his fellow men so far as wages were concerned.

NEW CANDIDATE.

Mr. Joseph Crowe, who is also a candidate of the Trades and Labor Council next spoke. He expressed his determination to become thoroughly educated in the Council if elected. He gave his opinion on the pavement question, and stated that the people should be thoroughly educated on this question and the cost distributed among those who received the greatest benefit. He did not believe in the reckless disposition of franchises and said that in the street railway franchise there had been given away sufficient to pay for all of the walks. He believed in public ownership of such facilities and assured the meeting that if elected he would give his duties the most careful attention.

NO CORPORATIONS.

Mr. T. J. Begley, the third candiddate of the Trades and Labor Council to speak, denied the rumor that he was the candidate of any corporation. He was the candidate of the people and if he was in the firing line for 1905, he would do his utmost to protect the town from being held up by corporations although giving due consideration to all questions submitted. Mr. Begley stated that he stood for everything that had in view the advancement of the town. In regard to the pavement question, he confessed that he did not understand it fully, but was prepared to abide by the decision of the people. He was in favor of municipal ownership and would approve of any step that gave the town its own municipal lighting plant. Every reasonable encouragement should also be given to manufactories and he was in favor of the town securing as much property on the out-skirts of the town as possible, for factory sites. He considered the condition of affairs at the postoffice as scandalous, and said he would do all in his power, if an Alderman had any power in this direction, to bring pressure to bear on the Government to remedy the condition of affairs.

In conclusion Mr. Begley assured the meeting that he would do everything in his power for the advancement of the town of Peterborough, if elected.

Mr. Begley declared himself in favor of the workingman receiving a fair wage. Owing to the increased cost of living, there should be a corresponding increase in the wages, and if elected, the request of the teamsters would, so far as he was concerned, receive the consideration it deserved.

THE WATERWORKS BY-LAW.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, was next heard in explanation of the $20,000 money by-law to be submitted on election day. He congratulated Mayor Roger on his very successful term of office, he congratulated Mayor-elect Best on his being elevated to the chair of Chief Magistrate, and he congratulated the town on the prospect of a very auspicious year.

Mr. Matthews pointed out that the $20,000 by-law was for the purpose of meeting expenditure in trimming up the waterworks system—laying an auxiliary 12-inch main from Hilliard's mills to Smith street, taking up and relaying certain stretches with larger pipe, and placing mains where they do not now exist. It was proposed to put in twenty-five new hydrants and connect up dead ends as much as possible. By the changes proposed the system would be greatly improved for fire protection purposes.

Mr. Matthews devoted some time to a consideration of the saving that will be brought about in insurance rates by the improvement of the waterworks system as proposed, there being certain conditions now existing which did not permit the town to measure up to the standard. The key rate at present was 60 cents, the assessed value of property was about $5,750,000; the insured value was about the same, but if improvements were fully carried out, he was safe in saying that a reduction of 25 cents per $100 could be affected in insurance rates. This was a question of great importance, and pointed to a responsibility on the part of the Council. In closing, Mr. Matthews said that the expenditure proposed in the extensions would not increase the general tax, but would be payable out of revenue.

WORKER SPEAKS.

Mr. Jas. Clancy, one of the new candidates, stated that his platform was a general one that covered everything. His belief was that pavements should have been paid for by general tax from the very beginning. Mr. Clancy said he was a worker, and promised to do the best he possibly could in the interests of the town

THE PAVEMENT BY-LAW

Ald. Adams was now called upon and he devoted some time to an explanation of his pavement by-law. The first permanent walks were built in 1898, and five payments on the debentures had since been made. The law did not then provide for any other method of taxation in payment for the walks than by frontage tax, and subsequently it was seen that a mistake had been made. To make a change, however, required special legislation and if an application was fortified with a strong vote of ratepayers it certainly would be given consideration. To show that no injustice would be done by a change to those who had already made payments, it was pointed out that the latter had still to pay eleven cents and a fraction on the walks for the next fifteen years. The cost of walks for 1905 would not exceed 11 cents, so that the present property owner who was taxed for granolithic walks would be subject to no injustice if a general tax was adopted. The value of walks built up to last year was $50,000; the amount chargeable to frontage tax was $32,000, but if this was distributed generally, the increase in the rate would only be about 4-10 of a mill. To complete possible pavement construction for town purposes (36 miles) would only mean an increase of one mill in the general tax. Everything considered, the speaker deemed the change advisable; the present by-law was very cumbersome and expensive.

Ald Adams explanation of the subject was greatly appreciated by the audience. In answer to a question, he expressed the assurance that the Council would go about the construction of walks in a business-like way, and put them down where absolutely needed.

Mr. Adams continuing said should the question meet with the approval of the ratepayers on Monday next, and the Legislature refuse to give the Council authority, that would be satisfactory to the Council, to issue debentures to pay for the proposed extensions of the side-walks, I would be in favor of doing the work, and paying for it year by year out of

GREAT CHANGES IN 'PHONE SYSTEM

Wires to be Placed Underground in Business Section.

CENTRAL ENERGY STATION

System to be Made Thoroughly Up-to-date in Every Particular — Definite Announcement to be Made Soon.

While definite announcement has not as yet been made, it is currently reported on the streets that the Bell Telephone Company intend making some changes in their system at an early date. During the past year these have been adopted in such places as Kingston, St. Catharines and Windsor, there being now a force of men engaged at the latter place. It is altogether likely that on the completion of the work there, operations will be proceeded with here.

Mr. Doan, the local manager, when approached on the subject, stated that he had nothing to give out at the present time, but he would have in a few days. He did not deny, however, that new departures were intended. It is understood that one of the most important of the changes means the placing of wires in the central portion of the town underground. This step will be received with appreciation by those citizens who have been hopefully looking toward the day when the underground system would be generally adopted.

Another proposed change, it is understood, is the installation of a central energy station, by which power sufficient for the independent generation of the entire system of phones will be placed in service. This, it is claimed, will greatly increase the facility of instruments to subscribers. It is reported that the central office is to be enlarged and improved, and that the plan is to give Peterborough a service decidedly up to date in every particular. Further information on the subject will be available in a few days.

During the past few years the Bell Telephone Company have done a large amount of work in Peterborough and vicinity, looking to the best possible equipment for efficient service. It would appear that the changes now proposed are to be the most important of all. The central energy switchboard is being adopted in all large centres of population. While it means better service to the public, it also means improved conditions for the operator. A call at the present time is announced at central by the dropping of a small indicator on the switchboard, which, at a particularly busy time is inclined to cause confusion if not immediately closed when the call is answered. Under the new plan a call will be indicated by a light, which is immediately extinguished when the connection is made, thus doing away with what must prove a very irritating feature in telephone operating.

WRITS ARRIVE

The Necessary Documents for Holding Election Reached Town Today.

Large sheets of blue paper, bearing the signature of Chas. Clarke, clerk of the Legislative Assembly, otherwise writs of election, were sent out of the Parliament Buildings at Toronto yesterday, and today "our trusty and beloved" returning officers for the first time learned that there is to be an election, and they will be asked to call upon the electors to elect "fit and proper persons" to sit in the Legislative Chambers for the next four years.

Besides those blue papers, Col. Clarke and his assistants sent out 97 packing-cases, about as large as a small desk, the same containing the ballots, poll books, and all the stationery required in each constituency. The returning officers in Peterborough are—

Peterborough, E.—B. Morrow, Registrar.

Peterborough W.—James A. Hall, Sheriff.

The writs arrived in Peterborough this morning. The board for the registration of voters will sit in Peterborough on Januairy 6th, 7th and 9th.

FOR REGISTRATION.

The places which have been assigned for registration purposes in connection with the provincial elections are the same as those for the Dominion elections, namely—

Ward 1.—Spry's shop.
Ward 2—Council Chamber.
Ward 3—Police Court.
Ward 4—Lee's shop.
Ward 5—Village Town Hall.

The dates of registration as announced yesterday are January 6th, 7th and 9th.

Hockey To-night.

Junior Peterboroughs vs. Port Hope, at 7.30. Peterborough Old Boys at 8.45. Admission to both games 15 cents. Come and see the Old Boys on the ice.

A manufacturing centre should have representatives of the industrial classes on the Council Board. Vote for Johnston, Crowe and Begley.

Lady Maccabees.

The Lady Maccabees will hold a meeting in their hall, Water-st., on Friday evening of this week. Important business is to be transacted and a good attendance is requested.

Remember the concert to be given in the opera house on Tuesday, January 10th, under the auspices of Ladies' Aid of the Y.M.C.A., when Miss Jessie Alexander, Mr. H. M. Field, and Mr. Norman Jeliffe will be the artists.

MR. MELDRUM SPEAKS

Mr. W. H. Meldrum said to-day that his mill is now ready for business, but the siding for which he applied last June, has not yet been laid, although the C.P.R. is willing to undertake the work as soon as the necessary permission from the Council was received. Mr. Meldrum thinks there has been too much delay in this matter and is at a loss to understand why such a request, so important to his interests, should be neglected. He is of the opinion that something should be done at once.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—Meeting of the White Rose Degree of the S.O.E. will be held in the lodge rooms to-night at 8 o'clock.

Billings, general manager of the Yale-Columbia Lumber Company, Nelson, B.C., and Miss Florence McDonald, of Lindsay. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. O'Brien. Mr. and Mrs. Billings left last night for their home in Nelson, B.C.

—The fire brigade was called out last night to grapple with a blaze which threatened to do damage in a house occupied by Mrs. Bates, at the corner of Downie and Smith-sts. It appears that children playing with matches set fire to a sofa. There is very little protection in that part of the town, but as the result of the application of buckets of water by neighbors the flames were soon extinguished.

THE RING AND MAT.

A. Harris, of Toronto, who defeated Dickson in a six round boxing bout last Friday night, wishes to challenge any local man to a six round bout at 115 pounds. An answer can be made through this paper.

Another exhibition of boxing and wrestling will be put on probably next week. A good programme is being prepared and several fast men will come together.

FRIDAY, DEC. 30, 1904.

Pardoned After Seventeen Years.

Kingston, Dec. 30.—Matthew Jones, who has been pardoned, was sentenced seventeen years ago to life imprisonment for arson. He was sent from Sarnia, and at the time of his arrest was saved from lynching by the activity of the sheriff. His wife, a woman of 65, has kept the cottage home in Marine City, Mich., all these years, expecting his return.

Canadians Serious.

London, Dec. 30.—(C. A. P.)—The Standard credits Lord Strathcona, in an interview on Imperial defence, with having said that he was convinced that Canadians had seriously taken up, and would most carefully consider the question of bearing part of the expense of Imperial defence, as Canadians were as loyal to-day as they had ever been.

An Open Verdict.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 30.—The coroner's enquiry into the death of Georgio Bancesse, shot in the riot on Monday evening, last night brought in an open verdict, stating: "We, the jurors, find that Georgio Bancesse came to his death by being shot by party or parties unknown, and we believe that the said party or parties shot with intent to kill."

Warrant From Lord Elgin.

Belleville, Dec. 30.—Anson G. Northrup, clerk of the County Court of Hastings, for more than fifty years, died Wednesday night. He was probably the oldest appointee of any legal office in the Dominion, having received his warrant from Lord Elgin in 1854. Mr. Northrup was the father of W. B. Northrup, M.P.

Dying in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Dec. 30.—George Simpson, Deputy Minister of Public Works for the Province, who has been in the hospital for several weeks, is sinking fast. An operation is to be performed this morning and small hopes are held out for his recovery

Can't Afford Ill Health.

Cure is Cheap at any Price —Benefit Certain if You Use

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Only the wealthy can afford to be invalids.

They alone can bear the expense of constant attendance by doctors and high salaried nurses.

Your time is your capital, and, whether your daily task is in the home or abroad, you must make every day count or prove a burden to yourself and friends.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is well suited to the needs of a multitude of people because it overcomes weakness, first weakness of the blood and nerves, and through them the weakness of the organs of the body.

It may require a dozen or more boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to make you strong and well and send the thrill of health through your shrivelled arteries and wasted nerves.

Because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a creator of blood and nerve force you can be positive that each box of it is at least doing you some good. Prove this by noting your increase in weight as new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to the body.

Mrs. Cross, 148 Rubidge street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in my family, and have found it to be a great nerve builder. One of my children had been troubled with nervousness for a couple of years and suffered greatly from dizzy, nervous headaches. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has entirely freed her of these symptoms, and today she is real strong and healthy. We do not lose an opportunity of recommending this splendid medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

DID INSPECTOR BUTT IN?

Otherwise, No Friction in S.S. No. 4, Emily, Might Have Developed.

Lindsay, Dec. 30.—Concerning the reported trouble at Downeyville, in Victoria County, over the converting of a public school into a separate school, Rev. Father Bretherton states that there were some inaccuracies in the published report. There are, he says, only two Protestant ratepayers in the school section, Mrs. Parker and Mr. Ayers, and the Ayers children are the only Protestants pupils in the school. Neither of these families have raised any objection to the transfer, but of the 50 or so Catholic ratepayers, perhaps ten have raised objections. "But," says Father Bretherton, "I have heard of no one threatening any legal proceedings. As a matter of fact, it has really been a public Catholic school, with a Catholic teacher and everything Catholic except the books." Father Bretherton also denies that any reference at all was made to having received instructions from Bishop O'Connor of Peterboro. The authority which prompted Father Bretherton and his co-trustees, Lucas and Clancy, in acting as they have, was under the statute, which says that when a public school becomes non-supportable through non-attendance, the property can be transferred or sold. The intrusion of Inspector Knight is regarded as the cause of the trouble. As a Government official his right to organize a separate meeting and elect three trustees is questioned

Affairs of Late Liberal Candidate in Frontenac in Bad Way.

Kingston, Dec. 30.—A meeting of the creditors of W. J. Shibley, late Liberal candidate in Frontenac, was held at Harrowsmith Wednesday, and his financial affairs were shown to be worse than was expected.

His liabilities are known now to be over $15,000, and when all the accounts are in will reach nearly $20,000. The assets are a few chattels.

T. J. Rigney, barrister, of this city, was appointed permanent assignee, in place of John Shibley, brother of W. J., and W. D. Hart, Kingston, and J. W. Bertram, Harrowsmith, inspectors.

Belleville, Dec. 30.—Samuel Harryett was liberated on bail last night. The bondsmen are Charles Stanyer, John Keluskey, Henry Harris, James Harryett, $2,500 each.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Mr. Whitney will speak in Brampton Friday evening on behalf of Sam Charters.

Peter Stalker was nominated for the Legislature by the Liberals of West Elgin on Thursday.

The Conservative convention on Thursday unanimously selected G. N. Kidd as candidate for Carleton County in the provincial election.

Ross Liberal Club of Toronto, will banquet the Premier this (Friday) night. The Premier's speech is expected to be an important utterance.

The Liberals of the north riding of Bruce in convention Thursday unanimously nominated C. M. Bowman as the standard-bearer in the provincial contest.

At the Liberal convention held at Fort William Thursday afternoon, D. C. Cameron of Winnipeg was chosen as party candidate for the Local Legislature.

Toronto Conservatives nominated the following candidates on Thursday night: South Toronto, J. J. Foy; West Toronto, Thomas Crawford; North Toronto, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt; East Toronto convention was postponed until a later date.

In the Brandon election petition a cross-petition has been filed by Howell, Matthews & Howell, acting for Hon. Clifford Sifton, against R. L. Richardson, asking for his disqualification. The charges and allegations are the usual ones of bribery and corruption.

The complete election returns from every constituency in the Dominion, except the Yukon, have been compiled at Ottawa. In the Northwest Territories the vote was Liberal, 27,178; Conservative, 19,347. The Galician candidate, Mike Gabourd, created a record, receiving only 6 votes. In British Columbia the vote was: Liberal, 12,450; Conservative, 9,774; independent, 2,953.

Work of Railway Commission.

Ottawa, Dec. 30.—The Railway Commission have approved the lease of the Tilsonburg and Lake Erie and Guelph and Goderich railways to the C.P.R., and the leases will be forwarded to the Governor-in-Council for approval.

The commission have also approved of bylaws authorizing the preparation and issuance of a tariff of tolls for the Oshawa Electric Railway and the Bay of Quinte Railway.

The Grand Trunk Railway have received permission to construct a siding at the town of Niagara Falls.

Crime to Use U.S. Money.

Montreal, Dec. 30.—At the next session of the Dominion Parliament, Robert Bickerdike, M.P.-elect, will introduce a bill making it a criminal offence to circulate American money in Canada, and rendering anyone doing so liable to a fine of double the face value of the money circulated. The bill will be an addition to the Banking Act, and Mr Bickerdike says it is in retaliation for the high commission charged by American banks on Canadian money. Mr Bickerdike is vice-president of the Hochelaga Bank.

Pere Marquette to Do Something.

Detroit, Dec. 30.—The Pere Marquette system will spend two and a half million dollars for betterments, including larger yards at Sarnia, St Thomas, Blenheim and Walkerville.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

"The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

Something like a groan broke from George's lips, and then without another word he left the room, carrying Laura's letter and Lady Dunvers' away with him. He wanted to be alone to think, to re-read Laura's letter, to consider whether to believe her words.

As he passed out of the room he met his father in the hall, who was going down to breakfast unusually late.

"Well, George," said the old lawyer, cheerfully; but something in the expression of his son's face attracted his attention.

"Is there anything the matter?" he asked.

"Ask Anna," replied George, hoarsely, and so passed on, going to his own room, and when he entered it, he locked the door behind him and once more opened Laura's letter.

"George, I must still write dear George, for I never can forget your unceasing kindness to me," he read in Laura's well-known handwriting, though the words had evidently been written with trembling fingers, "I am going to leave you; when you receive this I will have left Red House never to return. I can not, indeed, lead the false life that I have led of late any longer. When I married you I meant to be a good and faithful wife to you, and a faithful one I shall still be. But after I went to live in London there crossed my path one whom against my own will I learned to regard with a deep and enduring affection. He asked me to be his wife, but there were circumstances connected with my former life—connected with my poor father—that to my mind rendered such a marriage impossible. I told him it could not be, but I wished to remain his friend. But we were parted. I was maligned to him by a woman who wished to marry him, and he believed I was unworthy of his regard. He went abroad, and evil times came to me, of which you know; but one day, after months, I met the only man I really cared for in the park. He passed with a cold bow, and all brightness in life seemed to end for me at that moment. George, when I saw you again I believed that the romance of my life was done. You were good and kind; I had always liked you, and after a little while I promised to be your wife; promised this, meaning to keep my vows in word and deed.

"Now I can not. I am leaving you, but not with my old love, but because I still love him. I can not eat your bread, and live under your roof, knowing that my heart is false to you—the strain is too terrible; and so I am going out into the world—a lonely woman once more—to earn my living. I shall change my name, and shall never trouble you, and do not seek to find me. Let me be as one dead to you, and so shall I be as one dead to him for whose sake I am leaving you. I am bidding him farewell to-day as I am bidding you. Evil tongues may not believe this, but it is nevertheless true. I grieve greatly for the pain I am giving you; I thank you with all my heart for your goodness to me, but it is better that I should go. The diamonds and jewels that you gave me I have left in my dressing-table drawers, and the keys are in my little desk. The money I have I will take with me, as I know you would not wish me to starve. May God always bless you.

"LAURA."

CHAPTER XXVI.

While George Gifford was reading his wife's farewell letter with mingled emotions of anger and distress, at Harewood Hall Sir Ralph Woodland was also reading a letter from Laura which filled his heart with extreme agitation and pain.

His servant had just brought in the letters, and Sir Ralph had at once eagerly glanced over them. He was expecting a letter, anxiously awaiting a letter, and in a moment he selected one, the address being in a handwriting that he knew, and hastily tore it open.

An inclosure fell from it as he did so, but it fell almost unheeded. He was reading Laura's words; his eyes were riveted on the lines, which at once struck a chill, cold pang into his heart.

"I promised to write," he read, "and I now fulfill that promise with a sad and troubled heart. You said my life must have been terrible of late; how terrible you can not tell! If my husband had given me any cause of complaint, if he had not been everything that was kind and just, and good, I could have borne it better. But my daily life with him has become too great a struggle for me any longer to endure. I am leaving him for your sake, but not with you. To live under his roof, and be ever thinking of you, is to my mind more false than to go away. But I will injure him no further than this. I asked you not to see me again until I wrote, and I did this because an inner consciousness told me that your will is stronger than mine. I can find strength to write to bid you farewell, but I might not have found strength to speak the words.

"Yet it must be. We must see each other no more, though I know my heart will never change to you. You will not, I think, quite forget me, but you must not let my memory blight your life. When you have read the miserable letter I inclose—my dead father's letter—you will understand why, when you asked me to be your wife, I told you it was impossible. I loved you then, as I love you now, but the terrible shadow of his crime lay between us; lies between us still.

"I have written to my husband and told him the truth; told him how I loved you; how I believed you had utterly changed to me, and how when we met again I found this was not so. But I have told him also that in futre I shall be as one dead to you.

"Do not grieve about my future. It will be sad and lonely, but many lives are sad and lonely, and I must bear it as best I can. At all events it will be better than a life of hypocrisy or sin. This was all the choice my love for you left—except to go away.

Sir Ralph read and re-read every word of this sad letter, with an intense sense of disappointment and self-condemnation.

"But it is madness; I must find her," he muttered, starting to his feet. "She has left her home; she has sacrificed her life, and yet she wants to hide herself from me—but she shall not, she shall not!"

He walked hastily once or twice across the room, his dark brows were knitted, his strong hands clenched. He was thinking what he would do, when suddenly his eyes chanced to fall on the inclosed letter, or paper, which had fallen from Laura's letter when he tore it open.

He went quickly up to the table, and raised this folded paper. It was written in a man's handwriting, written closely, and it was long. He stood by the table reading it, and as he read a look of great horror came over his face.

"Good heavens!" he muttered. "Oh! my poor, poor girl!"

It was the letter that Major Ingram had left to his daughter to be read after his death; the letter that George Gifford had told her lay sealed among his papers, and it contained the confession of a hidden crime.

"Laura," it began, "you have sometimes asked me about your mother, but I could not speak of her. But after I am gone you shall know the dreadful truth. This hand is red with her blood, though, God knows, unwittingly. I was deeply attached to her, but she was a beautiful woman, and I was jealous of her, unreasonably. I now believe, until, while we were in India, a man named Woodland exchanged into my regiment.

"From the first I hated this Woodland who was dark and haughty-looking, and was, I believe, the heir to a baronetcy. He paid your mother great attention, and I was much annoyed by this, and remonstrated with her about it. She promised not to speak to him any more, but I received a hint that in my absence she sometimes went to his bungalow, which was situated some quarter of a mile distant to the one we then occupied. I determined to discover the truth concerning this, and having received orders to visit a distant outpost, I started from the cantonment, after parting with your mother. But when some miles away I turned my horse's head and rode back by a circuitous route to Woodland's bungalow.

"It was evening when I reached it, and I saw not a single servant about the place. So, after tying my horse to a tree, I went quietly on the low veranda that ran round the whole bungalow. From the spot where I stood I could see distinctly into one of the rooms beyond. And what do you think I did see? I saw your mother seated on a couch with this wretch Woodland beside her. He was holding her hand, and he was speaking in a low pleading tone to her, with his head bent close to hers.

"The sight seemed to drive me mad, the blood rushed to my head, and with a muttered curse I stood still and strove to hear what he said. He was urging her to leave her husband and child and go to to England with him, and the weak woman was listening to his words.

EVERY MAN A SOLDIER

Lord Roberts On "The Army As It Was And As It is to Be."

No Matter to What Grade of Society a Man May Belong He Ought to Be Taught Enough of Military Exercises to Enable Him to Shoot Straight and Carry Out Simple Orders—No Compulsory Service.

London, Dec. 30.—"The army as it was, and as it is to be," is the text under which Field Marshal Earl Roberts, in The January Nineteenth Century, reads Britons a noteworthy lecture on the duty of all classes if Great Britain would meet the demands of modern warfare. Every man should be trained to be an efficient soldier should the nation ever require his services, is the burden of his article. After frankly pointing out the existing deficiencies, Earl Roberts writes

"A terrible lesson awaits the nation whose soldiers find themselves opposed by equally brave but better trained opponents on the field of battle. No amount of money, no national sacrifices, will then avail, for modern warfare moves fast and time lost in peace can never be made up during the stress of a campaign. I hold this view very strongly, and would urge my fellow countrymen with all the force at my command to look the plain facts in the face."

Earl Roberts does not advocate compulsory service, "because it is distasteful to the nation and incompatible with the conditions of an army which has a large proportion of units in foreign service," but maintains that Great Britain must have a large reserve force, and "if the citizens of so great and prosperous a nation as ours are to remain exempt from compulsory service in time of peace without the safety of the Empire being endangered the right class of men must be attracted to the regular army by good conditions of pay and pension; and it is the bounden duty of the State to see that every able-bodied man in this country, no matter to what grade he may belong, undergoes some kind of military training in youth, sufficient to enable him to shoot straight and carry out simple orders, if ever his services are required for national defence."

Earl Roberts interestingly reviews the changes of the last fifty years, describes the military system prior to the Crimean war and points out how the introduction of modern guns necessitated the complete abolishment of the idea that men must be mere machines. Officers, he says, are no longer directly able to control their men because the fighting formation has been changed, and therefore the men must have a fair higher standard of individual intelligence, while among the officers intelligence, self-reliance and the power of leading must be on a proportionately higher level.

"The sooner this is realized to the fullest extent," Earl Roberts says, "the better for all ranks when the hour of trial comes."

Earl Roberts says the report of the commission on the war in South Africa made it clear that much is still needed before Great Britain has an army fit in all respects for war with a modern foreign power. Among other things, she must have a larger proportion of mounted troops for rapid reinforcement, and in order to quickly seize points of vantage. He refers to the action of the Government in ordering new quick-firing field guns and of the complete re-equipment of the army, and says these guns would be 12½ pounders for horses and 18½ pounders for field artillery. Simultaneously with Earl Roberts' article, it is officially announced that 160 batteries will be supplied with new guns at a cost of $17,500,000, and that the order will be executed within twenty months.

Earl Roberts concludes his article as follows "It will be necessary to have a reserve force of officers amounting to some thousands These can be made available by a system for the military training of the entire youth of the country, which is essential to our success, no matter under what system our army may be organized."

Two Charges of Forgery.

Berlin, Dec. 30.—Two cases of alleged forgery will be heard in the Police Court this morning. William Schott of Bridgeport, was arrested in that village by Constable Gastmeyer, charged with forging the name of George Shirk to a note for $253 and passing it on A. Breslau. W. H. Jenkins of Wellesley, was arrested there, charged with forging a note for $45 The note was signed "George X (his mark) Cruithers," and when presented at the Western Bank at Wellesley was declared to be a forgery.

Big Companies Charged With Sending Out Tugs in Defiance of the Law—Sixty Kept Under Steam, and Many of Them Bring in Fresh Caught Fish—Two Remedies Proposed to Abate the Evil.

Cleveland, Dec. 30.—The members of the Ohio State Fish and Game Commission have made a formal request to the Canadian authorities for co-operation in an effort to apprehend the fish companies now said to be operating in defiance of the fish laws. No answer has yet been received, but it is quite probable the co-operation will be arranged and a determined effort be made to catch some of the violators and see that they are punished

The members of the Commission make charges of flagrant violation of the law against the fish companies, and admit that thus far the companies have been able to evade the watchfulness of the state patrol boat that is kept in service on the lakes. They believe, that if the Canadian authorities are made to realize the depredations they say are now being committed, they will be quick to co-operate and thus run down the perpetrators.

The lake is suppose to be closed for fishing after Dec. 15, but there are said to be few, if any, of the fish tugs out of commission. Instead of laying up for the winter, it is claimed there are about 60 kept under steam, fully equipped and manned for service, from Ashtabula to Sandusky. These boats carry on an average about six miles of fish net, so that when out there are about 300 miles of gill nets set, even though the law declares the season is closed.

The Commissioners have been making a close investigation and find, they say, that a lot of fish tugs are bringing in large amounts of fresh caught fish.

The plan is to have the Canadian people put their boat again in commission, to remain active as long as the lake is open, and chase the fish tugs out of Canadian waters. The tugs clear from the Ohio ports for a Canadian port and when they come in loaded with fresh caught fish and are challenged, they reply the catch was made in Canadian waters, and the officers here are powerless. It is not an offence to bring Canadian caught fish into the ports here at any time.

A new law is to be asked, making it an offence to bring into the state fresh caught fish from the lakes during the closed season. With this law it is believed much greater protection can be given the fish.

TRAFFIC DIVERTED.

Canadian Railways Reap Benefit of U.S Inspection of Aliens.

New York, Dec. 30.—At a special meeting of the Trans-Atlantic Passenger Combination and the Trunk Line Association held yesterday, it was decided to send to Washington a protest against the action of certain United States immigration inspectors along the Canadian border, who the transportation men think, make their examination of aliens seeking to travel through the United States so rigorous that traffic of this sort is diverted to Canadian roads that might travel on the roads in the States and on ships coming to this port.

Tax Aliens $2 a Head.

New York, Dec. 30.—A head tax of two dollars on aliens entering the United States from Canada for the purpose of crossing to some Atlantic port on their way to Europe, was proposed yesterday at a meeting of the Atlantic steamship conference with the Trunk Line Passenger Association.

Canada Company's Good Showing.

London, Dec 30.—At the half-yearly meeting of the Canada Co., the chairman stated that during the year ending Nov. 30, 8,406½ acres had been disposed of, but applications for licenses were fewer than immediately after oil was discovered in Essex County. Speaking of mineral rights as assets not to be ignored, he referred to the discovery of felspar in Loughboro township and iron pyrites in Madoc township He proposed a dividend of 22 shillings per share, making altogether £3 4s. per share for $1904

The White Pass and Yukon Railway will pay a dividend of three shillings per share, less tax.

During the present year there were 90 disasters less than last year on the great lakes, the total wrecks being 37 vessels, of 17,817 tons against 31,644 tons last year.

Rescued in Mid-Ocean.

Havre, Dec. 30—The British steamer Anglo-Chilian, which arrived here Wednesday, with Capt. Nelson, his wife and five members of the crew of the American schooner W. R Chester on board, reports having rescued them in mid-ocean, when the Chester was sinking, after having encountered a four days' storm. Capt Nelson set fire to the schooner before abandoning her, that she might not prove a danger to navigation. The American consul at Havre will send the rescued persons home.

More Carnegie Gifts.

Pittsburg, Dec. 30.—It was announced last night that the Carnegie Steel Company, part of the United States Steel Corporation, intends a large issue of stock for its workmen again on Jan. 1, stock for which the men can pay in monthly instalments out of their wages, and which will be taken off their hands at cost price any time they wish to leave the mills.

BURNED IN HIS SHANTY.

John McIntyre, Canal Man, Loses Life At Port Dalhousie.

St. Catharines, Dec. 30.—John McIntyre, employed on the canal, was burned to death yesterday morning at Port Dalhousie. McIntyre, who was about 30 years of age, lived alone in a little shanty on the lake shore. The neighbors were awakened by the flames about 5.30, and found that the fire had gained too much headway for them to do anything. They supposed McIntyre had got out safely, but when the fire died down sufficiently his charred remains were found among the ruins. McIntyre was a brother of Capt B. McIntyre of the steamer Danforth.

Mrs. Shaw Burned to Death.

Hawkesbury, Dec. 30.—Mrs. Shaw, mother-in-law of Station Agent D S Campbell, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed the Great Northern station here Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and family were rescued with difficulty.

J. B. Linklater Killed.

Winnipeg, Dec. 30.—At Arizona, the C.N.R. snowplow struck a switch and upset. J. B. Linklater was killed. Several others were hurt.

It was impossible to get a complete list of the injured last night, but the following is the list available: C. A. Lott, badly injured about arms and body; Mrs. Lott, bruised and shaken, their two children burned and injured by inhaling smoke; William Linklater, bruised and internal injuries feared; N. Bigham, badly crushed, arms and legs broken, M. Bullard, badly burned; — Lotheran, severely injured about legs and arms; — Coburn, burned and arms broken; several others suffering from burns and bodily injuries.

Toronto Traveler Injured.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 30.—H. H. Irons, a representative of McCall & Co., Toronto, was thrown from a rig at Calgary on Tuesday, and is still in an unconscious condition in the hospital here His skull is believed to be fractured.

Editor W. R. Davis Shocked.

Stratford, Dec. 30.—W. R. Davis, editor of The Mitchell Advocate, Wednesday evening took hold of the handle of a pump, which had in some way become heavily charged with electricity. He could not let go, and was held there in terrible agony until his son Ralph, who had on rubber boots, put his foot on the handle, and in some way broke the circuit. Medical aid was at once summoned, and at last reports Mr. Davis is resting easily, although the shock was a terrible one.

WHAT DO YOU CARE?
YOU'VE GOT YOUR HEALTH.

Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment—They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of to-day does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately starts to look up another. He always looks forward and keeps on hustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or even feels like it has either a small nature or some physical weakness.

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—resulting from the thousands and thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure. Wherein lies their greatness? In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the same properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without let or hindrance to rest and grow sound and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That is what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only let it alone themselves but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact you forget you have a stomach when they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c. a box.

Wireless Works Nicely.

Ottawa, Dec 30.—The Marconi system is working satisfactorily on board the two Government steamers, Stanley and Minto, running between Pictou and Georgetown. By means of wireless telegraphy the vessels are able to keep in touch of shore and to warn each other of the condition of the ice in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Immorality On shipboard.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 30.—Immigrants who arrived this week by C. P.R. steamer Lake Manitoba recount stories of shocking immorality on shipboard. An investigation has begun. Many of the immigrants arrived penniless.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidentally killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Remember to-night's games at the Brock-st. rink. They certainly will be worth patronizing. In the first the Juniors clash with the speedy Port Hope team, who claim to have the strongest defence in junior hockey as well as a fast and clever forward line. Turn out and encourage the juniors. From them must come the material for future championships. Their line-up will be:—

Goal—Fitzpatrick.
Point—Squires.
Cover Point—Moore.
Forwards—H. Long, McFarlane, Smith, Miller, Hall.

Dr. Lionel King will referee. The game will start at 7.30 sharp.

The second game between the "Has Beens" and "Never Was" will afford an opportunity of comparing the stars of other days with the team that is at presenting representing Peterborough.

The teams will face each other something like this:—

"Has Beens"		"Never Was'
	Goal
Wasson		Fitzpatrick
	Point
Hollingshead		Glover
	Cover Point
Crowley		Meagher
	Forwards.
King		Parnell
Davidson		Morgan
Phelan		Cavanah
Graham		Hall

The Karnots are playing the Bobcaygeon Trent Valley team in that place to-night. They have a strong team with them and will give the Boydites a hard game.

The seniors meet the fast Smith Fall's bunch in an exhibition game at that place on Monday, and the juniors open the O.H.A. junior series with a game in Belleville. Both will be strong and are confident of giving their opponents a hard struggle.

Grafton's Counter Hoppers, contrary to all expectation, defeated Barrie's Bedelias in a hair-raising game last evening by 5—3. The Bedelias could not penetrate Grafton's stone wall defence, Bob Howland, in goal, turning off some dangerous ones The Winners lined up as follows: Goal, Howling Bob Howland; point, Do Nothing Conway; coverpoint, Hurricane Patte; forwards, Rosie Seymour, Benedict McIntyre, Fat Main and Whirlwind Hughes.

The B.A.C. and George street Guild will not meet this evening, as the rink could not be engaged for the occasion.

BASKETBALL.

On Monday evening next a Belleville basketball league team will play a picked Y.M.C.A. team in the gymnasium here. There will be a preliminary game between the Arrows and Eagles, and a programme of gymnastic work.

THE PRESERVE CLOSET.

It Should Be Perfectly Dry and Have an Even Temperature.

The temperature of a preserve closet should not rise above 70 degrees. The closet should be perfectly dark, as not only heat, but light, is injurious to the keeping of preserves. It should also be a perfectly dry room. It is a good plan to have the walls whitewashed once a year—in the autumn, before stocking the shelves—to insure a perfectly wholesome atmosphere. A small compartment in the cellar near the stairs is often a convenient place for the preserve closet. It should, however, be free from dampness or mold and snugly built if used for this purpose. In many houses it would not be dry enough.

A jelly press is a useful utensil in this closet. A good pair of scales which will weigh from half a pound to seven or eight pounds is also needed, as the articles in most of the popular recipes are measured by weight. A patent meat and vegetable chopper is positively essential nowadays, for, though it is some trouble to clean, it cuts meat and vegetables into fine, even pieces and so much quicker than the old fashioned chopping knife. In putting up chowchow or pickles it is excellent.

There are few things more enticing than a picturesque preserve closet, with its neatly papered shelves laden down with good things.—New York Tribune.

MAKING THINGS OVER.

A Wide Field For the Woman Who Has Taste and Skill.

For the woman who has taste and skill in making over articles of clothing a wide field is open. Let her make it known that she is ready to take any available material and make it over into neat and serviceable garments, and she will not lack for employment even where there are many dressmakers. "Making over" is disliked by most dressmakers, and an opportunity to carry such goods to a pleasant, tactful person who would see all its possibilities and bring them out satisfactorily is hailed with delight. One who does such work must be careful to keep sacred the confidence of her customers. No one would be pleased to have the details of her economy told to others or the fact made public that the pretty waist she wore was made out of her sister's old skirt. In connection with this work one should keep on hand a small stock of dressmaker's findings. These could be bought at wholesale prices and furnish a small profit when sold at regular rates.—Woman's Home Companion.

TOILET TIPS.

After the shampoo if the hair is stiff and dry rub olive oil into the roots.

Cucumbers, peeled, cut in slices and bound upon the face, will prove an excellent whitener.

For a red, oily nose anoint several times a day with a little diluted alcohol or witch hazel.

If the finger nails are filed daily little cutting is needed. This is an excellent plan to follow when the nails are brittle and break in the cutting.

For a discolored neck apply cucumbers cut in strips, binding on during the night. In the morning wash off and rub well with cold cream.

An economical and satisfactory cream for the hands is composed of equal portions of honey, mutton tallow (clarified) and lemon juice, melted together until of the consistency of cream.

Perfumes.

The use of any particular kind of perfume will always be a matter of individual taste, irrespective of the changes that sway the fashionable world from time to time. The few fastidious souls who have tried to persuade the world that it is exceedingly vulgar to admit any liking for sweet scents of any description have most ignominiously failed, as at no time has the popularity of sachets, toilet waters and highly priced extracts been greater than during the present season. The danger of going to excess in the use of a very decided odor is one that should be fully understood by any one who desires to refrain from offending her associates. Like everything else in life, too much is worse than none at all. A happy medium is what all should strive to reach.—Rochester Herald.

Plaster Ornaments.

Nothing takes the dust more freely than plaster objects, more or less artistic, which are the modest ornaments of our dwellings. They rapidly contract a yellow gray color of unpleasant appearance. Here is a practical method for restoring the whiteness: Take finely powdered starch, quite white, and make a thick paste with hot water. Apply when still hot with a flexible spatula or a brush on the plaster object. The layer should be quite thick. Let it dry slowly. On drying the starch will split and scale off. All the soiled parts of the plaster will adhere and be drawn off with the scales.

Table Linen.

In point of beauty of weave and finish Irish table linen ranks first, but German damask wears better. Unbleached linen is cheaper and more durable than bleached of the same quality, and it becomes beautifully white after it is washed and boiled a few times in a suds made by dissolving washing powder in soft hot water. Rinse well, hang on the line and let it dry in the sunshine. Hemmed napkins are preferable to fringed ones. While pure white is in vogue for centerpieces and doilies, we like the touch of brightness which the embroidery done with colored silks gives these pieces.

KEEN'S CHRISTMAS WORK

Gun Club Has Been Organized—Candidates Nominated. Y. P. S. C. E. Social.

Miss Mary Andrews, Toronto, is spending her holidays in Keene, the guest of Miss Jennie Plunkett.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Howson arrived on Friday from Toronto.

Misses Lillian and Agnes Campbell, who have been studying at the Conservatory of Music, and Mr. Wm. Campbell, jr., of the S.P.S., are spending the Christmas holidays with their parents.

Mr. David Brodie, Washington Territory, U.S., is visiting his uncle, Mr. Jas. Nelson.

The skating rink was opened Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bennett, Somerberry, N.W.T., are visiting Mr. Christopher Howson.

Mr. James Long and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mein, of Peterborough, and Mr. Jas. McDonald, of Inglewood, were the guests of Mr. Peter Drummond on Christmas Day.

Miss Molly Shaw, who has been studying music in Toronto, returned Thursday.

Mr. Louis Bolin, Peterborough, was in Keene on Christmas Day.

The Sunday School concert held in the Lang town hall on Wednesday night was a decided success, financially and otherwise. The proceeds, which amounted to twenty-nine dollars, are to be applied towards repairing the hall.

Remember the Improvement Society ball on Friday night.

The Bank of Toronto opened a branch in Keene on Tuesday, Dec. 27th.

Mr. Albert Nelson, of Hamilton, is visiting his parents.

Mr. Walter Robbins is spending his Christmas holidays in Agincourt.

At the nomination meeting held on Monday, Mr. John H. Fife was elected Reeve by acclamation. Mr. Jno. Moore was nominated in opposition to Mr. Fife, but declined.

The following gentlemen were nominated for Councillors—W. J. Porter, John Carey, Robert Humphries, Jno. G. Grady, Christopher Howson, Thos. J. Welsh and Wm. B. Stewart. Messrs. Porter and Carey are the only two candidates who were members of the old council.

On Dec. 26 a meeting was held in Mr. Robt. McCamus' room, and a gun club organized. Mr. Edwin Foley was elected president, and Mr. Robert McCamus, secretary treasurer. The object of the society is to help in the preservation of our game and fish and to protest against the sale by the government of the rights to the duck shooting in certain portions of the lake to private clubs. The membership fee is one dollar.

Misses Mabel and Pearl McCann visited friends at Stirling this week.

The funeral of the late Miss Ida McFarlane, who died at Mimico on Thursday, Dec. 22nd, was held on Saturday to Pine Grove Cemetery.

An excellent entertainment was held in the town hall on Christmas night by the Presbyterian Y.P.S.C.E. The hall was well filled and the proceeds netted over thirty-eight dollars. Following was the programme:

Chorus—Children.
Recitation—Irene McNeil.
Duett—Misses Lillian and Agnes Campbell.
Solo—Mr. R. B. McIntyre.
Chorus—Choir.
Recitation—Miss Jennie Weir.

Municpal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

Having been nominated for Alderman, I again solicit your vote and influence.

During the past four years that I have had the honor and privilege of representing you, I have endeavored to discharge my duty and responsibility of the office in a faithful and zealous manner.

I do not intend to make a personal canvass, but take this means of soliciting your support.

If elected I will fill the position as well as in the past.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am,

Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH BATTEN.

Peterborough, Dec. 27, 1904.

TO THE ELECTORS.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the urgent solicitation of a number of ratepayers of Peterborough, I have accepted nomination as Alderman for 1905.

As it will be impossible for me to make a personal canvass, I take this opportunity of soliciting your vote and influence.

If elected my voice and vote will always be found advocating measures calculated to advance the interests of our town, in the prosperity of which I am so largely interested.

Wishing you a prosperous and happy New Year.

I am, yours truly

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Your vote and influence are solicited in my interest as Alderman for 1905. If elected I will endeavor to look after your interests in a faithful, earnest and intelligent manner. I am personally known to a large number of you, and trust that you will give me your support.

My views on the issues of this campaign I hope to place before you on Thursday night, and, if they meet with your approval, I trust you will not forget me on election day. I do not intend to make a personal canvass. Wishing you all a bright and happy New Year, I remain, yours obediently,

THOS. J. BEGLEY.

Peterborough, Dec. 28th, 1904.

Election of Aldermen.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been again nominated for Alderman for a second term, I have consented to become a candidate and solicit you vote and influence.

My past twelve months' experience at the Council Board justifies me in saying that every effort is necessary to judiciously restrain the annual expenditures of the town. Should you again honor me with your support my aim will be to safeguard the interests of the town by such economic expenditure as is consistent with the welfare of our growing municipality.

Your obedient servant,
ROBERT HICKS.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

At the request of a large number of friends, I offer myself as a candidate for Alderman of the Town of Peterborough for 1905.

It is impossible for me to make a personal canvass of all the electors, and I take this means of soliciting your vote and influence. Although my nomination is endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council, I retain a free hand to act in the best interests of the masses, and will give my best efforts to safeguard and advance the interests of all citizens.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year, I remain, youre respectfully,

JOSEPH CROWE.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

W. J. JOHNSTON

respectfully solicits your vote and influence to secure his election as Alderman for the Town of Peterborough for the coming year.

He wishes to thank the ratepayers for the cordial support accorded to him in the past.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

W. J. JOHNSTON.

Card to the Electors.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having been nominated as a candidate for election to the Municipal Council, I solicit your vote and influence in my behalf.

If elected I shall endeavor to serve the town to my fullest capacity and carefully guard its interests,

Yours respectfully,
R. H. BRADBURN.

Card to the Electors.

Municipal Council of 1905.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

As a candidate for election to the Municipal Council of 1905, I solicit your assistance to effect my election.

I am in favor of municipal ownership of our utilities and a strong policy to encourage the location here of additional manufactures. By push and energy I think this can be accomplished, and if favored with your preference I will endeavor to show that my work will merit approval.

Yours respectfully,
G. J. TOVEY.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

A. A. McINTYRE

Respectfully requests your vote and influence in his favor as a candidate for Alderman for the year 1905.

If elected, he will use every effort in support of economic government, and give the same careful attention to the best interests of the town as he would do to his own business.

He wishes all his fellow citizens a happy and prosperous New Year.

A CARD.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Having been requested by a large number of ratepayers to stand for election for Alderman for the coming year, and I am opposed to personal canvassing, I take this means to let you know that I am in the field, and ask for your hearty support. If elected I will endeavor to do my duty for the best interests of the town.

Wishing you the compliments of the season.

I am, yours respectfully,
JAS. CLANCY.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

At the request of a large number of the ratepayers of the town, I have decided to run as Alderman for the coming year. If elected I will endeavor to do my utmost to have the affairs of the town conducted in a businesslike and economical manner. Wishing all a happy and prosperous New Year.

GEO. H. DUNCAN.

Municipal Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Having been nominated for the position of Alderman on the Municipal Council for 1905, and having decided to enter the contest, I take this means of respectfully asking your support. It is not my intention to make a canvas, as I do not believe that is the most advisable manner in which to place one's self before the electorate, but in the event of my election I will devote myself, to as great an extent as possible, to the best interests of the town, giving them as close and undivided attention as I would the transaction of my own business.

I take pleasure in wishing you the compliments of the season.

Yours very truly,
ROBERT H. LEARY.

LOCAL OPTION BY-LAW.

All Eyes Will Be Turned Toward Smith Township.

The eyes of no inconsiderable world will be turned on Smith township on Monday next, when the people will vote on the local option by-law. A vigorous campaign has been waged, and the temperance people have left no stone unturned to present the weight of their cause. Should the by-law carry, four hotels will go out of business, so far as the sale of intoxicating liquors is concerned, if not altogether — Chemong Park hotel, conducted by George Brown; T. Eastwood's hotel at Hall's Bridge; J. E. Kearney's at Young's Point; and William Brooks at Young's Point.

The by-law will go into effect in the first of May next, if carried, as on that date the licenses at present existing will run out.

PLEASANT "AT HOME"

Peterborough Club Entertained Several Friends Last Evening.

A delightful "At Home" was held last night when the members of the Peterborough Club entertained their lady friends.

About 150 couples were present and spent a most enjoyable evening. Dancing was indulged in in the billiard room. A Toronto orchestra furnished excellent music and the floor was in splendid condition.

The caterer was Mr. H. Long, and a dainty repast was served at midnight. The "At Home" was most successful in every respect, and the members of the club excelled themselves as hosts. The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of Messrs. Harold Clarkson, E. H. Jarvis, W. C. P. Heathcote, E. B. Clarry, P. Campbell, R. E. Wood.

DIED.

PEARSE—At Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 20th, 1904, of typhoid fever, Edith, second daughter of the late [illegible]

ICE WAS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Slippery Places for All of the Wicked to Stand On.

MANY AMUSING INCIDENTS.

Farmers Found It Difficult to Bring Heavy Loads to Town—There Was Good Skating Along the Roads.

The returns are beginning to come in referring to the slippery days early in the week. The rain of Monday night froze as it fell and on Tuesday there were slippery places enough for all the wicked of the province to try to stand on and prove their uprightness. Only the most sure-footed trusted to the pavements. Most of the electorate took the middle of the street.

Out in the country developed a curious state of affairs. The roads were so icy horses moved with difficulty and generally in the wrong direction. It was almost impossible to keep a vehicle in the middle of the road, and travelling was perilous.

One resident of Otonabee reached town late in the afternoon and related his experience. He averred that there was fine skating to be had anywhere within five miles of town and that the man who brought out a team took big risks. He has a hill-side farm, the house being at some elevation above the barns and a rod or two away. He started out after breakfast with two pails of skim milk for the hogs. He returned to the house, securing the bottoms of the pails and one handle. His trousers were soaked in milk. He then decided to get out the sleigh and go to town and made two offers to get to the driving shed and only reached it by taking a pail of ashes and sprinkling the icy path ahead of him as he crawled. He reached the shed, got out the bobs, and started for the team. The sleigh moved a little and he picked up the tongue, when the whole thing wrenched itself loose, sailed down the barn yard and after taking out two panels of an ornamental picket fence and mowing down a few rows of healthy berry bushes, landed against a snow apple tree in the orchard, shaking the tree out of at least three years growth. He got out the team and at great risk essayed to pull the sleigh out to the lane, but the team had so many falls that he gave the thing up, and walked to town.

A resident of North Monaghan coming in with a load of grain struck the top of the big hill on the gravel road and he relates that he never saw a team pushed to such active exertion to keep ahead of a sleigh, as was his team. The gait was well under three minutes and speed was not lessened until they struck the street car track on Charlotte-st.

Another farmer who ventured to haul a load of hay to market on Wednesday tells a remarkable experience. A steep hill was the cause of his undoing. Just as his team had become nicely acquainted with the grade the sleighs began to "slon," with the result that at one time the outfit was at right angles with the road-bed. Only a small bump, which marked the finishing off place of some recent statute labor, prevented the load from making the descent of the hill in a series of circles, so the farmer says. His horses, at one time, slid for a distance of about one hundred yards on their haunches.

"As stubborn as a pig on ice" is a common saying, but the experience of an old hog belonging to one of the farms of Smith Township shows that there are what might be called involuntary exceptions. This particular porcine quadruped, on Wednesday, wanted to reach a place which promised an appetising repast. To do this, required the ascent of a small hill. The hog essayed to do some climbing, but after many attempts gave up in disgust. The best he could do was to get half way up the height when the law of gravitation and the greasy ice, combined to send the pork, in a squealing heap, back to the starting point.

REPORT IS DENIED.

Louis Fobert is Largely Interested in Chemong Park Hotel.

During the temperance campaign in connection with the local option by-law in Smith, it appears that at some of the meetings reports have been circulated to the effect that Mr. Louis Fobert, of Bridgenorth, has no interest in the Chemong Park Hotel, and that Mr. Wm. Irwin is sole owner. Mr. Irwin called on the Review to-day to state that this is not correct, and positively asserts that Mr. Fobert is largely interested in the Chemong Park hotel property.

New Year's Reception.

There will be an interesting programme in different parts of the Y.M.C.A. building on Monday.

All young men are asked to spend the afternoon at the building. Gymnastics, music, games and other features.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and its Vicinity.

—New Year's reception to men, Y.M.C.A. Monday, 2 to 6 p.m.

—Men, don't miss Rev. E. A. Langfeldt's address, Y.M.C.A. Sunday, 4 p.m.

—The Collegiate Institute and Public Schools will re-open on Tuesday next.

—Remember the lecture in the Opera House, Monday night, by the eloquent Rev. Father Kelly.

—On Monday which will be observed as New Year's and a holiday, the Review will not be issued.

—There will be no watchnight service in St. Luke's to-night on account of New Year's day being on a Sunday.

—There was a very large market this morning. Prices were as high as ever and there was no change from the Christmas quotations for turkeys, poultry, etc.

—The Conservative Club of Lakefield have opened up rooms over Trude & Leggott's butcher shop in that village. The rooms are open every week day evening.

—At a meeting of the Hastings Public School trustees, Miss N. Rogers, of Singhampton, Ont., was engaged to teach in the junior department during the coming year.

—Mr. R. J. Kidd, of Toronto, who broke his right arm below the elbow some time ago, is regaining the use of the limb and expects to leave for the Queen City in a few days.

—Registration is to be held next Friday, Saturday and Monday and on Saturday evening. Let every man, young or old, over 21 see that his name is added.

—Mr. Jas. S. Miller, of Smith, beats the record in big turnips. On Thursday he brought in a turnip which weighed 20 pounds. The turnip was of the common field variety.

—Havelock Public School Board have engaged a new staff of assistant teachers for the coming year:—Miss Campbell of Norwood, Miss Elliott of Berlin and Miss Day of Westport.

—It is all very fine for Santa Claus to fill up stockings as if he were a Rockefeller; if his generosity gave the same pain to his own leg, that it gives to the dad's, socks might be large enough instead of stockings.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

—Rev. A. M. Hubly of Sussex, N.B., who was lately tendered a call to become rector of Emmanuel R. E. church, Belleville, has accepted the same, and will likely enter upon his charge about the first of February, 1905.

—Mr. R. M. Roy has on exhibition in his show case, a flash light photo of the Old Boys' Hockey team, taken last evening at the rink. The players are shown lined up in front of the nets. It is a very fine picture.

—Miss Logan, who taught in S. S. No. 3, Belmont, during the past year, was presented by her pupils at the close of the term with a very [illegible]

[illegible]tial Secretary, will address a meeting in the interests of Wm. Anderson, Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, in the town hall, Norwood, on Friday evening, January 6th.

—The patrons of Melrose Abbey cheese factory have elected the following officers for next season:—President, Mr. Samuel Adams; Sec.-Treas. Mr. Well. Burgess; Salesman, Mr. Jas. Craighead; Auditor, Mr. Matt. Elliott; Directors, Messrs. Thos. McConnell, H. Elliott, H. McLaughlin, Jos. Johnston and A. C. Buchanan.

—Miss Bertha Miller, daughter of Ernest Miller, of New Carlow, was accidentally shot and instantly killed. Her brother Max was handling his rifle, having, as he supposed, emptied the magazine, but one cartridge was not removed and was discharged. The bullet entered his sister's breast and passed out at her back. The deceased was about 24 years of age, and much respected. The mother also had a narrow escape, the bullet passing through her arm and inflicting a nasty flesh wound.—Tweed News.

—The Boston Pilot, writing on the lecture given by Rev. Father Kelly, of the American Lyceum Union, who will lecture in Bradburn's Opera House on Monday night next, January 2nd, 1905, on "The Dream of Equality," in aid of the St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence, says:—"In person Father Kelly is an ideal platform orator—young, handsome, easily moved and as easily moving others by the emotions of pathos, humor or high enthusiasm. Voice, figure and expression are all well matched to his masterful command of language."

—The following visitors from Peterborough, were in Lakefield this week, according to the News, which contains the following:—Mr. Alex. Richardson, of Peterborough, was visiting friends in the village this week. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hetherington and Miss Ethel, of Peterborough, spent Christmas in the village this week visiting friends. Mr. and Mrs. T. McBrien and son, of Peterborough, spent Christmas in the village, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. Watson. Mrs. J. Henderson and Miss Florence Madill, of Peterborough, spent Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Madill. Messrs. Geo. and Walter Brown, of Toronto University, and Fred., of Peterborough, are spending the Christmas vacation at their home. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McWilliams, of Peterborough, spent Christmas in the village visiting friends. Mr. C. Brisbois, of Peterborough, was visiting friends in the village this week. The Misses Mellor, of Peterborough, spent Christmas in Douro, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Gale. Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood and family, of Peterborough, spent Christmas in the village, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul.

REASON ~~Nº~~ 2
WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose Tea

Because it is tested by skilled tea tasters.

Tea tasting can well be called one of the fine arts. A man who can taste several hundred cups of tea a day, and, by his keen senses, detect the slightest difference between them, and who, blindfolded, can tell where each and every tea was grown, not only the country, but the particular district, and often the very plantation—such a man is the professional tea taster.

The head man in my tea room, Mr. W. R. Miles, is a master in his profession. He learned the business in London, Eng., and is a tea taster by right of birth, as both his Father and Grandfather were tea testers. It came natural to him and he is recognized as one of the best judges of tea in America.

He and his assistants do nothing but taste the teas, and superintend the blending.

RED ROSE TEA is the result.

SATURDAY, DEC. 31, 1904.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

A new year dawns! Time and tide wait for no man and the onward march of the years brings us up to 1905.

Alas! how rapidly they slip by. To the young ten or twenty years appears to be a long period to look forward to, but to the older ones, how short the interval, how brief the retrospect.

In any reflections bearing upon the past year it is well to remember that, whatever its record, it cannot now be remedied; it is to the future we must look. How can we make the days to come better and brighter? By not losing hope, facing the duties of the hour courageously, with steadiness of purpose and firmness of will. The outlook for the town of Peterborough, is on the whole bright.

Andrew Carnegie, the American multi-millionaire, suggests that all honest and independent citizens should celebrate New Year's Day by clearing off all small liabilities, and enjoying the happiness of entering the year free from debt. The Scotch-American millionaire commends the practice as calculated to promote what be considers the cardinal virtue of thrift.

To review the past year, its trials, its triumphs, its difficulties and progress; its woes and joys, its disasters and successes would, perhaps, do some good in helping us to draw useful lessons with which to face the future. We can all profit by the experience of the past and essay to do better in 1905. Suppose we fall short—far short—of our conceptions of true citizenship, of our ideals as men and women, of our duties as neighbors, our obligations as workers and our responsibilities in life generally, that is no reason why we should not press forward, why we should not form new resolutions or emulate the high and holy, the true and just, in all things pertaining to the great problem of existence and the life that is beyond. There is no need of sermonizing or indulging in false sentiments, but it is much better to aim high and miss, than to aim low and hit the mark. We should ever strive as individuals, and as a community, after the highest. How many attain their ideals? How many accomplish all that they set forth to do in a day, month or year If attainment were easy or success quickly won the prizes of life would not be so valued; that which costs nothing, which entails no sacrifice; no labor or no denial is but lightly treated and generally cast aside as unworthy and unattractive.

Do not let the fact of your having failed a few times or even many times, cause you to cease revolving. Life is made up up of resolves and good resolutions which, though broken frequently are still worth forming. They shape character and mould destiny. They strengthen the will, and develop the forces within us, if an honest, faithful effort is made to carry them out.

New Year's Day is the time for good fellowship, social calls and kindliest well wishes. May the coming twelve months be the brightest and happiest, the most prosperous and successful in the life of every citizen, is the wish of the Review.

Let bygones be bygones, petty enmities be forgotten, strife, discontent, jealousy and deception be laid aside on the morrow, for

PEN POINTS.

Ross says he does not know "Cap." Sullivan personally, but be perhaps knows a good deal of his work.

A good many Liberal candidates are dropping out owing to ill-health,—the ill-health of the Ontario Government.

Peterborough has 19 aldermanic candidates in the field. Belleville had hard work to get 11. Comment is needless. Is it not probable that the live interest taken by its citizens in municipal affairs in Peterborough may have much to do with that town's prosperity? Very likely.—Belleville Intelligencer.

The Ross Government has appointed a young lady pro tem registrar of Renfrew in place of Dr. McKay who is running for the Legislature. We presume the young lady is holding the place while the doctor runs.

Still they are coming—no less than four Presbyterian clergymen have, up to the time of writing, publicly denounced their leader, Mr. Ross and have come to the conclusion that a stronger man is needed at the helm. In addition to these we have heard from two Methodist clergymen, Revs. Hunter and J. A. Ross to the same effect—but the worst blow of all comes from the son of the late Senator Aikins.

[illegible] the beginning of 1905, is to go to the polls and vote for twelve good men who will best serve the interests and welfare of the town during the coming twelve months. This should be done before anything else. It is a duty you owe to yourself, to your place of residence and to the well-being of the community. There are nineteen men soliciting your suffrage. You know their respective qualifications, their records and their platforms. Exercise your franchise. The polls will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning to 5 in the afternoon.

The Chatham Planet still persists in publishing the statement of the Liberal candidate (made before he was nominated) to the effect that he wouldn't be a candidate "as the Ross Government was a goner." They have been there altogether too long and they've got too many heelers and hangers on. The whole thing is corrupt and rotten, and I believe they should be turned out."

The Examiner said that McCoig didn't make the above statement and boldly and brazenly called it a Tory "lie." It seems that McCoig has never yet denied having made the statement, but the Examiner will never take back the "lie."

Mr. Pringle, who has been selected as the Rossite candidate in West Hastings, is a worthy representative of that influence all right enough. In accepting the nomination he attempted to throw the onus of the ballot box horror on the Conservatives by the statement:—

> "The Conservatives should shoulder the sins of Phil Lott. He was a traitor to the sacredness of the family. His action was such as to show him anything but a man. Of all the malicious things in the world it was a traitor. A man in Toronto had said that Phil Lott was worse than Judas Iscariot. Judas had the decency to hang himself."

In other words because this Phil Lott exposed an infamous Grit scheme he should be hounded, and villified and derided. Mr. Pringle is manifestly a man after the Grit leader's own heart.—Brantford Courier.

MARK STREET CHILDREN

Enjoyable Christmas Tree and Entertainment Held Last Night.

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment in connection with Mark-st. Sabbath School was held in the Town Hall, Ward 5, on Thursday evening and proved quite interesting and successful. There was a good attendance, and all seemed well pleased with the evening's entertainment. The little folks were much in evidence, the aim being to give them as good a time as possible and they apparently appreciated their opportunity.

A tree nicely laden with gifts was on one end of the platform, and its fruit was distributed by Santa Claus and his assistants at the end of the programme, after which each child of the school received a bag of candies and nuts.

During the evening prizes donated by Mrs. (Rev.) Campbell and by Mr. W. C. Harnett, were given to the boys and girls who had brought in the largest number of new pupils.

Among the girls, Miss Maggie Record was first and Misses Neva Davey and Violet Jewell were equal for second place. For the boys, Hunter Lewis was first and Bertie Cook stood second. The presentation was made by Mr. Harnett, as the successful pupils came forward.

Prizes were given by the school to the members who had been most regular in attendance during the year. Three had been present 51 Sundays out of the 52, and each received a handsome book. The recipients were Misses R. Record, Pearl Brisbin and Cecil White.

A pleasing feature was the presentation of a handsome hand satchel and purse, accompanied by an address, to Miss Mary Speer, organist of the school. The address was read by the Secretary-Treasurer, O. S. Matchett, and the presentation was made by Miss Lillie Chrowe. Miss Speer replied suitably expressing her thanks. A copy of the address appears below.

The chair was occupied by the Superintendent, Mr. M. W. Matchett, and the programme was as follows:

Hymn—"All hail the power of Jesus' Name."
Prayer—Rev. J. G. Lewis, B.A.
Chairman's address.
Chorus—"Shepherds' Awake."
Recitation—Clarence Miller.
Recitation—Dewart Lewis.
Recitation—Burton Lewis.
Song—Georgie Long.
The Lambs of the Flocks—Mrs. Rev. Lewis' class.
Recitation—Harry Smith.
Song, "Tidings of His Birth"—Miss Speer's class.
Recitation—Myrtle Mesley.
Reading—Neva Davey.
Rainbow Drill.
Presentation of Prizes.
Recitation—Hunter Lewis.
Chorus—"Through the Starlit Air."
Doll Drill.
Recitation—Ada Norris.
Christmas Carol—Solo part by Miss Courtney.
Recitation—Miss Barrie.
Chorus—"Ring Out the Tidings."
Distribution of Gifts.

The Doll Drill by a class of little girls was very pretty, and both songs and motions were executed to the delight of all.

The Rainbow Drill by sixteen young ladies was perhaps the crowning feature of the evening. The beautiful color scheme and the perfect time and graceful motions of the performers, culminating in a striking tableau, made an impression not to be easily forgotten.

The address to Miss Speer was as follows—

Peterborough, Dec. 29, 1904.
Miss Mary Speer,
Organist Mark-st. S. School.

Dear Miss Speer—We have gathered here to-night for our annual Christmas entertainment and cannot let this occasion pass without expressing to you as our organist the deep feeling of love which we cherish for you.

Your regularity in attendance from Sabbath to Sabbath has been a noble example to all. But crowning all is the sweet, sisterly love, the utter forgetfulness of self, which has characterized you in all your relations with church and Sunday school work, and proven to all with whom you [illegible] your life that you have been with Jesus.

We trust that you will be spared long to labor with us and that your [illegible] crated to Him, will be crowned with the blessings of God.

In closing we would ask that you accept this gift as a slight token of the high esteem in which you are held by us.

Signed on behalf of the school.

O. S. MATCHETT, Sec.-Treas.

"Eat Plenty of Fruit."

That's what the Doctors say when one is constipated. Because fruit acts on the liver, causing it to excrete bile which aids digestion and increases the peristaltic action of the bowels, thus prevents constipation. But eating fresh fruit alone, won't CURE. The laxative principle is too weak and in too small quantity.

Fruit-a-tives

are the tonic and laxative virtues of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, many times intensified—by our secret process of combining the juices—and made into tablets.

FATHER PHELAN LECTURED

Words Listened to With Rapt Attention by Lindsay Audience.

Lindsay Post:—An entertainment which had been looked forward to with much interest by the young people of St. Mary's congregation was held Wednesday night in the parish hall, and despite the stormy weather conditions, a large number were present.

As had been previously announced a lecture was given by Rev. Father Phelan, of Young's Point. His introductory remarks were in the form of words of praise and encouragement to the young ladies of the society on the good work they were accomplishing in many ways. Their library in itself was something to be proud of, and not a volume in it but would bear the criticism of the most exacting parents. Father Phelan's discourse was along the line of encouraging good, clean literature for the young. As the Rev. Father is an old favorite with the people of St. Mary's, his words were listened to with wrapt attention.

A programme, chiefly of a musical nature, was then rendered. We are sorry that we are unable to give full justice to the different performers, but the general verdict of all was that it was superior in many ways to anything hitherto attempted by the congregation.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan occupied the chair and also referred to the good work accomplished by the young ladies. Rev. Father O'Boyle, of Ottawa, and Mr. Ed. Kylie, of Toronto, also spoke briefly.

What appealed most to the young and robust was the appetizing supper that had been provided. Tables were set which groaned beneath the weight of the good things thereon. Amusements were indulged in for a short time.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS.

Every first of January that we arrive at is an imaginary milestone in the turnpike track of human life, at once a resting place for thought and meditation and a starting point for fresh exertion in the performance of our journey.

The man who does not at least propose to himself to be better this year than he was last must be either very good or very bad indeed. And only to propose to be better is something. If nothing else it is an acknowledgement of our need to be so which is the first step toward amendment.

But, in fact, to propose to oneself to do well is in some sort to do well positively, for there is no such thing as a stationary point in human endeavors. He who is not worse to-day than he was yesterday is better, and he who is not better is worse.

LITTLE FOLKS MEET.

Primary and Kindergarten Classes of St. Andrew's Have Pleasant Evening.

The Kindergarten and Primary classes of St. Andrew's Sunday school held their annual Christmas entertainment in the school room Thursday evening. In the neighborhood of eighty scholars were present, as well as many of the parents, who passed a most enjoyable evening. At 5 o'clock the children partook of a delightful tea, and from then until 7 o'clock the time was passed most pleasantly in games and other amusements.

At 7 o'clock the following enjoyable programme was given by the little folks—

Piano Solo—Geraldine Byers.
Recitation—Gordon Henry.
Recitation—Adeline Grant.
Recitation—Gordon Stevens.

A cantata, "The Joy of Christmas Morning," was given by the children of the Kindergarten department, under the direction of Miss Ethel Tully, and was greatly enjoyed. The little folks and their teacher deserve great credit for the success of the cantata.

The children of the Primary class sang a farewell song to the air of Auld Lang Syne to their teacher, Mrs. Geo Long.

The distribution of gifts from the Christmas tree followed, Mr. Peter Kerr acting as Santa Claus. Andrew Anderson received a special reward for attendance at church and Sunday school on the fifty-two Sundays of the year.

The following have been promoted from the Kindergarten to the Primary class and have been given diplomas—

Donald Robertson, Melville Saunders, Hamilton Graham, Wilbert Fraise, Edna Stephenson; Eva Tremain Alison Wade, Gladys McKnight.

The following have received diplomas and have been promoted from the primary class to the junior department of the school—Geraldine Byers, Edna Sharp, Mary Carter, Hazel Batten, Ethel Armstrong, Gordon Macfarlane, Andrew Anderson, John Falconer, Robt. DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger --It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

Sympathy.

All men as well as women like to be understood. Sympathy is their greatest help, and no woman who is self centered, who is vain and thinks only of herself, will gain the highest regard of man. She may be exquisitely beautiful, having a crowd of admirers at her feet, but she cannot bestow that wonderful happiness a plain little woman full of sympathy gives to her husband.—Woman's Life.

Trinkets on the Wall.

Girls are learning to hang many little trinkets on the wall around their bureau, as this prevents the accumulation of litter on the bureau and saves wearisome dusting. For instance, a girl has a good sized key rack in some dainty enameled wood or light metal hung on the right side of the bureau, from which swing a button hook, a glove buttoner, a shoe horn and extra shoe laces.

Unique Picture Frames.

In an artist's country home where the built in idea prevails even to the candlesticks the picture frames are unique. They are set into the walls and the glass opens like a little door, so that the pictures may be changed as often as desired. Several sizes and shapes of frames are provided, and by a judicious use of mats almost any picture may be made to fit.

Bed Valances.

Attaching a valance to a brass or iron bed has bothered many a housekeeper. A very good way to do it is to sew the valance to a coarse sheet or piece of cotton cloth the size of the bed, spreading the sheet or cotton over the wire mattress. The hair mattress going on above keeps the cotton smooth and the valance perfectly in place.

Head Poise.

To gain the correct poise of the head it is a good plan to walk about a room with a book balanced on the top. Keep the back of the neck well up, and if the book stays on you will do, but take care it is not supported by your hair. It must remain steady on its own account or else you have not acquired the right way of carry your head.

The Marriage Partnership.

Marriage is a partnership, and as one partner in a business house is not grateful to the other partner for paying him his portion, so a wife should not be expected to be grateful to her husband. And if she has a right to her money she has a right to her own life, which is the gift of God.—Everybody's Magazine.

CUTS OF BEEF.

Some Information For the Housewife About Steaks and Roasts.

A carcass of beef is cut in nineteen pieces. All the pieces and the names are in the dictionary. Look at the list, and you will find the names "tenderloin" and "porterhouse," two names that the inexperienced buyer has always on his lips. The porterhouse is a delusion and a snare in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. The tenderloin is the thick part of the airloin after a few round bone steaks have been cut off and is called the filet de boeuf. It makes a choice piece for roasting, but if not sold in a lump is cut into sirloin steaks of three grades. The first and second grades are technically "hip sirloin steak" and "flat bone sirloin steak." These are the tenderloin steaks that the young housewife pays extra for. There are not over six of each kind in one carcass, so the chances are that she pays her good money for a third cut, or "round bone" sirloin, which is itself a capital steak.

Porterhouse steaks are cut from the small end sirloin steak, and one carcass contains but a few of them. Ingenious butchers understand the knack of cutting the small end sirloin so as to include other portions of the beef, thus enabling them to sell both at porterhouse prices.

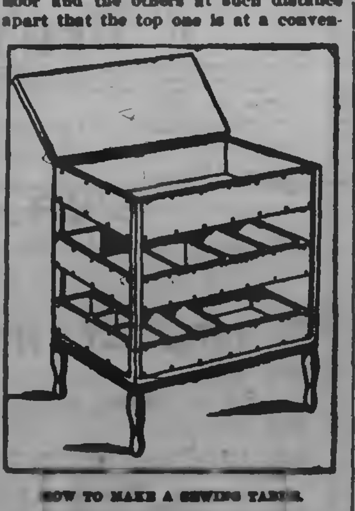
Good beef has a juicy or sappy appearance, with a fine, smooth grain, which is easily noticed. The fat, both outside and through the muscles, presents a clear, straw colored appearance. The flesh should be cherry red. When meat rises quickly after being pressed, it may be considered prime. When the dent made by pressing rises slowly or not at all, depend upon it the beef is poor.

SEWING TABLE.

How One May Be Fashioned Out of Ordinary Wooden Boxes.

Take three light wooden boxes, such as can be procured at any grocery store, all being the same length and width. One foot wide by two feet long is a convenient size. Have two of them three inches and the other six inches deep.

Use four upright strips for the frame and fasten the boxes one above the other to these corner pieces, the lower box being about nine inches above the floor and the others at such distance apart that the top one is at a convenient height to reach into when seated. The upright posts can be made as fancy as desired.



HOW TO MAKE A SEWING TABLE.

Have the deepest box at the top, and fit it with a hinged cover. It can be used to hold small pieces of unfinished work as well as the pieces of goods needed in the regular weekly mending. It should be lined with suitable material, pockets being made on each side to hold materials for fancy work, and a needle book and small pincushion should be fastened to the lining of the cover.

The second box should be divided into compartments to hold spools, scissors, papers of needles, pins, tape, knitting needles, crochet hooks, etc., while the lower one has one-half divided into small compartments to hold different styles of buttons, the other half being left undivided to hold the tools and materials for stocking mending. When completed, the whole affair should be stained with black walnut stain and then varnished, and casters be added or not, as desired.

What Is a Lady?

A lady is simply the highest type of a woman. She will be gentle and modest, mistress of her temper and curiosity. She will know and honor her own place in the social order as the divinely appointed molder, teacher and refiner of men, and out of this beautiful and noble place she will not seek to move. To fit herself for her place she will cultivate body and mind—the body in health and vigor, that she may take her share of burdens and be cheerful under them and that her work in the world shall be as fairly done as her hands can do it, and the mind in knowledge, accomplishment and taste, that she may be a delight and a help in her home.—American Queen.

To Clean Jewelry.

Any jewelry containing precious stones (not pearls) may be beautifully cleansed as follows: Rinse it in benzine, then wash it in soap and water, then in clear water to remove the soap, and put it in a cloth for a little while to drain. Then dip in alcohol to evaporate any remaining water and leave it in jewelers' sawdust till perfectly dry.

Kitchen Tables.

Kitchen tables are no longer considered desirable when they contain only the one drawer, as in years gone by. Many are quite elaborate cabinet affairs, while a happy medium has four drawers, with the lower ones rounding down to hold a whole bag of flour or twenty pounds of sugar.

The Worst Kind.

After Piles have existed for a long time and passed through different stages, the suffering is intense—pain, aching, throbbing, tumors form, filled to bursting with black blood.

Symptoms indicating other troubles may appear to a thoroughly Pile-sick person.

This is when Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, the only absolute Pile cure, brings the results that have made its fame.

It will cure the most stubborn case in existence and a bonded guarantee to that effect goes with each package.

It is to be had for $1.00 at the drug store or from The Wilson-Fyle Company, Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. 3

Sold in Peterborough by Jas. Lynch, 163 Hunter street.

FOR REGISTRATION.

The places which have been assigned for registration purposes in connection with the provincial elections are the same as those for the Dominion elections, namely—

Ward 1.—Spry's shop.
Ward 2—Council Chamber.
Ward 3—Police Court.
Ward 4—Lee's shop.
Ward 5—Village Town Hall.

The dates of registration as announced yesterday are January 6th, 7th and 9th.

Test the Kidneys

Allow the urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time it is clouded or has left a sediment at the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. As a means of invigorating the action of the kidneys and making them strong and healthy, there is no preparation so prompt and sure or so thorough as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

PORT HOPE WON FROM THE LOCALS

The Juniors Lose Their First Game of the Season.

THE OLD BOYS IN LINE AGAIN

A Fair-sized Crowd Sees the Double-header—Junior Game Well Contested—Old Boys and Present Team Play a Tie Game—Score Was 3-3.

A fair sized crowd saw the double header hockey matches at the Brock street rink last evening. The first between the local juniors and the Port Hope juniors was a hard fought contest, ending in favor of the visitors by 2—1. The second game between the Old Boys and the present team, was expected to be a burlesque affair, but turned out to be fairly good hockey. The Old Boys surprised everyone by their good showing. The score at the end of half an hour playing was 3 all.

THE FIRST GAME.

The locals got off to a rather bad start by losing their first game. They, however, made a good showing, and will be heard from again before the season is over. In Fitzpatrick, Moore, and Squires they have a very strong and heavy defence, who will prove a stumbling block to many fast forward lines. Last evening they put up a good game, and the visitors had to work very hard for the two goals they scored. Fitzpatrick in goal turned aside many a well meant shot. Squires blocked and relieved well. Moore was moved up to coverpoint and certainly made good in that position. He used his weight to advantage, lifted nicely and made several fast rushes.

The forward line didn't seem to be able to get their combination going, and did not put up the game they are capable of. Their main fault was in their failure to keep their positions. They bunched together too much, and often when a pass was made to the side there was no one there to take it. This fault will, however, disappear with practice and coaching. Hall and Long were the pick of the bunch and played aggressive hockey all the way through.

The visitors have a strong and well balanced team. The defence put up a stubborn game and the forwards are fast and clever. Gamble, in goal, had comparatively little to do. Maclean played a nice game at coverpoint, breaking up many bad looking rushes. J. Mercer, brother of the famous Port Hope, Peterborough and Marlboro goal keeper, was the star of the firing line and worked in many pretty dashes. The other forwards were fast skaters and good shots.

The visitors had all the best of the first half and the locals had hardly a shot on goal. Rowden and Mercer scored for Port Hope, making the half time score 2—0. In the second half the locals wakened up, and succeeded in preventing the visitors from doing any further scoring, while they notched one themselves, McFarlane doing the trick from a scrimmage in front of the Port Hope nets.

W. Cavanah refereed to the satisfaction of both teams. His duties were light, as the game was clean.

The teams were as follows:

Port Hope		Peterborough
	Goal
Gamble		Fitzpatrick
	Point.
Hume		Squires
	Coverpoint.
Maclean		Moore
	Rover
Rowden		Long
	Centre
Mercer		McFarlane
	Right Wing
McMillan		Smith
	Left Wing
Wright		Hall

THE SECOND GAME.

The second contest certainly provided lots of amusement. It only lasted 20 minutes, which was more than enough for some of the Old Boys, who doubtless realized the fact that they are not so young as they used to be. "Scottie" Phelan, much to the disappointment of a large number of people, refused to play, but consented to referee, which he did with an single eye to roughness and off sides. The rest of the thin red line were on the ice and demonstrated that they have not forgotten all they knew about the game.

The score was a tie, each team scoring three goals. The Old Boys put up a strong game. The defence, with Wasson, Hollingshead and Crowley, was hard to pass. Hollingshead played very good hockey, considering the fact that he has not taken an active part in the game for some years. Lionel King and Roger Davidson displayed some of their old time form. The present team did not work very hard at any stage of the contest, although they cut loose at times and did some star playing. Cavanah uncorked some of his fast rushes for scores. Morgan and Parnell showed up well and McWilliams, a new man from Lindsay, looks like a find. He is a good skater and stick handler. Parker played a nice game at coverpoint.

Cavanah scored the first goal for the "Never Was'" by a neat rush, and Morgan slammed in the second on a combination play. The "Has Beens" woke up and Crowley made the score 2—1. King and Davidson worked in one of their old-time combination rushes, tieing the score. Cavanah again put his team in the lead with a pretty shot. In the second half the "Has Beens" scored the only goal, Graham banging the puck through in a scrimmage. The players decided not to play off the tie.

The teams were as follows:

"Has Beens"		"Never Was'"
	Goal
Wasson		Fitzpatrick
	Point.
Hollingshead		Meagher
	Coverpoint.
Crowley		Parker
	Rover
Davidson		Cavanah
	Centre
L. King		Parnell
	Right Wing
H. King		Morgan
	Left Wing

BARONESS MACDONALD AT ROME.

Holds Private Audience With the Pope, Who Is Kindly.

Rome, Dec. 31.—The Pope yesterday received in private audience in his study Baroness Macdonald, widow of the late Canadian Premier. The Pontiff on this occasion spoke in French for perhaps the first time in a private audience. He asked Lady Macdonald to sit next to him, saying her visit was an honor to him.

The Pope said he knew how fairly her late husband treated the Canadian Catholics and presented the Baroness with a medal bearing the Pope's head on one side and his arms on the other side.

Afterwards Baroness Macdonald visited Papal Secretary Merry del Val, in the famous Borgia apartment, which, she said, was the most perfect representation it was possible to imagine of an apartment of the middle ages.

Premier Tweedie Loses One.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 30.—Premier Tweedie lost a supporter yesterday in St. John city, when Skinner was defeated by Maxwell by a majority of 96 in the bye-election. In St. John County, Lovell (Liberal) got a majority of 377.

Roumanian Cabinet Resigns.

Bucharest, Roumania, Dec. 31.—At yesterday's session of the Senate Premier Sturdza announced that the whole Cabinet had resigned, owing to the resignation of the Ministers of Finance and Domains.

Capt. MacInnes It Is.

London, Dec. 31.—(C.A.P.)—Capt. D. S. MacInnes has been re-appointed Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General of Canada.

Tired all the Time

Mrs. George Beattie, Carr's Brook, Colchester, Co., N.S., writes:—"Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time, and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good, and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends."

INDIAN HORSE THIEVES.

But the Fences Were French and Made Big Money in Alberta.

MacLeod, Alta., Dec. 31.—For many months past the ranchers of Southern Alberta have been losing horses and the guilty parties could neither be located, nor the horses discovered. Sergt. Piper, N.W.M.P., has just succeeded in rounding up a gang of seven Indians and three white men who are now awaiting trial here. Careful investigation shows that Indians have been lifting horses and selling them to three Frenchmen, M. M. Chaput, S. J. Chaput and S. Kuren, who have recently come into the country from the States and settled on Pincher Creek. These men paid the Indians $5 per head for beasts worth $125 and then drove them to the nearest shipping point, selling them in British Columbia. Sergt. Piper corralled a bunch of 50 head about to be disposed of in this way.

Rescued the Crew.

London, Dec. 31.—(C. A. P.)—The steamer Dalmatty has landed at Liverpool with Capt. Peter King and a crew of five, rescued in mid-Atlantic from the water-logged schooner Utility of Moncton, N.B. On Dec 13 a heavy sea struck the Utility, smashing most of her gear. She had previously sprung aleak, filled and become waterlogged. The mainmast was cut away. For two days they had little to eat except a piece of raw beef. The signal which attracted the Dalmatty was a fire in the ship's saucepan of tar, fat, pork and rope yarns.

Canadians At Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Before the American Political Science and Economic Association yesterday, Hon. George E. Foster, ex-Minister of Finance in the Canadian Government, discussed the Imperial preference as embodied in the Canadian tariff. Prof. Adam Shortt of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., read a paper entitled "Preferential Trade Between Canada and Britain." Prof. A. W. Flux of McGill University, Montreal, devoted himself to the question "Do reciprocal preferential tariffs tend towards free trade?"

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS--1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully became accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandizement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localisation of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

ONTARIO ELECTIONS

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lends, or agrees, or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, offices, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting, is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be seen from the above that neither of us can personally or through another, give or lend any money during the election.

IMPROVEMENT IS IMPERATIVE

Great Necessity for Better Post-office Accommodation.

THE FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

Present Agitation May Prove Fruitful—Some Plans That Were Proposed—Present Office Was Built in 1887.

The very poor accommodation the post office for the general public is the subject of much comment these days, and surprise is frequently expressed that some steps had not long ago been taken to bring about a remedy. Almost any hour of the day it is possible to go to the office and find from 50 to 100 people gathered about the single wicket waiting their turns. During the past couple of weeks there has been a special rush on, but leaving this out of consideration altogether, the inconvenience experienced by the general public in securing the daily mails is something almost intolerable. It is safe to say that fully 20,000 people are served through the Peterborough post office, when one reckons on the very large numbers coming in from the surrounding country, and this fact should be sufficient in itself to impress the authorities with the necessity for immediate improvement.

It is over a year ago now since a report was made with regard to possible changes in the office which would create better accommodation. This it is understood had in view the addition of some two hundred boxes to the thousand already in service, the making of another entrance which would be from Water-st., and the shifting of the money order and savings bank department to the locality now occupied by the postmaster's office. The latter would be included in a small addition built off the present rear entrance. The plan would be such as to give far better accommodation. It was understood that a parcel wicket would be a new feature.

The present agitation for a free postal delivery may, however, bear fruit, and in that event there might not be any interior improvement to the post office. The business men would still, however, retain their boxes. A report as to the cost of free mail delivery in Peterborough would undoubtedly give some cause for serious consideration to the postal authorities, and it would appear advisable on their part to consider the advisability of one before carrying out the other.

The present post office was built seventeen years ago. In that time the town has grown very rapidly, and the days have arrived when improvement is imperative.

MURRAY ST. MISSION BAND.

Annual Entertainment and Tea Was Held Last Evening.

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment of the Murray street Mission Band was held yesterday evening in the Sunday school room. Tea was served at 6 o'clock to a large number of the members. At half-past seven the company was called together, and after devotional exercises, and a short address in excellent style from the pastor Mr. Scott, the following impromptu programme was rendered by members of the Band.

NOW DOING BUSINESS.

Bank of Toronto Branch at Keene Will Fill Long Felt Want.

The new branch of the Bank of Toronto, which was opened in Wedlock's block, Keene, on Tuesday last, will fill a long felt want in that village. Mr. P. Campbell, the energetic manager of the Peterborough branch, was in Keene this week, installing the new officers and introducing the new manager, Mr. A. St. A. Smith, to the business men and farmers of that progressive and thrifty community.

The branch will do a regular banking business and will carry accounts of all kinds, as well as having a savings department. The new premises have been handsomely fitted up and are in every way well adapted for the purpose intended. The staff at Keene consists of Mr. A. St. A. Smith, manager; Mr. J. D. Lundy, accountant and Mr. A. B. Secombe, assistant.

The institution already has a large number of customers and the prospects for a successful business in the capital of Otonabee Township are of the brightest possible character. There is, perhaps no village of its size in the province which can boast of more wealthy men, proportionate to its population, than Keene.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Court Chemong 530, I. O. F., Choose Good Men for the Coming Year.

At the annual meeting of Court Chemong, No. 530, I.O.F., held Thursday night, the following officers were elected for the coming year—

A. Allison—P.C.R.
D. Wallace—C.R.
Wm. Miles—V.C.R.
J. W. Buyers—Rec.-Sec.
G. W. Powell—Fin. Sec
Wm. Madill—Treas.

W. H. Baker—J.W.
Geo Deprose—S.B.
G. R. Powell—J.B
H. A. Yenney, Wm. Miles—Auditors.
Geo. Milne, Robt. Shera—Trustees.

At the close of the meeting a joint installation and musical entertainment was arranged for Thursday, Jan. 12th, in the Simcoe street hall. It will be open to all Foresters and their friends.

DELIGHTFUL "AT HOME."

Held by the Local Brass Workers Last Evening in Foresters' Hall.

The local Brassworkers held a delightful At Home last evening in the Forester's Hall, Simcoe street. There was just a comfortable crowd present, about thirty-five couples in all.

This organisation has given several At Homes, but last evening's was more prominently successful than any that have hitherto been given under their auspices. The Misses Dorris provided the music for the occasion, and the company tripped the light fantastic until 12.30 when the gathering broke up. Those to whom credit is due are Messrs. J. J. Doris and A. H. Lehane, who made all arrangements.

A manufacturing centre should have representatives of the industrial classes on the Council Board. Vote for Johnston, Crowe and Begley.

STOLE A HORSE

James Healey, a resident of the Fifth Ward, was arrested last night on a charge of stealing a horse from Wm. Johnston, also of the Fifth Ward. He was released on bail until Tuesday.

Rally of supporters of Mr. Bradburn at the committee rooms, Wednesday next Jan. 5th. All invited. A rousing time is expected. Don't fail to come.

HE DISCOVERED PAYING PROCESS

And Condensed Peat Will Become Source of Profit.

E. VIVIAN MOORE'S SUCCESS.

Entirely New Plant Near Victoria Road—How Difficulty Was Overcome as Result of Exhaustive Experiments.

Yesterday an old industry, under a new process was launched here, when the organization meeting of the shareholders of the Condensed Peat Fuel Co., Limited, was held. Messrs. D. H. Moore, G. M. Roger, A. L. Davis, Ernest V. Moore, of town, and Mr. Walter A. Saddler, of Toronto, were chosen as Directors, and at a subsequent meeting of the same Mr. D. H. Moore was elected President, Mr. G. M. Roger, Vice-Pres., Mr. A. L. Davis, Secretary-Treas., and Mr. Ernest V. Moore, Managing Director.

The capital stock of the company is $40,000 of which over a quarter is already paid up and the company owns an entirely new plant, near the village of Victoria Road, situated on what is conceded to be one of the best deposits in Ontario. This plant has been fully tested during the last year and has demonstrated that when complete it will readily handle twenty tons per day.

The plant and process are the result of long and careful investigations which have been carried on by Mr. E. V. Moore, who is a graduate of McGill University and a Mining Engineer, for a period stretching over the last four years. While attending College Mr. Moore became interested in the question of peat fuel, and at that time and since has taken careful note of all that has been done in this line. He had occasion to meet many of the men practically interested in what has already been done, all of whom emphatically discouraged the idea that the method of treating peat in Europe, where many millions of tons are consumed annually, might be used advantageously here the reasons given being that the fuel was not altogether satisfactory and that labor conditions here made it almost impossible.

About a year ago Mr. Moore decided to devote his entire time to the solution of this problem and for a time followed with some success along the paths already investigated. During his experiments, however, he accidentally stumbled on a very decided proof that our Canadian peat, which is found on examination to be formed from the same mosses as the continental material, produced a very superior fuel, hard, non-hydroscopic and of high calorific power when treated similarly to that used in Europe. After exhaustive experiments, he demonstrated that undoubtedly this fuel was superior to any peat fuel yet produced here and he determined to overcome the one and only difficulty which seemed to prohibit the successful adoption in Ontario, of what is an old and proven satisfactory method now employed very extensively all over the Continent, that is, the comparatively higher price paid to labor here. It was necessary, in order to be successful, to use machinery for a great deal of the work that is done there by hand, and that he has been successful is shown by the fact that he can perform with twelve men that which in Russia takes from twenty-seven to thirty men.

It was not till near the end of the summer that Mr. Moore became satisfied with his efforts, at which time he made a very considerable quantity of fuel, a carload of which was brought to town and sold, giving great satisfaction where used. Since then he has devoted his entire time to putting what was of necessity an experimental plant, into working shape, and it will be quite ready for work as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring.

Mr Moore has promised us a full description of his plant in the near future, which will, no doubt, prove interesting. He is to be congratulated upon overcoming the difficulty which presented itself.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.

Very Successful Affair in Connection With St. Andrew's Church.

The Christmas entertainment in connection with St. Andrew's Sabbath school was held last evening in the Sunday school room and proved a great success. There was a tea for members at 6 o'clock and afterwards a very enjoyable programme was rendered. A very large number of scholars and friends of the school were in attendance. The pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter, occupied the chair.

The programme was as follows—
Chorus—"Emmanuel."
Prayer.
Chorus—"Unfurl the Banner."
Cantata.
Chorus by boys and girls—"The Coming of the Christ Child."
Recitation—Grace Evans.
Dialogue—Miss Anderson's class.
Dialogue—Boys of Miss Curry's class.
Solo—Miss Mary Potter.
Recitation—Miss Aggie Hyde.
Reading—Eva Bartley.
Recitation—Minnie Menzies.
Solo, imitation of cornet—Mr. Mark Wilson.
Recitation—Ada Stuart.

HER 100th BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. S. Fennell, Montreal, Celebrates Event—Grandaunt of Mr. Robert Fair.

An unusually interesting event took place in Montreal on Dec. 27th, when Mrs. S. Fennell celebrated her 100th birthday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. G. O. Stanton.

Mrs. Fennell is a grand-aunt of Mr. Robert Fair, of Peterborough. She is still in good health and is able to read without glasses. She was born in Shercock, Cavan County, Ireland, Dec. 27th, 1804, and came to this country in 1820, settling in Cavan township. Her maiden name was Martha McCamus, and she married Mr. Simon Fennell, of Cobourg. Three children are living. They are Mr. John Fennell, wholesale hardware merchant, Berlin; Rev. Joseph Fennell, of Hamilton, Ont., and Mrs. G. O. Stanton, of Montreal, with whom Mrs. Fennell resides.

DIED IN KANSAS CITY.

Death of Miss Edith Pearse, Daughter of the Late County Treasurer.

Many friends in Peterborough will regret to learn of the death of Miss Edith Pearse, the second daughter of the late Edgcumbe Pearse, county treasurer. Miss Pearse passed away from an attack of typhoid fever, and her death is a great shock to her family. She was ill only a few days. She had been residing in Kansas City for the past few years. The remains will be brought home for interment. The surviving members of the family are Mrs. Pearse, mother of the deceased, Mrs. Sherwood and Miss Lillian Pearse, sisters, and a brother, Ernest, city engineer of Newport News, Virginia.

OLD SETTLER GONE

Thomas Grady, Born in Otonabee, 68 Years Ago.

Thomas Grady, who was born in the township of Otonabee sixty-eight years ago, and was esteemed as one of the oldest residents, died this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital. Mr. Grady had been ill since Monday from pneumonia, and in one of his years the effect was noticable in the development of a serious condition, from which he never rallied. He was the son of the late John Grady, who came to Canada with the Robinson emigration and settled in Asphodel, later moving to Otonabee. The late Thomas Grady was unmarried. Messrs. John, of Otonabee, and Michael, of Leon Hot Springs, British Columbia, are brothers. The sisters are Mrs. Dennis O'Brien, Peterborough; Mrs. Timothy Sullivan, Mount Pleasant, Michigan; Mrs. Wm. Doherty, Otonabee, and Mrs. John Doherty, Norwood.

The late Thomas Grady occupied a farm on lot 28 of the 2nd concession of Otonabee. The funeral will take place at 8.30 on Monday morning, to St. Paul's church and cemetery, Norwood.

MR. LANGFELDT HONORED.

The German Conversation Club recently made their leader, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, the recipient of a handsome present—a gentleman's travelling case, with the accompanying articles in ebony. Rev. Mr. Langfeldt appreciates the gift very highly. The Conversation Club has been in existence for three years; It has twelve members who in that time have become well acquainted with the German language and can now speak it fluently.

Johnston, Crowe and Begley if elected as Aldermen, will deal with all citizens without fear or favor, and act to the best of their judgment in all questions brought before the Council.

NINETEEN CANDIDATES AND THREE IMPORTANT BY-LAWS

These Constitute the Ballot in the Voting for Monday Next.

There Should be a Large and Favorable Vote on the Two Money By-laws, Which Will Provide for the Extension of Important Municipal Works—Reference to the Candidates for Alderman Honors—The Polling Places and Returning Officers.

There will be some tall voting done in the town of Peterborough on Monday next. In addition to the selection of 12 aldermen from a list of 19, there are three very important by-laws which demand the final decision of the people. It is hardly necessary to state that the polls open at nine o'clock in the morning and close at five in the evening. Monday being a holiday will undoubtedly bring out a larger vote than if such were not the case. Electing their aldermen for 1905 is a duty which those qualified to vote at municipal elections will certainly perform, but there should also be a good expression of opinion more particularly on the two by-laws—one to provide for borrowing $12,000 to reconstruct and repair bridges and to purchase land for and open new streets, and the other to authorize the borrowing of $20,000 for the purpose of making extensions, improvements and alterations in the waterworks system. The work prosposed is most necessary, and no mistake can be made in giving a large and favorable vote. Those who have a right to express their opinion on these measures are all property owners, and those holding leases during the currency of the dentures.

The third by-law involves an important change in a matter of more than passing municipal interest, the question asked of freehold electors being: Are you in favor of changing the method of paying for the construction of granolithic walks from the system now adopted to that of general tax? This matter has been fully explained by Ald. Adams on the platform and through the press, and the result of the voting will undoubtedly show that the matter has been very carefully considered.

POLLING PLACES.

The places at which the vote is to be taken on Monday are as follows:—

Ward No. 1—Polling division No. 1—At M. H. Halpin's store, No. 39 George-st.; A. Williams, deputy-returning officer.

Polling division No. 2—At Lewis Spry's shop, No. 210 Stewart-st.; Jos. Lundy, deputy returning officer.

Ward No. 2—Polling division No. 3—At the Town Council hCamber; Geo. K. Martin, deputy returning officer.

Polling Division No. 4—At Greene Bros.' store, No. 352 Charlotte-st.; J. M. Greene, deputy returning officer.

Ward No. 3—Polling division No. 5—At J. and W. Metheral's shop, No. 464 Aylmer-st., Joseph R. Metheral, deputy returning officer.

Polling division No. 6—At Wm. McCall's Shop, No. 329 McDonnel-st.; John Irwin, deputy returning officer.

Ward No. 4—Polling division No. 7—At Wm. Lee's shop, Smith-st.; Wm. Lee, deputy returning officer.

Ward No. 5—Polling division No. 8—At the former village Council Chamber; John Malane, deputy returning officer.

Polling division No. 9—At the former village market building; Thos. Q. Quartermaine, deputy returning officer.

THE CANDIDATES.

A word, by way of introduction, with reference to the candidates may not be out of place, although this is hardly necessary with regard to the gentlemen who for periods of from one to four years back have occupied a place in the Council.

Ald. Frank Adams, who was one of Ashburnham's first representatives in the council of the united municipalities, occupied the important position of Finance Minister during the year 1904, and there is every evidence in support of the statement that his was an able administration of the affairs of an important department. It is generally held that his re-election is a certainty.

Ald. Joseph Batten, the well-known blacksmith, is a man of sound brain, as well as of brawn. Witness to this is the very fine appearance, both inside and out, of the town buildings. This work was done largely under his supervision as chairman of the Property Committee. He has been most active in the best interests of the town.

T. J. Begley, one of the Trades and Labor Council's candidates, is a printer, who has spent all his life in Peterborough. He has taken a prominent part in labor matters and may be considered as conversant with questions concerning the large mass of Peterborough toilers. It is advisable that such a man should have a place on the Council Board.

Mr. Rupert H. Bradburn is also a life-long citizen of Peterborough, and one of whom, it may confidently be said, will give to questions affecting the town's welfare the consideration they deserve.

Mr. James Clancy, carter, is, as he pronounced himself at the public meeting on Thursday night, a worker. His platform is broad, covering everything, and this means that Mr. Clancy has great faith in the future of the town. This is the proper aldermanic outlook.

Ald. Clinkscale, who runs a large planing mill, and is a manufacturer of builders' supplies, has been in the Council for some years. As chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee one year ago he urged the necessity for realizing the importance of better fire-fighting equipment, and under him that department was made more efficient. He has shown himself worthy of the confidence reposed in him and has a good grasp of municipal affairs.

Mr. Joseph Crowe is a moulder in the employ of the William Hamilton Company. He is a candidate of the Trades and Labor Council and an advocate of the platform advanced by that organization. This has several very commendable planks, and being pledged to stand by them, Mr. Crowe will have his eye glued on the development of conditions that make for municipal progress.

Mr. George H. Duncan, the well-known master painter, is one of the new candidates. For many years he has been a resident of the town, has been a close observer of its progress and should be in a position to give able consideration to matters which from time to time comes under the eye of the people's representative.

Mr. Adam Hall, a successful business man, is a candidate for the Council. He would undoubtedly make a very able representative of the people. There is warrant for assuming that he is most conversant with municipal questions.

Ald. Robert Hicks, coal merchant, has served his first year in the Council. He has now been thoroughly educated, and his re-election will mean the assurance of a very able and careful guardian of the town's interests. This fact is demonstrated in Ald. Hick's record during the past year.

EXPONENT OF PRINCIPLES.

Ald. William Johnston, contractor, is also a candidate of the Trades and Labor Council, and his election will the year has shown that they have in him an able exponent of the principles for which it stands. He also claims to have received enlightenment, and it is safe to say that the town will reap the benefit by his return.

Mr. R. H. Leary, hack proprietor, is a business man upon whom success has smiled, but not without hard work. He has shown how, from a small beginning, a concern may be made to "stand on its own botton." No man can do more than Mr. Leary, when he says, that if elected, he will give to the the town's business the same attention that he would to his own. This means a successful record.

Mr. J. J. Lynch, the west end grocer, is a business man, and there can not be too many such in the Council. He is one of the new candidates, and may well be considered among the best of the available material for the Council of 1905. It will be an important year in the history of Peterborough, and calls for a careful administration of affairs.

Ald. Ernest Frederick Mason, the prominent George-st. merchant, is seeking re-election. He has been a careful alderman, and one of the measures he proposes to urge, if elected, is a by-law appointing an inspector of plumbing and sewer connection. He has devoted a great deal of time to the consideration of not only this very important question, but others, and his second year would undoubtedly be signalized by much good work for the advancement of the town's interests.

Mr. Archibald McIntyre, a contractor, well-known throughout the length and breadth of Peterborough, is a candidate, and possesses the qualifications of a good alderman. It will be remembered that Mr. McIntyre executed a contract on the Y. M.C.A. building, and has now in hand the Y.W.C.A. building. He has performed other important contracts in town, and such a man should possess information which would be of great value to the town were he chosen as a municipal representative.

Mr. James O'Brien, railway foreman, is a gentleman who has the best interests of the town at heart, and, if elected as alderman, he gives the assurance that these will be uppermost. He believes in better post office conditions, and is in hearty sympathy with the movement to extend certain town streets. Mr. O'Brien has excellent ideas of what a progressive town should be.

What Mr. John Sawers does not know about municipal matters is not worth knowing. He has occupied a seat at the Council Board, and has an excellent grasp of the significance of the position. Mr. Sawers was always an energetic and fair-minded alderman.

Mr. Wm. Scott, the Fifth Ward coal merchant, is again a candidate. Mr. Scott is a good worker, and the committee to which he was attached during the year had no more willing or capable member. He has always faithfully performed the duties devolving upon him.

Mr. George J. Tovey is a metal artist with the Canadian General Electric Company. He is considered to be a gentleman well versed on public questions, having during his lifetime devoted considerable thought to matters closely identified with the welfare of the community in which he resided in England. Such a one would be a acquisition to the Council and well able to perform his part in carrying on the town's business.

The array of talent is large, and contains excellent material for the formation of a new council. Twelve are to be chosen, and the duty of the occasion will be to elect those men who, as the result of careful consideration may be deemed best fitted to fill the important position of the first representative body of the municipality.

WITH BACK TO THE WALL

Premier Ross, Spurred By Fulsome Eulogy, Fights Shadows.

Archie Campbell, M.P., Indulges in Humor By Exaggeration, and Calls Ontario Liberal Leader One of the World's Greatest—Real, Big Men of the Party Conspicuous By Their Absence From Banquet—Sunny Ways.

Toronto, Dec. 31.—Premier Ross did not make the startling announcement which the press agent of the Ross Liberal Club had tried to prepare the public mind to receive last night. But he did make a heart-warming, inspiring-to-enthusiasm address of the back-against-the-wall and fight-to-the-death sort. The alleged unfair abuse by the Conservative party speakers was often mentioned, not alone by the Premier, but by the other speakers.

"One of the Greatest."

"To do honor to one of the greatest statesmen alive to-day," as Archie Campbell expressed it, was the object of the complimentary dinner given by the Ross Liberal Club in the Temple Building last night. Mr. Campbell spoke in superlatives, and the local Liberals did not fully rise to his appreciation of Hon. G. W. Ross, if the attendance was to be taken as a criterion. The hall was seated for 400, and at least 50 of the constituencies were open. It was a fairly representative gathering, however, tho the absence of Sir William Mulock, Hon. W. A. Charlton, Hon. Richard Harcourt and other prominent Liberals was commented upon. Younger men from the working ranks of the party predominated. The municipal campaign may have been accountable for the absence of many who might have been expected. Hon. John Dryden was the only minister present, and the provincial treasurer of Quebec, Hon. J. C. MacCorkle, the only prominent outsider. The decorations were simple drapings of red, white and green, with the Union Jack. Chrysanthemums and silver candelabra adorned the tables, but there was little in the way of bright color.

Sir Wilfrid's Sunny Way.

A letter was read from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had received the invitation to attend while in California, but pressure of business prevented him. Had circumstances permitted, he would have testified by his presence to his strong admiration for the eloquent speaker, the courageous leader and the upright man he described Mr. Ross to be.

Rev. Dr. Milligan said grace. At 9.35 Hon A. Ross briefly explained the purpose of the banquet, and proposed the royal toast. The premier began to speak shortly before 10, and continued for an hour and a quarter, for which he apologized, saying that after-dinner speeches should not be longer than 15 minutes. The audience seemed a little dispirited at first, but warmed up as the address proceeded. Mr. Ross' reception was quite hearty. Vocal honors were accorded him at the close of Mr. Dryden's remarks, three cheers followed, more cheers arose when Mr. Ross approached his notes, and were renewed, and again the banqueters sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," with three additional cheers, and a round of hand-clapping.

[illegible] Agrees With Rothschild.

[illegible] was in excellent voice thruout, and distinctly in fighting mood, tho the spell he sought to cast was not orthographical. After enumerating the merits he found in Liberal administration in Ontario, he reviewed the Conservative policy thru eight campaigns of failure, and declared the path of the opposition to be strewn with fragments of abandoned policies. Men who failed, he argued with Rothschild, were not fit to be entrusted with business, and the want of foresight of the Conservative leaders in opposing every measure of Liberal policy, which, upon adoption, they subsequently found themselves unable to object to, showed that they had no sense of the significance of political problems, small or great.

He laid special stress upon the guardianship of the provincial rights exercised by the Reform administrations in contrast with the opposition policy. "We are home rulers, we liberals," he declared. He quoted many statistics of prosperity, and in regard to the Soo stated that he had heard it said that the company would assume next month the responsibility of the $2,000,000 loan, but whether or not he did not care, as the mortgage covered the whole property.

Nothing Big Here.

Seated at the head table and among others present were: Hon J C MacCorkle, treasurer of Quebec; Arch Campbell, Hon John Dryden, E. T. Malone, K.C., Rev G M Milligan, D.D., S C Biggs, K.C., Dr John Ferguson, L V McBrady, K.C., Robert Jaffray, S G Curry, Rev J A Macdonald, Dr J E Elliott, Ald Dr Harrison, T C Robinette, K.C., J Herbert Denton, Dr E Herbert Adams, H M Mowat, K.C., P C Larkin, John F Mackay, Joseph Oliver, Hugh Blain, T C Irving, J F Eby, H H Dewart, K.C., R C Steele, N W Rowell, K.C., George Ritchie, Dr W W Ogden, Capt A T Hunter, W B Rogers.

Woman Fractures Skull.

Toronto, Dec. 31.—Mrs. Mary Welch, a woman of about 60 years of age, was found in an unconscious condition on King street last night, suffering apparently from a fall and resultant blow on the side of the head. She was bleeding from the ear, and when taken to St. Michael's Hospital was found to have a fracture at the base of the skull. She did not recover sufficiently to give any particulars.

Three Cent Fares.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 31.—The Cleveland Electric Railway Company will experiment in three cent fares for a distance of two miles from the centre of the city on the lines of that road. The three cent cars will run only the three-cent fare distance. The experiment is the first of its kind in the country.

Given a Silver Casket.

London, Dec. 31.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Percy Girouard has received a silver casket with a testimonial signed by 1,700 employes of the Central South African railways who worked under him. It expresses regret at his giving up the post.

Kidney Cells Destroyed

BY REPEATED ATTACKS OF DISEASE—SURPRISING RESULTS OBTAINED BY USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Because it is sometimes a slow and lingering malady, people are prone to overlook the destructive tendencies of kidney disease.

They forget that the wasting process brings about a change in the cellular tissue, which practically renders the kidneys useless as filtering organs.

Continued paleness and loss of flesh, pains in the back and loins, dry, harsh skin, severe headaches and backaches; scanty, highly colored urination, stomach troubles and irregular bowels are among the symptoms of kidney disease.

As a cause of downright suffering few diseases are to be compared with kidney disease, and the results are frequently, the end coming suddenly and unexpectedly.

By their direct and wonderfully prompt action on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills call a quick halt to the advance of kidney disease.

By their combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels they prove effective in complicated cases, in which ordinary kidney medicines bring little or no relief.

Mrs. H. Trollope, 850 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., states: "I have used two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them an excellent medicine. I had very severe pains across the back which came came from my kidneys being out of order, and since using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for a time, I began to feel a wonderful improvement in my health.

"I have no more pains in my back now and am feeling as well as ever I did. Consequently, I am glad of an opportunity to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have thoroughly proven their genuine and indisputable merit, and you can use them knowing of a certainty that you will receive all the benefit that would be derived from attention of the most skilful physician. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

"I DARE NOT DESPAIR"

Mr. Whitney On the Future of Ontario At Brampton.

Meeting in Interests of Sam Charters Packed to the Doors—Conservative Candidate Made Rousing Speech—Followed By the Leader of the Opposition in An Exposition of His Acts and Policy.

Brampton, Dec. 30.—(Special.)—One of the most successful political meetings ever held in Brampton was that addressed by J. P. Whitney to-night. Mr. Whitney was met at the station by the band and escorted to the town hall, which was packed to the doors. Mayor P. F. Justin presided. An address of welcome was read by Wesley R. Wright.

The Conservative candidate, Samuel Charters, met with a rousing reception, being greeted with an outburst of cheering. His reception augured well for his success in the approaching conflict. His speech was a strong appeal to the electors to support the honest, manly and upright leader, who came before them to-night to advocate clean government and honest administration. Altho brief, Mr. Charters' speech was vigorous and was heartily cheered.

Mr. Whitney's appearance was the signal for continued applause. His speech was effective politically. He referred at some length to the policy of the party, paying particular attention to the course that would be followed in relation to agriculture, finance, education and general administration of the crown lands department in the event of success. He dealt with the statement made by the premier, to the effect that no measures of importance were introduced by the opposition, pointing out that it was the duty of the opposition to criticize rather than to construct.

The Coalition Proposition.

He also referred to the offers made by the government for a coalition, stating that at the proper time he would have something further to present in explanation of the position taken at that time. He said that the record of the government had been one of disgrace and discredit to both the people and the men who were responsible for it, and the province would not have done its duty until it had driven from office men who profited by the crimes committed by their hirelings.

The policy of the Conservative party had the endorsement of 7000 of a majority of the people of the province. This and the three offers of a coalition were his certificates of character for the party which he represented. The scandals of the past few years were forcibly held up as the result of the leadership of the present premier. He made a manly appeal for clean government, and the thrusting out of the pernicious influences that were at work within the province to-day. He pleaded for an honest administration and asserted his determination, if successful, to uphold all that made for good in legislation and redeem the credit of the province.

His tribute to the worth and integrity of the Conservative candidate in Peel met with an enthusiastic response from the audience. In conclusion he said: "We live in a great country and under British freedom we are proud of it and happy under it. Under such conditions I dare not despair of the future of Ontario."

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Friday night Dr. Pyne was unanimously chosen by East Toronto Conservatives as their candidate in the local elections.

An application to have Rufus Pope, ex-M.P., disqualified for seven years on a charge of buying votes, was made at Montreal Friday by A. B. Hunt, the successful Liberal candidate in the recent Dominion election for Compton.

GALE SWEEPS BRITAIN.

Numerous Shipping Disasters Reported Along the Coast.

London, Dec. 31.—A fierce gale from the Atlantic swept over the United Kingdom yesterday morning. Mountainous seas are reported along the coasts.

At Stornoway, outer Hebrides, the Danish steamer Alabama dragged her anchors in a northerly gale and stranded on Peninsula Point. Her engine room and the stoke hold sections are flooded; she is leaking forward and has listed to starboard.

A small vessel with a crew of ten men foundered during the gale off Flamborough Head, Yorkshire, on the North Sea.

Several minor shipping accidents have also been reported.

Much damage has been done inland. Telegraph and telephone lines are down and communications are interrupted with the provinces and some parts of the continent. A number of accidents in London, due to flying debris, have been reported.

SHE FOUND A DIFFERENCE.

A Buffalo Lady says:—Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill differs from the old Method in Medicine as day from night.

Mrs. J. H. Behera, of 169 London St., Buffalo, N.Y., says of Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill—the Great System Treatment:

"Its action is so different to anything else I ever used—Anti-Pill is so mild and gentle that I never thought it would cure my chronic Constipation, but it did.

"Soon after the birth of my first child, 14 years ago, Constipation became troublesome. I used everything I heard of, but temporary relief was all I got. I must have used fifty different medicines in that time.

"I finally got very bad and at times I would have no relish for food, and what I did eat would distress me afterwards. I had headache, bloating, bearing down pains, backache, could not sleep well, easily tired and never felt rested.

"From the very first dose of Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill I began to improve. Now I am well. It is wonderful."

Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill is sold by all druggists, or The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. Sole agents for Canada. The price is 50c.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of

"The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"I could bear it no longer. I sprang from the veranda into the room with my revolver in my hand. Your mother saw me first. She gave a scream and rose. Then Woodland rose also, and as he did so I pointed the revolver at him and fired. As I did this your mother ran forward and flung herself on his breast as if to protect him. The ball struck her in the back of the neck, and a moment later I fired again at Woodland, and this time fatally wounded him.

"He tottered and fell, and then I saw your mother was wounded. I tried to stanch the blood, but it was in vain. I scarcely looked at my enemy, who was struggling in his death-throes. I lifted your mother on a couch—the very couch where she had sat a moment or two ago with the dying wretch on the floor. But everything I did was useless: in a few minutes—hours they seemed to me—she breathed her last, with such a look of horror on her face that it has haunted my whole existence.

"What was I to do? Woodland, by this time, was unconscious, and there suddenly flashed across my brain the memory of a deep well, said to be haunted, which was situated in a little thicket just outside the bungalow. I raised her in my arms; I carried her out in the gathering gloom. Not a creature was to be seen. The man who had really killed her—who had wrecked her peace—had, I believe, sent every servant from the place. I bore her in my arms to the well, which was overgrown with ferns.

"Laura, that well is your poor mother's grave. I heard the hideous splash, and then turned and fled from the accursed place like one distraught. I got my horse and rode all through that awful night in a state of mind too terrible to describe. I was not suspected. I reached the distant outpost I had said I was bound for, and the next day was recalled to hear that my wife had disappeared, and that Captain Woodland had been murdered. His body had been found in the bungalow, but there was no one to tell the tale. He had only met his just reward, for but for this scoundrel Woodland, your mother might have been living still, and my soul unstained by a hidden crime.

"But from that hour I have known no peace. Sometimes I fancy her restless spirit still lingers beside me, and I hear strange revengeful whisperings in my ears. But if in another world we meet again—and I am weary of this one—she will know I did not mean to injure her, and that I have tried to do what I could during my embittered and remorseful existence for her only child.

"Laura, forgive your dead father after you have read this, and remember that this accursed Woodland alone was to blame for the dark tragedy which ended your mother's life.

"F INGRAM."

Sir Ralph Woodland read this long confession of his father's murderer with knitted brow and a fast-beating heart. He remembered the news being broken to his mother that her husband was dead; remembered her grief for the man who had been another woman's lover, and who was lying in her unhallowed grave. It was a gloomy story, dark and tragic, and its shadow had now fallen on his own life.

And Laura? He understood now only too well the cause of her timid rejection of his love when he had first asked her to be his wife. He took up her letter again; he pressed his lips on the sad written words:

"I loved you then—as I love you now, but the terrible shadow of his crime lay between us; lies between us still."

Sir Ralph was just a man to appreciate this feeling. Whatever sin his father had intended to commit, Major Ingram had murdered him. Sir Ralph began pacing the room again, still holding Laura's letter in his hand. She was the daughter of his father's murderer—this dear woman, to whom his heart was bound. It was a terrible thought, and yet, and yet—

At all events he must find her. If she had left her home through his influence—through her love for him, it at least behooved him to see that she had a home. Something must be done, and done at once; and for a few minutes Sir Ralph was undecided how to act. At last he determined to go to Red House, to learn the truth, to face the man whom he would have wronged.

Having made up his mind he at once carried this out. He ordered his horse; he rode quickly into Sulfold, and as he entered the Market Place, Anna Lindsay, who was standing looking out of the breakfast-room window, waiting for George to reappear, saw him, and hastily left the room to seek for her cousin.

At this moment the house door-bell at Red House rang, and Anna waited on the staircase to hear it answered. This was done almost immediately, but Anna peering over the banisters saw Sir Ralph standing, dismounted at the door. She then ran on hastily to George's room, and rapped.

"Who is there?" asked George, sharply, from within.

"Let me in, George," answered Anna; "I have something to say to you."

Upon this George unlocked the door, and Anna entered the room in a state of great excitement.

"Who do you think is at the door, George?" she gasped out.

"Who?" asked George, briefly.

"Sir Ralph Woodland," answered Anna, breathlessly. "George, he has come as a blind too. He has come to pretend she is not with him; to deceive you. I am certain of it."

"She says she is not with him," said George, in a low tone, "it may be true."

"Not it; they have planned it all between them. She may not be with him now, but he will join her; he knows very well where she is."

At this moment the housemaid rapped at the room-door, and George opened it.

"Oh, please, sir, Sir Ralph Woodland has called, and has sent me up to know if you can see him for a few minutes," said the housemaid; "I've shown him into the dining-room."

"Very well, I will see him," answered George, gloomily; and then he turned round and looked at Anna.

"Don't you be taken in, George," she said, in reply to his mute inquiry. "He's here as a blind, just as she said she was going to Lady Danvers' as a blind. It's a plot between them."

George did not speak; he stood a moment or two thinking, and then he folded up Laura's letter and put it into his pocket, and having done this proceeded slowly downstairs, and entered the dining-room through the open door, which he shut behind him.

Sir Ralph was standing by the window as he went in, and a deep flush rose to his very brow when he saw George. The two men bowed, both coldly and haughtily, and then Sir Ralph spoke.

"Excuse my intrusion, Mr. Gifford," he said, "but I have received a letter this morning —"

"From my wife" asked George Gifford, with suppressed anger in his tone, as Sir Ralph paused.

"Yes," continued Sir Ralph; "and she tells me she has left her home—that she does not mean to return."

"And you, I presume, are the cause?" said George, with kindling eyes.

Sir Ralph did not speak; he stood there facing George, and there was self-reproach in his heart.

"Yes," went on George, angrily, "I too have had a letter from my wife to tell me that the reason she has left her home is that she has met an old lover of hers again; a lover from whom she was parted before our marriage. Are you this lover Sir Ralph Woodland?"

"Yes," he answered; and he fixed his dark eyes on George's face steadily as he spoke. "I am that lover, Mr. Gifford. I met your wife long before her marriage; I asked her to be my wife, and she refused me."

"May I ask why?"

"There were painful reasons—unknown to me then."

"Yet you met as strangers," said George, indignantly. "You pretended that you were introduced for the first time at Lady Danvers'."

"Mrs. Gifford did not seem to wish to notice me when we met there."

"No! And all this while I suppose you have been making love to her behind my back. I must say, Sir Ralph, I consider your conduct is inexcusable."

"I have no excuse to offer you, Mr. Gifford. I urged her to go with me, but she declined. On my word of honor—and this is why I am here to-day—I do not know where she is now."

We Prove our Faith in Clarke's Kola Compound by Sending Sample Treatment Free.

We have unshaken confidence in Clarke's Kola Compound. We know of the apparently hopeless cases it has cured. We see thousands of bright, happy, robust people, who owe their release from suffering, to Clarke's Kola Compound. We have seen Clarke's Kola Compound overcome the prejudices of the medical profession. It is now used in the leading hospitals and sanitoriums. Won't you let us send you a free sample bottle?

"For ten years, my wife suffered with Asthma. For months, she could sleep only sitting up in a chair, and physicians constantly attended her, but she became no better. Four bottles of Clarke's Kola Compound have completely cured her, and for more than a year she has been entirely free of sickness."

Both Committed.

Berlin, Dec. 31.—William Schott, charged with forging George Shirk's name to a $153 note, and passing it on J. F. Shoemaker, was committed for trial yesterday and Warren Hastings Jenkins was committed for trial on two charges of forgery. Jenkins was accused of forging the mark of George Cruthers of Elma township to a $45 note, and the name of Ira Moore of Brussels to a $35 note, passing both at the Wellesley branch of the Western Bank. Moore was not present, but Cruthers was there and swore he could write and always signed his name, not a cross. He declared the note was a forgery.

ANOTHER YANKEE INVASION.

Syndicate Purchases 54,000 Acres in Block East of Calgary.

Calgary, N.W.T., Dec. 31.—Negotiations were closed yesterday, by which an American syndicate purchases 54,000 acres from the C.P.R., just east of the city. The land comprises half of a block of 100,000 acres above the irrigation canal, set aside by the company for sale this year, as being too high for irrigation purposes. Up to Dec. 1 about 50,000 acres of this block had been disposed of to individuals, amounting to $250,000. In the meantime negotiations had been opened with the American syndicate of Beiseker, Hoople & Salbyer. The transaction with this syndicate involved $250,000.

Russo-British Agreement.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 31.—An agreement has been signed between Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador, and Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, precisely similar to the Americo-Russian agreement of last summer, whereby joint stock and other companies domiciled in either country are recognized as having a legal existence in the other country and are permitted either to bring or defend actions in the law courts.

J. B. Jackson Ill.

Ingersoll, Dec. 31.—Word has reached Ingersoll that J. B. Jackson, formerly of Ingersoll, and now Canadian emigration agent in Leeds, England, is dangerously ill. Mr. Jackson has had a number of sick spells lately, and it is feared that he has become the victim of a cancer.

Boilermaker Is Blamed.

Philadelphia, Dec. 31.—The coroner's jury yesterday found that the explosion which occurred Dec. 16 on the battleship Massachusetts at the League Island Navy Yard, resulting in the loss of three lives, was due to the negligence of Peter Anderson, a boilermaker.

Toronto Man Marries in Boston.

Boston, Dec. 31.—Dr. Benjamin A. Bensley, the lecturer in zoology at the University of Toronto, was married to Miss Ruth Horton, daughter of Rev. Edward A. Horton, Thursday evening, in the Second Unitarian Church, this city.

Foleys May Get It.

Ottawa, Dec. 31.—It is announced here that Foley Bros., the well known contractors, have been given the contract of double-tracking the C.P.R. from Fort William to Winnipeg. The contract price is $7,000,000.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everbody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says:—"I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

—Mr. Lawrence, who has been in the Standard Bank, Campbellford, some months left Tuesday for Ailsa Craig, where he will be connected with the bank there.

GREAT WAR SPECTACLE

Half of Russ Garrison Killed By Explosion of First Charge.

Tokio Welcomes Her Naval Heroes—Admiral Togo and Kamimura Given a Great Ovation By the People—Streets Filled and Gaily Decorated With Flags, Lanterns, in New Year's Fashion—Embarrassment of Great Admiral.

Headquarters of the Japanese Army, Before Port Arthur, via Fusan, Dec. 31.—Rihlung fort, captured Thursday, is the largest and strongest of the eastern fort ridge. Tunnels for miles were cut through solid rock, and two tons of dynamite were used to blow up the walls. The spectacle was magnificent, and the work of the assaulters was splendid. Half the garrison was killed by the explosion of the first charge. The remainder of the Russians made a stubborn resistance. Four heavy guns, seven rapid-firing guns, and two machine guns were captured, as well as thirty quick-firing guns, which were stored in the fort.

Captured Fifty Guns.

Tokio, Dec. 31.—The headquarters of the army besieging Port Arthur telegraphs that on the night of Dec. 28, after the occupation of Rihlung fort a small body of Russians still offered resistance in the passage between the [illegible] gun line and the gorge.

At three o'clock in the morning they were dislodged entirely and the occupation of the fort became secured.

According to the statement of three prisoners the defenders of Fort Rihlung numbered about 500, besides some sailors. A majority of the defenders were killed.

The trophies captured with Fort Rihlung include four large calibre guns, seven small calibre guns, thirty-seven millimetre guns, two machine guns, and much property as yet unenumerated.

JAPAN HONORS HEROES.

Remarkable Demonstration to Admirals Togo and Kamimura.

Tokio, Dec. 31.—Admiral Togo and Vice-Admiral Kamimura with their staffs, arrived at the Shimbashi station at 9.20 o'clock yesterday. Their journey from Kure to Tokio was a continuous ovation. At an early hour the streets were filled and the city gaily decorated with flags, lanterns, and New Year's decorations. Representatives of the Emperor and Empress, Prince Fushimi, jr., elder statesmen, Ministers, prominent Japanese and thousands of school children, greeted the arrival of the naval heroes at the station. The Presidents of both Houses of the Diet presented them with the resolutions of commendation passed by their respective branches of Parliament.

The quiet, grey-bearded Admiral Togo, in a blue service uniform, seemed embarrassed at the noisy ovation. Rear-Admiral Shimamura, chief of staff, laughingly elbowed Vice-Admiral Kamimura. The junior officers tried to clear the way, but the crowd closed in on Admiral Togo, and they were frequently forced to push the crowd backward in an endeavor to clear the reaching hands.

Finally Admiral Togo and Vice-Admiral Kamimura were freed from their enthusiastic admirers and surrounded by officers, they reached the carriage sent by the Emperor to the station to convey the distinguished party to the palace.

As Admiral Togo appeared a great shout arose, hats were thrown in the air, arms were raised and "Banzia" followed "Banzia."

Preceded by gendarmes the party drove under triumphal arches, waving flags, and discharging fireworks, through the cheering crowds to the Navy Department, where a brief stop was made, during which the congratulations of the Ministers were received and future victories were toasted.

Admiral Togo and Vice-Admiral Kamimura then proceeded to the palace to report to the Emperor. They will probably remain in Tokio about one week for the purpose of consulting with the general staff and perfecting plans for future operations.

RUSS DESPAIRS OF RELIEF.

Capture of 203-Metre Hill Means Fall of the Town.

Tokio, Dec. 31.—The Navy Department published last night a letter written by a man on the battleship Sevastopol, which had fallen into the hands of the Japanese. The writer despairs of relief of the fortress and tells of the destruction wrought by Japanese shells. He says the Russians are resigned to their fate and are determined to fight to a finish rather than suffer the shame of surrender, owing to starvation. Following is the text of the letter:

"The fortress cannot resist after December. The progress of the enemy in reducing our principal line of outer defences is not fully known, but it is irresistible.

"We are sadly disappointed over the non-arrival of the second Pacific squadron, and are daily nearing our miserable end.

"Gen. Stoessel's so-called impregnable line of outer defences is now a myth. With 203 Metre Hill lost, the fall of Port Arthur cannot be avoided. Its capture by the Japanese means the fall of the town, however strong the other defences.

"Two-thirds of the defenders of 203 Metre Hill were lost.

"The Sevastopol, which was exposed to the enemy's fire in the daytime left the harbor on the night of Dec. 8 without being towed. She carried only 111, instead of her complement of 660 souls. When she went out she had her nets down, but was struck twice by the enemy's torpedoes and was beached, irreparably damaged.

"Who is responsible for the fate we face? It is he who did not give instructions for the prevention of a Japanese landing on the Liaotung Peninsula."

New Town Abandoned.

London, Dec. 31.—A despatch from Che Foo to The Daily Telegraph says:

"A messenger from Port Arthur states that the Japanese have mounted eight guns commanding positions north of the Etse forts, but they suffered heavy losses by the Russian fire.

"The Russians have abandoned the new town, but the Japanese have been unable to occupy it because of fear that it had been mined."

British Officer On Hatsuse.

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—It is learned that Captain Glass of the British navy was aboard the Japanese battleship Hatsuse when she was sunk recently and was drowned. The presence of the British officer on the ship had not been made public before, but the news now is said to be official.

South of Shakhe.

Siapanta, via Mukden, Dec. 31.—Russian artillery engaged in an action on Dec. 29, against the Japanese south of Shakhe and near the railroad bridge, the firing continuing till 6 o'clock in the evening. The bombardment of the Japanese position was effective. The Japanese replied very slowly with shrapnel and shimose shells and did very little damage.

Kuropatkin All Right.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 31.—The War Office absolutely denies the report in circulation to the effect that General Kuropatkin is ill.

May Have to Come Back.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 31.—A report that the cruisers Orel and Izumrud of the second Pacific Squadron have been ordered to return is current here, but lacks official confirmation. If the report proves true, Vice-Admiral Rojestensky may be obliged to await reinforcements—the third Pacific squadron.

Russ Papers Discuss Reforms.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 31.—The agitated state of public opinion throughout the country over the reforms apparently continues unabated. The war has distinctly taken a second place. Despite the Government's warning to the press, the papers discuss the situation pointedly, but guardedly.

WILL PLEAD INSANITY.

Line That Will Be Adopted By Mrs. Chadwick's Lawyers.

Cleveland, Dec. 31.—Bertillon measurements were taken of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick yesterday. When Mme. De Vere was arrested in Lucas County 15 years ago she was subjected to the same measurements, and those records are on file. The measurements of Mrs. Chadwick will be compared with the De Vere records. Several developments in the case yesterday seem to indicate insanity as the defence. It was learned that Dr. H. C. Eyman, superintendent of the Masillon State Hospital for the Insane, made an examination of the woman last Tuesday. Dr. Eyman's visit was kept a secret at the time.

The Elliott Home Opened.

Guelph, Dec. 31.—The formal opening of the Elliott Home, established in connection with the Guelph General Hospital, took place yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the King's Daughters. The Lieut.-Governor made a speech, complimenting the board on the excellence of the institution and eulogizing the late George Elliott for his splendid generosity in providing funds for the erection of the building.

Strike Will Go On.

Fall River, Mass., Dec. 31.—The labor unions involved since last July in a strike against a 12½ per cent. reduction in wages in the cotton mills of this city yesterday by a vote of approximately three to one approved a continuance of the contest. The total vote of the unions was 1,401 for continuance and 420 against.

Fire At St. John.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 31.—M. P. Paddock, druggist, and Barrister Fairweather had their residences burned yesterday. The damage is about $7,000.

Sunlight Soap is recommended, by those who have investigated the different kind of soaps, as being the best and purest on the market. Those who have gone still farther and tried the different methods state that the Sunlight way of washing is greatly superior to ordinary methods because it requires much less work and makes the clothes whiter and cleaner. Because Sunlight Soap is quite pure and free from adulteration it will not injure delicate fabrics or the user's hands.

FIRST IMPORTANT STEP.

U.S. to Allow Refund of Duties On Wheat Imported.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The first important step in the extension of the drawback system, along the lines favored by Secretary Shaw, as a substitute for tariff revision, will be to allow the refund of duties on Canadian wheat imported to be mixed with American grain in the production of flour exclusively for export.

Attorney-General Moody has decided that this can be done under the drawback law. His opinion was approved at the Cabinet meeting yesterday, and Mr. Shaw will issue an order providing for the extension.

The concession was asked by the millers of New York and the Northwest, and was opposed by the northwestern farmers.

Inspectors who will keep track of all the Canadian wheat will be assigned to all the mills which import grain under the new arrangement. Their salaries will be paid by the millers.

Fell Eighty Feet and Lives.

Montreal, Dec. 31.—William Donovan, an employe of the Canada Bridge Company, which is erecting a grain elevator at Wind Mill Point, fell from the top of the structure yesterday morning, a distance of 70 feet, to the ground. He landed in a pile of snow, and, strange to say, when he was taken to the hospital and examined by doctors he was found to be practically uninjured. He turned four somersaults in his descent.

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, researches and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health: sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies, soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate persons who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers," will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers, a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

Jury Finds Steen Guilty.

Toronto, Dec. 31.—After considering the evidence for 2 hours and 25 minutes, the sessions jury yesterday concluded that John Steen committed the burglary at the Dentonia farm on Oct. 20 last. At the end of two hours the jury announced that they could not agree. Judge Morgan asked them to try again. Twenty-five minutes later they reached the verdict of guilty. The judge, in discharging the jurors, said they had reached a proper and just decision.

Bleeding Protruding Piles

Mrs. James Brown, Hintonburgh, Carleton, Co., Ont., writes:—"I suffered from nearly every form of piles for twenty years, both here and in the Old Country, and have tried nearly every remedy. I am only doing justice to Dr. Chase's Ointment when I say that I believe it to be the best remedy obtainable for bleeding and protruding piles, of which it has cured me."

New Year's Reception.

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. met a few evenings ago and outlined the programme for the annual Red Letter Day on Monday, Jan. 2nd, 1905. There will be a continuous-musicale in the parlors from 2 to 5 on that day. Also games and gymnastic exhibition. A basket ball match with a visiting team is the feature for the evening.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

"I tell you what, George! I never before saw such a shoe polish as this

2 in 1

It puts on a dandy shine in about three rubs. The gentlemen in my car are so well pleased that when they tip me in the morning they do it with a smile instead of a grunt. They don't complain about the shine on their shoes any more."

The Tan "2 in 1" never darkens tan shoes as most tan polishes do. It is something entirely new.

The black and tan in 10c and 25c boxes, and 15c collapsible tubes. At all dealers.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

A Peterborough paper is joyful because the many hockey teams of that town have such fine uniforms. That appears to be about all they have left—the uniforms; and alas! we're nearly in the same fix—barring the speedy juniors, of course.—(Belleville Intelligencer.

It is too bad Belleville hasn't a team so that the locals could show them that they have not only the uniforms, but the men to fill them.

Lindsay was defeated in Fenelon Falls Thursday evening by 4—1 and as usual the referee was abused.

Port Hope is not likely to have a Trent Valley team.

The Oakdale practiced last evening after the games. Two full teams [illegible] the ice and some good work [illegible]

[illegible] game in Belleville.

Lindsay Post—While walking about town this morning, taking in the sights of this progressive town, Mr. Geo. Campbell, of the Peterborough Karnot hockey team, met with a severe fall, near the Sylvester foundry, which gave him a bad shaking up. This will not interfere with his playing against the "Bob" team this afternoon.

At the meeting of the O.H.A. executive held in Toronto last evening, Fred. Whitcroft, of Midland, made a statutory declaration, which was considered satisfactory. The application of Amos McWilliams for a change of residence permit from Lindsay to Peterborough was deferred until a future meeting.

Winchester, of Lindsay, has gone to Pittsburg to play.

At a recent meeting of the Guild League the following schedule for the season was drawn up—

January 4th—
7.30—Charlotte st. vs All Saints'.
8.30—St. John's vs. All Saints'.
January 11th—
7.30—St. John's vs. George street.
8.30—Charlotte st. vs. All Saints'.
January 18th—
7.30—All Saints' vs. George st.
8.30—St. John's vs. Charlotte st.
January 25th—
7.30—All Saints' vs. St. John's.
8.30—George st. vs. Charlotte st.
February 1st—
7.30—All Saints' vs. Charlotte st,
8.30—George st. vs. St. John's.
February 8th—

The schedule for the Trent Valley League was drawn up this afternoon but was not complete at the time of going to press.

The following hockey team will go to Smith's Falls on Monday by the 11.35 a.m. C.P.R. train to play an exhibition game—Comstock, Crowley, Meaher, L. King, Cavanah, Parnell, Morgan, Graham and J. McCabe.

The Junior O.H.A. team which will go to Belleville on Monday, leaving here by the 2.05 G.T.R. will be picked from the following:— Fitzpatrick, Moore, Long, McWilliams, McFarlane, Smith, Hall, Parker, McKee, Mr. F Clarke and Mr. A. A. Hollingshead. will accompany the boys.

BASKETBALL.

Great interest will undoubtedly centre in the gymnastic exhibition which is to be given in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday afternoon and evening. The big event will be the basket ball match between the Arrows and Eagles in the evening.

The junior department of Hamilton Y.M.C.A. has put up a silver cup for competition for all the junior basketball teams. The following are to play Hamilton for it:—Toronto West End, Brantford, Peterborough, and Tonawanda and Toronto World.

THE TURF.

The third annual winter meet, under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club will be held in the Driving Park, Peterborough, on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 17th and 18th. Following are the events—

NEW YEAR'S WEDDING.

The Nuptials of Mr. William Eyres and Miss Frances A. Coe.

Mr. William Eyres, Antrim-st., town, was united in marriage to Miss Frances Amelia Coe, daughter of the late John Coe, of Cavanville, on Thursday afternoon.

The ceremony took place in the Cavanville Methodist church the pastor, Rev. H. V. Mounteer, B.A., officiating. The wedding was a quiet one, owing to recent deaths in the bride's family. The happy couple were unattended and only the immediate friends of the bride were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Eyres left on the C. P.R. train for Toronto and western points. The bride wore a handsome travelling dress and furs. The newly married couple will reside in Peterborough, where their many friends will wish them every success.

Rally of supporters of Mr. Bradburn at the committee rooms, Wednesday night next, Jan. 5th. All invited. A rousing time expected. Don't fail come.

HARRIERS' DINNER

Pleasing Affair Held at the Home of Mr. Wm. Richardson.

For a number of years a modest, but very fraternal organization has been in existence in the form of the Harrier Basketball Club of the Y.M.C.A. While being a club for the gratification of the element of recreation and physical improvement, it is something else, even greater perhaps; that is the promotion of fellowship and brotherly love.

It has been the habit of this club to have an annual dinner each year since its inception at Mr. Wm. Richardson's.

For another time they met last night at the accustomed place. Games were played and stories and jokes were told. Mr. Best being there the stories and jokes were necessarily numerous and of the (best?)

After this part of the programme had been duly enjoyed, everybody repaired to the dining room, where a splendid table met the longing gaze. It was a feast indeed, and one that did Mrs. and the Misses Richardson

A pleasant toast list was run off. Mr. Horace Ayers, formerly of Peterborough, proposed a toast to the representative of the Y.M.C.A. Training School at Springfield, Mass., Mr. Holmes, who responded accordingly. Mr. Ayers responded very ably and feelingly to the toast proposed to the Harriers. He spoke of the very strong mutual bonds existing between the fellows, how they had passed from the intermediate stage in the physical department of the Y.M.C.A. to that of senior, without dissolution, how they had been mutually helpful to the different members in times of trouble or difficulty, and how their captain, Mr. W. D. Campbell, had risen to the honored position of Treasurer of the Y.M.C.A. He also spoke of the benefit he himself had received from such a body of splendid young men.

Mr. Campbell also spoke very feelingly of Mr. Ayers, and of his influence upon the club, also giving a short account of its history.

Mr. T. H. Hutchinson very ably responded to the toast of the ladies, and expressed his appreciation of the kindness of Mrs. Richardson.

Mr. Best, in his accustomed sober and thoughtful manner, also spoke of the ladies and how absolutely essential they are to man's comfort.

Neat and impressive addresses were made by Mr. Wm. Richardson, Mr. John Laing and Mr. Fred Richardson.

Mr. Percy Campbell of Toronto 'Varsity, expressed his delight at again being among the Harriers, and made a favorable comparison between the fraternal feeling existing in the societies of the College, and of that existing between the members of the Harriers. He showed a keen business instinct by finishing up with an invitation to purchase tickets for the 'Varsity Club concert, which will be held here during January next.

The speeches were concluded by Miss Richardson, who very nicely responded to the various toasts on behalf of the hostess. She said that if it had been a pleasure for the gentlemen to have been there, it was still an equal pleasure to have had them there, and that she wished they would be together to enjoy many more such occasions.

From the table everybody retired to the piano, there to sing college songs.

The festivities were concluded by singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

The Harrier club consists of W. D. Campbell (capt.), Wm. Richardson, Fred Richardson, Stanley Canniff and Ross Dobbin, besides many honorary members. Mr. Percy Campbell, Mr. T. H. Hutchinson, Mr. R. M. Best, Mr. George McDonald, Mr. Horace Ayers, Mr. John Laing and Mr. P. K. Holmes were also present.

Danger next door

Perhaps its diphtheria or scarlet fever. Keep your own home free from the germs of these diseases. Prevent your children from having them. You can do it with our Vapo-Cresolene. Put some Cresolene in our vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and let the vapor fill the sleeping room. Have the children sleep in the room every night, for it's perfectly safe, yet not a single disease germ can live in this vapor. Ask your doctor about it.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists, or sent express prepaid on receipt of price. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50. Send for free illustrated booklet. Leeming, Miles Co., Ltd., Agents, 288 St James St., Montreal.

ACCIDENT NEAR MILLBROOK

Something Went Wrong With Tender. Trains Were Delayed.

An accident happened on Monday to the afternoon train from Port Hope. Some part of the gear under the tender broke, about two and a half miles this side of Millbrook, and the colllapse that followed made it impossible to continue farther. The tender was dragged for about a quarter of a mile. An engine was wired for and one arrived from Lindsay about eight o'clock. The passenger train was hauled back to Lindsay over the Omemee line. In the meantime the Belleville train ran down to Fraserville for the passengers there and on its arrival the Lakefield train hustled up to Lindsay with passengers for Toronto and intermediate points. The people who were due here at 5.25 arrived at 10 o'clock at night.

The track near Millbrook was cleared in short order, and trains were running on scheduled time this morning.

THE ROBIN AGAIN.

If the appearance of a robin at this time of year has its message of hope to those who look with dread to three more months of winter, it will be pleasing news to them to know that Mr. Robin put in an appearance at St. Joseph's Hospital on Sunday morning. The robin was not physically unfit, but was treated to a collation by Rev. Father D. O'Sullivan. The bird appreciated the treatment and now doubtless holds the opinion that though the temperature may be cold there are here many warm hearts, which make its unreasonable venture tolerable.

RALLY TOMORROW NIGHT

Mr. Bradburn's Supporters Will Foregather at Committee Rooms.

There will be a big rally of all Mr. Bradburn's friends and supporters at the committee rooms, Opera House block, tomorrow (Wednesday) night.

It is expected there will be a large attendance of the friends and workers for the popular Conservative candidate who is conducting such a vigorous and aggressive fight throughout the riding, and with excellent prospects of success. Speeches will be made by leading members of the party, and everyone is cordially invited to be present.

Do not forget the first rally in Mr. Bradburn's interests will be held at the committee rooms tomorrow night. Everybody is invited.

TOOK DRIED HERRING

Morgan of Pontypool Became Intoxicated on Saturday.

Robert Morgan, of Pontypool, began the New Year in Police Court, and Magistrate Dumble signalized the beginning of 1905 by being merciful. Morgan was in town on Saturday and absorbed a large quantity of vodka. In the lucid moments that followed he took a large box of dried herring from Forman's store. He was locked up, and when he recovered himself he wondered why he had stolen the fish, because, said he, "Had I been sober I wouldn't have looked at them." He spent Saturday night and Sunday at the station, and on Monday morning the Magistrate allowed him to go. He is evidently convinced of the fact that the drawing of a red herring across his track does not put the police off scent.

DIED OF PNEUMONIA

Tellesford Goyett Passed Away on New Year's Day.

There passed away on New Year's day, Tellesford Goyett, who had been a resident of Peterborough for forty years. He contracted pneumonia on Tuesday last and, in spite of the best medical attendance, was carried off on Sunday by the hand of death.

The late Mr. Goyett was born in LaPrairie, Quebec. He leaves a wife, two brothers and a sister to mourn his untimely loss. The brothers are Jeremy, of West Branch, Mich., and J. B. of LaPrairie, Mrs. E. Jarvis, of Montreal, is a sister.

Mrs. J. B. Larocque, town, is a niece of the late Mr. Goyett, who was 58 years old.

The funeral took place this morning from his late residence, corner of Reid and King streets, and proceeded to St. Peter's cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery, where interment was made.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and its Vicinity.

—Do not forget to date your letters 1905.

—All the churches were crowded Sunday afternoon and evening.

The German Conversation Club will meet at St. Luke's rectory on January 12th inst.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's church will be held on Wednesday, January 18th.

—The schools re-opened this morning with a large attendance.

—The next election will be on January 25th.

—The annual congregational meeting of the Murray-st. Baptist church will be held on Thursday night, January 12th.

—Mr. T. E. Bradburn left this morning for Beaufort, where he will hold a meeting this evening. Several other speakers will take part.

—A full report of the Y.M.C.A. New Year's reception as well as much other local matter is held over until to-morrow.

—An extended report of the New Year's address on Sunday at Y.M.C.A. by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, will appear to-morrow.

—Communion service will be held in St. Paul's church next Sunday morning. Rev. George Yule, of Springville, will conduct the preparatory service on Friday evening next.

—The leak in the gas pipe near the corner of George and Smith-sts. has been discovered. It appears that the pipes were disjointed at one place by about an inch. The leak is being repaired.

—A party of vocalists visited several houses on New Year's eve, and sang songs at the doors of the citizens. Some of the men are out of work for a short time, and they are grateful for the help given them

—The renewal of the covenant for 1905 took place in George-st. Methodist church on Sunday. Rev. T. W. Jolliffe, of Bowmanville, assisted the pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers, in the service.

—It has been suggested to us that the carrier pigeon picked up on Kent-st. last week, with the initials "D.W.J." on its silver leg band, may have belonged to W. Dickson Jewett, hotel-keeper, of Cannington, he being a breeder and great admirer of these birds.—Lindsay Post.

—The snow storm yesterday made it impossible for a good photo to be taken of the delivery rig procession. About thirty rigs assembled at the market square, but Mr. R. M. Roy was unable to make a good photo owing to the unfavorable climatic conditions.

—This is the week of prayer. The opening meeting was held last night in the Murray-st. Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Dr. Crothers. The meeting this evening will be held in the Charlotte-st. church, conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson. To-morrow evening Rev. A. H. Brace will take the service in George-st. church.

—The pupils and teacher of School Section, No. 8, Douro, celebrated the close of the term by giving an entertainment. The splendid programme which consisted of readings, recitations, songs, drills, etc., was ably carried out by the pupils under the efficient management of their teacher, Miss Maher. A number of prizes were given by the teacher to the most successful pupils for writing. Quite a number of the parents and others were present.

—On Friday last says the Campbellford Herald we were favored with a call from Mr. Geo. Salter, son of Mr. Wm. Salter, of Campbellford. Fifteen years ago Mr. Salter sought his fortune in the neighbouring Republic and during that time his life has been, to say the least, most active and interesting. In 1898 when the Spanish-American war broke out, he volunteered to fight Uncle Sam's battles in the Philippines. After a year's service he returned to Dakota and would fain have enlisted in the Strathcona Horse but arrived in Winnipeg four days too late.

—At the family residence in Campbellford last week, Anna Booker, relict of the late James Boland died at the age of 89 years. Mrs. Boland was one of the oldest and most respected residents of the locality. She was born in the County of Monaghan, Ireland, in January, 1816, married her late husband, James Boland, in Ireland in 1839, came to the city of Kingston in 1842, where her husband was employed as bookkeeper during the building of the Artillery barracks. They moved from Kingston to the Trent River district in 1844, at which time he was employed on the Board of Works, and shortly afterwards he received the appointment of postmaster at Ranney's Falls, a position which he held for some years. Mr. Boland died in 1865.

MR. RICHARD HALL'S GIFT.

One of the very pleasant features of the Y.M.C.A. New Year's reception this year was the presentation to the Association of two large beautifully framed pictures of the late Robt. Nicholls and his wife, Charlotte J. Nicholls, the generous donors of the building.

These were given by Mr. Richard Hall, one of the building trustees who had much to do with the erection of the building.

They have been placed in the parlor and fill a long felt need, as many who have visited the building have experienced a wish to see the pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholls.

What Other Papers Say.

Only one in ten thousand is a success. There is but one Jessie Alexander.—Kit, in the Mail and Empire.

Last evening his (Mr. Field's) playing of Liszt's Barcarolle in F sharp, and Ballade in E minor made such an impression that he was recalled again and again.—Toronto Globe.

These artists appear at the Opera House under the auspices of Ladies' Aid of Y.M.C.A. on Thursday, Jan. 10th.

St. Luke's Church.

A special meeting of the Men's Guild is called for tonight at eight o'clock, at the club room, 127 Hunter street.

The Girls' Auxiliary will resume its weekly meetings on Monday next at eight o'clock.

PEN POINTS.

Here's to the twelve good men and true.

The defeated candidates: "We are seven."

A happy and prosperous New Year to the Council of 1905.

There were some close calls, but all could not be elected.

Three weeks from tomorrow and it will all be over with Mr. Ross.

Progressive Peterborough will be the watchword during 1905.

The Trades and Labor Council evidently know how to elect their men.

Mr. George J. Tovey did not do bad for a first try—considering that he headed the polls

Ald. Adams got there with both feet, and he managed to land his by-law also. Congratulations.

Attend the big rally in the Opera House committee rooms to-morrow night in the interest of Mr. Bradburn.

Premier Ross expects to secure the Liberal nomination at Mount Brydges Wednesday, and three weeks later he will cross the Bridge of Sighs.

The Review regrets that J. J. Lynch was not among the chosen. He is a sound, level-headed business man, and his defeat is unfortunate. Better luck next time.

The Board of Trade picked out five good men and endorsed them. So did the ratepayers. They are Batten, Adams, Leary, Hicks and Scott.

And now, gentle elector, do not cease in your efforts until the congestion and poor accommodation at the post office has been remedied. To draw federal attention to the disgraceful state of affairs should be one of the first acts of the new Council.

That last year's Council was a good one and that the ratepayers had confidence in its members is amply evidenced by the fact that all the old members who sought re-election were successful yesterday, except Ald. Clinkscale, and he was defeated by only a small majority.

The new council on the whole is a likely looking and representative body of men. Under the leadership of Mayor Best there is no good reason why splendid results should not be achieved during the coming year. The civic legislature of 1905 starts the year with a clean sheet financially and, although several new aldermen have been elected there are enough experienced ones around the board to keep things evenly balanced. The citizens look to the newly elect Council for the faithful and zealous discharge of duty and for the constant advancement of Peterborough's welfare and prosperity. There will be many important matters to deal with during the coming twelve months, but all the aldermen are pledged to economy, the development of the industrial resources of the town, and an effort to induce more manufactories to locate here.

It is pleasing to record that the ratepayers carried both the $20,000 waterworks extension by-law, and the $12,000 by-law to reconstruct and repair bridges and to purchase land for the opening up of new streets. This all means better fire protection, the ultimate lowering of insurance rates, more efficient and general domestic water service, the improvement of our highways and the extension of certain thoroughfares which will result in the erection of several new buildings and consequently tend to increased assessment and afford work for mechanics and others during the coming summer. The carrying of the waterworks bylaw is an expression of confidence in the water commissioners. The repair of our bridges, so long delayed, will now be undertaken. The coming summer will be an important one in the extension of municipal works.

Croup Absolutely Cured

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. Magee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto, Ont.

FALL OF PORT ARTHUR JAPANESE ENTER TO-DAY

Gen. Stoessel Accepts the Conditions Which are Stipulated by Gen. Nogi.

Both Armies Suspended Hostilities Upon the Conclusion of Negotiations—Gen. Stoessel's White Flag Note Asking Mercy to Gen. Nogi—Horrors of War Exemplified in Supreme Degree in Last Five Days Preceding the Surrender.

Tokio, Jan. 3.—The text of Gen. Nogi's telegram yesterday announcing the capitulation of the Russian forces at Port Arthur is as follows:

The Plenipotentiaries of both parties concluded their negotiations today at 4.30 o'clock.

"The Russian Commissioners accepted on the whole the conditions stipulated by us and consented to capitulate.

"The document has been prepared and signatures are now being affixed.

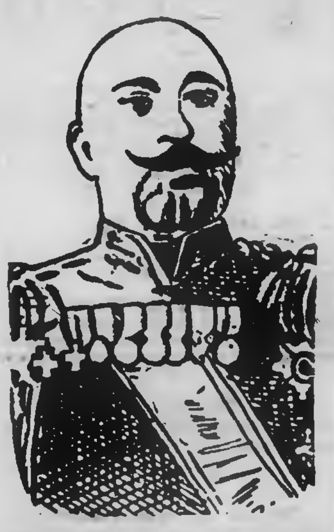
"Simultaneously with the conclusion of negotiations both armies suspended hostilities

"It is expected that the Japanese army will enter the city of Port Arthur to-morrow."

WHITE FLAG NOTE.

Gen. Stoessel Asks Mercy From the Japs—Documents Leading to Terms of Capitulation.

Tokio, Jan. 3.—General Nogi reports as follows yesterday: "At 5 in the afternoon, January 1, the enemy's bearer of a flag of truce came into the first line of our position south of Shuishiying, and handed a letter to our officers. The same reached me at 9 o'clock at night. The letter is as follows:



LIEUT.-GENERAL STOESSEL.
Famous Defender of Port Arthur.

"'Judging by the general condition of the whole line of hostile positions held by you, I find further resistance at Port Arthur useless, and for the purpose of preventing needless sacrifice of lives I propose to hold negotiations with reference to capitulation. Should you consent to the same you will please appoint commissioners for discussing the order and conditions regarding capitulation, and also appoint a place for such commissioners to meet the same appointed by me.

"'I take this opportunity to convey to Your Excellency assurances of my respect.

"'(Signed) Stoessel.'"

Nogi Answers Stoessel.

The following is General Nogi's answer to General Stoessel:

"Shortly after dawn to-day I will despatch our bearer of a flag of truce with the following reply addressed to Stoessel:

"I have the honor to reply to your proposal to hold negotiations regarding the conditions, and order of capitulation. For this purpose I have appointed as commissioners Major-General Ijichi, chief of staff of our army. He will be accompanied by some staff officers and civil officials. They will meet your commissioners January 2, at noon, at Shuishiying. The commissioners of both parties will be empowered to sign a convention for the capitulation without waiting for ratification and cause the same to take immediate effect. Authorization for such plenary powers shall be signed by the highest officer of both the negotiating parties and the same shall be exchanged by the respective commissioners.

"I avail myself of this opportunity to convey to Your Excellency assurances of my respect.

"(Signed) Nogi."

Mikado Honors Stoessel.

Marshal Yamagata, chief of general staff, under orders from the Emperor, has despatched the following cablegram to General Nogi: "When I respectfully informed His Majesty of General Stoessel's proposal for capitulation His Majesty was pleased to state that General Stoessel had rendered commendable service to his country in the midst of difficulties, and it is His Majesty's wish that military honors be shown to him."

AWFUL PICTURE OF WAR.

Port Arthur Fell By Exhaustion of Ammunition and Men.

Che Foo, Jan. 3.—Commander Kartzow of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Vlastni, in an interview last night, said:

"Port Arthur falls of exhaustion—exhaustion not only of ammunition but of men.

"The remnant of the garrison left had been doing the work of heroes for five days and five nights, but yet they reached the limit of human endurance.

"In the casemates of the forts one saw everywhere faces black with starvation, exhaustion and new strain. You spoke to them, but they did not give answer, only staring dumbly.

"The Russians sat in the casemates firing not more than once to the 100 shots sent by the Japanese. When the assault came they repulsed the enemy with bayonets. But the men themselves having existed for two months on reduced rations were so worn that it is marvelous they stood the final strain so long.

Stoessel Would Not Yield.

"Yesterday, General Stoessel would still fight. His wound, which was received early in the siege had been bothering him, but his determination to fight while one man stood had not been diminished.

"'But we cannot fight,' said the generals. 'Our men cannot move. They sleep standing. They cannot see the bayonets at their breasts. We can order but they cannot obey.'

"'Then you generals fight,' said Stoessel, clenching his fists.

"He seemed fanatical on the subject, but finally he was brought to see reason by the insistence of his subordinates, Admirals Lochin and Wiren, Generals Smyrnoff and Fock and many others, who sometimes with broken voices urged the step which all dreaded so long.

"I am sure Port Arthur would have sought terms a month ago had it not been for General Stoessel, who with bulldog tenacity, steadily refused to permit such action to be taken. He had told his Emperor that he would never surrender, and he meant to keep his word.

Greatest Loss Suffered.

"The greatest loss suffered by Port Arthur occurred a fortnight ago when Major-General Kondrachenko was killed. Officers and men alike regarded him as the brightest star in Port Arthur. When his death became known the fall in the spirits of the soldiers was plainly visible.

"General Kondrachenko was seated in the casemate of a certain fort discussing with seven other officers the best way of countermining against the Japanese when an 11-inch shell burst, killing everybody in the casemate.

General Nogi has taken Port Arthur with his artillery and his tunnels. His rifle bullets were seldom found to be of any use.

"We constantly endured a bombardment fiercer than anything in history. The Japanese periodically assaulted, and then, if repulsed, they calmly resumed their bombardment.

What Stoessel Asks.

Che Foo, Jan. 3.—A Russian officer, who left Port Arthur on one of the torpedo boat destroyers, says that though the terms of capitulation are not known, still the general impression is that Stoessel has proposed that the army shall go free and that he alone be made a prisoner.

"Even that concession seemed to wrench out the sturdy old man's heart."

PEACE OFFER FROM JAPAN.

Russian Public Kept in Ignorance of the Russian Disaster.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—While there is no longer any doubt in official circles here that the fall of Port Arthur has been decided and General Stoessel's long and gallant defence ended, news of the surrender has not reached the public. Foreign telegrams regarding the matter have been withheld from the newspapers, pending the official announcement here. The public so far is entirely unprepared for the news, which must prove a serious blow when it comes. Possibly some of the hesitation of the authorities is due to threats and rumors of radical demonstrations, coupled with the absence of the Emperor.

A Peace Offer.

In diplomatic circles last night it was stated that the fall of Port Arthur will be promptly followed by an offer of peace from Japan. A strong effort will be made to have it come through President Roosevelt. It is suggested that the terms might include an arrangement which would give Russia an outlet through the Persian Gulf.

Last Offensive Movements.

Tokio, Jan. 3.—A despatch from the Japanese army before Port Arthur, received at noon yesterday, says:

"The enemy's forces occupying Kekwan Mountain, and "Q" Fort, following an explosion at 12.30 o'clock yesterday morning, opened a sudden and fierce rifle fire, which was suddenly stopped. Our scouts were despatched to the scene and immediately afterwards found the enemy evacuating these places. Our forces immediately occupied these two forts and also the heights known as "M" and "N," south of the forts. This morning almost all the enemy's ships, large and small, were blown up in the entrance and inside the harbor. Our offensive movements have been suspended, pending the negotiations."

HORRORS UNDESCRIBABLE.

Stoessel Had Killed An Army, But the Fighting Became More Ferocious, So the Flag Went Up.

Che Foo, Jan. 3.—The Russian officers who arrived here yesterday from Port Arthur on the torpedo boat destroyers which escaped from that place have a single word for what the fortress has been for the past five days, during which the Japanese have bombarded and assaulted it ceaselessly night and day. They use that word unprofanely and convincingly, declaring that the horrors witnessed were beyond any description. There was not a single spot in the town which was safe from shrapnel. Many of the hospitals were hit, and the wounded refused to stay in them. Some lay in the streets on heaps of debris, exposed to the bitterly cold weather, and some staggered back to the front, hurling stones and defying the Japanese till taken prisoners or death came mercifully to end their sufferings. There were five days and nights of this state of affairs. The stock of ammunition which had been carefully husbanded for months was almost gone, and it was all too evident that Japan was about to grasp the prize which had cost her an army of men and countless treasure. The capture of 203 Metre Hill by the Japanese was the garrison's first vital wound. Then came the capture of Rihlung, Sungshu and Panlung Mountain. General Stoessel had announced that he would fight till the last.

"His plight Sunday night," said Capt. Karlow, commander of the torpedo boat destroyer Vlastni, "looked like the last.

"There was no stopping the Japanese, who died in droves, fighting with the last instinctive twitch of the nerves, with eyes fixed on Liato Mountains. General Stoessel has killed a Japanese army and exhausted his ammunition. But," said Capt. Karlaw, "the attacks became more furious, ferocious and fateful than ever.

"So the white flag went up."

Battleships Burning.

Che Foo, Jan. 3.—Advices reaching Che Foo say that the Russian battleships Retvizan and Poltava and the protected cruiser Pallada caught fire Monday morning and are still burning and that in the afternoon the Russians blew up the battleship Sevastopol.

Report From Stoessel.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—General Stoessel in a despatch to Emperor Nicholas, confirms the previous reports that Major-General Kondrachenko (commander of the Seventh East Siberian Rifle Brigade), was killed Dec. 15. In addition to confirming the reports of the death of General Kondrachenko, General Stoessel in the despatches filed at Che Foo yesterday, also reported the deaths of Major-General Fock (commander of the Fourth East Siberian Rifle Brigade), and Lieut.-General Smirnoff (commander of the Port Arthur fortress).

Will Disarm Russian Destroyers.

Che Foo, Jan. 3.—The Japanese protected cruiser Akitsushima and the torpedo boat destroyers Asashio, Yugiri and Shirakumo were guarding the harbor last night. It is now believed that there will be no trouble as the Russians are seemingly sincere in the disarmament of their destroyers.

Besides the vessels mentioned, it was learned later in the day, the torpedo boat destroyers Smirli and Boiki, and a transport left Port Arthur Sunday night, the latter carrying 800 wounded soldiers, and according to the despatch from Tsingtau, succeeded in reaching that port. The destroyers, the transport and the launch crept out of the harbor between 10 and 11 o'clock Sunday night without encountering the Japanese.

It was determined to disarm the four destroyers, which lashed themselves together. In the absence of a Chinese warship the commissioner of customs took charge of the Russian craft. The latter ordered the crews of the torpedo boat destroyers and a number of invalid Russian soldiers who were on board of them to go to the Chinese forts, where quarters for them were available. Last night the customs men detailed from the guardship were preventing foreigners from going on board the Russian vessels.

Recall Rojestvensky.

London, Jan. 3.—Baron Suyematsu, son-in-law of Marquis Ito, and formerly Japanese Minister of the Interior, said: "Now that we have again got Port Arthur we will not allow any other power to hold it after we have beaten Russia, and I am now more than ever confident that Japan will be victorious. I do not expect the fall of Port Arthur will make much difference with the progress of the war, though Japan will undoubtedly be in a better position."

In British naval circles the prevailing opinion is that the recall of the Russian second Pacific squadron has now become an absolute necessity.

SITUATION SUMMED UP.

News of Fall of Port Arthur in Brief Understandable Shape.

London, Jan. 3.—Port Arthur, whose hills have for months run red with the blood of the bravest of two warlike nations has at last succumbed to the fierce tenacity of the Japanese attack. General Stoessel, most stubborn in carrying out the will of his sovereign, has seen the advance of the besieging army gain in momentum and energy until to hold out longer would have been a crime against humanity.

The conditions of the surrender are not yet known, but in all quarters it is anticipated that they are such as an honorable soldier can accept from a brave and victorious enemy.

Keep News From Russian Public.

The authorities at St. Petersburg in the absence of direct official news from General Stoessel that Port Arthur has surrendered have not permitted the news to become public. Emperor Nicholas is in the south of Russia and his Ministers are for the time being in the dark as to what despatches have been sent to him from the front.

Tokio was the scene of rejoicing, people of all ranks finding in the outcome compensation for all the

Give the Children

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" whenever the head aches, the stomach gets upset, or Constipation troubles them. Little folk may take them every day in the year without fear of ill-effects. It's just like giving them ripe apples, oranges, figs and prunes. That's what

Fruit-a-tives

or Fruit Liver Tablets

are. The fruit juices are so combined by our secret process, that the medicinal action is intensified many degrees. Nothing like them to keep the children plump and rosy—and free of the stomach and bowel troubles of childhood.

Equally effective with grown folk. 50 cents a box.

sacrifice of life and money that was entailed in the ten months' siege.

To what extent the fall of Port Arthur will make for a restoration of peace is an open question. There is an encouraging note in the expression by Baron Hayashi, Japanese Minister here, of the "Hope that in some way it will facilitate final peace," though the pacific note is perhaps lost in the later words of the Minister, which call attention to the fact that the besieging army will now be free to go north, where they will be an offset to the reinforcements Gen. Kuropatkin has been receiving from Russia since the battle of Shakhe.

Will Still Fight It Out.

The spirit of the Russians may be judged by the statement of the Secretary of the Embassy here, that the campaign will be renewed with fresh vigor in the spring, and that the nation will not be content to permit Port Arthur to remain in the hands of the Japanese.

Both in Paris and in London the opinion is that the squadron under Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky, which started from Libau for the Far East three months ago will have to retrace its way home, as adherence to the original plans would invite disaster without probability of effecting a junction with the warships at present in the harbor at Vladivostock.

That the Japanese may not be permitted to retain possession of Port Arthur without a dispute is shown in the fact that Paris newspapers are already reviving the claim made in 1891, that the holding of that position commanding the eastern seas by the Japanese would be a menace to European powers.

At 9.45 o'clock last night, the commissioners completed the signing of the capitulation agreement. Both armies had suspended hostilities five hours earlier. The City of Port Arthur will be occupied by the Japanese to-day.

Rival Foes Near Mukden.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters, Dec. 31, via Tientsin, Jan. 3.—The positions of the Japanese and the Russian armies south of Mukden have not been materially changed during the last two months. In few places are the lines more than a mile apart, and they are so close before the Japanese left that loud talking in the Russian trenches can be plainly heard. Though the Russians became quiet early in December, they have renewed the bombardment of the Japanese centre and left in the last fortnight. The Japanaese usually lie low in the trenches and remain silent. Often several hundred shells will be fired in a day without doing any damage, although occasionally a shell strikes an exposed group or kills some careless soldier.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

CURIOUS MIXUP.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir:—How times are changed! Mr. Stratton used to be the cock of the walk in West Peterborough. Why isn't he now? Echo or Mr. Gamey answers, "why?" If Mr. Stratton had transferred himself to some other work than politics, we could understand his saying he had retired. But when he says that he has retired he means likely from the West riding. It is well known and claimed by Mr. Stratton that he has taken charge of the campaign for Mr. Anderson in the East Riding. Mr. J. B. McWilliams used to be cock of the walk over there. Now he is going around like a bull in a china shop in the West. They are running round like two champions with swords drawn intended for each other. They don't intend to stick each other in the face, but keep their eyes on each other's backs. The claim is being made for Mr. Strattons that he is going to put in Mr. Anderson by an unexpectedly large majority. This will dazzle the people in the East Riding, who will welcome Mr. Stratton as their representative at Ottawa when Mr. Finlay retires in a session or two, for a well-earned rest to some fat office. It is a great privilege we electors have of providing stamping ground for ambitious politicians. You will see Mr. Review that what I say is true. It is a curious mix-up. The scene having been changed, we will see if the actors are going on with the same old play

Yours truly

ELECTOR.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—The Review published on Saturday a strong article on the poor accommodation at the post office. The Government is in duty bound to give us free postal delivery before many years, as it will only be a short time before Peterborough is made a city, and then we will have to have free delivery. If money is spent on the present small building, that will be an excuse for not giving us free delivery for many years to come. Let the people demand free delivery in no uncertain sound. We want it. It is our right, as a town of fifteen thousand, and inside of five years we will be a city of twenty-five thousand. We are in earnest in asking for only what is due us. Thanking you for publishing this letter.

Yours,

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aseptic pepsin (government test), golden seal and diastase. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of raw meat, eggs and other wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and soap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach.

This is the secret, if there is any secret, of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most widely known of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive pure and simple because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely on the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to cure by the use of "tonics" "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores and the regular use of one or two of them after meals, will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

RESIDENTS SERENADED

Salvation Army Band Greeted Many Citizens With Music.

The Salvation Army Band was all over town yesterday serenading citizens and musically celebrating the New Year. The band, under the leadership of Mr. J. M. Greene, is now an excellent organization, and its playing is greatly admired. As a result of its round of visits yesterday, the coffer of the band is replenished.

A musical festival will be held at the Salvation Army hall on Thursday evening next. An excellent programme will be rendered.

YOUR EYES TELL THE STORY

Sparkling, bright eyes indicate vigor and health. Drooping, weak and watery eyes show some internal ailment which in ninety cases out of one hundred is a weak heart. When the heart becomes weak, the blood thickens and moves sluggishly and the organs become diseased for want of a proper stimulant. So we invariably trace these ills to a weak heart.

has saved the lives of many heart troubled people. It gives strength and health to the body through its action on the heart and relieves the severest attacks in thirty minutes.

Mrs. Mary Johnson, Georgiana Island, Ont. writes—"Send a bottle of Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure as quickly as possible. I have used it before and it is the best Heart Cure I ever tried. It gives relief in ten minutes and is excellent for Stomach and Nerves." —6

Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills 40 doses 10 cents, are not only the cheapest, but best pills made.

RETURNS FROM THE WEST.

Mr. George Mackie Tells of Conditions in the Town of Frank, Alberta.

A visitor from the far West is Mr. George Mackie, who is spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Mackie, Douro. About a year ago, Mr. Mackie was on the teaching staff of the Indian School at Regina, which was attended by about one hundred of the rising young braves. For the past year, however, he has been teaching in the town of Frank, Alberta, a place which came into prominence some time ago as the result of a disastrous landslide.

Mr Mackie says that Frank is almost exclusively a coal mining town. It has recovered from the effects of the catastrophe which threatened to wipe it out of existence, and the output at the present time is something like seven hundred tons a day. The population is decidedly mixed—English, Scotch, Irish, Yankee, German, Welsh, Italian, Japanese, Chinese—going to form a cosmopolitan total of about three hundred. There are four hotels in Frank, and large ones at that, and it can be understood that with such a large moving population, they have a very large number of boarders and otherwise do a thriving business. There are also four churches, English, Methodist, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic, and Mr. Mackie says that their congregations by no means measure up to a very high numerical standard. It would be a capital place to initiate church unity.

The Frank mines are operated by Montana capital, and it would appear that very good wages are paid, ranging from $125 to $140 a month. The cheapest board is $30 a month. A large number of Italians find employment in the mines, as they come from that part of their own country where mining is carried on expensively, they make good workmen. These foreigners come straight through to the West from Montreal and other eastern ports.

There are quite a few Chinese in Frank and they are not popular. In the last election they played somewhat the same part as the Italians did here, but were instrumental in turning the election. The Liberals had them naturalized and five days before the election, sprung a roorbach to the effect that the Conservatives had taken this course. It was expected that this would create an adverse feeling, but shortly before the election the Conservatives produced affidavits blaming the other fellows, and the result was a Tory victory in Frank.

Mr. Mackie states that the town is about 30 miles from the American border, and that during the last year many farmers from Washington have passed through to settle in the Canadian west.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

DREAM OF EQUALITY

Eloquent Lecture Given by Rev. Father Kelley Before Appreciative Audience.

A fairly large sized crowd gathered at the Opera House last evening to hear the Rev. Father Francis Kelly, the eminent author and scholar of Lapeer, Mich., lecture on "The Dream of Equality." The entertainment was given by the Knights of Columbus. Those who were there were more than rewarded for they were given an oratorical treat. Rev Father Kelly has a fine voice and an attractive stage presence. He is a fluent and most eloquent speaker, handling his subject in an artistic manner and illustrating his exposition with beautiful word pictures and mirth provoking stories.

The subject of his lecture was one upon which doubtless the majority of his audience had not seriously thought but it is safe to say that those who heard Father Kelly last evening will not soon forget the subject or the lecturer. In beginning he said that when first he gave that lecture he had called it the Law of Equality, but he had since changed its title to the Dream of Equality, which he thought a more appropriate designation. From the Feudal ages that dream had existed in the minds of men. We find it breaking forth into the French revolution and other historical episodes.

There were two kinds of anarchists the one of theory and the one of practice. The first pictures for us a Heaven on earth, an ideal state where all men are equal. A mistaken conception is always taken of the second. He does not assassinate for the pleasure of killing, but to call attention to his ideal.

The modern theory of equality was that instruction will give equality of condition. There were plenty of educational institutions, but the credit of instruction should not be centralized on them. We must be educated spiritually also if we would have equality, for equality meant the golden rule put into practice.

At its conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker for his brilliant lecture. A series of lectures may be given this winter under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus.

During the evening Mr. R. N. Jolliffe in his usual acceptable style rendered "My Bonnie Barque" and for an encore number gave "Good night little girl good night" in excellent voice. Miss Ruth Dawson also added considerably to the pleasure of the evening with a delightful rendition of the "Magnetic Waltz." For an encore the charming little song "In May" was artistically given. Mrs. Morrow was a most efficient accompanist.

The soloists of the evening were all pupils of Mrs. W. J. Morrow and reflected great credit on her training. Father Kelly complimented Mrs. Morrow on the beauty of her accompaniments during the evening.

THE PRESERVE CLOSET.

It Should Be Perfectly Dry and Have an Even Temperature.

The temperature of a preserve closet should not rise above 70 degrees. The closet should be perfectly dark, as not only heat, but light, is injurious to the keeping of preserves. It should also be a perfectly dry room. It is a good plan to have the walls whitewashed once a year—in the autumn before stocking the shelves—to insure a perfectly wholesome atmosphere. A small compartment in the cellar near the stairs is often a convenient place for the preserve closet. It should, however, be free from dampness or mold and snugly built if used for this purpose. In many houses it would not be dry enough.

A jelly press is a useful utensil in this closet. A good pair of scales which will weigh from half a pound to seven or eight pounds is also needed, as the articles in most of the popular recipes are measured by weight. A patent meat and vegetable chopper is positively essential nowadays, for, though it is some trouble to clean, it cuts meat and vegetables into fine, even pieces and so much quicker than the old fashioned chopping knife. In putting up chowchow or pickles it is excellent.

There are few things more enticing than a picturesque preserve closet, with its neatly papered shelves laden down with good things.—New York Tribune.

MAKING THINGS OVER.

A Wide Field For the Woman Who Has Taste and Skill.

For the woman who has taste and skill in making over articles of clothing a wide field is open. Let her make it known that she is ready to take any available material and make it over into neat and serviceable garments, and she will not lack for employment even where there are many dressmakers. "Making over" is disliked by most dressmakers, and an opportunity to carry such goods to a pleasant, tactful person who would see all its possibilities and bring them out satisfactorily is hailed with delight. One who does such work must be careful to keep sacred the confidence of her customers. No one would be pleased to have the details of her economy told to others or the fact made public that the pretty waist she wore was made out of her sister's old skirt. In connection with this work one should keep on hand a small stock of dressmaker's findings. These could be bought at wholesale prices and furnish a small profit when sold at regular rates.—Woman's Home Companion.

TOILET TIPS.

After the shampoo if the hair is stiff and dry rub olive oil into the roots.

Cucumbers, peeled, cut in slices and bound upon the face, will prove an excellent whitener.

For a red, oily nose anoint several times a day with a little diluted alcohol or witch hazel.

If the finger nails are filed daily little cutting is needed. This is an excellent plan to follow when the nails are brittle and break in the cutting.

For a discolored neck apply cucumbers cut in strips, binding on during the night. In the morning wash off and rub well with cold cream.

An economical and satisfactory cream for the hands is composed of equal portions of honey, mutton tallow (clarified) and lemon juice, melted together until of the consistency of cream.

Perfumes.

The use of any particular kind of perfume will always be a matter of individual taste, irrespective of the changes that away the fashionable world from time to time. The few fastidious souls who have tried to persuade the world that it is exceedingly vulgar to admit any liking for sweet scents of any description have most ignominiously failed, as at no time has the popularity of sachets, toilet waters and highly priced extracts been greater than during the present season. The danger of going to excess in the use of a very decided odor is one that should be fully understood by any one who desires to refrain from offending her associates. Like everything else in life, too much is worse than none at all. A happy medium is what all should strive to reach.—Rochester Herald.

Plaster Ornaments.

Nothing takes the dust more freely than plaster objects, more or less artistic, which are the modest ornaments of our dwellings. They rapidly contract a yellow gray color of unpleasant appearance. Here is a practical method for restoring the whiteness: Take finely powdered starch, quite white, and make a thick paste with hot water. Apply when still hot with a flexible spatula or a brush on the plaster object. The layer should be quite thick. Let it dry slowly. On drying the starch will split and scale off. All the soiled parts of the plaster will adhere and be drawn off with the scales.

Table Linen.

In point of beauty of weave and finish Irish table linen ranks first, but German damask wears better. Unbleached linen is cheaper and more durable than bleached of the same quality, and it becomes beautifully white after it is washed and boiled a few times in a suds made by dissolving washing powder in soft hot water. Rinse well, hang on the line and let it dry in the sunshine. Hemmed napkins are preferable to fringed ones. While pure white is in vogue for centerpieces and doilies, we like the touch of brightness which the embroidery done with colored silks gives these pieces.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS—1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognised agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully became accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the caseof any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandisement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd. The reservation ofthe timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localisation of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,

Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

Christmas Superstitions.

There are many Christmas superstitions long held as articles of faith that are to be recalled—how that oxen kneel in their stalls at midnight on Christmas eve in adoration of the Nativity and for one hour have the power of speech; for that one hour, too, the lost spirits have rest. Judas sleeps, Herod ceases to clank his chains, the daughter of Herodias may pause in the dance in which she is condemned to spin forever, and Pilate's ghost ceases its wanderings on Mount Pilatus. It was believed, too, that the sound of church bells could be heard wherever a church had stood, though no trace remain, and that on that pregnant night one sleeping in a manger would see his future in a vision.—Country Life in America.

Bringing In the Yule Log.

The Yule log is a remnant of the Juul, when the Scandinavians used to kindle huge fires in honor of their god Thor. In some parts of old England bringing in the Yule log was the principal ceremony of Christmas eve. Part of the log was carefully preserved to light the Yule log of the succeeding year. It was believed that a piece of the log in the house was a security against fire, and if a squinting person entered the room while it was burning all sorts of ill luck would come to the family.

Old Ideas About Christmas.

Even as late as 1753 there was some doubt as to the exact date of Christmas, the old count bringing it to the 5th of January, the new count giving us the 25th of December, which is "the day we celebrate." In Devonshire, England, it is believed that if the sun shines at noon on Christmas day a plentiful apple crop may be looked for in the following year.—National Illustrated Magazine.

ONTARIO ELECTIONS

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lend, or agrees, or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, offices, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting, is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITH OUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be seen from the above that neither of us can personally or through another, give or lend any money during the election.

PEOPLE CHOSE ALDERMEN LABOR MEN WERE ELECTED

Mr. Geo. J. Tovey, New Man, and Ald. Batten Head the Polls by Vote of 966.

THE BY-LAWS WERE ALL CARRIED

Local Option in Smith Township Carried by 158—The Town By-Laws also Carried—Old Aldermen Were Returned With the Exception of Ald. Clinkscale—Board of Trade Candidates Elected—Messrs. Stinson and Garbutt, of Smith, the New County Councillors—R. N. Scott is Reeve of Smith Township.

Peterborough's Council for the year 1906 will consist of the following gentlemen :—

Mayor :—

HENRY BEST, Esq.

Aldermen :—

GEORGE J. TOVEY.
JOSEPH BATTEN.
FRANK ADAMS.
E. F. MASON.
ROBERT HICKS.
W. J. JOHNSTON.
ADAM HALL.
WM. SCOTT.
ROBERT LEARY.
JOSEPH CROWE.
ARCH. McINTYRE.
T. J. BEGLEY.

The members of the Council for 1904 were :—Geo. M. Roger, Esq., Mayor; Aldermen—Messrs. R. F. McWilliams, Henry Best, Frank Adams, Jos. Batten, Wm. Scott, Henry Rush, Wm. Johnston, Robt. Clinkscale, Jas. Edgcumbe, Robt. Hicks, E. F. Mason, M. A. Morrison.

The aldermanic candidates who were defeated yesterday are Robert Clinkscale, John Sawers, J. O'Brien, J. J. Lynch, J. Clancy, R. H. Bradburn, G. H. Duncan.

The members of last year's Council who retired were Messrs. G. M. Roger, R. F. McWilliams, Henry Rush, Jas. Edgcumbe and M. A. Morrison. Mr. Robert Clinkscale, a member of the Counil of 1904 was yesterday defeated at the polls, he having 31 short of the lowest vote polled.

Considerable interest was shown in the municipal elections yesterday, and it is said that nearly every one of the candidates had their friends working for them getting out the vote. It is a most remarkable fact that the highest votes were polled by Mr. G. J. Tovey, who was a new, but very popular candidate, and Ald. Batten, these two candidates being tied, the vote being 966. It is a pleasing fact that members of last year's Council follow in unbroken succession, save William Scott, who got five less than Mr. Adam Hall. The fact goes to show that the people believed their confidence was well placed in the men who had represented them before.

The Trades and Labor Council and its candidates are to be congratulated because of the election of their three men, Messrs. Johnston, Begbey and Crowe. The Board of Trade's representatives in the contest are also elected Messrs. Adams, Batten, Hicks, Leary and Scott.

The by-laws all carried, though the majority was small in each case.

The local option by-law in Smith township was carried by a strong majority, and it will doubtless receive its third reading by the Township Council elect, Messrs. R. N. Scott (Reeve), and John Garbutt, W. H. White, T. H. Graham, and W. H. Northey. The total vote for the by-law was 429, and against 271, leaving a majority of 158 in favor.

The following table shows the result of the voting in Peterborough :—

ELECTION NOTES.

The new Council will meet for the first time on Monday next at 11 a.m., when the official oaths will be taken.

Returning Officer Armstrong gave out the official figures today at noon and they are given above.

The returns were slow in coming in last night, owing to the very large ballot. It was after ten when the last polling division was heard from at the town offices.

Mr. Angus Williams, who has seen his 84th year, is one of the oldest deputy returning officers one will see in a day's journey. He was in charge of division one yesterday, and he was not the last in getting in his returns either.

Ald. Batten and Ald. Hall are the only members of the new Council who have served for more than one year. Ald. Hall was a member quite a few years ago.

Sub-division nine, of the Fifth Ward, was the first to get in returns of the elections. Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine was deputy returning officer, and he knows his business.

MILLBROOK COUNCIL.

In Millbrook yesterday Mr. W. S. Given was elected Reeve over W. W. Gillott, by a majority of 74, the respective votes being 156 and 82.

For the Village Council those elected were R. J. Deak, 147; J. C. Kells, 155. The local option candidates were defeated, their votes being, Deyell, 103; Coombe, 109.

The three School Trustees elected were, T. B. Collins, 138, A. A. Smith 146, R. Clarke 118.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

The contest in North Monaghan yesterday resulted in the election of Messrs. John Holmes, Jos. Morrow, J. Brown, R. Fowler, as Councillors. Mr. Jos. Madill was elected Reeve by acclamation.

Mr. R. N. Scott was elected Reeve of Smith township over Geo. Armstrong by 83 of a majority, and the Councillors are John Garbutt, W. H. White, T. H. Graham and W. Northey. Following are the figures :—

LOCAL OPTION BY-LAW.

Following is the result of the voting on the local option by-law in Smith :—

	For.	Against
Selwyn	101	23
Young's Point	37	82
Bridgenorth	106	70
Milburn's	98	61
Ray's	87	35
	429	271

Majority for the by-law, 158.

Should the by-law be read a third time and become law, on May 1st next, the hotel at Chemong, at Hall's Bridge, and two at Young's Point will have to dispense with the sale of intoxicating drinks. The only place that gave a majority against the by-law was Young's Point, was 82 against and 37 for.

For the County Council in the division constituting Smith, Ennismore and North Monaghan, two Smith men were elected—S. Stinson and H. G. Garbutt. Had only one man entered the field from Ennismore that township would have doubtless claimed one. The vote of the two successful candidates are :—

THE POSTULANTS WERE RECEIVED

Impressive Ceremony Performed at Mount St. Joseph.

MANY FRIENDS PRESENT.

Rev. Father McColl Delivered Sermon on "Excellence of Religious Life"—The Names of the Nine Postulants Bishop O'Connor Performed Ceremony.

An impressive ceremony took place at Mount St. Joseph this morning at nine o'clock when nine postulants received the habit of the Sisters of St. Joseph. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, performed the ceremony of reception and was assisted by Rev. Father Kline, of Brock, in Toronto Diocese; Rev. Father Joseph O'Sullivan, of Victoria Road, Rev. Father McColl, Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Rev. Father John O'Brien and Rev. Father Galvin.

The ceremony was attended by quite a large number of friends and relatives of those who were received. The altar was beautifully decorated and the music which had been specially prepared by the Sisters, added greatly to the effect of the occasion. Rev. Father McColl preached the sermon. In it he pointed to the excellence of the religious life and its superiority over the secular life on account of its works of charity—such as taking care of children who have no parents and administering to the aged and the friendless. By their many deeds of self-sacrifice, those who were consecrated to a religious life, performed a great benefit for society. This was accomplished much better when they had taken the solemn oath of poverty, obedience and chastity. Toward this end, the postulants who were being received will remain two years in preparation. Rev. Father McColl impressed the duties and responsibilities of the holy office to which they have been set apart.

The names in the world and in religion of those who were received this morning are respectively as follows:

Miss Bridget Ryan, Pembroke—Sister Mary Celestine.

Miss Anna Phelan, Pembroke—Sister Mary Hildegarde.

Miss Sarah Donlon, Sault Ste. Marie—Sister Mary Regis.

Miss Elizabeth Markle, Thessalon—Sister Mary Constanse.

Miss Gertrude Markle, Thessalon—Sister Mary Marberta.

Miss Mary Lonergan, Warkworth—Sister Mary Mercedes.

Miss Helen Duai, Campbellford—Sister Mary Ursula.

Miss Alice McCabe, Grafton—Sister Mary Mildred.

Miss Mary Daly, Beaverton—Sister Mary Christine.

Great January Sale

—WHITEWEAR—

COTTONS, SHEETINGS, PILLOW CASES, QUILTS, EMBROIDERIES.

For January, the white month, we are offering special inducement in white goods. This store will be overflowing with BARGAINS. It will be a month of unprecedented Bargains.

A FAIR WITNESS

Many women gratify their taste for the beautiful by wearing the finest of lingerie, much of it hand-made, but more from our ready-to-wear stock. Here you will find a full assortment of Night Gowns, Skirts, Drawers and Corset Covers, in beautiful profusion. Our display delights tasteful women.

YOU'LL BE PROUD

Our Whitewear is pretty enough to satisfy almost any one. The garments are well made, some have elaborate trimmings. Some are quite plain. But they are all unusually nice, and are unquestionably destined to be popular. We would like you to see them while the assortment is unbroken. The prices are no less attractive than the goods.

BARGAINS IN GOODS BY THE YARD

To-day we began a great sale of White materials by the yard, for the special benefit of those who make up their own Whitewear, Sheets, Pillow Cases, &c.

Many women make good use of the month of January for this purpose, as the long winter evenings and dull days at home grow monotonous without something to do.

FOR HOME SEWING

Ladies who do their own sewing, or who have it done at home, will be interested in the price reductions we have made in all the articles that make needle work and mending less of labor and care.

White Cottons, Cambrics, Long Cloths, Sheetings, Pillow Cottons, Table Linens, Napkins, Embroideries, Laces and all the other little things that are used in home sewing come in for their share of these price reductions.

We want you to come and see these genuine reductions as it is almost impossible to enumerate them.

THE PIANO BACK.

Drape It and Make It a Musical Picture Gallery.

Strictly speaking, a piano should never masquerade as anything but a musical instrument if it is possible to maintain its individuality. If the top is used for bric-a-brac, when the piano is played the vibrations of the vases or pottery will be in another key, and the result will be discordant.

The only time when it is permissible for the upright piano to masquerade is when the arrangement of a room or a suit makes it necessary to have the instrument placed with its back to the larger part of the room. In this case the treatment of the piano back may be made as artistic as the ingenuity of the owner can devise.

An artistic idea is shown in the illustration. Drape the back gracefully, and in the center under the flowing folds set pictures of musical subjects framed in Gothic style. Fra Angelico's angels are always appropriate. Some of these pictures come in colors with a gilt background and are exquisite framed with a gilt mat and a narrow gilt molding. When the curtains are gracefully draped about the pictures the effect is very artistic.—Good Housekeeping.

Creams and Fats.

Animal fats like lanolin have a tendency to increase the growth of hair, and some fats coarsen the skin. Therefore use so far as possible the vegetable oils. Those who are inclined to have hair on the lip should rub very little with oils of any kind. Dry skin should have creams, but little benzoin, while for greasy skins this is one of the best of facial dressings. Common cream, either sweet or sour, is a fine cosmetic. The use of rain water will be found helpful to all skins, whatever their texture.

Women Wear Too Much.

In a lecture to the young women who have entered the London School of Medicine For Women Miss Murdoch, L. R. C. P., said:

"Most women wear too much. Three layers, including the dress, seem to me all that is necessary, though I have counted as many as twelve. Then I should advise you not to wear jewelry. Rings, bangles and chains are so many germ traps. Tight lacing or lacing at all should be avoided."

Airing a Room.

In airing a room there are two things to be remembered—first, that the impure air must be allowed to escape, and, second, that fresh air must be admitted. Impure air in a room is always warm and will therefore rise toward the ceiling, when it will escape if the window be opened at the top, while cold, fresh air will enter through the lower part of the window if given a chance.

Scrub Cloths.

Nothing makes a better scrub cloth than old stockings or socks. When too far gone to mend cut them open, lay two seams together and run by hand or machine till you have made a square. Cut off all loose ends. They are excellent also for use with a mop handle, taking up the water thoroughly and with little exertion.

IN A CANNIBAL CAMP.

Banquet Prepared From the Victims of Savage Warfare.

Returned to their old home after twenty years spent in educating natives of darkest Africa in the great benefits to be gained from Christianity, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mead, who are visiting with Dr. Babbitt, tell strange tales of cannibals and struggles in savage Africa that drive fear into the hearts of the uninitiated.

Mr. Mead said: "In Malange, a part of Angola, Africa, we worked among the Kimbundu tribe, one of the most intelligent of the African races. About a hundred miles north of the main village of the Kimbundus is a large cannibal camp, at which one of the men in my party had an experience he does not care to repeat.

"The man had been sent with presents to the chief of the cannibal tribe. Now, if a cannibal chief does not accept a gift it is time for the gift giver to beware. Our man's gift of cloth was refused.

"On leaving the chief's hut our man noticed a number of human heads on poles and came across a big pot in which was simmering a stew. To his horror he found it contained human hands, shinbones and other parts of the body.

"A little cannibal girl volunteered the cheerful information that the stew was made of victims of a war and that unless our man took care he would flavor the stew for the morrow.

"At that our man thought out a plan. He went to the chief and told him that, seeing he was at war with a tribe, he would need powder and that if the chief would allow him to go back to the village he would furnish his men with powder. The chief fell into the trap and allowed the man to escape.

"Our man got his comrades together and told them their lives depended upon reaching their homes as soon as possible. Needless to say they escaped, pursued by a band of cannibals, who soon gave up the chase.

"It is only during times of war that the cannibals eat human flesh. At other times they are like any other savage people."

Morton Pushed Him Through.

Paul Morton, secretary of the navy, is the youngest and most hustling member of the cabinet. It has been noted in his department that he makes decisions and reaches conclusions with lightning rapidity, apparently acting on intuition. A few days ago Samuel W. Bogan, son of a Washington physician, secured an interview with the secretary and without the slightest preliminary said: "Mr. Morton, I have been trying to get in the marine corps for almost four years. I can't get anybody to back me up, but I am very much in love with the service, and I would try mighty hard to make a good officer and serve the United States well." The secretary looked the young applicant over from head to foot—Bogan afterward said he felt as if somebody had turned an X ray apparatus on him—and asked, "Were you ever designated before?" "No, sir," said Bogan. "I'll designate you tomorrow," said the secretary. "Thank you. Good morning," said Bogan, bowing himself out. Needless to say, Mr. Morton kept his word.

Are Your Nerves on Edge?

ARE YOU SENSITIVE TO LIGHT, SOUND AND MOTION? YOU NEED

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Twitching of the nerves, sudden starting, tenderness of the scalp or spine headache at top or back of head, noises in the ears, sparks before the eyes, sleeplessness, dyspepsia, pains and cramps, neuralgia, timidity, irritability, melancholy, physical weakness and general debility are among the symptoms of nervous exhaustion.

You may look well enough and still be a victim of nervous prostration but can do little with either mind or body without becoming greatly fatigued.

Good food, pure air, suitable rest, and the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will thoroughly overcome the most extreme case of nervous exhaustion and prostration.

We need only to refer you to such extreme cases as those of Mrs. James Miles sen., of South Woodslee, Ont. Mrs. R. W. Edwards, 33 Murray st., Brantford, Ont., of Mr S. Cloutier of 110 Laguchetiere street, Montreal, cases in which regular physicians were entirely unable to render assistance.

Use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly, and it will not be long before the wasting process will be overcome and the work of reconstruction begun. Note your increase in weight as strength and vigor are being restored.

Mrs. J. Hatrbor, 224 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., and whose husband is a moulder at the Hamilton Foundry, states:

"I had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism which left me in a very run down state of health, and in fact my whole nervous system seemed exhausted and worn out. I could not sleep, and at times the pains in my head were almost unbearable. As a result of these symptoms I was unable to attend to my housework, and I felt miserable most of the time. On the advice of a friend I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that it has proved of very great benefit to me. I am able to do my own work now, and feel healthier and stronger than I have for years. I can truthfully state that this is due to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I consider a great health builder."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"And how am I to believe this, after the way in which you have deceived me? Most probably she is only waiting for you to join her," said George, very angrily.

"I only wish it were so. I will not hide the truth from you; I did everything I could to induce her to leave her home with me, and her answer came this morning. It was a letter of farewell; a letter to tell me that she would see me no more, though for my sake —"

"I understand," said George, bitterly; "for your sake she would leave her husband, lose her good name! So she told me. You ought to be content, sir, with the mischief you have done, with the misery you have brought about!"

"I feel my wrong-doing as deeply as you do, Mr. Gifford. I have no excuse except this—I have cared for her; I do care for her as I shall care for no other woman, and for this reason I have come to you. She has gone away alone, gone into poverty. She must be found—she can not be left, perhaps to starve."

"Perhaps not," retorted George, scornfully, for he was remembering Anna Lindsay's words. "Perhaps you know better where to find her than I do, Sir Ralph Woodland, and probably you will not let her starve!"

"I swear I do not know where to find her!" cried Ralph, passionately, and his dark face flushed. "Would that I did; but I will try to find her: I will leave no stone unturned. Believe me or not as you will, I am now speaking the truth."

And without another word he turned away, leaving George in a miserable state of uncertainty and doubt.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The same day Sir Ralph Woodland went up to town, and the day after George Gifford did so also. They both went to seek the same woman, and they both, naturally, went to the publisher of her first novel.

This gentleman, Mr. Brook, received them civilly, but declared to each that he was quite unacquainted with Mrs. Gifford's present address.

"She has been writing another book," said George. "Did she send it to you?"

"No," replied the publisher, smiling; "but I shall be very happy to receive it when she does."

"Her first book did well, I suppose?" asked George.

"Fairly well," answered the publisher, still smiling, and rubbing his hands together. "But we forwarded Mrs. Gifford an exact account of the sales, etc., about three weeks ago. Mrs. Gifford's share of the profits amounted to a fairly respectable sum."

George made no answer to this. He stood thinking. Laura had never mentioned having received this money from the publisher. This looked as though her flight had been for some time premeditated, he was reflecting.

However, he got no information from Mr. Brook; nor did Sir Ralph. George then went to a private inquiry office, and finally to the police. He offered one hundred pounds for the discovery of his wife, and he also had Sir Ralph Woodland's movements watched. He stayed in town more than a week, and was then recalled to Suffold by the illness of his father. It had been a great shock to old Mr. Gifford to learn that his daughter-in-law had left her home; and during George's absence Anna Lindsay had tried her best to poison her uncle's ears regarding Laura.

"She is with Sir Ralph Woodland, uncle," she repeated. "George is wasting his time seeking her. The whole thing was planned before she left here."

This was also the general opinion in the little town, and, through her mother, the report reached Lady Danvers, who was genuinely grieved to hear it. She had noticed Sir Ralph was attentive to Laura while she was at the Park, and his having bought Harewood Sir Richard Danvers thought strange.

"What did he want with it, when he had such a fine place of his own?" asked the jovial baronet of his wife. "La, I'm afraid your handsome authoress has not turned out well."

As for the vicar's family, they heard of and talked of Mrs. George Gifford's disappearance with the utmost interest, and even excitement. Mrs. Masterman's opinion was that Laura's head had been upset by her visit to Danvers Park, and that she had ran away with Sir Ralph Woodland, because she hoped finally to induce him to marry her, and thus rise in life.

"But he never will," affirmed the senior curate's wife, with satisfaction. "George Gifford, I suppose, will get a divorce, and then Sir Ralph Woodland will throw her over, and serve her right."

But George Gifford did not seek to get a divorce; in fact, he had no grounds to go on. His wife had left him because she did not love him, but he had no proof whatever that she was with any one else. Sir Ralph Woodland was living alone at a hotel in town, he easily ascertained, but the private inquiry men whom he employed to watch him could discover nothing more. In fact, it seemed as though both Laura and Sir Ralph had spoken the truth, George began to think, and that Laura had kept where she was living a secret alike from Sir Ralph and himself.

Of course Anna Lindsay tried to combat this idea. For one thing she did not believe it, and that any woman should leave her husband and a comfortable home for the sake of a romantic feeling for another man was a matter utterly incomprehensible to Anna Lindsay's mind.

But though George said very little about it, he was yet deeply indignant at Laura's conduct, and this feeling was certainly not unnatural. Himself a good-looking man, he could not understand why Laura had not loved him. He had always been kind to her, he told himself, and she owed him so much; and to expose him to remark and annoyance was, at least, exceedingly ungrateful on her part.

In this unsettled state of affairs three months passed away at Red House, and nothing more had been heard of Laura. People had almost ceased to talk of her at Suffold, and the Gifford family went on very much the same as before George's marriage. But George kept himself in communication with the police, and also a strict surveillance was maintained by his orders on Sir Ralph Woodland's movements.

In the meantime Sir Ralph had never ceased in his efforts to trace Laura. After going to Mr. Brook, the publisher of her first novel, and learning nothing there, he had called on Mr. Valentine Ross, the editor of the society magazine where her first story had appeared, for which in reality Sir Ralph himself had paid. Mr. Ross received him pleasantly, though he instantly thought of the transaction with Miss Laura Ingram and the story, which he had never yet paid for. But he was not disconcerted.

"Ah, Sir Ralph," he said, rising, as Sir Ralph was ushered into the room; "exceedingly glad to see you. I hope you have brought me another story from that handsome young woman in whom you were so interested. By the by, where is she now?"

Sir Ralph fixed his keen dark eyes on the pink smiling face before him as Mr. Ross said this, but Mr. Ross' blue eyes never flickered.

"That is a question I was about to ask you," answered Sir Ralph.

"Me?"

"Yes. Has she during the last few weeks offered you any of her work?"

"Certainly she has not, for if she had I should have taken it. That story we published of hers was above the average; yes, decidedly above the average."

"And you have had no further communication with her?"

"Not for months and months. By the by, she called here one day and thanked me for paying her so promptly."

And Mr. Ross laughed and showed his white teeth.

"She told me about that; what made you tell her?" said Sir Ralph, grimly.

"My dear fellow, I did not tell her," replied Mr. Ross, with another laugh. "I only advised her always to be paid through Sir Ralph Woodland; and very good advice too. She told me you had given her five pounds: what she really should have was three pounds ten. Will you have it now?"

"There is no hurry about it," said Sir Ralph, yet more grimly; and then he rose and began walking slowly up and down the editor's office. "And you have never heard from her since?" he presently asked.

"Yes; she sent me one other story, but I was full up at that time; and besides, her first story had not then been published, so I declined the second one; but if you have brought it now —"

"I wish I had. An extraordinary thing has happened, Ross. The young lady you knew as Miss Ingram married —"

"Married!" said Mr. Ross, raising his light eyebrows.

"Yes, and she has now left her husband; and she is keeping where she lives a secret from her friends. This is why I came to you. I came to inquire if she had brought any work to you, for she must intend, I believe, to live by her pen."

"Ah," said Mr. Ross, and a thoughtful expression passed over his fair face.

"I thought it not unlikely that she would come to you—and she may. Ross, if she does will you do me a favor? Will you give me her address?"

Mr. Ross looked yet more thoughtful.

"What if she binds me to secrecy?" he asked.

"Even if she binds you to secrecy," urged Sir Ralph. "Look, Ross, I will give anything to find out her address. You may name your own price."

"You think every man has his price, then?" smiled Mr. Ross.

"It is a matter of life and death to me to know where she is," continued Sir Ralph, vehemently. "She has left her home—partly through me. I feel myself to blame; so if she comes here, Ross—"

Only a Little Cold often Develops Into Catarrh.

Colds are dangerous things to trifle with. They hang on and on, and people keep putting off curing them, until that stuffy feeling in the nose proclaims that catarrh has developed. Stop the cold while it is only a cold. Japanese Catarrh Cure instantly relieves "cold in the head." The balmy, aromatic pomade soothes and heals the inflamed surfaces, clears the air passages, and arrests the development of the trouble. The treatment is so pleasant and so simple, that Japanese Catarrh Cure holds first place in thousands of homes throughout the Dominion.

Mr. Alex. McRae of New Westminster, B.C., writes—"I was for some weeks suffering from a cold in the head, which was apparently developing into Catarrh. I purchased a box of Japanese Catarrh Cure and in less than two days, the trouble entirely disappeared. I can highly recommend it: the first application relieves."

All druggists sell it at 50c. a box or six for $2.50.

LOST LIFE, SAVED GIRL

Season's First Skating Fatality in Burlington Bay.

Sergt. Fletcher Drowned Gave His Life On Saturday Afternoon to Save His Companion Miss Jessie Gray—Latter Had a Terrible Experience Before She Got to Shore After Her Deliverer Had Sank.

Hamilton, Jan. 3.—Thomas Arthur Fletcher, 161 Elgin street, a clerk in Balfour & Co.'s office, gave his life Saturday to save his companion, Miss Jessie Gray, 16 South Wellington street, a bookkeeper, employed by the Wright Hat Company. They started out in the afternoon to skate across the bay to the Brant House. About a mile from the hotel they skated on a piece of rotten ice and both went through. Fletcher helped Miss Gray out and then sank, never coming to the surface again until his body was recovered at noon on New Year's day.

Miss Gray had a terrible experience before she got to the shore. She fell into another hole while trying to make her way to the shore. Walter Filman, who saw the mishap, ran from the shore, and after great difficulty rescued her. Both were so exhausted that they became unconscious, and had to be helped to land by Filman's father.

Fletcher was a color-sergeant in F Co., 13th Regiment, and president of the Sergeants' Mess. He was 22 years of age. P. C. Walsh and Hillard Walsh of the fire department are half brothers. He will be buried with military honors to-morrow.

Killed By a Train.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 3.—Louis Pacaud of St. Henri, who went to River Beaudette to pay a New Year's visit to his daughter, was killed by being run over by a Grand Trunk train.

Kills His Brother.

Marmora, Jan. 3.—Saturday afternoon two brothers named Duvall were out hunting. The elder brother walked ahead with a rifle on his shoulder full cocked. It struck against the limb of a tree and was discharged. The bullet struck the younger brother in the forehead killing him instantly.

G.T.R. Cleaner Killed.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 3.—William Pippard, a G.T.R. cleaner, was instantly killed Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, his head being crushed between the vestibule of two passenger coaches that were being pulled out of the steam track.

Donald McTaggart Takes His Life.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Almost at the completion of a trip for his health and seemingly cured of the nervous disease which afflicted him, Donald McTaggart of London, committed suicide by poisoning Saturday evening. A fit of melancholy, as a result of nervous prostration, is given as a reason for the deed. Mr. McTaggart is a man of about 50 years of age and is widely known and well related in London. He took carbolic acid at 185 Jarvis street in this city, during the absence of his son.

OPERATIONS NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY.

Doctors Frequently Mistaken.

"I suffered untold agony with piles for over three years. Two doctors told me nothing but an operation would cure me. I tried different remedies, but nothing did me any good until I used Pyramid Pile Cure. I bought six fifty cent boxes at the drug store, and now I can do my work and go out, where before I spent most of my time lying down. I thank God for giving the discoverer the knowledge to make such a cure. I recommend it to all my friends, and if I ever have piles again will certainly use this remarkable remedy. You can use this in any way you wish to make known the wonderful merit of Pyramid Pile Cure." Mrs. Wm. Mucky, 81 Marshall street, Elizabeth, N. J.

The experience of this lady is that of thousands of others who have been assured that nothing short of an operation would rid them of this distressing complaint. On the face of it, it appears as if too many surgeons operate in order that they may keep their hand in, and lose no portion of their skill; then, again too many surgeons are anxious to experiment (like the scientific man in Mark Twain's pathetic story of the dog and her little puppy), and do not have proper regard for a patient's physical welfare or condition.

We advise every sufferer to think twice before submitting to an operation for piles, and suggest that those interested write to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book on the causes and cure of piles, which is sent free for the asking.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Ontario Towns and Cities Make Progressive Moves.

St. Thomas Decides to Own and Operate Its Own Gas Plant—Clarke, Hullette and Smith Townships Decide to Do Away With the Bars—Mayors Elected in the Cities and the Towns of the Province.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—The municipal elections held throughout the Province yesterday resulted in many public improvements receiving the endorsation of the ratepayers in many town and cities. The spirit of public ownership shows signs of vigorous growth in several instances. St. Thomas, among the cities, takes a progressive stand for it has decided to take in the gas plant owned by a private corporation, and run it as a civic enterprise.

In Toronto the exhibition bylaw, the fire protection bylaw and the $700 exemption bylaw were carried by large majorities.

At St. Mary's a bylaw to guarantee the bonds of the St. Mary's Quarry Co. for $30,000 was defeated.

At Guelph the bylaw for $80,000 to extend and improve the street railway and buy a park carried. The bylaw for $23,000 to enlarge the Collegiate Institute was defeated. The bylaw for $7,000 to put in a new filter and improve the waterworks carried.

At Lindsay the bylaw to raise $20,000 to instal a water filtering plant was defeated 504 to 105, in favor of the alternative plan of sinking artesian wells.

Carnegie Bumped.

At Perth the bylaw for a free library was defeated by 9 majority. The Carnegie library bylaw was defeated by 43 majority.

At Seaforth a bylaw to loan the Canada Furniture Manufactory $20,000 for 20 years carried.

At the Village of Caledonia the bylaw to bonus a canning factory was defeated.

At Tilsonburg the bylaw to bonus the Wind Motor Co. was carried.

At Thorold the waterworks bylaw was carried.

At Picton a bylaw to exempt the Picton Business College from taxation for 10 years was carried.

At Kincardine bylaws for a free library and for the extension of the high school were carried.

Cornwall Goes Ahead.

At Cornwall two bylaws were carried. One was to grant $8,000 for high school improvements and the other $5,000 for waterworks extensions.

At Berlin the ratepayers carried a bylaw to raise $65,000 to pay certain damage claims and to extend the sewage disposal plant.

At Chatham a bylaw to aid the Defiance Iron Works carried, as did also a bylaw to build a new market building to cost $41,000.

At Stratford bylaws to provide $50,000 for waterworks, $700 for sewage disposal and $3,000 for a mortuary chapel carried.

Ottawa's Movement.

At Ottawa the street railway bylaw was defeated.

At Petrolea the bylaw to establish a gas plant was defeated.

At Belleville a bylaw to borrow $10,000 to improve the waterworks carried.

At St. Thomas the bylaw for the city to purchase the gas plant was carried.

Local option played no inconsiderable part in the elections in at least five municipalities. Local option bylaws carried in Clarke township, Durham County; in Hullette township, Huron County, and Smith township, Peterboro County. Clinton defeated the local option bylaw and the town elections in Blenheim were run on a local option basis, resulting in the defeat of the temperance candidates all along the line.

GAMEY AT BRANTFORD.

Man From Manitoulin Creates Enthusiasm in the Telephone City.

Brantford, Jan. 3.—R. R. Gamey, the man from Manitoulin, drew an immense audience to the armories here last night in the interest of W. S. Brewster, the Conservative candidate for South Brant. Seldom indeed has a political gathering in this city been attended with such enthusiasm and such manifestation of loyalty to the Conservative choice.

Mr. Gamey spoke for nearly two hours, and was frequently interrupted by loud applause. "It was quite evident from the reception Mr. Gamey received that his story created a deep impression upon the electors present.

Dropped Dead.

Winnipeg, Jan. 3.—J. J. McKeen, harness maker of Portage La Prairie, who registered at the Grand Union Hotel, Brandon, as from Stanley, Alberta, dropped dead while taking off his boots in his room Sunday night.

HAVE HAD THEIR DAY.

Old Fashioned Medicines For Catarrh No Longer In Vogue.

For many years past the usual treatment for catarrh diseases was with local douches, sprays, inhalers and liquid medicines composed principally of alcohol, all of which never cured but simply give the temporary relief and stimiliation.

A thorough cure can be made only by the treatment which removes the catarrhal poisons from the blood.

"A new remedy which meets the requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membrane only.

They can hardly be classed as a secret patent medicine as they are composed of such valuable remedies as blood root, Hydrastin, red gum of Eucalyptus tree and similar antiseptics, combined in tablet form which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous membrane the poisons of catarrh.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant lozenges, to be taken internally, allowing them to dissolve in the mouth, thus reaching the throat, trachea and finally the stomach.

If desired they may also be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However when there is much stopping of the nose a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use internally will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche.

Dr. Bennett stated "that the internal treatment of catarrh by means of pleasant medicated tablets is rapidly taking the place of douches and local applications" and further says that "probably the best, and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition and all the really efficient catarrh remedies are concentrated in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cts. for full sized package, and he will tell you there is no safer more palatable, efficient and convenient catarrh cure known to the trade.

JUDGE ROSS PASSES AWAY.

At the Age of Ninety-One He Died At Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—Judge William Aird Ross died Saturday afternoon at his home here. He was 91 years of age and had been in declining health for some time. Previous to being called to the bar in 1876, he practised law as a partner of the Hon. R. W. Scott. He retired from the bench just seven years ago Saturday. He is survived by his widow, whom he married in September, 1900. Only one son by his first wife survives, H. J. Ross, civil engineer, Ottawa.

Baby Eczema

"My daughter was afflicted with eczema when from three weeks old. Her entire face and head were raw, and she was in awful distress. When doctors failed we began the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which has entirely cured her and she has never had the least symptom of the trouble since."—Mr. Patrick Sullivan, Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont.

Hisses When He Kills.

"The Filipino," said a young Philadelphian whose term of service in the army has expired and who is glad to get back home, "is a curious mixture of the human being and the reptile. I think, however, that the reptile predominates. The Filipino can crawl noiselessly on his stomach, just as a snake can, and most of the human attributes are lacking in his makeup. But the thing that impressed me most was the snakelike hiss that he invariably makes before he strikes. This seems to be just as instinctive with him as it is with a snake. There is a sharp indrawn breath that comes as a warning and gives a man a second's time to drop flat or to throw up an arm if the antagonist is within striking distance with a knife. That hiss, though, is not restricted to the Filipinos. I am told that it is characteristic of all orientals."

The Bismarck Bluntness.

Prince Herbert Bismarck, whose death deprives the family dynasty of its only grownup representative, took after his famous father in bluntness of speech. When the great chancellor was dismissed Count Herbert followed his father into retirement and was at once struck from the list of the emperor's friends. At the death of the elder Bismarck the son journeyed to Berlin to return to his majesty the orders of the first chancellor, and the emperor is said to have observed in the most friendly way, "Ah, Herbert, how long it is since I have had the pleasure of seeing you." "Whose fault is that?" was Prince Herbert's grim reply to this greeting.

Mr. Wyman N. Thomas, Ompah, Addington, Co., Ont., writes:—"My wife had congestion of the lungs, along with other troubles, and became very weak and run down. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food she was made as strong and as well as ever. Of course I had a doctor, but she was weak, and it was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which built her up."

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Beavers played a fast game of hockey on the river Monday with the Aberdeens, the score being 2—2. The line up was as follows—

Beavers		Aberdeens
B. Halpin	Goal	B. Wade
W. Worboy	Point	W. Clancy
J. McNirn	Cover Point	A. Harrison
L. Johnston	Centre	E. Harrison
G. Rose	Rover	J. Seymour
G. Gagnon	Left Wing	S. Harrison
G. Hawley	Right Wing	H. Bellegbem

Referee, H. Staunton. Goal umpires, F. Scriber, B. Halpin.

The Beavers Hockey Club challenges any team in town under sixteen.

J. McNirn and G. Gagnon did the playing for the Beavers, while J. Seymour and A. Harrison were the stars for the Aberdeens.

The "Happy Thoughts" do hereby challenge "Hall's Souvenirs" to a a game of hockey to be played in the Brock-st. rink as soon as the ice can be procured.

The Aberdeens organised their regular team last evening and elected the following officers—Pres., Hon. J. R. Stratton; Manager, H. Staunton; Sec. Treas., C. Ray; Capt., E. Harrison; Mascot, C. Brown. The team is open to challenge any team in town, average age 15, Young Nationals preferred. Keep both eyes on the Aberdeens.

TRENT VALLE YLEAGUE.

The Sub-Committee of the Trent Valley League met on Saturday and arranged the districts for the season. There will not be as many teams as last year or was expected at the annual meeting. However, there promises to be at least ten teams and the quality of hockey will likely be of a better class than in any previous year. The districts were arranged as follows:—

No. 1—Picton, Belleville, Brighton, Colborne.

No. 2—Cobourg, T.A.S., Campbellford, Keene.

No. 3—Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls.

Convener of No. 1 is Mr. Frank Boulter, of Picton. They meet on Wednesday night.

The schedule for No 2 has been arranged and is as follows:—

Jan. 10—Cobourg at T.A.S.
Jan. 10—Campbellford at Keene.
Jan. 12—T.A.S. at Campbellford.
Jan. 12—Keene at Cobourg.
Jan 16—Keene at T.A.S.
Jan. 16—Campbellford at Cobourg.
Jan. 19—Cobourg at Campbellford. T.A.S. at Keene.
Jan. 24—Cobourg at Keene.
Jan. 24—Jan. at T.A.S.
Jan. 24—Campbellford at T.A.S.
Jan. 26—Keene at Campbellford.
Jan. 26—T.A.S. at Cobourg.

Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon in No. 3 will arrange their own games. First round must be played off by Feb. 1. It will be noticed that Port Hope has withdrawn and Peterborough and Lindsay failed to put in teams.

CURLING.

The President vs. Vice-President match was very evenly contested yesterday. The President was 4 points up with one game to play at 6 o'clock, but, alas! Skip R. J. Winch for the Vice-President, blasted the President's ambition by defeating Skip Bellegbem by 7 points in a game marked by particularly good play and an interested lot of spectators. The scores are held over until to-morrow.

ITALIAN MEANT TO MAKE GASH

Pulled Knife on John Montgomery and Chas. Butcher.

CAPTURED BY THE POLICE

Had Thrown Away Knife But it was Found on Market Square—Attack Was Unprovoked.

Mr. John Montgomery and Mr. Chas. Butcher had an experience with an Italian last night. They were coming up George street, and at Charlotte street corner Mr. Butcher spoke to a man whom he took to be a moulder of his acquaintance from Peter Hamilton's. The man muttered something, and turning about, Mr. Butcher asked him what he had said. The Italian swore in English, and pulling a knife made for the men. They backed away, and every time he made a lunge one of them them kicked out. To have closed with the foreigner would probably have meant a gash.

Approaching McCallum's restaurant Mr. Butcher managed to get inside, and telephoned for the police. The Italian now walked away, but Butcher watched him. He was crossing the market square when Officer McGinty came along and nabbed him. At the police station the Italian's face donned a broad grin as he said, "Me no knife." He had apparently thrown the weapon away. It could not be found last night, but this morning Teddy Guerin picked up the weapon as he was crossing the market square. It is a murderous looking, typical clasp knife.

The foreigner was arraigned in court today and remanded until Thursday.

BOTH TEAMS LOST AWAY FROM HOME

The Seniors Defeated in Exhibition Game at Smith's Falls.

JUNIORS LOSE TO BELLEVILLE

Smith's Falls Won the Exhibition Game by 14-4—Bay City Successful by 7-5—Two Games in Which Peterborough Teams Made a Good Showing.

Both the local O.H.A. teams wandered away from home yesterday, and both were defeated. The seniors visited Smith's Falls, where they clashed with the senior O.H.A. team in an exhibition game and went down to defeated by a score of 14—5. The juniors opened the O.H.A. series with a game in Belleville, losing after a hard contest by 7—5.

The seniors played a far better game than the score indicates. They worked hard all the way through and with any kind of luck would have scored more often. The first half was all in favor of Smith's Falls, who lead at half time by by 10—1.

Peterborough, however, woke up in the next period and scored four while the bunch from the north also landed 4. There was a large attendance at the game. The referee was fairly satisfactory to Peterborough, and they have nothing bad to say about him. The Peterborough goals were scored by Morgan, Parnell, Graham and Cavanah.

The first 20 minutes of the game was played with six men a side, as the visitors had to receive permission from the O.H.A. before playing Fed. Whitcroft. All the team showed up well and appeared to be in the best of condition. They will give Port Perry the game of their lives on Friday night when they meet in the first intermediate O.H.A. game.

THE JUNIOR GAME.

The juniors put up a great game in Belleville. They had an attack of stage fright in the first half, and Belleville lead at half time by 5—0, but in the second period they struct their gait and scored five goals to Belleville's none. The game was one of the fastest junior contests seen in Belleville for some time. The bad light bothered the Peterborough defence, and two of Belleville's goals were scored on long lifts which "Fits" lost sight of in the game. In the second half Peterborough got their combination into working order, scoring five, only hard luck keeping them from winning out. Three of their shots in the seond half hit the goal posts. "Sandy" Burrows, of Belleville, refereed.

The line-up was as follows:—

Goal—Fitzpatrick.
Point—Moore.
Cover Point—Long.
Rover—McWilliams.
Centre—McFarlane.
Right Wing—Smith.

Great interest is being taken in Thursday night's City League games, when probably the four strongest teams in the league will be on the ice.

The O.H.A. season will open here on Friday night, when Port Perry will play the seniors.

The Guild League will open to-morrow evening when a double-header will be played at the All Saints' rink. In the first contest at 7.30 George-st. and Charlotte-st. meet, while All Saints' and St. John's will be the contestants in the second.

The first home game for the juniors will be on Tuesday, January 11, when Belleville will be the opposing team.

The Peterboroughs will not practice to-night, having exchanged with the T.A.S., who will go on to-night. There will be a big practice to-morrow night.

The George-st. Guild and B.A.C. met in a fast contest at the Brock-st. rink last evening. The B.A.C. won after a hard game by 5—2, the half time score being 3—0. The teams lined up as follows:—

Moore	Goal	Craig
Wood	Point.	Metheral
Campbell	Coverpoint.	Weekes
Jolliffe	Rover.	Mann
Best	Centre	Brownscombe
Jamieson	Right Wing	Kendry
Dobbin	Left Wing	Cressman

A large crowd saw the Young Nationals defeat the Aberdeens in a lightning contest at the Brock-st. rink yesterday morning.

The teams were as follows:—

Aberdeens.		Young Nationals.
S. Wade	Goal	L. Giroux
E. Fox	Point	C. Conroy
S. Ray	Coverpoint.	K. Pentland
C. Leah	Rover	G. Campbell
E. Harrison	Centre	D. Giroux
V. Carten	Right Wing	E. Coughlin
H. Harrison	Left Wing	J. German

Served Its Purpose.

"A certain cadi of Bagdad had been in his youth a fisherman, and, to keep himself in mind of his humble origin, there was always spread upon his dinner table a huge fishing net.

"People admired the cadi for this exhibition of humility. He was rich, and his house was sumptuous. But, amid all that elegance, the net, the sign of the man's lowly birth, was always prominently displayed.

"The story of the net spread through the city and finally reached the ears of the caliph. He, in due time, sent for the cadi, took him into his favor and made him his grand vizier.

"'Thus,' said Haroun al Raschid, 'we reward humility.'

"From the day of his appointment the grand vizier ceased to exhibit his fishing net. It disappeared, and it was never spoken of.

"Once, though, a visitor, a man of considerable impudence, said to the vizier:

"'Why is it, my lord, that your net is no longer spread upon your table?'

"The vizier smiled and quietly replied:

"'It has caught the fish.'"

Louis Napoleon's Title.

It has been said that Louis Napoleon, who assumed the imperial dignity in 1852, a year after his famous coup d'etat, was influenced in the choice of his title by a curious misconception. An enthusiastic prefect closed an official document with the words "Vive Napoleon!!!" and these three notes of exclamation were mistaken for the Roman numeral III.

Another and very similar story is to the effect that official posters appeared upon the walls of Paris headed Napoleon III. by a printer's error for Napoleon II. I.—that is to say, Napoleon II., Imperator, or emperor.

The less romantic reason is that had the son of the great Napoleon lived to succeed his father he would have been Napoleon II. and that on this ground Louis Napoleon figures as the third of that name.

Penalties of Progress.

It would almost seem as if nature resents any departure from the original mode of progression. When men rode much they developed bow legs and a jockey walk. When they took to the bicycle they put on the cycling hump and grew elongated feet. When the motor came in it modified the bicycle hump and gave us a lesser stoop, a craned neck and the motor glare.

If you will have a man well set up, normally developed and erect, as Providence intended him to be, you must bring him up on walking exercise, not, of course, the dawdling slouch of the lazy loafer, but the spirited walk of the healthy human who treads the earth as if he owned it. Here you have at hand one means of avoiding some of the penalties of progress.—London Tatler.

Alleged Origin of "Uncle Sam."

A curious version of the origin of "Uncle Sam" has been discovered in an old almanac published in Lexington, Ky., in 1814. The phrase is explained in the following words: "Uncle Sam is a cant phrase significant of the United States, as John Bull is significant of England. The origin of it seems to be this: In the year 1807 there was authorized by law the raising of a regiment of light dragoons. When the company first appeared their caps bore the letters U. S. L. D., signifying the United States Light Dragoons. A countryman, seeing the company in dress parade, asked a bystander what the letters stood for. 'Why,' was the answer, 'that means Uncle Sam's Lazy Dogs.' Since that time the use of the term has become general."—London Chronicle.

What a Hen Can Learn.

When a boy I had a fat, lively hen so educated that at my bidding she would lie on her back and slide head first down an inclined plane two or three feet in length without the slightest effort to turn upright or stop herself, and at the bottom she would remain just as she landed until I touched her or spoke to her unless interfered with by some other person or animal. Incredible as this may seem, it is a trick easily taught any gentle, affectionate hen.—L. R. Morphew in Forest and Stream.

A Messy Cook.

I c'd make a chocolate cake 'n' a king might eat off o' my cuffs 'n' collar when I was through, but what surprised me about your chocolate cake, Mrs. Lathrop, was 't you didn't get into the oven with it in the end, for I'll take my Bible oath 's you had 's much on you 's on any pan.—"Susan Clegg and Her Friend, Mrs. Lathrop," by Anne Warner.

A Beautiful Match.

"How lucky," said Mrs. Nuwed, "that I happened to pass that cigar sale this morning! These cigars are exactly the shade of George's new smoking jacket, and the smart little green bands round them will go with the lining beautifully. Men never consider these little things."

Not to Be Blamed.

"Why, Harry, how much you look like your father!" remarked a visitor to a four-year-old.

"Yes'm," answered Harry, with an air of resignation. "That's what everybody says, but I can't help it."

Friends.

Nell—Mr. Kammerer is so kind. He said I took a very pretty and very artistic picture. Bell—Indeed? And whose picture did you take, dear?

Where It Hit.

Mrs. Hobbs—Isn't that Henry practicing on his cornet? Mr. Hobbs—Partly on his cornet, but principally upon my nerve centers.

Double-Breasted Sack.

Three button,—slightly looser in the back than the single breasted — broad shoulders, long collar, long lapel. The space between the two rows of buttons is particularly wide—thus increasing the apparent size of the wearer.

The looseness is well distributed all over the coat so that no particular looseness is anywhere apparent.

This is the class of coat that makes us regular customers.

When reason overcomes prejudice—one usually first purchases a business suit; then, when experience proves the fit, style and superior shape-retaining qualities, he buys a Semi-ready Morning Coat, Frock Coat or Dress Suit, as the case may be.

Whetherit is the first purchase or the twentieth purchase, he can be assured that he will have his money back for any dissatisfaction.

ELECTIONS ELSEWHERE

OTONABEE

Mr J. Fife was elected Reeve by acclamation. Yesterday the election for Councillors resulted in the return of Messrs. John Carey, Chris. Howson, W. J. Porter and W. B. Stuart.

The following is the vote for the different Councillors, with Grady's sub-division to hear from. This, however, will not affect the result—

The vote received was John Carey 300; Chris. Howson 265, W. J Porter 265, W. B. Stuart 219, B. Humphries 123, T. J. Welsh 108, John Grady 75.

DOURO

The municipal election resulted as follows—Frank Moher, Reeve, by acclamation. For Council, B Leahy 222, J. R. Allen 207, Wm Quinlan, 206, Frank Leahy 205, M Walsh 196, David Darling 183. The first four are elected.

COUNTY COUNCIL

In the County Council Division, consisting of Douro, Dummer and Lakefield Messrs. Moloney and Webster were elected. The vote stood—Dennis Moloney 637, Thomas Webster 628, E. Hawthorne 542.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

For the Otonabee Division Messrs. T. J. Johnston and John Deyell were elected by acclamation two weeks ago, consequently there was no contest yesterday.

Card of Thanks

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I have again been returned by your votes as one of the Alderman for the town.

I thank you one and all sincerely. I shall discharge my duties as earnestly zealously and energetically in the future as in the past, and will endeavor to safeguard your interests in every way.

I take particular pleasure in the fact that the vote I received in the five wards came from all classes of the electors, and was quite representative of the whole town.

The many important questions for the betterment of the municipality which are to come up this year will have my close attention.

Yours truly,

W. J. JOHNSTON.

Card of Thanks

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I have been elected as one of your representatives on the Council Board, and I desire to take this means of acknowledging my deep debt of gratitude to those who so kindly and cheerfully supported me. I am deeply sensible of the confidence reposed in me, and will do everything in my power to earn your further endorsation by my course in the Council during the coming year, and in looking after your interests and the prosperity of the town.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, and again thanking you, I remain. Yours sincerely,

JOSEPH CROWE.

Card of Thanks

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen.—

I am deeply grateful to my many friends who gave me such hearty support in the election yesterday, and I shall do my utmost to merit the confidence reposed in me.

I did no canvassing, and therefore the votes, which I received being unsolicited, I appreciate the honor conferred upon me all the more.

Again thanking you all for your support, and wishing you the compliments of the season. I am, your obedient servant,

THOS. J. BEGLEY.

Peterborough, Jan. 3, 1905.

ADAM HALL'S Card of Thanks

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

My thanks are due and are hereby tendered to all who assisted in my election as Alderman for the city of Peterborough for the year 1905.

This renewal of confidence in my ability to assist in directing the affairs of the town, after an interval of some years, will be a fresh incentive to discharge the duties of the office in the very best general interests of greater Peterborough.

Your obedient servant,

ADAM HALL.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I desire to thank the ratepayers of Peterborough who so generously supported my candidature as Alderman, and to assure them that I will use every effort to faithfully serve the interests of the town during the year.

I appreciate the proof of confidence implied, and will earnestly try to do everything to show that such was, and is, deserved.

Yours faithfully,

JOSEPH BATTEN.

Card of Thanks

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I desire to sincerely thank the many friends and supporters, and especially the "boys," for their enthusiastic work, by placing me in such an honorable position as Alderman of this go-ahead town, and also in the confidence reposed in me by placing me so nearly at the head of the poll.

I can assure you I shall give my very best attention to the best interests of our town while I have the privilege of being your representative.

Again thanking you very heartily, I beg to remain,

Very respectfully,

G. J. TOVEY.

CORONER WILL HOLD INQUEST

Doubt Exists as to How Fatal Shooting Occurred.

ACCIDENT WAS REPORTED.

Investigation Will be Held in Order That Matter Might be Cleared Up—One Man Kills Brother.

County Constable Cochrane is in Cordova, making arrangements for holding an enquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of a man named Duval, who was shot near that place on Saturday last.

It appears that two brothers of that name were out hunting, and the elder brother was walking ahead with his rifle on his shoulder cocked. The weapon, according to a report, struck against the limb of a tree, and was discharged, the ball striking the younger brother in the forehead, killing him instantly.

Subsequent reports, however, have given rise to some doubt as to the manner in which the shooting occurred, and Coroner Gray has considered that an inquest should be held in order that the matter might be cleared up. He and County Crown Attorney Wood will go to Cordova to-morrow.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

Band will be at the Brock-st. Rink to-night.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

—There was no Police Court this morning.

—Additional local news on pages two and three.

—Mr. T. B. Chalk was elected Mayor of Port Hope by a majority of 171 over his opponent, Mr. McMullen.

Hear Mr. Gilbert Markle in violin selections at the T.A.S. concert in the Opera House Monday evening, Jan. 9th.

—Reserve this date, Monday evening, January 9th, for St. Peter's T. A.S. grand anniversary concert in the Opera House.

—Mr. Bradburn holds a meeting in the town hall, Centreville, to-night, and in the town hall, North Monaghan, to-morrow night.

—The Karnot Hockey Club will hold an "At Home" on Tuesday evening, Jan. 11th, in the Old Labor Hall, Water-st. Invitations will be out in a few days.

—Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen, of Knox College, Toronto, will be the speaker at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday at 4 p.m. as well as on the succeeding Sunday. Miss Florence C. Hall, soprano, will sing.

—The St. Peters' Total Abstinence Society have adopted a plan making it necessary that every order for all supplies or for work for the Society shall be accompanied by a slip of official notification.

—On New Year's night the inmates of a Water street boarding house surprised their hostess, Miss M. McLaughlin, by presenting her with a purse of gold. Miss McLaughlin thanked her friends for the gift.

—Mr. George Buchanan, an employe of the machine shop of the Canadian General Electric Co., had his foot caught in a planer on Saturday. His left ankle was badly lacerated. Dr. Young attended. Mr. Buchanan will not be able to resume work for some time.

—Anniversary services will be conducted in George-st. Methodist church on Sunday by Rev. Caleb Parker, of Norwood. A congregational meeting will be held on Monday, at which reports will be presented reviewing the work of the past year. A social time will also be spent.

The death occurred on Monday of William O'Donnel, the infant son of Mr. William O'Donnel, Stewart-st., aged 13 days. The death is more than ordinarily sad owing to the fact that the child's mother was buried only a week ago. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon to Douro cemetery.

—The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Anthony will sympathize with them in the loss they have sustained in the death of their infant son, Clarence Victor, aged eight months, which event occurred on Monday. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, 381 Bethune-st., to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

—Mr. Chas. O'Reilly, Secretary of the East Peterborough Farmers' Institute, has received notice from Mr. Geo. A. Putman, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, that the supplementary meetings in connection with the Institutes throughout the province had been postponed until after the Provincial elections. The dates now arranged are as folllows: Westwood, Friday, Feb. 3rd; Havelock, Saturday, Feb. 4th, Warsaw, Monday, Feb. 6th; Douro, Tuesday, Feb. 7th.

—A rumor has been circulating around town to the effect that the Canadian General Electric Company are contemplating an extensive enlargement of their present plant here during the coming summer. When seen this morning Mr. E. G. Patterson, General Superintendent of the Company, stated that, although new buildings were needed, he had not been notified of the Company's intention to erect them this year. It is probable that nothing will be done at present towards increasing the capacity of the works.

—Town Clerk Armstrong was deprived of two holidays at this season by reason of nomination and election falling on Christmas and New Year's respectively. However, one bright spot in his mass of work incidental to the municipal campaign is that his Bible class in George-st. church presented him with a handsome carving set of five pieces. The relations between the class and teacher are of the most cordial character, and Mr. Armstrong suitably acknowledged the gift.

—This is a good time to call attention to the work of the Children's Aid Society. The society's agents attend at the trials of all children under 16, inquire into their home surroundings and assist the magistrate in determining what is to be done with them. It inquires into charges of cruelty to children, and cases of extreme destitution of parents. It arranges for the transfer of children from public institutions to homes for adoption. More than 13,000 children have been thus dealt with. Anyone desiring further information as to the working of the society can obtain it from R. M. Dennistoun, the secretary; Financial aid is required, and we think that those who desire to do something for poor or neglected children will find upon inquiry that this is an excellent investment.

JAPS' BIG CAPTURE

20,000 Prisoners at Port Arthur—Will There be Settlement of War?

Special to The Review.

Tokio, Jan. 4—The Japanese captured 25,000 prisoners at Port Arthur. The total number of the inhabitants is 35,000, of which 20,000 are sick.

Tokio, Jan. 4—Gen. Nogi reports to the Army Department that on Jan. 3rd the commissioners of both the Japanese and Russian armies concluded their conference, and that from the morning of January 4th, the actual transfer of war materials at Port Arthur as property of the Japanese Government commenced.

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 4 — The Guardian hears that Count Benckendorff, Russian Ambassador in London, has gone to St. Petersburg in response to a summons from the Czar, who is most interested in the opinions of the European capitals regarding the Russian position in Manchuria. The Guardian thinks this a hopeful omen, showing a disposition on the part of the Czar to admit the feasibility of a general settlement.

SHOULD KEEP PORT

Tokio, Jan. 4—The Jiji, discussing the price paid in lives says, "We ought to keep Port Arthur in our hands as long as our Empire exists."

"Port Arthur is the key to peace in the Far East and it is our duty to keep the key in our hands."

LEATHER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Fowler celebrated the third anniversary of their marriage with a leather wedding last evening at their home, 6?6 Concession-st., Fifth Ward. About 30 guests were present and the evening was most pleasantly spent with games and other amusements. Delightful refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler received a large number of costly and beautiful presents, testifying to the esteem in which they are held.

WRAPPERS

We hear so many nice things said about our Wrappers, that we may be pardoned if we feel quite proud about them.

Our Wrapper trade during this Xmas season has been away ahead of that of any previous year.

The reason is

THEY ARE MADE WITH A WIDE SWEEP

PRETTILY TRIMMED, PRICED SO LOW THAT PEOPLE WONDER HOW THEY ARE MADE.

A pretty Wrapper is always becoming, dainty and neat.

We have them in the Japanese Kimona style, and all the popular makes.

We are showing a very nice Wrapper at a dollar, and better ones for $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, etc.

Don't delay too long in selecting your material for the free embroidery classes. You can get a better selection early than late.

REASON No 3
WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose Tea

Because of its Flavor.

Why do you buy certain varieties of fruit and vegetables? Is it not because you like the flavor of some better than others?

Flavor is the special quality which stamps one brand of food product as superior to another, and is the quality that always commands the highest price.

The delicate, fragrant flavor of Red Rose Tea is the result of scientific study and methods on the tea plantations, and in the tea testing and blending rooms.

It has what might be called a fruity taste—a rich, ripe flavor that is very pleasing to the palate—a taste you won't forget.

The Blue Label is recommended.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 4, 1905.

Rossism is not Liberalism.

Help to increase Ross' minority.

Register! Register!! Register!!!

Whitney, Bradburn, Reform and Progress.

Ross will never build up Ontario morally.

Ontario wants no more of the Ross system of frauds.

Mr. Bradburn is marching to the tune of victory.

Mr. Bradburn stands for upright, honest, progressive and clean administration.

Young man, do not forget to register. The dates are Friday, Saturday and Monday.

Attend the rally of workers in the committee rooms tonight in the interest of Mr. Bradburn.

Bradburn and Moore are candidates you can honestly cheer for. They are not wobblers.

Electors, vote for a secret ballot. Mr. Bradburn stands for this and is pledged to assist in giving it to the Province.

If several members of Ross' Cabinet can be changed without, it is claimed, any material loss to the Province, why not the whole of it?

Three weeks from today (Wednesday) will be election day. Good, hard earnest work from now and until the ballots are cast will redeem West Peterborough.

The Conservatives are accused of doing nothing but "knocking" the Ross Government. Yes; they will knock the bottom out of the whole outfit on January 25th.

And just to think that Port Arthur, which has been having about as exciting and unpleasant a time of it since February of last year, as Premier Ross, has capitulated a few days before the Ontario Grit government.

"The ballot is the medium through which the will of the Sovereign people is expressed; and who lays unholy hands upon that sacred trust is as much a traitor as he who aids the enemy of his King and his country."

The Grits are laying great stress on the wonderful convention which they held in Toronto, and about Mr. Ross' far famed, revamped, reorganised ministry. "It would," remarks the Toronto News, "have been strange if, in the hour of its trial, the Ross Government could not have assembled four thousand enthusiastic friends or less than one per cent. of the electorate. As to the Cabinet changes, how do they improve the situation? In what respect is Mr. Graham superior to Mr. Stratton, Mr. MacKay to Mr. Davis, or Mr. Charlton to Mr. Latchford? Or why should Mr. Latchford make a better Attorney-General than Mr. Gibson? And if half the experienced Ministry can be changed without danger, why not the whole of it?"

Now that the municipal elections are over and the holiday season a thing of the past, the minds of the electors naturally turn to the provincial contest, which will take place on Wednesday, the 25th. Now is the time for work, and by hard, united effort until polling day on the part of the Conservative there is little doubt but that the riding can and will be won by the party. There must be no over confidence, no false sense of security; neither must the workers be lulled to sleep by the plausible assurances, and soothing words of certain friends. It is only by indefatigable, sympathetic and co-operative effort and organization that success can be achieved. Mr. Bradburn is doing his part faithfully and well, and if the other stalwarts of the grand old party do likewise, there will be cause for general rejoicing, and the reverse which the party met with in November last will be wiped out.

Mr. Anderson in the East Riding is having the fight of his life, and he evidently realises it, judging by the number of meetings he is holding and the array of speakers he is bringing to his aid. Hon John Dryden, Hon. G. A. Graham, Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C., and others are announced to talk in his behalf and defend the record of corruption, dishonesty and weakness of the Ross administration. On the other hand Mr. Henry A. Moore, the popular Conservative candidate, is on the alert and has never ceased in his work. He has personally canvassed a large portion of the constituency and has everywhere met with flattering assurances of support. He has just finished a tour of the back townships and will obtain a heavy vote there. Mr. Moore is an active campaigner and deserves well at the hands of the electors. He made a capable and wide-awake municipal legislator, and he is in every way throroughly qualified to serve in a higher capacity. He will not hold any meetings until near nomination day, when a series of gatherings in his interest will be arranged, and Mr. Moore will discuss the issues of the contest. He is going about his work in a quiet but effective manner, and those who are in a position to know, predict that he will receive a vote on the 25th inst that will carry consternation into the Grit camp. Mr. Moore is the man for East Peterborough and will will ably uphold the cause of Mr. Whitney, who will be Premier before the end of the month.

I'm sorry for you, little dog, I am.
When your feet get cold and wet,
But if Granby Rubbers were made for dogs,
You should have two pairs, you bet.
With your feet warm and comfortable in GRANBY-OVERSHOES, cold weather has no terrors.

RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT.

Are the Government merely responsible to Parliament or are they responsible for the present intolerable system of manipulated ballots?

Let us not judge unfairly—What have the Government to do with taking the vote in an Election? Are they in the hands of unscrupulous henchmen who contrive evil and are they powerless to prevent it? Let us read the Election Act.

The Government can and do select every returning officer (sec 32 of R S O 1897 cap 9) no Conservative has been so appointed for over 30 years.

The returning officer provides the ballot boxes (S 45) appoints the deputy returning officers (S 34) gets the ballots printed (S 69) procures the voters lists (S 84) and provides polling booths (S 60.)

The deputy returning officers appoint their poll clerks (S 87.)

In this way the whole polling machinery is placed in the hands of Liberals who appoint their deputies to take the poll.

Under this arrangement fraudulent ballot boxes have taken the place of the genuine article, ballots have been switched and substituted the oath has been curtailed and the counting has been manipulated.

Is the system, or the men employed, or the Government, responsible? Were these crimes merely occasional, those actually employed might be needed to account.

But can the Government who have for 30 years perpetrated the system, escape responsibility for its maintenance, when their majority in the Legislature has enabled them to insist on the passing of acts to free the Electorate from the terrible crimes committed in the name of free institutions.

They ought at least be able to show one successful (or even unsuccessful) prosecution.

Croup Absolutely Cured

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. Magee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto. Ont.

RED LETTER DAY - FOR YOUNG MEN

Y. M. C. A. Building Thronged New Year's Day.

GOOD SPORTS IN GYMNASIUM.

Mr. Richard Hall Makes the Association Gift of Pictures of Late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nichols — Progress of Gym Classes.

New Year's is always a red letter day at the Y.M.C.A.'s the world over.

Monday the building was thronged with young men all day, the attendance probably exceeding former years, owing to the unfavorable weather and ruling out counter outside attractions.

Under the direction of the Social Committee, of which Mr. L. Johnston is the capable and energetic chairman, the reception room of the building was very tastefully decorated with red, white and blue and evergreens.

The parlors and game rooms were well supplied with social attractions, which were made good use of.

In the calendar exhibit in the reception room many new and beautiful designs were presented.

In the reading room the exhibit of the drawings and paintings by the pupils of Miss Amy K. Bennett were very much admired. The work certainly reflects great credit on her as a teacher, as well as on the ability of her pupils.

In the parlor during the greater part of the afternoon a group of musicians surrounded the piano and rendered a spendid informal programme.

Mr. George Schneider is never so happy as when he is at the piano and directing such a good class of music.

Mr. Homer Herd, the popular musical director of the Association, had charge of this part of the enjoyable afternoon.

The programme in the gymnasium in the afternoon and evening, under the leadership of the Physical Director, demonstrated his excellence in that department and showed the remarkable progress the classes had made during the short time he has been in charge of them.

The gymnasium part of the programme of the New Year's reception was enjoyed by many of the fathers and mothers, and the younger people as well.

The work in the afternoon was confined entirely to the boys.

The idea was to give the parents and all those present an idea of some of the work done by the boys on their regular class days.

The physical director would be pleased to have fathers and mothers come in at any time and see the work. The gallery is always open and seats are provided.

The programme started at 4.15 with a mass drill formed of all the boys.

Secondly came special German horse work, by Junior School Boys' Leaders' Corps, which consists of Ed. Mann, Murray Nicol, Hugh McGuire, Max Fife, Max Dobbin and S. Laing.

Then came a relay race between Senior Boys' Teams, Bert Miller and Cecil Arnott acting as captains. Bert. Miller's team won.

An obstacle race was run between the Junior Schoolboys' Leaders' Corps and the Junior Intermediate Leaders' Corps. The race was won by the Junior Schoolboys.

The obstacle race was followed by an exhibition of special parallel bar work by the Senior Boys' Leaders' Corps, composed of Stanley Fife, Cecil Arnott and Bert. Miller.

The programme terminated with a lively basketball game between the Junior Schoolboys and the Junior Intermediate teams:

Schoolboys—Ed. Mann, capt.; Murray Nicol, Max Dobbin, Hugh McGuire.

Intermediates—Fred. Hall, capt.; Arthur Hall, Preston Grange, Geo. Watson, Peter Wallace.

The game was won by the Schoolboys by a score of 18-9.

Piano selections were contributed by Miss Winnifred Dobbin during the programme.

EVENING PROGRAMME.

The physical department had planned to have a basketball match between Belleville and a picked Peterborough team. Through some inability to agree on the part of Belleville the game was cancelled. Notwithstanding this a very pleasing and interesting programme was put on. It opened with a piano selection by Miss Dobbin. Then a relay race between members of the Arrows and Eagles basketball teams was run, resulting in a tie. Mr. Jas. Browne sang a solo which was very heartily enjoyed and he responded to an encore. Some very interesting work was done by the Senior Men's Leaders' Corps, consisting of W. D. Campbell, Norman Miller, Carl Dredge, Ross Dobbin and T. H. Hutchinson.

The work was started on the flying rings, followed by the parallel bars, the low horizontal bar and the German horse.

The work was unusually good, considering the short training of the men. Each man did his part creditably and without a break, and many of the exercises were difficult. The audience enjoyed the work and applauded freely. Piano selections were rendered by Mr. Schneider during the apparatus work.

A solo was then rendered by Mr. Homer Herd in his usual excellent manner and he responded to an encore.

The Arrows and Eagles then lined up for a game of basketball. As some of the regular players were away, the ranks had to be filled by several juniors. The game was somewhat hindered by the new men not being used to playing together on the teams but a good lively game was put up. The score was 30—19 in favor of the Arrows.

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, Superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Works, tendered a banquet Monday evening to the heads of the departments and foremen. The affair was held in Long's Palm Gardens, and proved very enjoyable. After an excellent dinner a toast list was introduced, in the course of which appreciation was expressed with regard to the pleasurable occasion. The health of the Company being enthusiastically honored, the discussion of the evening naturally referred largely to daily operations in which those present are associated, and opportunity was taken to view the prospect of the coming year, its duties and responsibilities, and its call to continued effort with a high standard as the object.

During the evening music of a very enjoyable character was given by the Halpany orchestra. Songs were also given by gentlemen in the company.

The guests present at the banquet were Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, the Company's solicitor; Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, their banker, and Dr. Young, their physician.

The health of the King was heartily honored. Mr. R. E. Layfield proposed the health of "The Company," which was responded to by Mr. E. G. Patterson. The financial interests of the town, was proposed by Mr. R. E. Harding, and in reply Mr. D. Hughes-Charles made an eloquent speech. The "Town of Peterborough," proposed by Mr. H. D. Burnett, brought forth speeches from Mr. E. H. D. Hall, town solicitor, and Ald. Tovey, who was the recipient of hearty congratulations on his election.

Dr. Young responded to the toast "The Learned Professions," proposed by Mr. W. S. Robinson. The health of the ladies was proposed by Mr. R. Dovey, and Mr. W. Harold Claxton responded.

"The Host" was enthusiastically toasted by Mr. Hughes-Charles, to which Mr. Patterson responded.

Songs were given during the evening by Mr. Hughes-Charles, Mr. Claxton and Mr. Halpany.

DIED IN EMILY

Death of Mr. Wallace H. Graham, a Popular School Teacher.

There passed away on Dec. 28th at lot 11, concession 1, Emily Township, Wallace H. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Graham, aged 22 years.

The deceased was a victim of that fell destroyer of humanity—tuberculosis, and had been in poor health for some time. He was a life long resident of the township, where he was widely known and highly respected. The late Mr. Graham was a graduate of the Omemee High School, and was for some time a teacher at S. S. No. 9, Emily. He leaves, besides his parents, two brothers and three sisters. The brothers are Thomas and Richard and the sisters are Mrs. C. H. Shields, of Mount Pleasant, Mrs. J. M. Shields, of Drayton, North Dakota, and Miss Annie, residing at home.

The funeral was largely attended, the services being conducted by Rev. Hadley V. Mounteer, of Cavanville.

Interment took place in Bethany Cemetery. The sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended to the grief stricken family.

DIED IN KINGSTON.

Mrs. M. Thornton, mother of Mrs. (Rev.) J. G. Potter, died in Kingston Sunday night at six o'clock. Mrs. Thornton was 77 years of age and until 7 years ago had enjoyed excellent health. An attack of pneumonia brought feebleness and during the past two years she had been quite infirm, although not suffering in any way.

She leaves a family of four sons and six daughters. Of these Mr. Louis Thornton until recently of the Trent Valley Canal staff and Mrs. Potter were summoned last Friday and were there at the time of her death. The Rev. Mr. Potter left yesterday morning for Kingston to attend the funeral which took place yesterday afternoon.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aseptic pepsin (government test), golden seal and diastase. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of raw meat, eggs and other wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and cheap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach.

This is the secret, if there is any secret, of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most widely known of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive pure and simple because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely on the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to cure by the use of "tonics" "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores and the regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

HAVE A WINNING TEAM

Editor P. D. Ross Dennis Murphy's Running Mate in Ottawa.

Mr. Ross Enters Contest to Put Premier Ross Out—Accepts Nomination Without a Ballot—After Electing Mr. Whitney Leader Reserves Right to Thereafter Act Independently—Mr. Whitney Explains Offer.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—P. D. Ross, editor of The Journal, was last night selected as Conservative candidate as a running mate to Denis Murphy in the coming Provincial contest

A. E. Tripp, Mayor Ellis and W. J. Kidd also were willing to accept the nomination, but Mr. Ross would not accept the nomination if he had to fight for it in convention.

He was not at the convention last night, but the other aspirants were, and they all agreed to give way for Mr. Ross, whose nomination was then made unanimous

Mr. Ross pledges himself to help oust Premier Ross and to elect Whitney leader, but after that he reserves the right to act independently.

The Conservatives now consider they have a winning team.

THE COALITION PROPOSALS.

Col. Whitney Explains Them in His Speech At Cornwall.

Cornwall, Jan. 4.—J. P. Whitney, K.C., leader of the Ontario Opposition, was accorded a rousing reception here last night in the Music Hall. In the course of his speech he spoke as follows in answer to Premier Ross on the coalition proposals:

"About two years and a half ago The Globe suggested that a coalition would be advisable. I believe Mr. Ross knew this editorial would be published. The day after the appearance of this editorial I was asked by one Minister of the Crown whether I would meet another Minister of the Crown and discuss coalition. I did so, with the result that the suggestion or proposition was declined by me.

"Nearly a year afterwards, while the Gamey-Stratton investigation was going on, at the invitation of a gentleman not in public life, I again discussed the matter with the same Minister with the same result.

"About a month ago a personal friend informed me that the proposition of a coalition was still open, and that if acted upon I would in all probability become the leader of the Government in about a year. My friend informed me that he had this message for me from a very prominent Conservative in Toronto, who had received it from a prominent Liberal known in financial circles in the city who had received it from a very prominent Liberal Senator well known also in financial circles in Toronto."

That Napanee Incident.

In reference to the statements in certain newspapers regarding an incident that happened in the town of Napanee, he said in part: "When the meeting in that town was over I went to my hotel. I went upstairs to my room, and stayed there until the next morning. While in my room I availed myself of the rights and privileges of a guest of the house, and I am not going to apologize for anything I have done. (Applause.) It is said that a number of men were roystering in the house, and that the bar was kept open until morning. It might have been. I do not know I was not in the bar.

"It would be a strange thing indeed if I, the chosen leader of the majority of the people of the Province of Ontario, whose life has been like an open book to this country for years should be called upon by a set of creatures whom I would not name to reply to a scandalous action like that. (Applause.) When I have to defend myself against charges like that, then the time has come when I shall hesitate to longer hold the position of a political leader—the leader of the dominant party in my native Province of Ontario." (Prolonged applause.)

Mr. Hossack Didn't Appear.

Owen Sound, Jan. 4.—Circulars were sent out privately calling a number of citizens to a meeting in the Y.M.C.A. hall yesterday, to be addressed by Rev. D. C. Hossack in the interest of moral reform. About twenty-five people gathered and were met by W. G. Fee of Toronto. Rev. Mr. Hossack failed to make an appearance.

Lt.-Col. Hendrie For West Hamilton.

Hamilton, Jan. 4.—Lieut.-Col. John S. Hendrie was chosen again last evening by an enthusiastic convention as the Conservative candidate in West Hamilton for the Local Legislature. His was the only name that was brought before the gathering, and his nomination was made unanimous on the motion of ex-Ald. Birrell.

Member Disqualified.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—It is now said that E. M. Lewis, Conservative member-elect for West Huron, is disqualified from taking his seat, owing to his having given security for Thomas Gundry, mail carrier. If there is a bye-election Robert Holmes, ex-M.P., will be the Government candidate.

Cross Petition Filed.

Halifax, Jan. 4.—F. A. Laurence, member-elect for Colchester County, Nova Scotia, whose return was petitioned against, has filed a cross-petition against S. E. Gourley, ex-M. P., for disqualification on the ground of corrupt practices by himself or agents.

Mount Stephen's Generosity.

London, Jan. 4.—Lord Mount Stephen has given £200,000 in Argentine bonds to King Edward's hospital fund, sufficient to bring in £11,000 yearly. The King has written personally thanking him for his "magnificent donation."

The Crackers That Took Canada By Storm.

A year ago, MOONEY'S PERFECTION CREAM SODAS were a theory. To-day they are the most delightful cracker facts in Canada. Last July, the first Mooney's Sodas went out to tempt the appetite of the Canadian people. Now, many tons a day are baked to satisfy the demand.

There's no resisting the fresh, crisp, creamy deliciousness of these perfect soda crackers.

FOR THE NEW YEAR

Some Thoughts Expressed For Y. P. S. C. E. Workers.

The following appropriate article is contributed for the Y.P.S.C.E. column of the Review:—

"God is faithful by whom we are called unto the fellowship of His Son Jesus Christ our Lord."—I Cor., 1-9. This is my message to you all, fellow-workers. And in its realization lies the secret of our happiness and power for 1905. The first three words come to us with wonderful encouragement, recalling all that God has been and done for us in the past, while the remainder of the verse assures us of our present privilege in the enjoyment of Christ's fellowship day by day.

At this, the beginning of the New Year, a great many resolutions are being made. Every new year produces a splendid crop—a great many more than are either remembered or kept. Resolutions are of value, however, only so far as they lead to definite action.

There is something better than making resolutions. Do! Do your duty to-day; this is better than making resolutions for to-morrow. Mr. Moody on one occasion said, "We never read of the resolutions of the apostles, but of the acts of the apostles. One action is worth a thousand promises. God does not ask us to obey Him to-morrow, He demands our obedience to-day.

To make the year we have entered a happy one begin to serve God now. Be faithful to-day. Pray oftener, love more, and then we will find ourselves sustained, not by our own feeble promises, but by the unfailing, all inclusive promises of God. As Christian Endeavorers let us resolve that we will strive to live the deeper Christian life. This deeper Christian life is a life of communion with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. In the course of it we come into such a knowledge of God, such sensitiveness of the Divine presence that it can only seem to us the very height of folly to ask if God exists. There is a certain gravitation of the mind to God in a prayerful way, which comes from love and from the practice of the Divine presence. This is no doubt a startling phrase, the practice of the Divine presence. But it refers to the startling fact that God is giving His presence to us every moment, and we do not realize it. What we need is just to form the habit of the inner, the deeper life, the life of prayer, which shall awaken in us that awareness, that sense of the Divine indwelling, that conscious reception of the life and spirit and purpose of God which so marvellously fills the epistle of the New Testament.

WHAT ONE MAN HAS DONE.

The Remarkable Achievement of a Remarkable Man—A Splendid Example of what Untiring Devotion can do.

For years Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., studied the problem of how best to prevent and cure disease.

He was not satisfied with the methods and treatments in general use, and after long study and much experiment he declared that:

"The poisonous products of the fermentation and decomposition of undigested foods absorbed by the system are the first cause of almost every disease."

He knew that all the medicines prescribed for the stomach and bowels contained resinous properties which left behind them a dried up condition of the mucous membrane lining of the stomach and bowels—this after effect invariably resulting in Chronic Complaints.

Dr. Leonhardt, therefore, determined that to correct disorders of the stomach and bowels he must produce an effective medicine containing absolutely no resinous substances, such as are found in the ordinary pill.

He succeeded and the result he called Anti-Pill.

Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill will cure permanently any case of Dyspepsia or other Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, or Constipation.

A Queer People.

Herr Eberhard van Schkopp, who explored the interior of the Kameruns district in western Africa, gave an interesting account of the native tribe called the Bakoko. They are, he thought, of Semitic origin and, having lived in the Kameruns district only about 200 years, are called strangers by other natives. They govern by means of a "council of elders," whose duty it is to judge offenders guilty or guiltless. If guiltless they are set free. If guilty they are put to death, this being the only form of punishment known there.

According to the gravity of the crime, the manner of execution varies and may be "simple" or "complicated." "Simple" execution means being thrown to the crocodiles. "Complicated" execution consists of being fastened to a tree and left to be eaten by casual visitors, such as lions and tigers, or being tortured until death comes.

Cannibalism is practiced by the Bakokos, not because they especially care for the flavor of the meat, but because they feel that by eating every particle of an enemy they are subjecting him to the greatest indignity conceivable.

An Ancient Highland Custom.

In the western highlands of Scotland an ancient custom suggestive of the pre-Christian days is still in force. When a child is born all the old women of the neighborhood meet in the house and place a straw rope around the child's neck. At the same time they chant a curious charm, which is supposed to ward off fairies and evil spirits. So great an importance do the inhabitants attach to this ceremony that they believe it would be a "tempting of Providence" to neglect it. When any one dies the relatives dig the grave, taking the greatest possible care to remove every stone from the mold. Stones in the grave interfere, it is said, with the rest of the dead. Also they are particular to cut the turf which is to cover the mound in one piece, as otherwise they believe water would get into the grave and make the body uncomfortable.

Genius at Her Feet.

Mrs. Yorke, wife of the dean of Worcester, once described an incident of her acquaintance with Thackeray. She happened, she said, to be sitting one evening between Thackeray and Jacob Omnium, whose build was even more gigantic than Thackeray's own. Conversation, from some cause unknown, was languishing, when Thackeray turned to her and said, "Mrs. Yorke, why are you so silent?" "I am overwhelmed by the greatness of you two," she replied, glancing right and left at their massive frames. Thereupon, moved by common impulse, Thackeray and Jacob slid from their chairs and sat on the ground at her feet, "as a slight token of homage to one whose wit equaled her beauty."

High Thinking and Old Age.

That mental power helps to keep the body strong and to preserve it from decay cannot be doubted. The longest lived men and women have been, as a rule, those who have attained great mental and moral development. They have lived on a higher plane than other men, in a serene upper region, above the jar, tumult and fret that weaken most lives. It was at the age of seventy-five that the Count de Tressan recomposed his old chivalric romances and wrote a history of the progress of the human mind. Herbert Spencer, one of the deepest thinkers and hardest workers of his day, passed away at the age of eighty-three.—William Matthews in Saturday Evening Post.

Excess and Deficiency.

Error and evil are located in deficiency or excess. Even excess in virtue is evil, an excess of humility being abjectness; of courage, rashness; of prudence, cowardice; of patience, indifference; of economy, parsimony; of generosity, waste; of deference, obsequiousness. And so also an excess of learning is pedantry; of ease, indolence; of comfort, self indulgence; of zeal, fanaticism. Right and justice are found in moderation, in the golden mean, in the true balance, between overdoing and underdoing, going too fast and too slow.—From "Balance: The Fundamental Verity," by Orlando J. Smith.

A Perfect Altruist.

Charles Kingsley was once talking of his wife to the mother of Canon Tetley of Bristol cathedral.

"She is the sweetest, kindest hearted woman in the world," he said enthusiastically. "Why, Mrs. Tetley, if my wife were going to be executed her first anxiety would be that any one who wished to see it might get a good place."

Home and Club.

Mrs. Von Blumer—Why don't you take your business friend to your club instead of bringing him home? Von Blumer—Because I want to talk business to him. I don't want to take him to a place where he is going to enjoy himself.

Just Complaint.

Borroughs—I don't see why he wouldn't lend me the $5 I wanted. Newitt—No. He certainly couldn't ask for a more permanent investment.—Exchange.

All in the Family.

Mrs. Cloak—I'm so sorry the dressmaker I recommended to your wife did not give her a fit. Mr. Soak—Never mind. Her bill gave me one.

Something Coming to Him.

Maisie—Funny, isn't it, that Algernon doesn't smoke? Daisie—Well, he will soon. I overheard papa say that he was going to fire him.

The way to be nothing is to do nothing.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS—1905.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully became accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandizement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,

Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

SERVICES IN MARK STREET.

The services in Mark-st. Church on Sunday were unusually interesting and drew large congregations. The sermons by Rev. Mr. Lewis were very appropriate for the day and were listened to with closest attention. The anthems by the full choir under the leadership of Mr. Miller were deeply impressive and most suitable for New Year's day, while Miss Courtney was never heard to greater advantage or with greater pleasure. The church was highly favored in having a distinguished soloist, Mr. H. Wharlow Bull, who has been a singer in Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral. Very recently he sang in Great St. James Methodist church Montreal. He sang Sunday morning "Nazareth" by Gounod and in the evening "Abide With Me" by Liddle. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Mowat. His singing was highly enjoyed by all and keenly appreciated by those with cultivated musical taste. Mr. Bull has exceptional musical talent, a voice of great compass and sweetness and has received training of the highest order. He is no doubt one of the most attractive and efficient soloists that has visited our town. Mr. Bull is visiting at the home of Rev. Mr. Lewis, Mark-st.

Baby Eczema

"My daughter was afflicted with eczema when from three weeks old. Her entire face and head were raw, and she was in awful distress. When doctors failed we began the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which has entirely cured her and she has never had the least symptom of the trouble since."—Mr. Patrick Sullivan, Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont.

ONTARIO ELECTIONS

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lends, or agrees, or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, office, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting, is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be seen from the above that neither of us can personally or through another, give or lend any money during the election.

LeBRUN'S

Saturday Next, January 7th, a Sweeping Stock-Reduction Sale starts at H. LeBRUN & CO'S City Clothing Store.

Winter Suits, Overcoats, Reefers, Underwear, Gloves, Mitts, Neckwear, Hats and Caps,

will all be marked down 20 to 30 per cent. It is our custom not to carry over Winter Stocks from season to season:—

1st—Because, although we occupy four large flats, our premises are too small to store away out-of-season Goods.

2nd—Because, we would rather sacrifice prices now than lose money on Goods carried over later on.

After a most satisfactory year's business, the City Clothing Store will therefore start the New Year with a Storeful of Price-Sliding Bargains. We begin our regular WINTER REDUCTION SALE this year earlier than usual, and before Stock-taking, instead of after, so that the public may have full benefit, as well as on account of Spring Goods arriving earlier. This Great Sale will be a Bonanza to Men, Youths and Boys who have been putting off buying, as well as to those who can afford to buy ahead for future use. Remember this Bona-fide Sale Starts

AGAIN ELECTED BRIGADE'S CHIEF

Mr. Thomas Rutherford Begins 25th Year in Office.

RECORD OF THE YEARS.

Something About the Early History of Peterborough Fire Brigades—The Present Requirements—A Good Alarm System Needed.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Fire Brigade was held last evening, when all of last year's officers were elected by acclamation. They are—

Chief—Mr. Thos. Rutherford.
Assistant—Mr. W. R. Turner.
First Lieutenant—Mr. A. Mitchell.
Second Lieutenant—Mr. J. Gibbs.
Secretary—Mr. J. R. Metheral.
Treasurer—Mr. W. Adamson.

The members of the brigade were last evening tendered a fowl supper by Mr. J. M. Brooks at the Palace Restaurant.

VETERAN CHIEF.

Mr. Thos. Rutherford has every claim to the appelation—"a veteran chief." For twenty-four years he has been at the head of the brigade and in that time there has been room for many changes to take place. He states that when he first assumed office there were about sixty men in the Brigade, the volunteer system being then in force. The remarkable fact is that there are still with him men who entered the organization over 30 years ago, and not a few, there are who have had over 12 years' experience in Peterborough Brigade. There are now seventeen men on the Brigade and it is required that seven of these sleep at the station during night, in order to be in readiness for emergency. It was not like that in the olden days and the methods and appliances for dealing with conflagrations have greatly changed. Old timers will remember the service wrought by the old hand engine and by the fire engine. It was not until the year 1862 that a fire company was fully organized, and proper steps taken to secure the usefulness of the enginne, hose, etc. The year previous to this Peterborough was visited by three severe fires, the most extensive of which occurred in August of that year and swept nearly the entire square, bounded by George, Simcoe, Water and Hunter streets. A few shops on the north western corner, the shops of Messrs Nicholls and Hall and one or two others on the south of the block mentioned were all that escaped the fury of the flames. Prior to the installation of the waterworks system, which was begun in 1882, two large tanks on George street and the Otonabee river were the reservoirs from which the firemen laid their lines and pumped their streams.

LARGEST FIRES.

The chief expresses the opinion that the largest fire his brigade had to deal with was that of Blyth's Mills at Auburn, about seven years ago, and the coldest was China Hall, about six years ago when the thermometer registered twenty-nine below zero. It is said that the weather was so cold that morning that the water froze on its way from the nozzle to the building. During the year 1904, the department's services were required sixty-four times. In the past twenty four years Chief Rutherford has made a very fine record for himself. Largely owing to his management there has never been a serious accident to any of the men under his charge, and some of the toughest propositions in the way of fires, with the thermometer away below zero, have occurred. Only last winter, for instance, the conflagrations in the Roy Photo Gallery, and the Cereal Works building, occrred on exceptionally cold days.

NEEDS OF DEPARTMENT.

Discussing the requirements of the Peterborough Fire Department last night, Chief Rutherford emphasized the necessity for a better alarm system and an up-to-date fire hall. It seems incredible that in a town of 14,000 people there are only seven alarm boxes, and these not immediately connected with the Fire Station, but depending on the central of the Telephone Company. It is no disparagement to the possible efficiency of this inadequate system to say that it is high time Peterborough had a style of fire alarm that would in every respect be modern and for all purposes most efficient. An instance occurred only the other day. The hose waggon had rushed out to a blaze. The men in charge of it knew the location, but when the hook and ladder truck was ready nobody knew where the blaze was. Had the alarm system been an up-to-date one, every man on the force would have known from the gong and the indicator just where the fire was.

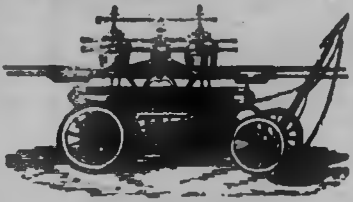
The chief states that he would like to see such a system installed, as would give every fireman the signal, ring a gong at the station and let loose the horses, immediately a box is pulled. This is what a thoroughly modern system will accomplish. At the present time the alarm is received at the telephone central office, and as quickly as possible a bell in each fireman's house is sounded. The gong for the general alarm is the bell on the market hall. It indicates no location by its stroke, but is just a promiscuous hammering. It might mean a blaze in North Monaghan or a conflagration in the heart of the town.

SHOULD BE PASSED.

Not very long ago the ratepayers had an opportunity to say whether or not they wanted an up-to-date fire protective system. They have the men—there are none better—but they have not got the equipment. It is understood that one of the measures to be introduced this year will provide for the erection of a fire hall and the improvement of the present system. It should be received with approval.

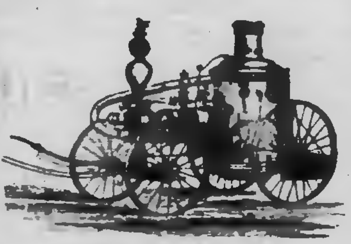
In the meantime Chief Rutherford and his men are to be congratulated on the work they have done in the past. The town owes them a deep debt, and the greatest obligation is to place at their service the best possible equipment for fighting the fiery element.

The men last night at the fowl supper given by Mr. Brooks, toasted the King and Queen, and the host and hostess in an enthusiastic manner. The occasion proved in every way very enjoyable.



PROTECTION NO 1.

The above is a cut of the hand-engine which was adopted by Peterborough for fighting fires away back, about forty years ago. The motto on the machine was "Where duty calls, you'll ever find us." On the occasion of a fire, the call was for "men to man the brakes," and as many as thirty citizens a side played their parts in working up the stream to extinguish the flames. The engine played a conspicuous part in 24th of May celebrations and processions, and it played its part on the occasion of the visit of the Prince of Wales.



THE STEAM ENGINE

The above is the steam engine which in the seventies took the place of the hand engine. Its arrival was the occasion for a grand celebration. The engine is still available for service at the fire hall. It was built at Seneca Falls, New York. Mr. James English was the first engineer. Old-timers will remember that four small hand engines were purchased for service in each ward. It would be interesting to know what became of them.

RALLY TO-NIGHT

Attend the Gathering in Mr. Bradburn's Committee Rooms.

There will be a big rally of all Mr. Bradburn's friends and supporters at the committee rooms, Opera House block, this evening.

It is expected there will be a large attendance of the friends and workers for the popular Conservative candidate who is conducting such a vigorous and aggressive fight throughout the riding, and with excellent prospects of success. Speeches will be made by leading members of the party, and everyone is cordially invited to be present.

Another rally will be held in the opera house on Saturday night—in fact a rally will be held every Saturday night until after the election.

POLICE COURT NOTES

Several Cases of Drunk and Disorderly. A Horse Trade.

At Police Court Tuesday morning John Dunsford, charged with carting without a license, was found guilty and fined $2 and $2.60 costs.

Walter Grey, charged with the same offence, received the same punishment, $2 and $2.60 costs.

James Healey, of the Fifth Ward, charged with stealing a horse from Mrs. Wm. Johnston, was committed for trial. The trouble arose over a horse trade, in which Mrs. Johnston claimed he was so defrauded.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB.

Lecture on Temagami by Mr. Edmund Jones of Toronto.

Mr. Jones is an amateur explorer who has taken a delight in going over the remote parts of the region lying between Lake Superior and Labrador by canoe and overland. In view of the fact that the new transcontinental railway passes through this district, this lecture will be a matter of great interest to those who know very little of this immense country. Till very recently Temagami has remained unexplored, but Mr. Jones, who is an expert photographer, secured a large number of characteristic photographs, which will be presented with the aid of the electric lantern on Monday evening next in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. The Club has been very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Jones, who has been most highly spoken of.

The remaining lectures of the course are by Prof. Carruthers and Mr. J. S. Willison. Admission is by membership ticket, the cost for the whole course being 25 cents.

Mrs. Morrow's Chorus Class.

A meeting of the Chorus Class will be held at the T.A.S. Hall on Wednesday evening, January 4th and it is imperative that all who intend to belong should be on hand. All pupils who are to take part in the recital to be given under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus shortly, are asked to remain after the rehearsal on Wednesday evening.

We learn that another attempt was made about two weeks ago to burn down the Killarney cheese factory. It is said that there can be no mistake about the origin of the fire this time, as the factory had been closed for some time.—Norwood Register.

Mr. Thomas Evans Bradburn, of Peterborough, the Conservative candidate for West Peterborough, was in town this week on his way through Harvey and Galway. Mr. Bradburn has been known to the district since boyhood and known as a good fellow. As for nerve, tackling an adverse majority of ten or twelve hundred, does not phase him in the least. Faint heart never won fair lady, he says, and kissing, we are told, goes by favor. Who knows but fair Fortune, who so long bestowed her favor upon the Liberal candidate, may not make a radical change now that she has to choose a new recipient for her charms. — Bobcaygeon Independent.

CANDIDATE WAS WELL RECEIVED

Mr. T. E. Bradburn Addressed Large Meeting at Bensfort.

DISCUSSED PUBLIC ISSUES.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun Also Delivered a Speech—Reasons Given Why Ross Government Does Not Deserve Return to Office.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, opened his campaign with a meeting at Bensfort last evening. There was a good attendance, and careful attention was given to the able discussion of public questions by Mr. T. E. Bradburn and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun. The chairman of the evening was Mr. W. Fisher. The meeting was an excellent one from every point of view, and went far to strengthen the prospect of Mr. Bradburn's election.

PUBLIC ISSUES.

The first speaker was Mr. Bradburn, who touched on many of the issues of the day, exposing the school book monopoly, and dwelling at some length upon Mr. Whitney's platform. This he declared to be in the best interests of the Province of Ontario, as tending to its development and progress. The candidate was enthusiastically received.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, in an hour's speech, pointed out that the Provincial election was coming on before half the term for which Parliament was elected had expired. The Government was returned with a majority of three in 1902, and since had been steadily losing the confidence of the public instead of gaining it. He then reviewed the public acts of the Government since the last election, and showed how, in every instance, their sole aim and object had been to retain office in spite of a poor majority in the House and a hostile majority in the Province.

VIOLATED THEIR TRUST.

The secret ballot, the attitude of the Government on the license question, and Mr. Whitney's policy in reference thereto, Mr. Ross' promises made to the temperance people and their violation were reviewed at length. The introduction of Messrs. McKay and Graham into the Cabinet for the express purpose of overthrowing temperance resolutions in favor of abolition of the bars was expatiated on and the hypocrisy of Mr. Ross in respect thereto was condemned.

The Government which has been the sole custodian of the ballot box for the past 32 years, was charged with having violated their trust. It was pointed out that while there have been petty acts of bribery and corruption in both parties, on the Government side alone had there been the most colossal frauds, which have affected the franchise of the honest elector.

In referring to the candidate, Mr. Dennistoun stated that Mr. Bradburn lived in a rural constituency, which he had represented for years in the Township Council and had occupied the position of Reeve for more than one term. He was, therefore, in a position to understand the interests of the farming community and to make a representative who will be able to deal with the interests of this riding in a manner satisfactory to both the town and county people.

The meeting closed with three cheers for the King, Mr. Whitney and the candidate.

GUILD LEAGUE MEETS.

There will be no games in the Guild League this evening as was expected. This is the result of an action of the League Executive at a meeting held in the Oriental Hotel last evening. There were present A. Mann, of George-st.; A. McWilliams, Charlotte-st.; W. Graham and S. Rush, All Saints'. St. John's was not represented, but sent an expression of their opinion on the matter of changing the schedule.

This was the first subject considered. Several of the teams were not in shape to play, and asked that the league games should begin a week from to-night, instead of to-night. A motion to that effect carried. The schedule for the series will be as follows:—

January 11th, 7.30—Charlotte-st. vs. George-st.
8.30—St. John's vs. All Saints'.
January 18th, 7.30—St. John's vs. George-st.

It was decided to bar all City League, O.H.A. and Trent Valley League players, except junior O.H.A. players who are playing this year for the first time.

An announcement was made that Mr. R. F. McWilliams had offered to provide a cup or individual trophies emblematic of the league championship. On motion this offer was accepted with thanks, and a deputation appointed to wait upon Mr. McWilliams and ask that the presentation take the form of individual trophies.

A resolution of thanks to Mr. Graham for the use of the parlor was unanimously carried.

Band will be at the Brock-st Rink to-night.

Great January Sale

—WHITEWEAR—

COTTONS, SHEETINGS, PILLOW CASES, QUILTS, EMBROIDERIES.

For January, the white month, we are offering special inducement in white goods. This store will be overflowing with BARGAINS. It will be a month of unprecedented Bargains.

A FAIR WITNESS

Many women gratify their taste for the beautiful by wearing the finest of lingerie, much of it hand-made, but more from our ready-to-wear stock. Here you will find a full assortment of Night Gowns, Shirts, Drawers and Corset Covers, in beautiful profusion. Our display delights tasteful women.

YOU'LL BE PROUD

Our Whitewear is pretty enough to satisfy almost any one. The garments are well made, some have elaborate trimmings. Some are quite plain. But they are all unusually nice, and are unquestionably destined to be popular. We would like you to see them while the assortment is unbroken. The prices are no less attractive than the goods.

BARGAINS IN GOODS BY THE YARD

To-day we began a great sale of White materials by the yard, for the special benefit of those who make up their own Whitewear, Sheets, Pillow Cases, &c.

Many women make good use of the month of January for this purpose, as the long winter evenings and dull days at home grow monotonous without something to do.

FOR HOME SEWING

Ladies who do their own sewing, or who have it done at home, will be interested in the price reductions we have made in all the articles that make needle work and mending less of labor and care.

White Cottons, Cambrics, Long Cloths, Sheetings, Pillow Cottons, Table Linens, Napkins, Embroideries, Laces and all the other little things that are used in home sewing come in for their share of these price reductions.

We want you to come and see these genuine reductions as it is almost impossible to enumerate them.

DANGER AT EVERY STEP

Two Men, Small Boat and Two Planks in Heroic Rescue.

Thomas May and Robert Patterson the Heroes of the Hour At Niagara-on-the-Lake—Crept Over 300 Yards of Floating Ice in Niagara River and Were Successful in Saving the Life of James Black.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Jan. 4.—A heroic rescue from death on floating ice in the Niagara River was made here last night by Thomas May and Robert Patterson of Niagara-on-the-Lake.

James Black, a young man of Youngstown, N.Y., while attempting to cross the river in a canvas shooting boat broke an oar and became fast in the ice. He was unable to extricate himself.

His cries for help soon attracted the attention of people on the Canadian shore, and steps were at once taken to rescue him with the assistance of a small boat and two long planks. Patterson and May volunteered to make the attempt.

A long rope was attached to their boat. The planks were first pushed out on the floating ice. A man on each side then dragged the boat as far as possible. Then getting in the boat again they pushed the planks ahead.

In this manner they reached Black, who was about three hundred yards from shore. Putting the almost frozen but happy man in their boat the return trip was safely made with the assistance of about two hundred citizens on shore, who pulled on the rope.

The daring rescuers were loudly cheered on reaching the shore. The rescued man, who had been in the ice for five hours, was taken to the residence of William Black, where a physician attended him He will soon recover.

Patterson and May are the heroes of the hour. Owing to the heavy sea and the high north wind their lives were in danger at every step.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Kenneth Morrison of Ottawa Found Dead in a Field.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Kenneth Morrison, son of Louis Morrison, 174 Florence street, aged 16 years, was found frozen to death in a field in the south end of the city yesterday. He had been missing two weeks, but his parents thought he had gone to the shanties and made no inquiry for him.

Charles Thibault Killed.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—Charles Thibault, advocate of Waterloo, a man who in the past has played a considerable part in the political arena, was killed by a Canadian Pacific Railway train Monday evening at Sutton Junction. He was on his way from his son's residence at Waterloo, when, on crossing the track, he was struck by an on-coming train and hurled to his death. Charles Thibault was 64 years of age, and had been in practice in this city and in Waterloo, Que., for a number of years. For many years he was regarded as one of the most effective stump speakers supporting the Conservative party.

Killed By Coal Gas.

Kingston, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Clow of Odessa, twelve miles west of Kingston, was asphyxiated Monday. She was found dead by neighbors who entered the house to see why she had not appeared. Her grandson, Roy Ross, aged ten, was found just alive and may recover. Gas fumes from a defective stove were the cause.

Killed in Chicago.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 4.—Thomas Connolly of this city was killed in Chicago on Sunday by falling from the elevated railway on which he was employed.

Go Through the Ice.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Jan. 4.—Nelson Ramie and Wight Rollins attempted to cross the St. Lawrence river in an open boat Monday night and were caught in floating ice. The boat was upset and crushed by the ice and Rollins was drowned. Ramie after a struggle for life in the icy water clung to floating ice until his clothing froze to it and prevented him from drowning until a ferry steamer rescued him. He was badly frozen.

Nine Die in Fire.

Elmira, N.Y., Jan. 4.—During the early morning hours yesterday fire consumed the house of Frank Noweski, a Polish miner in Morris Run, Pa., and the entire family of ten, except the oldest son, aged 18, was either burned to death or smothered. The charred bodies of Noweski, his wife, and seven children, one of them a baby in arms, are in the ruins of their home. No one knows how the fire started.

DIED IN HIS OFFICE.

Joseph Wood, Druggist, of Rat Portage, Has Sudden Call.

Rat Portage, Jan. 4.—Jos. Woods dropped dead in his office chair yesterday afternoon. He was one of the town's leading druggists, and had been attending to business, apparently in the best of health. Death was due to syncope. Deceased was 33 years old, and married Miss Scott of Toronto, who survives him with one daughter two years old.

Chief Justice Will Enquire.

Sandwich, Jan. 4.—The Ontario Government has ordered Chief Justice Falconbridge of Toronto, to inquire into the Sandwich school affair, wherein the Separate School supporters claim the Public School Board has illegally taken possession of $3,800 worth of property. He will take evidence and report to the Minister of Education shortly.

Pagodas of Manchuria.

Of the ancient pagodas of Manchuria those of the first class have seven, nine or thirteen stories, while second-hand ones have from three to five. They are still erected occasionally.

Duty to Conserve Forests.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Aubrey White, Deputy Commissioner of Crown Lands of the Province of Ontario, gave an address before the American Forestry Congress which opened here yesterday. He said that it had been his aim to do everything to educate the people to conserve the forests not only from the standpoint of beauty but of commerce as well.

Electricity For Tunnel.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company are seriously considering the installation of electric motors in the Sarnia Tunnel. The proposed change will necessitate an outlay of between $300,000 and $400,000. There will be required a power plant, storage system, third rail and four electric motors.

No Street Sale of Bibles.

Constantinople, Jan. 4.—The Porte has at length replied to the notes of the American Legation and British Embassy regarding the sales of Bibles and notwithstanding previous assurances the Porte has refused to authorize street sales.

Will Not Join Squadron.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Hon. Raymond Prefontaine has received a letter from Admiral Bosanquet, commanding the West Indian Squadron, that he cannot avail himself of the services of the cruiser Canada this year, but may next year.

Chatham Man Detained.

Detroit, Jan. 4.—Williams Woods, from Chatham, and Book, from Detroit, both wanted in the latter city on a charge of burglary; Albert Owens, also of Chatham, is held on suspicion. All three are still in Detroit.

Why Needed in Every Home

TO OVERCOME THE MOST COMMON AND ANNOYING OF HUMAN ILLS.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Indigestion, constipation and torpid action of the liver and kidneys are known in every home.

Both on account of the distress and discomfort which accompanies them and as a cause of other ills of a more painful and deadly nature, these derangements require prompt attention.

In every home there is needed more or less frequently a treatment which can be depended on to regulate the organs of digestion and excretion.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have become the most popular family medicine extant, because they exactly meet the requirements.

They are unique in that they act directly on the kidneys, liver and bowels and thus insure a prompt regulating and invigorating of these organs.

The result is good digestion and assimilation, and the prompt removal of the poisonous waste matter from the body.

One pill a dose at bedtime two or three times a week soon cleanses the system and removes the cause of pain and ill-health.

Mr. R. Carr, Point Alexander, Renfrew Co., Ont., writes:—"Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have done me wonderful good. Being troubled with kidney disease and heart affection, I tried them with excellent results, and would not think of being without them in the house."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"Well, Sir Ralph, we are old friends."

"If you can find out where she is living I will give you a thousand pounds, and no one need be the wiser," continued Sir Ralph; and Mr. Ross' pink face grew a little pinker, that was all.

"A thousand pounds?" he repeated thoughtfully.

"Yes, a thousand pounds; please try to earn it, Ross, and my gratitude as well."

"Well, your gratitude is a tempting bribe; so if this fair lady comes here—"

"Let me know at once. Do not alarm her. If she asks you to keep her name and address a secret stretch a point with your conscience for once. Tell no one but me, but tell me without delay."

"All right; I'm your man. But what if she does not come near?"

"It's a chance of course; but she may come."

"So she may. Woodland, my dear fellow, just by chance I am a trifle hard up this morning; do you think you could lend me a hundred pounds?"

"Certainly," replied Sir Ralph, with a hard smile. "I have not my check-book with me, but I will send a hundred on this afternoon; or would you rather have two hundred?"

"I should rather have two hundred," smiled Mr. Valentine Ross.

"All right. Telegraph at once if this lady calls. And now good-morning, Ross."

Mr. Ross got his two hundred pounds, but weeks passed away and he had no chance of earning the thousand pounds and Sir Ralph Woodland's gratitude. Sir Ralph called at the office more than once, but Mr. Ross had no news. Laura had disappeared, seemingly, amid the vast multitudes of the great city, or hidden herself away somewhere else, for no one could find her.

Sir Ralph had begun almost to give up hope. He grew gloomy, and bitterly self-reproachful, when one evening, three months after Laura's disappearance from Red House, a telegram was handed in to him from Mr. Valentine Ross, which was as follows:

"The fair lady was at the office this afternoon. Know her present address. Will call in an hour.

"ROSS."

Sir Ralph's excitement when he received this telegram was unbounded. His dark face flushed, his strong arms trembled, and he kept walking restlessly up and down the room until Mr. Ross was announced.

The smart little man entered smilingly, and put one of his well-gloved hands into the trembling one offered for his acceptance.

"Well, Woodland," he said, well pleased. "I've found her!"

"Where?" asked Sir Ralph.

"My dear fellow, give me time to breathe! After all the amazing amount of false swearing I've gone through I really deserve some consideration."

"Do not talk such folly!" said Sir Ralph, impatiently. "Where is she? what did she say?"

Mr. Ross sank down on the nearest chair, and affected to be half-overcome. "Where is she?" he repeated "Well, at this moment I should say probably crossing the bridge in a bus on her way to the ancient but not very charming suburb of Putney."

"Of Putney?" asked Sir Ralph, eagerly.

"So she informed me. Well, let me tell you the whole story. I was busy, but one of the clerks came in to inform me that a lady wished to see me. I asked her name; message came back should rather not give her name, but had written for me before. My thoughts flew to you. I said. 'Show the lady in.' The lady was shown in, and, lo and behold, it was Miss Ingram and no other."

"Yes, go on."

"I'm going on, my dear fellow, as fast as I can. I rose, bowed, held out my hand, which the lady did not seem to see. Then she said, 'I once wrote a story for you, Mr. Ross.'

"'I perfectly remember,' I replied. 'You were introduced by Sir Ralph Woodland.'

"Upon this she sighed deeply. 'And,' I continued, 'I hope you have brought me another story.'

"'On one condition,' she answered, 'which is that you tell no one my name or address.'

"'No one,' I said, with an agreeable smile.

"'No one,' she repeated. 'I have been married since I saw you; I have left my husband, and changed my name, and I wish no one to know where I am.'

"'Your wishes are law to me,' I replied, mendaciously.

"Then she produced her story, and talked a little, though in a reserved fashion. I asked her address, and after a moment's hesitation she gave it. 'It is at Putney, just after you have crossed the bridge, over a little linen-draper's shop.' She said, 'I am poor now,' or something to that effect. Then, after a little more hesitation, and with a sudden blush, she asked after you.

"'Have you seen Sir Ralph Woodland lately?' she said.

"'Not for an age,' I answered; and I hope I may be forgiven. Then I wrote down her address, and here it is, after which she rose and departed; but before she left she again said.

"'I can depend on you, may I not, to tell no one my address?'

"'You may certainly depend on me,' I said, and I reflected it was cruel to deceive so charming a woman; but then I also reflected it was, no doubt for her good." And Mr. Valentine Ross laughed.

But Sir Ralph did not laugh. He wrote down the address, and then he looked at Mr. Ross.

"You shall have the check to-morrow," he said, "if I find her to-night."

"To-night! Why, you are certainly not going to Putney to-night," exclaimed Mr. Ross, aghast, who had intended to dine with Sir Ralph.

"I certainly am. I am going at once. Thank you, Ross; you have earned my gratitude."

"And the—"

"The check? It will be all right if your information is correct. Excuse me, Ross, but I am going now."

"Stop, stop, my dear fellow!" cried Mr. Ross, rising excitedly. "Why, you have not even asked the name that the fair lady goes by at Putney."

"I am off my head, I think," answered Sir Ralph, grimly. "Well, what is it?"

"Miss Boyd. Here it is written down."

"Thanks. Good-evening, Ross." And in another moment Sir Ralph was gone.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

It was dark when Sir Ralph reached Putney, and the lamps were lit in the narrow streets. He had been directed by Mr. Ross that the house where Laura lodged was close to the bridge, and he easily found it. The street was steep and crowded, but the small linen-draper's shop for which he was seeking was not full, and as he entered it a depressed-looking shopman hurried forward with the object of serving him.

"Does Miss Boyd lodge here?" inquired Sir Ralph; and the shopkeeper's face fell when he found Sir Ralph was not a customer.

"Yes, sir," he answered; "Miss Boyd has our drawing-room. She is a writing lady."

"That is the lady I want to see," said Sir Ralph; upon which the shopkeeper called to his wife in the back parlor that a gentleman had called for Miss Boyd, and then a faded respectable-looking woman appeared.

She ushered Sir Ralph up the narrow staircase, which was not lighted, and rapped at a room door.

"Come in," replied a voice, the tone of which Sir Ralph remembered so well.

"A gentleman for you, Miss Boyd," said the landlady, opening the door; and then Sir Ralph [illegible] the quiet interior.

A woman in a black gown sitting at a table, which was littered with papers and lit by a shaded lamp, a woman who turned round her graceful head as the landlady spoke, and did not for a moment recognize her visitor, for Sir Ralph was standing in the shadow of the dark staircase. Then he slowly walked forward into the room, and the landlady closed the door behind him, and Laura saw who it was.

She turned pale; she started up. She did not speak.

"Laura," said Sir Ralph, holding out his hand, but she did not take it.

"Why have you come? How did you find me?" she asked, in a broken voice a moment later.

"I came because I could not stay away," answered Sir Ralph. "For the last three months I have sought you everywhere, Laura. You knew I would seek you."

"You should not, you should not," she murmured, and she put one of her hands over her white face.

"And is this all you have to say to me?"

Sir Ralph asked this standing there facing the trembling woman before him, and he saw how deeply she was agitated, and that she looked ill and worn.

"It is only giving fresh pain," she said, in a low and faltering voice.

"No; the pain was in parting, Laura. Now we can not part."

There was a long silence after this, and then Sir Ralph moved nearer to her, and took one of her thin, cold hands in his.

"You look ill," he said, gently. "I am sure you have suffered very much."

"Yes, I have suffered very much," she answered. "I have felt that I have done a great wrong."

"You mean—"

"In leaving my husband," continued Laura, more firmly. "I see now I have no right to think of my own feelings—that I should have thought of his; but to stay there was—"

"Misery to you. I know it was."

"I was very unhappy. I felt I was wronging George; but now—"

"Do you wish to return?" asked Sir Ralph, briefly and bitterly.

"I shall never return! But you must leave me, Sir Ralph."

"This is folly! Let us sit down and talk things over. When I got your letter I was terribly upset. I rode at once into Suffold, and saw —Mr. Gifford."

To be continued.

HAD TO HIDE IT

A mother wrote us recently that she had to keep Scott's Emulsion under lock and key—her children used to drink it whenever her back was turned. Strange that children should like something that is so good for them. It's usually the other way. Scott's Emulsion makes children comfortable, makes them fat and rosy-cheeked. Perhaps that's why they like it so much—they know it makes them feel good.

CAPITULATION OF PORT ARTHUR

Text of the Articles Signed by Commissioners.

OFFICERS RETAIN SWORDS.

And go to Russia on Parole — Russian Military and Naval Authorities Are to Furnish Japan With Exhibit of Fortifications, Mines, etc.

Tokio, Jan. 4.—The text of the articles of capitulation of Port Arthur garrison signed by the commissioners representing General Stoessel and General Nogi has been made public. All Russian soldiers, marines and civil officials of the garrison and harbor are made prisoners; all forts, batteries, vessels, munitions, etc., are transferred to the Japanese in the condition in which they existed at noon of Jan. 3, violation of this clause to operate as an annulment of negotiations, giving the Japanese army warrant to take free action.

The Russian military and naval authorities are to furnish to the Japanese army an exhibit of all fortifications, underground and submarine mines, a list of military officers, of ships and the numbers of their crews, and of civilians of both sexes, with their race and occupations, and all public property as buildings, munitions of war, etc., to be left in the present positions pending arrangement for their transference.

Russ Officers Retain Swords.

Officers of the army and navy are permitted to retain their swords and such of their personal property as is directly necessary for the maintenance of life, and with one servant, each may, upon signing their parole not to take arms during the continuance of the war, return to Russia. Non-commissioned officers and privates will be held as prisoners of war.

For the benefit of the sick and wounded Russians, the sanitary corps and the accountants belonging to the Russian army and navy will be required to serve under the Japanese sanitary corps and accountants for such period of time as may be deemed necessary.

Great Lantern Procession.

It is expected that the Diet will now take a recess and hold a special session for the purpose of passing a vote of thanks to General Nogi and the men of the third army. A great lantern procession in celebration of the surrender of Port Arthur was held last night, and the city was splendidly illuminated. Thousands of men carrying flags and lanterns marched the streets, and visited and cheered the various departments of the Government.

TERMS OF CAPITULATION.

General Nogi Sends the Text of the Articles to Tokio.

Tokio, Jan. 4.—A telegram from Gen. Nogi, giving the text of the capitulation convention, was received last evening. It is as follows:

Article 1—All Russian soldiers, marines, volunteers, also Government officials at the garrison and harbor of Port Arthur are taken prisoners.

Article 2—All forts, batteries, warships, others ships and boats, arms, ammunition, horses, all materials for hostile use, Government buildings, and all objects belonging to the Russian Government shall be transferred to the Japanese army in their existing condition.

Article 3—On the preceding two conditions being assented to, as a guarantee for the fulfilment thereof, the men garrisoning the forts and batteries on Etse Mountain, Sungshu Mountain, Antse Mountain and the line of eminences southeast therefrom shall be removed by noon of Jan. 3, and the same shall be transferred to the Japanese army.

The Penal Clause.

Article 4—Should Russian military or naval men be deemed to have destroyed objects named in article 2, or to have caused alteration in any way in their condition at the existing time, the signing of this compact and the negotiations shall be annulled and the Japanese army will take free action.

Article 5—The Russian military and naval authorities shall prepare and transfer to the Japanese army a table showing the fortifications of Port Arthur, and their respective positions, and maps showing the location of mines, underground and submarine, and all other dangerous objects; also a table showing the composition and system of the army and naval services at Port Arthur; a list of army and navy officers, with names, rank and duties of said officers; a list of army steamers, warships and other ships, with the number of their respective crews; a list of civilians, showing the number of men and women, their race and occupations.

Article 6—Arms, including those carried on the person, ammunition, war material; Government buildings, objects owned by the Government, horses, warships and other ships, including their contents, excepting private property, shall be left in their present positions, and the commissioners of the Russian and Japanese armies shall decide upon the method of their transference.

Russ Officers Paroled.

Article 7—The Japanese army, considering the gallant resistance offered by the Russian army as being honorable, will permit the officers of the Russian army and navy, as well as officials belonging thereto to carry swords and to take with them private property directly necessary for the maintenance of life. The previously mentioned officers, officials and volunteers who will sign a written parole, pledging that they will not take up arms, and in no wise take action contrary to the interests of the Japanese army until the close of the war, will receive the consent of the Japanese army to return to their country. Each army and navy officer will be allowed one servant, and such servant will be specially released on signing the parole.

Article 8—Non-commissioned officers and privates of both army and navy, and volunteers, shall wear their uniforms, and, taking portable tents, and necessary private property, and commanded by their respective officers, shall assemble at such places as may be indicated by the Japanese army. The Japanese commissioners will indicate the necessary details therefor.

The Sanitary Corps.

Article 9—The sanitary corps and the accountants belonging to the Russian army and navy shall be retained by the Japanese, while their services are deemed necessary for the caring for sick and wounded prisoners. During such time such corps shall be required to render service under the direction of the sanitary corps and accountants of the Japanese army.

Article 10—The treatment to be accorded to the residents, the transfer of books and documents relating to municipal administration and finance, and also detailed files necessary for the enforcement of this compact will be embodied in a supplementary compact. The supplementary compact shall have the same force as this compact.

Article 11—One copy each of this compact shall be prepared for the Japanese and Russian armies, and it shall have immediate effect upon signature thereof.

KUROPATKIN TOO BUSY.

Could Not Find Time to Lend Aid to General Stoessel.

Che Foo, Jan. 4.—On Dec. 16 General Stoessel sent despatches to the Czar and to Kuropatkin. He asked the latter when relief might be expected. Gen. Kuropatkin answered to the effect that that he had his hands full, and was not able to promise early relief. The reply was entrusted to a messenger who departed six days ago, and it reached Port Arthur. He took tidings to Stoessel which weighed materially with him when he acquiesced in the wishes of his generals, when they proposed the surrender of the fortress. The Russians here claim to see a blessing in disguise in the fall of Port Arthur. They say that the Russian second Pacific squadron can wait until it is overwhelmingly reinforced, and that Gen. Kuropatkin will be able to manage his campaign with a single eye to his own success, without making any false steps animated by a desire to relieve General Stoessel.

Prepared the Public Mind.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 4.—The people of St. Petersburg have received with composure the news known to the rest of the world a day earlier of the fate of Port Arthur. The event had been anticipated, and under official direction the minds of the populace were prepared to receive with resignation the announcement of the fact by the publication of despatches forwarded last week by General Stoessel describing the straits to which the garrison has been reduced. The speculation in some quarters that the surrender of the fortress would be followed at the capital by anti-war demonstrations has not been realized. So far as there has been any expression of feeling, it has been for carrying on the war with all the vigor possible.

BLEW UP ALL VALUABLES.

A Debris-Strewed Desert Is What Japs Gain in Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Jan. 4.—The fort where the negotiations for the surrender of Port Arthur were held is called the Big Eagle's Nest, and it is near Rihlung Mountain. According to reports of the negotiations received here, Gen. Stoessel proposed that the Russian sick and wounded should remain under Russian medical supervision, and that the Japanese transfer the non-combatants was acceptable to Gen. Nogi, but the Russian proposal that the Russians should march out under arms caused some controversy.

Blew Up the Ships.

Midshipman Klisorich, commanding a launch, which left Port Arthur at 8 o'clock Monday night, said yesterday: "No shot has been fired at Port Arthur for two days. That which Chinese heard Monday night was the Russians blowing up forts, ships, magazines, warehouses, docks, and everything valuable. When I left Port Arthur the fortress and the town were almost completely wrecked. The warships died hard. Several explosions were necessary to complete the wrecking of them. The Sevastopol, after catching fire, exploded and turned turtle. The harbor entrance is blocked with sunken ships. The only navigable craft now at Port Arthur are the hospital ships Kassan and Mongolia. You need expect no more ships from Port Arthur, as these are unable to leave on account of the blocking of the harbor.

Dined Before Negotiating.

"Col. Reiss represented General Stoessel in the negotiations for surrender. A table was spread with wine and food at the Eagle's Nest, and the envoys treated each other with great courtesy, which quickly melted into informal good-fellowship. Each complimented the other on the bravery of their forces. The statement that there remained 5,000 fighting men at Port Arthur is misleading, because of a majority of these half are sick or slightly wounded. There has been for some time no proper bandages, and wounds have been dressed with hemp," said Midshipman Klisorich. "The news that Gen. Stoessel was prepared to treat for surrender was received by the soldiers with the feeling of utmost relief. For the past month severe wounds have been gladly received by the soldiers, because they were allowed to rest. When the men were not fighting they were tunnelling on half rations.

Debris-Strewn Desert.

"The bombardment of the last day or so was terrific. Everybody remarked that even Gen. Stoessel must see the futility of further resistance when our guns are unable to reply.

"We might have surrendered a month ago with the highest honor. That resistance has continued effectively since is scarcely less than a miracle.

"It is a mere handful of broken men who surrendered and a debris-strewn desert, which the Japanese gain. No one of Port Arthur's magnificent public works remain.

"The feeling created when General Stoessel took the unwelcome step was generally one of relief.

"The soldiers, for whom one month's service has counted as one year, are rejoicing that they will soon see their families."

Leave Within 24 Hours.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—The arrival at Tsingtau, Shantung Peninsula, China, from Port Arthur of two Russian torpedo boats and a transport with Russian troops on board is officially confirmed. The Governor of Kiaochou, in pursuance of his permanent instructions, will require the vessels to disarm or leave Tsingtau within twenty-four hours. The crews and troops will remain in the German district until the end of the war or an arrangement regarding them is reached with Japan.

CRUISERS OFF JAVA.

Japanese Lying in Wait For Second Pacific Squadron.

Amsterdam, Jan. 4.—A telegram from Batavia says two Japanese cruisers are cruising off Java, and a flotilla of Japanese torpedo boat destroyers are off North Borneo. The Dutch naval force, it is added, is cruising on the western shores of the archipelago. Newspapers here announce that the battleship Zeeland sailed yesterday for the East Indies.

Second Pacific Squadron.

Tamative, Island of Madagascar, Jan. 4.—The division of the Russian second Pacific squadron, commanded by Rear-Admiral Voelkersam, anchored yesterday in Pasitnadava Bay, in the northwestern part of the island. The squadron commanded by Admiral Rojestvensky is at Antongil Bay, on the east coast.

To Go to Vladivostock.

Paris, Jan. 4.—Capt. Clado, who was with Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron at the time of the Dogger Bank affair, last night declared that Admiral Rojestvensky never intended to approach Port Arthur, but would seek to enter Vladivostock, which place it was of the utmost importance to defend.

PORT ARTHUR STATISTICS.

Russians Estimate That Taking the Fortress Cost Japan $100,000,000.

Che Foo, Jan. 4.—Some interesting statistics concerning the defence of Port Arthur have reached here. Originally the army numbered 35,000. Eleven thousand have been killed; 16,000 are wounded or sick, and 8,000 remained in the forts, of whom over 2,000 were unable to fight.

It is learned that when Gen. Stoessel wrote to Gen. Nogi regarding the surrender of the fortress, he said: "I have 8,000 men in the forts, and 6,000 of these are able to fight. If you do not accept my proposal, these men will die fighting, but it will cost you three times their number to kill them."

During the siege 265 per cent. of the garrison were put out of action. This remarkable fact was due to wounded men returning to the front. Cases have been recorded where men have gone to hospitals four times, returning convalescent to the forts. The number of officers killed was proportionately greater than in any battle known in history. This was due to the frequent lethargic condition of the men, who, without food and without sleep, moved only when ordered by their officers.

The Russians estimate that the taking of the fortress has cost Japan $100,000,000.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous year's, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 4, 1905.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The local O.H.A. season will open on Friday evening, when Port Perry will clash with the seniors. The visitors have a reputation as a fast bunch and the game should be worth going miles to see. The locals are determined to win.

The seniors will practice this evening from 7 to 8, in preparation for the game with Port Perry on Friday night.

The Beavers and West End teams, two fast young junior bunches, will meet at the Brock street rink after Friday night's game. This should be a good game.

The Young Nationals refuse to accept the challenge of the Aberdeens. They have already defeated the Aberdeens twice, once on Christmas day by 3—0, and the second time on Monday by 7—2. The Nationals advise the Aberdeens to get a reputation before challenging them again.

The Furriers practised at the rink last evening, and will be in the best of shape for the game with the T.A.S.

Remember to-morrow's City League games. They promise to be the best contests of the season, as the four strongest teams in the league will be seen in action. The Furriers and T.A.S. will come together at eight o'clock in what should prove a fast and exciting contest at 8 o'clock. In the second game the Karnots meet the Colonials. Both teams won their opening games and both have their eyes glued on the Stratton lockets. A lightning game should ensue.

The following teams are asked to be at the rink this evening at 7 o'clock for a practice game—

Goal	Wasson	Fitzpatrick
Point	Glover and Meagher	Moore
Cover Point	Crowley	Long

Parker and Millar are also requested to turn out.

Friday night's big game will start at 8.30. The visitors are a fast and well balanced team and will make the locals go the whole distance to beat them.

Crowley, Meagher and Parnell, of the T.A.S. team have been granted permits to play with the O.H.A. team and still be eligible to play Trent Valley hockey. This will be welcome news to both clubs, as it was feared that one team would have to go without their services.

The Port Hope Guide in its reference to the junior game here on Friday night, says—"Peterborough soon followed and it was little wonder that our forward line turned pale. The goal keeper stood 6 foot the point 5 feet 2 inches, while the cover would have no trouble in tipping the scale at 175. The forwards were all pretty husky but, as we have said before, weight does not count for everything in hockey."

Lindsay completely swamped Markham in an exhibition game at Lindsay the other night, winning by 11—0. They look good at this distance, but they haven't run up against the locals yet and when they do, in the words of the poet, "there will be something doing," and Peterborough will be doing the biggest part of it.

RUGBY.

There is on exhibition in Mr. R. M. Roy's show case, a remarkably fine picture of the Peterborough Rugby Club. It is one of the clearest and most artistic turned out in Peterborough for some time, and is one more example of Mr. Roy's skill in this line of work.

Mr. Roy has in his studio a beautifully colored and life-like photo of Mr. J. Hopwood in his sailing dinghy, Arrow, taken on Chemong Lake.

The Charlotte-st. Guild will practice this evening between 7 and 8 at All Saints' rink. A full attendance is requested as a practice game will probably be played.

BASKETBALL.

The Basketball League series will be continued on Saturday night with games between the Athletics and the Class Teams and the Brownies and Harriers. Admission 15 cents.

THE RING AND MAT.

There will be a big wrestling and boxing exhibition at the Opera House on Saturday evening, when several good men will be seen in action. Edwards, of Buffalo, will meet Pete Barry, of Toronto, in a 15 round bout at 122 lbs. Barry showed his skill here a week or so ago when he dropped Greene, the little Englishman, in the third round, and Edwards is said to be a good one. Geo. Gauthier will meet Goldstein, the Jewish wrestler, of Hamilton, in a lightning bout. Leo McDonnell, of Toronto, will wrestle Bobbie Long, of town. There will also be a wrestling bout between two local boys.

COLLEGE BOYS' DANCE.

Pleasing Affair Held in Foresters' Hall—Large Attendance.

The college boys who are home spending the Christmas holidays, gave a delightful dance in the Foresters' Hall last evening. There was a very large number of young people present, and the arrangements that had been made for an enjoyable evening was proof of excellent foresight on the part of the entertainers. The music was supplied by Glionna's orchestra, of Toronto. The secretary of the committee was Mr. Basil Hall, and the treasurer was Mr. Claude Rogers. The college boys are to be congratulated on the success of the dance, and they appreciate the kind offices of the patronesses, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. (Dr.) Bradd, Mrs. Aylmer and Mrs. R. S. Davidson.

The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion, college colors being conspicuous. Refreshments were served during the evening.

A TALENTED ARTIST.

—The many friends of Miss Jessie Alexander in town will be glad to hear of her appearance here under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., on Tuesday, January 10th. The Winnipeg Tribune says:—"Unquestionably Jessie Alexander takes the lead in her profession. She has gained by extensive travel that experience which only a knowledge of other hemispheres and other countries can give."

TWENTY-THREE MILES OF MAINS

Superintendent of Waterworks Makes His Report.

LAST YEAR'S OPERATIONS.

There Were 213 New Services Laid During 1904—There Are Now 166 Hydrants and 1559 Services.

It is an interesting fact that there are 23 miles of waterworks mains laid in Peterborough. At the last meeting of the Commissioners held on December 29th, Mr. W. Henderson, the superintendent, presented his report of work done during the year 1904. The report is as follows:

To the Chairman and Board of Water Commissioners of the Town of Peterborough

Gentlemen:—I herewith beg to present a synopsis of work executed during the present year.

Extension to pipe distribution as follows:—

Four-inch pipe laid:—

On Stewart-st. south of McDonnell-st. to creek.—350 lineal feet.

On Harvey-st. south of Smith-st. to Antrim-st.—453 lineal feet.

On Rubidge-st., Townsend-st. to Dalhousie-st.—830 lineal feet.

On Aylmer-st., connection for G.T.R. tank—20 lineal feet.

Total 4-inch main laid during 1904, 1,643 lineal feet

Five-inch pipe laid:—

On Stewart-st. south of Townsend-st.—110 lineal feet.

On McDonnell-st., from Reid to laneway east of Aylmer-st.—1445 lineal feet.

On Bolivar-st. from Park-st. westerly—1478 lineal feet.

On Queen-st. north from Simcoe-st.—219 lineal feet.

On Wolfe-st., from Park-st. to Rubidge-st.—241 lineal feet.

On Perry-st., between George and Aylmer-st.—431 lineal feet.

On Weller-st., east of Walton-st.—523 lineal feet.

On Aylmer-st., south of Brock-st.—277 lineal feet.

On Dublin-st. to connect with 12-inch main on George-st.—246 lineal feet.

For hydrant connections—100 lineal feet.

Total five-inch main laid during 1904—5070 lineal feet

Eight-inch pipe laid:—

On Park-st. for elevator in Canadian General Electric Co.—41 lineal feet.

On Smith-st., from Water-st. to east side Harvey-st.—381 lineal feet.

Total eight-inch pipe laid in 1904 422 lineal feet.

Summary:—

Four-inch—1653 lineal feet.
Five-inch—5070 lineal feet.
Eight-inch—422 lineal feet.
Total—7,140 lineal feet,

on which are set 110 hydrants and 14 stop valves. 213 new services have been laid during the present year. The total pipe distribution of cast iron, all sizes, four-inch to sixteen-inch, inclusive, amounts to 23 miles.

Total hydrants set to date—166; total valves set to date—155; total services laid—1,,559.

Respectfully submitted,
W. HENDERSON,
Superintendent.

UNION PRAYER MEETING.

There was a fairly large attendance at the Union prayer meeting in Charlotte street church last evening. Rev. W. J. Jolliffe lead the meeting. An interesting address was given by Rev. J. C. Davidson on the subject of "Prayer." Other clergymen who took part in the service were Rev. Dr. Torrance, Rev. J. G. Lewis, Rev. A. H. Brace. The meeting tonight will be in George street church, when Rev. A. H. Brace will lead.

PERSONAL

Miss Winnifred MacFarlane, Homewood avenue, entertained a large number of her friends last evening.

Mr. Wm. Bradshaw, of Millbrook, was taken to Nichols Hospitall to-day suffering from appendicitis. He will undergo an operation this evening.

Mr. W. B. Bamford, travelling freight agent of the C.P.R., is in town to-day shaking hands with old friends.

Miss Marion Hastings, who was the guest of the Misses Whiten during the holidays, has returned to Toronto.

Miss Helen Collins, of Millbrook, who was the the guest of Miss Aileen Fair, has returned home.

Miss Marion Miller, of Toronto, who was visiting Miss Frankie Burritt, has returned.

Miss Hettie Bennett, formerly of Ashburnham, has been appointed by the Minister of the Interior, to a position in his department, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa. Miss Bennett has for some years been a most successful teacher in the Ottawa City schools, and her many friends here will be pleased to hear of her success.

This morning Mr. S. Sager left for Brantford, taking with him his young son Floyd, with the object of placing the lad in the school for the blind at that city. It will be remembered that the lad had his eyes badly injured some months ago by the explosion of a dynamite cap. It was hoped that when he had recovered from the injury that his eyesight would be partially, if not wholly, restored, but such has not been the case, and he now goes to the School, to be taught by the methods in use for the purpose.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Other Prominent Physicians Use and Endorse Pe-ru-na.

DR. LLEWELLYN Jordan, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

A constantly increasing number of physicians prescribe Peruna in their practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so-called patent medicines and recommend it to their patients.

Peruna occupies a unique position in medical science. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession to-day. Catarrh, as everyone will admit, is the cause of one-half the disease which afflicts mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of United States.

Robert R. Roberts, M. D., Washington, D. C., writes:

"Through my own experience as well as that of many of my friends and acquaintances who have been cured or relieved of catarrh by the use of Hartman's Peruna, I can confidently recommend it to those suffering from such disorders, and have no hesitation in prescribing it to my patients."—Robert R. Roberts.

Dr. R. Robbins, Muskogee, I. T., writes:

"Peruna is the best medicine I know of for coughs and to strengthen a weak stomach and to give appetite. Besides prescribing it for catarrh, I have ordered it for weak and debilitated people, and have not had a patient but said it helped him. It is an excellent medicine and it fits so many cases.

"I have a large practice, and have a chance to prescribe your Peruna. I hope you may live long to do good to the sick and the suffering."

Dr. M. C. Gee, writes from 513 Jones St., San Francisco, Cal.:

"Peruna has performed so many wonderful cures in San Francisco that I am convinced that it is a valuable remedy. I have frequently advised its use for women, as I find it insures regular and painless menstruation, cures leucorrhoea and ovarian troubles, and builds up the entire system. I also consider it one of the finest catarrh remedies I know of."—M. C. Gee, M. D.

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Medical Examiner United States Treasury.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does.

Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

BOARD OF TRADE

At the regular meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade held Tuesday evening the following telegram and reply was read:—

"Secretary Peterborough Board of Trade:

"The Toronto Board of Trade extend New Year greetings and trusts you will have a prosperous New Year.

F. G. MORLEY,
Secretary."

To which the following reply was wired:—

"Peterborough Board of Trade returns sincere thanks for New Year's greetings and kind wishes, and trusts Toronto Board of Trade will meet with continued success in its numerous and important undertakings in 1905.

BOYD RESUMES HIS WIFE HUNT

The Coldwater Widower Again Turned Down.

Once again has Mr. C. J. Boyd of Coldwater, the man in search of a wife loomed up prominently in the public eye, and once again his matrimonial enterprise has met with a crushing repulse.

It appears that a widow Mrs. Wm. Close, lives with her two children on Lansdowne street, a short distance away from the exhibition grounds. Whether Mr. Boyd was directed to Mrs. Close by some kind hearted person who thought that there he would attain the object of his mission or whether his unerring instinct lead him thither is not known. At all events he meandered in that direction on Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock. Mrs Close's son was skating outside the house when the lonely widower arrived on the scene, dressed in his "Sunday best." With his usual fertility of resources Mr. Boyd gained access to the home of his love (?) by a strategy. He asked the boy for a match and when he went into the house to get the desired article, Mr. Boyd boldly marched in after him.

Bowing demurely to Mrs Close and her daughter he proceeded to make himself right at home. Doffing his overcoat, scarf and rubbers and drawing a chair to the fire he placed his feet upon the stove hearth and proceeded to state the object fo his New Year's visit. He had been informed that Mrs. Close would not be averse to accepting a comfortable home and a good husband. Therefore he had come to throw himself at her feet. He had a fine farm of about thirty acres in area, $4,000 in cash and a good farm house. These possessions he would deed over to Mrs. Close if the latter would consent to become his bride. She, however, refused.

Band will be at the Brock-st. Rink to-night.

BIG INCREASE SHOWN.

A remarkable instance of the prosperity of Peterborough in matters of trade last year is given in the customs returns for the half year ending December 31st. The receipts were $136,427.76, while for the same period in the year preceding the figures were $109,284.00. The fiscal year ends on the 30th of June. The year's business shows an increase of $27,143.76 in the customs business. Enquiry among the merchants goes to show that the very good condition of trade during the last half year accounts for the very large increase.

Good skating at Street Railway Rink. Band on Thursday night.

BROKE HIS RIBS.

Sylvester Fife, one of the old residents of Otonabee, met with a severe accident yesterday afternoon while hauling a load of hay to a customer on the Norwood road. In some manner Mr. Fife fell from the load with the result that a number of his ribs were broken. He is now at his home, and is reported to be doing nicely. Though Mr. Fife is not as young as he used to be, his friends look for no serious developments from the accident.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I thank you heartily for again returning me as one of your representatives.

I shall endeavor to serve you as well and efficiently in the future as in the past. I did no canvassing and feel that the honor conferred upon me is all the greater since the support accorded was unsolicited, and of a free, hearty, character.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I remain,

Yours gratefully,

INLAND DIVISION OF TRENT CANAL

Over 130 Miles Ready for Use at End of Year.

BALSAM - SIMCOE DIVISION.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer Gives Some Interesting Information—Much Work Has Already Been Accomplished—The Kirkfield Lift Lock.

While the citizens of Peterborough and of this district pride themselves upon the fact that the Trent Valley waterway is navigable the entire distance from Healey's Falls on the Trent river, to the head of Balsam Lake, very few are aware that at the end of the present year about 130 miles of the Canal will be ready and that vessels from Barrie and other Lake Simcoe ports will be able to visit us. Yet such is the case.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer, of Peterborough, a member of the firm of Aylmer and Brown, who so successfully completed the section from Nassau to Lakefield, and who are in charge of the work on one section of the Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe division, when seen by a Review representative last evening, gave some interesting information about that part of the great waterway that should prove instructive, not only to the citizens of this district, but to the people of the Province generally.

The Baslam Lake and Lake Simcoe division is 18 1-2 miles in length and forms the connecting link between the two lakes. It is divided into three sections—section No. 1, from Baslam Lake to Kirkfield, a distance of about 6 miles, is already completed. The contract was let by the Conservative government before going out of power, to Mr. Andrew Onderdonk, who finished the work five years ago.

The second section begins at Kirkfield and extends to the boundary between Eldon and Thora townships, a distance of seven miles. At Kirkfield a hydraulic lift lock, similar to the one here, although the lift is 10 feet lower, is being constructed. The concrete substructure is already completed and the contract for the placing of the iron works was let a short time ago to the Dominion Bridge Company, of Montreal, who installed the iron work on the local lift lock. The cost of the lift lock will be about the same as the one here. The concrete work was not so costly, but the iron work will be more expensive, making the total cost about the same.

The second section is in charge of Messrs. Larkin and Sangster, of St. Catharines, who will have the work completed by next December. There has been much excavation work on this section.

THE THIRD SECTION.

The third section, which is in charge of Messrs. Aylmer and Brown, extends from the head of Section 2 to Lake Simcoe and is a little over six miles in length. Work on this part of the Canal was commenced in the fall of 1900 and will be finished at the end of the present year. A considerable amount of work has already been completed. Messrs. Aylmer and Brown have built five locks, three dams and five bridges since the commencement of the work. In all 60,000 yards of concrete work and over half a million yards of excavating has been done. There is a great deal of dredging to be done and the firm are the possessors of a complete dredging plant, including barges, tugs, steam derricks, steam shovels, and other machinery necessary for the work.

Mr Aylmer states that the work on this section has been more difficult than on the division between Nassau and Lakefield, owing to the fact that the ground is composed of clay, which is very heavy to handle. All the dams on the Lake Simcoe section are of concrete, the Government having decided to dispense with the old timber structures.

THIS SEASON'S OPERATIONS

Messrs. Aylmer and Brown have between fifty and sixty men now engaged in preparing gravel and stone for this season's operations, which will commence in April. In the summer a force od between 150 and 200 men is employed.

When the Lake Simcoe and Balsam Lake division is completed, which will be at the end of the present year, there will be a stretch of navigable water extending from Healey's Falls to Lake Simcoe, a distance in the neighborhood of 130 miles. Thus over three-fourths of the Canal will have been completed, only the outlets at the end remaining unfinished. When they will be completed depends entirely, of course, upon the action of the Dominion Government. Surveying parties have been at work at both ends and the Government will base their action upon their reports.

Mr. Aylmer states that the people living around Lake Simcoe, who inhabit one of the richest and most fertile sections of the Province, are delighted that the northern section is almost finished, and they will hail with joy the advent of the canal, which they expect to be of great benefit to them.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

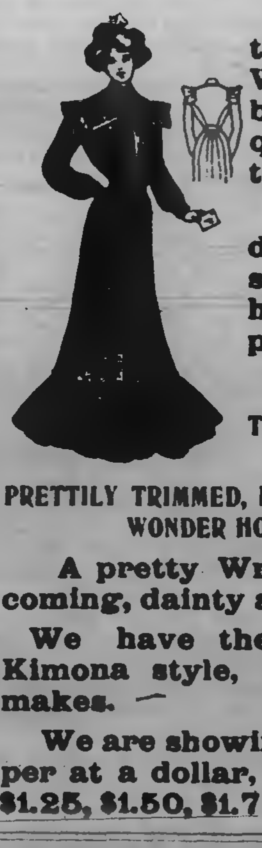
WRAPPERS



We hear so many nice things said about our Wrappers, that we may be pardoned if we feel quite proud about them.

Our Wrapper trade during this Xmas season has been away ahead of that of any previous year.

The reason is

THEY ARE MADE WITH A WIDE SWEEP

PRETTILY TRIMMED, PRICED SO LOW THAT PEOPLE WONDER HOW THEY ARE MADE.

A pretty Wrapper is always becoming, dainty and neat.

We have them in the Japanese Kimona style, and all the popular makes.

We are showing a very nice Wrapper at a dollar, and better ones for $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, etc.

Don't delay too long in selecting your material for the free embroidery classes. You can get a better selection early than late.

JOINT MEETING.

Arrangements Made to Hold One at Lakefield on Thursday, 12th Jan.

A joint political meeting will be held in the town hall, Lakefield, on Thursday next, January 12th. Arrangements have been made by representatives of candidates Bradburn and McWilliams and it is expected there will be a large attendance. Mr. Bradburn and Mr. J. H. Burnham will speak on behalf of the Conservative party, while Mr. R. F. McWilliams will talk in the interests the Liberals. Reeve F. J. Moore will be chairman.

OTONABEE POWER CO.

Mr. R. R. Hall Elected Vice-President—A Dividend Declared.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Otonabee Power Co., Mr. R. R. Hall was elected vice-president of the Company in the place of W. A. Stratton, deceased.

A dividend of 3 1-2 per cent for the last six months was declared on the preferred stock, making a dividend of seven per cent for the past year. This is paid out of current income.

The annual meeting of the stock holders will be held in a few days when a raise in the present rates charged for domestic and commercial lighting will likely be discussed.

UNION PRAYER MEETING.

There was a large attendance at the Union prayer meeting in George street church last evening. Rev. Dr. Crothers took charge of the meeting. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. A. H. Brace, on the subject of "All Peoples and Nations—Other clergymen who assisted in the meeting were Rev. F. J. Scott, Rev Dr. Torrance, Rev. J. C. Davidson and Rev. J. G. Lewis. Two meetings will be held this evening, one at Park street Baptist church addressed by Rev. Dr. Crothers, and the other at Mark street Methodist, addressed by Rev. J. G. Potter.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, JAN. 5, 1905.

Bradburn and Moore.

Young man be sure to register.

Friday, Saturday and Monday are registration days.

A vote for Bradburn is a vote for clean, progressive and economical administration.

Remember that you have to register again to secure a vote on January 25th.

Mr. Thomas Rutherford is to be congratulated on entering his twenty-fifth year as chief of the fire department. This is a record of which he may well feel proud. He has been a faithful officer and has the entire confidence of his men.

The fact that Messrs. Bradburn and McWilliams have signed an agreement to use every lawful means to stamp out corruption and spend no money for improper purposes in the election has been widely commented upon and favorably spoken of by the press in many parts of the province.

The Conservatives ought to stand a better chance of capturing the province by a larger majority in a winter campaign than in the "good old summer time." It is not easy for the Grits to drown bogus ballot boxes in the lake or to make a trip with the pirate brig Minnie M. at this particular frozen period.

The duty which more immediately faces the Conservative party is that of attending to the registration of the young vote. There are several hundred who qualify to vote under the manhood suffrage act and the fact that they registered in October last counts for nothing. This is a new election and there must be a new registration. It commences on Friday. Efforts should be made to see that every young Conservative gets on the list. The primary thing to be looked after is organization.

The Ross Government has been in power too long. It has lost the confidence of the people. It has been unable to secure a majority by fair means and has had to resort to various tactics to retain power—practices that are not creditable and reveal the worst possible deception, hypocrisy and corruption. Some bitter partisan will argue that the Grit Government has not been in office too long and that it has not lost public confidence. If not, why is it appealing to the people at this particular juncture with two years of its term of office not completed? Why was it in a minority of over 7,000 of the popular vote at the contest two years ago? Why is the aggregation in a minority to-day if the people are with Ross? Oh, yes; the people are with Ross in the sense of being done with him for some years to come.

Personalities never yield any dividend in political or other contests. In the end they only recoil on the one who makes use of them. Ottawa has just come through an unusually bitter and severe mayoralty fight, in which the contestants were Messrs. Ellis and Morris. To be called "a liar" at some of the public meetings which these candidates held was quite common and somewhat in the nature of a compliment. Reflections were cast by Morris upon the honesty, financial standing and character of Mayor Ellis, who, of course, resented such base treatment. The result, however, was that while Mr. Ellis won, several hundreds of the better class of the electors of the Capital, disgusted with the bear garden character of the campaign, did not vote for either man. In many cases they cast their vote for aldermanic representatives, and on the proposition to purchase the $3,000,000 electric railway (which project was defeated), but declined to support either candidate for the civic chair. In this connection it is pleasing to record that the candidates in the present campaign in West Peterborough have decided to abstain from petty personal issues and recriminations, and to confine themselves strictly to the political topics of the day and the issues which are at variance between the parties in this fight. Personalities on the platform never have, never will and can never be expected to pay.

It is a little bit tiresome to read in the Grit press and hear from the platform of that party nearly every day that Mr. Whitney is an incompetent leader, that he has not sufficient able followers to form a strong cabinet; in fact, the whole Opposition is miserably weak, lacks initiative, is wanting in administrative ability and could not rule this province if given an opportunity without ruining it legislatively, financially and every other way. This kind of talks seems a little childish and reminds one of a wordy warfare between two bebees or two pugnacious urchins. Everyone can hurl epithets that you have no brains, are ignorant, etc. That is the lowest and commonest kind of argument, but to hear it from Mr. Ross is a little surprising. Of course, the monopoly of brains is possessed by Mr. Ross and his reorganized, inexperienced cabinet. The leader and his newly found ministers have all the virtues, all the capacity for administration, all the faculty for initiative, all the talent for constructive statesmanship, all the forces of strength of intellect, of heart, all the far seeing, upbuilding, developing spirit of the day, all the creative and inventive aptitude, in fact every master hand and master mind is to be found in the Ross aggregation. The Opposition was never endowed with any of these qualities—no, not one. This is about the style of discussion heard in certain Grit quarters. If Mr. Whitney could not in one week form a stronger and more representative cabinet than the present misfit, disjointed combination at the back of Mr. Ross, then Ontario is to be pitied and public life is certainly at a pretty low standard. It is time the backers of the weak and wobbling minority government adopted some other kind of argument.

BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

Signs are not wanting that the Hon. G. W. Ross would hail a defeat with relief. His recent speeches are devoted to issues which he makes more important than purity of elections. "Corruption I will not discuss," he said in Toronto recently.

And indeed one cannot wonder that he turns from the nauseating subject. His loyalty to his colleagues is undoubted. Were it not for that virtue he would long ago have parted with power. He has not denied that evil has been done on behalf of the Liberal party. He has even sought to palliate the responsibility of the Liberal leaders by reference to forgotten lapses from Conservative virtue.

But today he declines to further discuss it. He puts it behind him and seeks to divert public attention to a glittering future.

In truth he displays a weariness at the present situation and would welcome a release from it.

Apart from his attitude, other things point the same way.

There is need of better representation from Ontario in the Federal Cabinet. Mr. Aylesworth shows no sign of wanting a seat and he has never been sworn in. Mr. Fitzpatrick is still Minister of Justice and can hardly retire at the present juncture. Sir Richard Cartwright has virtually abdicated, and his portfolio of Trade and Commerce is at the disposal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. No one will deny that Mr. Ross' undoubted eloquence would reinforce that Cabinet. Besides this his loyalty to the Mother Country is sadly needed at Ottawa, where a few French-Canadian extremists seems to paralyse effective support to Mr. Chamberlain. His evident predilection for the great problems of transportation and his adherence to preferential trade mark him out as a successor to Sir Richard Cartwright.

And if it be so that Mr. Whitney was told that he could shortly be the Premier in a coalition government, it does not need much foresight to predict that Mr. Ross would enter the Federal arena.

To himself, defeat would mean promotion to a wider and more congenial atmosphere. And without him Ontario would present an unbroken front against his Cabinet.

As a Convalescent Food

Mr. Wyman N. Thomas, Ompah, Addington, Co., Ont., writes:—"My wife had congestion of the lungs, along with other troubles, and became very weak and run down. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food she was made as strong and as well as ever. Of course I had a doctor, but she was weak, and it was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which built her up."

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hastie, of Lang, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday, Dec. 30th. They were married on December 30th, 1854, at Linlithgow, Scotland, by Rev. Dr. Andrew Bell. They came to Canada in 1855, and have since resided here. Three sons and four daughters were present at the celebration. These were Mrs. George Smith, Lakehurst; Mrs. John M. Steele, Billings, Montana; Mrs. Thomas Graham, Indian River; Mr. David Hastie, Lang; Mr. Jas. Hastie, Westwood, and Miss Kate Hastie, the youngest daughter, and the only one of the children now at home.

Other guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Lang, and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Nelson, of Keene; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Telford, Bridgenorth; Misses Annie and Bella Renwick, Lang; Mr. D. A. Brodie, Washington, D.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brodie, of Orillia.

Mr. and Mrs. Hastie were the recipients of many very handsome presents from those who were present.

Mr. Ephriam Bickell and his wife were driving into the village on Tuesday, when the cutter ran up against the horse's heels. The animal started running away, and at the English church Mr. Bickell lost control and he and his wife were thrown out of the cutter. The horse ran down to Leahy's corner and the cutter swung against Dr. Johnston's veterinary office, smashing it pretty badly, the horse running into Leahy's yard. Mr. and Mrs. Bickell were both pretty badly shaken up, although not seriously hurt.

The concert given by Lakefield Council of Chosen Friends on Monday evening was a great success. Mr. Eddie Pigott, a comic singer, who appeared here for the first time, and his rendering of the numbers on the programme were simply sidesplitting, each number being encored, and should he appear again he will draw a crowded house. The other numbers on the programme were well taken. Miss Montgomery was the evening's very efficient accompanist. Miss Murphy, of Lindsay, gave two recitations, which were well received.

—At a meeting of the Hastings Public School trustees, Miss N. Heggen, of Binghampton, Ont., was engaged to teach in the junior department during the coming year.

"FOLLOW THOU ME"

The Y. M. C. A. Motto for 1905—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt's New Year's Advice to Men.

The men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday was of a character fitting the first Sunday of the New Year. The speaker was Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, who is always greeted with a large audience of men at the popular men's meeting.

Prior to the address he gave the Association a text for the year, Christ, though a Man of Sorrows, had more to say of joy than any other man. He was always telling people to "cheer up." Mr. Langfeldt said he had no use for a long faced religion, which was often discovered to be a cloak for hypocrisy. The speaker then dealt with four special occasions on which Christ told men to be of good cheer and deduced helpful and impressive lessons from each. He spoke it to the man sick of palsy after He had assured him of forgiveness of sins. We did not require any intercessor but Christ. We could go direct to the Father by Him, and did without asking any minister, priest or man. We should be cheerful in trial and temptation. He had a religion to offer men which would cause them to be cheerful as Paul was at such times.

We should be true witnesses for the Lord Jesus—in Jerusalem, Samaria and unto the uttermost parts "Follow Thou Me," being the command of Christ to Peter recorded in the last chapter of the Gospel of St. John. Peter had asked the Lord a question as to John, but Jesus said, "What is that to thee? Follow thou Me." It was easy for us to look at other men's faults, but our own lives first needed attention. The command to us was to follow the Lord.

After Mr. Hurd had given a sacred solo, which was decidedly impressive, Mr. Langfeldt then gave his address, the main thought being the joy of the man who had been delivered from the bondage of sin. His desire was that all men might enjoy the liberty and the joy of the Lord. This joy was not to be found in a carnal life or a formal religion of the earth. Application was made by the speaker in each of these points. First witness at home where people knew our lives, our inconsistencies and our failures. We should witness to our Roman Catholic brothers, for all of whom the speaker expressed a desire to see them enjoy the liberty of the gospel and its joy. The speaker knew what spiritual bondage meant, for he had experienced it. Let us tell our brothers who are in error and sin lovingly of their ways and seek to bring them into this joy. Mr. Langfeldt concluded his address with an impressive appeal to his hearers to follow Christ and experience the joy of the Lord, which was the Christian's strength.

HAVE HAD THEIR DAY.

Old Fashioned Medicines For Catarrh No Longer In Vogue.

For many years past the usual treatment for catarrh diseases was with local douches, sprays, inhalers and liquid medicines composed principally of alcohol, all of which never cured but simply give the temporary relief and stimulation.

A thorough cure can be made only by the treatment which removes the catarrhal poisons from the blood.

A new remedy which meets the requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membrane only.

They can hardly be classed as a secret patent medicine as they are composed of such valuable remedies as blood root, Hydrastin, red gum of Eucalyptus tree and similar antiseptics, combined in tablet form which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous membrane the poisons of catarrh.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant lozenges, to be taken internally, allowing them to dissolve in the mouth, thus reaching the throat, trachea and finally the stomach.

If desired they may also be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However when there is much stoppage of the nose a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use internally will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche.

Dr. Bennett stated "that the internal treatment of catarrh by means of pleasant medicated tablets is rapidly taking the place of douches and local applications" and further says that "probably the best, and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition and all the really efficient catarrh remedies are concentrated in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cts. for full sized package, and he will tell you there is no safer, more palatable, efficient and convenient catarrh cure known to the the trade.

PREMIER ROSS WAS NOMINATED

Says That Liberals Never Condoned Corruption.

OTHER STARTLING STORIES.

Says That Providence is Not on the Side of the Conservatives, But Evidently Forgot That G. W. Himself is Among a Lot of Goats.

Mount Brydges, Jan. 5.—Hon. G. W. Ross was nominated here yesterday as the candidate of West Middlesex Liberals. The convention was largely attended. The Premier made a bitter speech.

The Liberals had never condoned corruption in their own party, any more than in the ranks of their opponents, he said. The Conservatives had, however, never taken this attitude. They had criticized the Liberals, but had shut their eyes to the wrong-doing in their own party.

Then followed the Premier's only reference to Mr. Gamey, who he characterized as a man guilty of every crime in the political calendar. Fighting shy of the Gamey topic in these words, Mr. Ross took up the ballot switching. He challenged the Conservatives to show a single constituency in which ballots had been switched by Liberal deputy returning officers.

How Does Ross Know?

"God help the Tories," shouted a party enthusiast.

"Yes, they will need all the help He can give them," was the retort of the Premier. "I don't think He's on their side, anyway."

The speaker claimed that the Government was not on trial. It was the Opposition that was in that position, he said. If the Government was to be displaced at all it should be by someone better than they were. The present Opposition did not enjoy that distinction. The Liberals had somewhat weakened their position by permitting themselves to be "bull-dosed and brow-beaten by their opponents for things we are heartily ashamed of," while all the time no one was saying anything about Conservative corruption.

"We propose to change this," said he. "We propose to carry the war into Africa.

Conservatives Too Quick.

Referring to the accusations that the Government had not prosecuted political offenders, he characterized them as untrue. Forty-seven prosecutions had been made as a result of the elections of 1898, and charges had been laid against four offenders at the last bye-elections. As far as the Soo was concerned the Tories had taken the prosecution out of the Government's hands, and were prosecuting eleven men in the courts.

"We would have prosecuted these men ourselves," said the Premier in self-righteous tones, "had not the Tories been so hasty in taking it out of our hands."

The Premier claimed that it was only "out of our superabundant leniency and charity" that they did not take action against Tory corruptionists of 1898.

"We'll not be that easy with them again," he added. "By their conduct they have placed themselves out of court and can expect no mercy."

Speaks of Conservative Fund.

Next he produced a list to show that the courts had taken actions against the political offenders of the elections of 1902, reading a list of fines and imprisonments in South Ontario, South Perth, North Waterloo and Halton.

At the Tory convention not one word had been said as to the corruption within their own ranks, said the Premier. There had been not one word as to the $30,000 election fund "that was used for corrupt purposes, and that Mr. Whitney knew of."

"Put these men in power," exclaimed Mr. Ross, with sarcastic emphasis upon the words. "Put these men in power to purify the electorate; to purify the halls and the lobbies of Parliament, and the chairs in which the ministers sit! These men are corrupt. Just as the fathers, so are the sons to the second and the third generations, and it is only by a long course of penitence and service in the wilderness that they can be entrusted with the seals of office. And I tell you the time has not yet come for them to end their penitential service."

The Premier referred to the talked of surplus. "Why, we have $2,000,000 in cold cash right in the bank. And would not they like to get their hands on it?" referring to the Conservatives. "Wouldn't it be a nice thing to divide amongst the faithful?"

What little platform the Conservatives possessed, according to the Premier, was stolen from the Liberals. Every time the people had rejected them the Conservatives had changed their policy. Naturalists told us that the lobsters dropped their claws every time a thunderstorm came along, the nervous shock being so great. "Well, the Conservatives are lobsters, everyone of them," remarked the Premier with vicious emphasis on the slang. "They're lobsters, and they have dropped their claws eight times."

"They'll drop them the ninth time, too," from an enthusiastic listener in the hall.

"Yes, that's what they will. If they have any claws left," answered the Premier.

Conservatives On Trial.

Strewed along the last thirty-two years were the discarded planks of the Conservative platform. "Enough of them to make a magnificent bonfire for us," he added. "Now, I tell you again, they're on their trail and you are to keep them there until they bring forth fruit mete for repentance."

Mr. Ross told his hearers that he wanted this contest to be one of such a nature that no Liberal in West Middlesex would regret going into it. He urged them to get right into the fight. They had no need to bring into the riding any outsiders. His opponents had said that the Liberals had a machine. Well, he had never seen it. But he thought that the Tories must have one.

Concluding, the Premier said that there was no reason why the Government should not have a majority of from fourteen to fifteen in the next House.

Got the Wrong Man.

Goderich, Jan. 5.—Yesterday E. N. Lewis, Conservative M.P.-elect for West Huron, made this statement: "You may say that there is nothing in it. They have got the wrong man. They have been trying to rake up something of the kind for a long time." This is in relation to the report that he is disqualified.

Mr. Lewis says he is Gunder's bond only as a witness to his signature, but A. M. Polley says Lewis and he are the sureties. The matter seems in doubt, and there is no means of verification.

Another Liberal Quits.

Lindsay, Jan. 5.—It was reported here last night on the best of authority that John Austin, the Liberal candidate in East Victoria, had withdrawn from the field, and that no one will be put in his place.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

The Quebec Legislature has been called for Feb. 9. It is expected the session will be a short one, as the Government has not any important measure.

R. R. Gamey spoke at Exeter Wednesday afternoon and in the evening in the interest of H. Eilber, the Conservative candidate for South Huron. He was well received.

Henry Carscallen, K.C., was renominated for the Legislature Wednesday evening by the Conservatives of East Hamilton. Hon. Dr. Montague and Ald. Main were both nominated, but they withdrew, and Mr. Carscallen's nomination was made unanimous.

At a Conservative convention, held Wednesday in Spencerville, G. Howard Ferguson of Kemptville, was chosen as the candidate for Grenville in the coming election. There was a convention a year ago at which Mr. Ferguson was nominated, but R. L. Joynt, the sitting member, claimed it to have been unfair and demanded a new convention. It was held Wednesday, when Mr. Ferguson won out by five votes over Mr. Joynt. There is a little uncertainty as to whether Mr. Joynt will abide by the choice that has been made.

TO DISCUSS RECIPROCITY.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Senator Fairbanks to Meet Soon.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Reciprocity between the United States and Canada will be discussed at a conference now being arranged between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Senator Fairbanks.

The meeting will be held either in New York or Boston at an early date. It will then be determined whether the British-American Joint High Commission will be re-convened.

Previous to the election President Roosevelt requested Mr. Fairbanks to arrange for a session of the commission. Since that time Mr. Fairbanks and Sir Wilfrid have been in correspondence on the subject.

It is understood between the two chairmen that whatever is done must be accomplished before the adjournment of Congress on March 4.

TOW BOAT BLOWS UP.

Eight Known to Be Dead and Three Seriously Injured.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 5.—Eight men are known to be dead and three seriously injured, the result of a boiler explosion and fire, which destroyed the tugboat Defender near here yesterday. She was racing with the Victor at the time.

Storm Causes Seven Deaths.

New York, Jan. 5.—Not for several years has New York been visited by a storm of such proportions as that which commenced Tuesday and continued until early yesterday. Nine inches of snow fell, traffic was paralyzed and the intense cold brought untold suffering to the city's poor. The blizzard caused seven deaths in New York and vicinity, while many persons, overcome by the cold, fell on icy walks and sustained broken bones. Scores of horses fell, many of them later being shot. The drifts caused a milk famine, only 6 per cent. of the usual supply being delivered in the city in the morning. Five of the seven men who met death in the storm died from exposure. Another slipped on the icy platform of an elevated station, fell in front of an approaching train and was ground to pieces. The seventh, L. Weller, a conductor on the Pennsylvania Railroad, blinded by the driving snow, stepped in front of a Congressional Limited train at South Amboy, N.J., and was killed.

Crashed Into a Train.

New York, Jan. 5.—A Long Island express train from Patchogue, L.I., to Long Island City, crashed into a train stalled in a snow-drift at the West Floral Station yesterday, creating terror among the passengers. One passenger was probably fatally injured.

600 Phones Out of Business.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 5.—Tuesday night saw the greatest sleet storm of years in this city. An immense amount of damage has been done to trees and wires. Six hundred telephones at least have been thrown out of business. Shade and ornamental trees are in many cases ruined. The street railway and electric lighting systems are tied up.

May Not Recover.

Peterboro, Jan. 5.—Sylvester Fife, an Otonabee farmer, fell from a load of hay on the hard ice and broke several ribs. It is thought he is injured internally. He may not recover.

Killed Near Quebec.

Quebec, Jan. 5.—While at work near Garneau bridge, on the other side of the river, opposite Sillery, a young man named Couturier, 23 years of age, and living at Sillery, was killed yesterday morning.

Croup Absolutely Cured

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. Magee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto, Ont.

FENCE FOR HORSE THIEVES.

Liveryman Wright of Treherne, Man., Placed Under Arrest.

Winnipeg, Jan. 5.—Sensational development in connection with wide-spread horse-stealing in the Canadian West is the arrest of a man named Wright, at Treherne, Manitoba, Tuesday afternoon, charged at the instance of a North Dakota sheriff with having stolen horses in his possession. Wright, who is known to the police under several aliases, is part proprietor of Wright & Cormany's Livery Stable, which was burned down under rather peculiar circumstances on Saturday night, the fire spreading to the adjoining livery stable. This circumstance, taken in connection with the recent wholesale arrest of American horse thieves at Medicine Hat, Alberta, points to the discovery of one at least of the selling depots of the gang in Manitoba.

Russian Jews Stranded.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—Between 400 and 500 Russian Jews are stranded in the city without work, and with little prospect of getting any for some months. They are all men and claim that they were forced to fly from Russia because the generals of the army were placing the Jews in the most exposed positions and letting them get killed. The Jews of the city are unable to look after the men and are applying to the city for assistance.

Succeeds Mr. Bertram.

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—Robert Reford of Montreal will succeed the late John Bertram as chairman of the Transportation Commission. James Ashdown of Winnipeg goes to the Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Bertram and the promotion of Mr. Reford. The Commissioners are to be paid at the rate of $25 a day.

Honor For Minto.

London, Jan. 5.—(C.A.P.)—In recognition of his public service, Lord Minto will be presented with the freedom of the royal borough of Jedburgh, Jan. 16.

FIRES IN HAVELOCK.

Mr. R. Nolan's and Mrs. F. Haig's Houses Damaged—Results of Elections.

Havelock, Jan. 4.

Miss Ina Butters is home from Toronto, visiting her father, Mr. David Butters.

Miss Gertie Flynn, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Haig.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagger are home from Toronto for the holidays.

Miss E. Howell, of Smith's Falls, returned home Tuesday, after spending a week with her friend Mrs. B. Haig.

Mr. Alger, former accountant in the Sovereign Bank here, but now of Montreal, is spending a few days' holidays in town.

Mr. R. Gillies, of Port Hope, was in town for a few days last week.

Miss Laura Baxton is home for the holidays at Bowmanville.

A small blaze occurred on Monday morning about six o'clock in the rear of Mr. R. Nolan's house on George-st. The alarm was quickly given and through prompt action the bucket brigade succeeded in controlling the fire. About fifty dollars will cover the loss.

Mr. F. Haig's residence had a narrow escape from fire on Saturday last. His little daughter Mary, aged five, was lighting some matches in a bed room upstairs when the curtain caught fire. The blaze was discovered before any serious damage was done.

Mr. R. Walton, son of Mrs. S. Walton, of town, who has been visiting friends in England returned home last week.

The elections in the village resulted as follows:—

For Reeve—Jas. Thompson, 125; S. S. Joyce 68.

For Councillors—G. Sills 127; J. Campney 127; H. Morrison 102; A. V. Fuller 101; Thos. Bennett 96; Chas. Fanning 96.

For Trustees—E. Chapman, Dr. Holcroft, Wm. Mathison.

For County Commissioners Jas. Andrews and Wm. Buck were elected, Mr. Curtis being the defeated candidate.

In Belmont township Joseph Johnstone had a majority of nine over Mr. A. Waller for Reeve. The Councillors elected are R. McCutcheon, A. Buchanan, Wm. Russell, Geo. Scott.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS—1905.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognised agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandisement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr. Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be farther from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters;

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd. The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,

Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

Corrupt Practices.

We, the undersigned candidates in the Provincial election, beg to call the attention of the electors to the following provisions of the Election law respecting bribery:

Any person who gives or lends, or agrees or offers, or promises to give or lend any money, office, employment or other value to any voter to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting is guilty of bribery within the meaning of the Election Act, and is liable under the amended Act to imprisonment for six months, WITHOUT THE OPTION OF A FINE, and the receiver of any money or other consideration is equally as guilty of bribery as the giver.

We have mutually pledged ourselves to do everything in our power to prevent bribery or corrupt practices by any person or persons on our behalf and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe shall be protected by either of us from the utmost penalty of the law.

It will be [illegible] the above that neither of us can personally or through agents, give or lend any money during the election.

LeBRUN'S

Saturday Next, January 7th, a Sweeping Stock-Reduction Sale starts at H. LeBRUN & CO'S City Clothing Store.

Winter Suits, Overcoats, Reefers, Underwear, Gloves, Mitts, Neckwear, Hats and Caps,

will all be marked down 20 to 30 per cent. It is our custom not to carry over Winter Stocks from season to season:—

1st—Because, although we occupy four large flats, our premises are too small to store away out-of-season Goods.

2nd—Because, we would rather sacrifice prices now than lose money on Goods carried over later on.

After a most satisfactory year's business, the City Clothing Store will therefore start the New Year with a Storeful of Price-Sliding Bargains. We begin our regular WINTER REDUCTION SALE this year earlier than usual, and before Stock-taking, instead of after, so that the public may have full benefit, as well as on account of Spring Goods arriving earlier. This Great Sale will be a Bonanza to Men, Youths and Boys who have been putting off buying, as well as to those who can afford to buy ahead for future use. Remember this Bona-fide Sale Starts

THERE WAS MUCH ENTHUSIASM

At Mr. Bradburn's Meeting Held in Centreville.

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Seventy Representative Farmers Were Present—The Candidate, Dr. M. A. Morrison and Mr. L. M. Hayes Delivered Addresses.

The meeting held at Centreville last evening in the interests of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, was enthusiastic, and was attended by about 70 of the representative farmers in that locality Mr. Parker acted as chairman and speeches were given during the evening by Mr. Bradburn, Dr. M. A. Morrison and Mr. L. M. Hayes. Mr. Bradburn was very well received in a short but practical address. He reviewed some of the questions of the day, devoting himself more particularly to the various reforms intended by Mr. Whitney when affairs of the Province are placed in the hands of his party.

Dr M. A. Morrison, on being called addressed the meeting for upwards of half an hour and delivered an interesting eloquent and instructive address in which he heavily scored the Ross Government. He reviewed the history of the Government during the last few years only, pointing out the gross acts of corruption, bribery and ballot-stuffing of which Mr. Ross and his party have been proved guilty. He quoted at length from the letters of various clergymen of the Presbyterian church appearing in the various religious papers condemning the Ross Government, more particularly their treatment of the temperance party. Dr. Morrison received an attentive hearing and his remarks evidently impressed the audience.

Mr. Louis M. Hayes addressed the meeting in a rattling twenty-five minute speech, in which he pointed out the necessity for a change, asking whether the Ross Government had a divine right to rule the affairs of this province and whether they have a perpetual lease of the Government of Ontario. Mr. Hayes touched briefly on the West Elgin horror and read the famous McNish confession. He reviewed categorically some of the acts of which Mr. Ross had guilty knowledge, namely, his speech at Madoc in favor of the infamous Lo t, who introduced the machine ballot boxes, the sale to "Capt." Sullivan of a timber limit for $250, afterwards sold by "Capt." Sullivan for $9,000; the Sault election and the famous cruise of the Minnie M., together with the refusal of the then Attorney-General Gibson to interfere or to prosecute offenders. Mr. Hayes also referred to some of the reforms proposed by Mr. Whitney, particularly those so urgently needed in the law courts.

The meeting was very enthusiastic, and Mr. Bradburn evidently gained many new friends. After a vote of thanks to the chairman, the meeting closed with cheers for the King, and the Conservative leader and candidate.

CHARLOTTE-ST. LADIES' AID.

This year has been one of the most successful in the history of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Charlotte-st. church. They held ten regular and two special meetings during the year, and at the close of the year there were 55 paid-up members on the roll.

A Bazaar and Nation Tea was given in conjunction with the choir, which was carried on with great success.

An appeal was made to the congregation for a thank offering, and it was received with a most liberal response, for which the Society feel most grateful.

ROUTED FOUR MEN.

The Italian Who Used a Knife Committed For Trial.

The Police Court this morning was thronged to hear the preliminary investigation in the case of Guissepi Guillenard, the Italian, charged with attempting to wound Chas. Butcher and John Montgomery on Monday night last.

The evidence revealed the fact that the native from the Southern climes had put to flight a party of four. Butcher and Montgomery retreated, resisting strongly until they had reached McCallum's restaurant, where the former telephoned for the police. The Italian struck across the road with Montgomery following, but when they reached the other side, the native wheeled around and chased Montgomery back again.

Montgomery went into McCallums and tried to secure a club, but was unsuccessful. On coming back to the street again he found that the Italian had disappeared around the Charlotte street corner and was crossing the market square, where he was nabbed by P. C. McGinty.

Guillenard was committed for trial, the Magistrate considering the evidence against the prisoner strong enough to warrant this step.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

—It is reported in Lindsay on the best of authority that John Austin, the Liberal candidate in East Victoria, has withdrawn from the field, and that no one will be put in his place.

—Mr. J. B. Pearce, formerly County Councillor, is seriously ill in a Toronto hospital. He is suffering from eczema in an acute form. Mr. Pearce's many friends in Norwood and surrounding country sincerely trust that he will recover.

—A pretty wedding took place in Douro on December 28th, when Miss Mary Letitia, daughter of Mr. W. H. White was married to Mr. F. J. Manley. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. W. Leggott. Mr. and Mrs. Manley will reside near Lakefield, and will have the best wishes of many friends for their success.

—The first aid class will start afresh Saturday evening next at 7 o'clock. Dr. Scott will be there and will make a general review of the work now covered. Everybody should be prepared for an examination within two weeks, after which studies in the book of nursing will be taken up. P. K. Holme, Physical Director, Y.M.C.A.

—The many friends of Miss Jessie Alexander in town will be glad to hear of her appearance here under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., on Tuesday, January 10th. The Winnipeg Tribune says—: "Unquestionably Jessie Alexander takes the lead in her profession. She has gained by extensive travel that experience, which only a knowledge of other hemispheres and other countries can give." ld

—The remains of Mrs. Wright, relict of the late Daniel Wright, Baptist minister of Lindsay, were interred in the Riverside cemetery, this week. Mrs. Wright attained the ripe old age of something over four score. She had been a resident of Lindsay for over forty years, and was respected by all who knew her. She was predeceased by her husband, who was one of the first Baptist ministers of the town.

—The Public School Board of Orillia has decided to get information as to the desirability of establishing savings banks for pupils in connection with the schools. It is said that sums saved in this way is surprisingly large and that the effect on the children generally seems to be good, as it gives them an idea of thrift and the value of money. Toronto, Brantford and other places are adopting this plan.

—A photo traveller having been over most of Canada and at the World's Fair at St. Louis says the large lacrosse picture Mr. G. B. Whiten made for the T.A.S. is not only the largest picture he has ever seen, being 6 ft. 2 in. x 4 ft. 1 in., but has the best work on it he has seen on any photo in Ontario. He says if Mr. Whiten had exhibited the picture at the World's Fair in St. Louis, he would have taken first prize.

—The Salvation Army Band is giving to-night a Musical Festival in the S.A. Hall. The programme will be a good one. Some of the special features are as follows:—Cornet solo, by deputy Bandmaster Northcott; saxaphone solo, by Bandsman Dafoe; brass trio, cornet, tenor and euphonium, by deputy Bandmaster Northcott, Bandsman Payton and Bandsman C. S. Greene; also vocal selections by the male quartette, besides several selections by the juniors. This will be one of the best programmes ever given by the band, and all are invited.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

Successful Celebration Held by the Methodists of Fairmount.

The annual tea and concert of the Fairmount Methodist Church took place last night and was well attended.

A large number of persons were present from Peterborough and a delightful programme was rendered. A bountiful supper was served by the ladies and Rev. H. V. Mounteer made an admirable chairman. The church choir rendered three excellent anthems in good style. A male quartette from Peterborough composed of R. Freund, R. N. Jolliffe, G. W. Jones and E. H. Jolliffe. They appeared twice. Miss Clara Belleghem and Mr R. N. Jolliffe contributed two well rendered duets. Mr. Jones gave a violin solo in a finished manner and also a recitation. Mr. C. N. Brown in a couple of Irish readings was well received. Mr. Clare, of Cavanville, also gave a fine reading and Rev. George Yule, of Springville, a short address. An autograph quilt was sold, Mr. Robt. Neill acting as auctioneer. It realized $9. The proceeds of the anniversary were in every way satisfactory.

PERSONAL.

Miss Olive Stevens, Peterborough, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. James Deyman, at Bowmanville.

Miss Jennie Fee, of Lindsay, is spending a few days in town, the guest of Miss G. Pollard.

Miss M. Meldrum will return on Monday to Branksome Hall, Toronto, to resume her studies.

Mr. J. H. Smith, representing the William Hamilton Manufacturing Co., left yesterday for Ottawa, where he will be for some time on business.

Mr. C. F. Maxwell, of Toronto, who has been visiting his uncle, Mr. W. H. Meldrum, returned home yesterday.

Mr. Bert Tovey after spending the holidays in town returned to Toronto this morning to resume his studies at Pharmacy.

Rev. T. W. Jolliffe, Mrs. Jolliffe and Reginald, of Bowmanville, have returned after a pleasant visit to Peterborough and Havelock.

Mr. Norris Joyce who has been visiting friends in Peterborough, returned home last night, having had a most enjoyable visit.—Port Hope Guide.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Percival Langford, who have been spending a few days in town, left for the West yesterday. They will take up their residence in Winnipeg.

Mr. W. C. Ackerman left yesterday for Barrie to attend the wedding of Miss Jean Spry to Mr. Ross Cameron formerly of Norwood, Ont., which took place last evening.

Mr. Alex. Heal, of Perth, North Dakota, is visiting relatives here, the guest of his father, Mr. James Heal, 179 Dublin-st. It is 14 years since Mr. Heal left Peterborough.

Mr. R. Mowry, of Peterborough, spent New Year's in town.........Miss Aileen Primeau, of Peterborough, is visiting her friend, Miss Nellie Meehan of North Ops.—Lindsay Post.

Mr J. W. Garvin, who sometime ago was appointed State Manager of Ohio for the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co., is in town. The Company found such legal difficulty in getting a license to do business in that state that they have indefinitely postponed their entrance thereto and have appointed Mr Garvin instead "Chief Inspector of Agencies." His duties will necessitate long journeys throughout Canada and elsewhere in getting acquainted with the various agencies of the Company. Mr. and Mrs. Garvin will probably continue to reside in Peterborough. Mr. Garvin leaves tonight for Montreal and Quebec.

ANOTHER RALLY FOR BRADBURN

Large Crowd at the Candidate's Committee Rooms.

ADDRESSED BY WORKERS.

Mr. James Kendry, Mr. James Stevenson and Others Speak—Encouraging Reports Received—Practical Work Being Done.

There was a good attendance of the supporters of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the Liberal Conservative candidate, in the committee rooms last evening. Lieut.-Col. Miller was in the chair, and prior to an hour's hard work in preparation for registration, speeches were given by Mr. W. H. Moore, Mr. Jas. Stevenson, Mr. James Kendry, Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald and Mr. J. J. Lynch. Reports received from that part of the riding north of Buckhorn were very encouraging, Mr. Fitzgerald having but recently come from there. He states there are many assurances that Mr. Bradburn will receive strong support in the election.

REGISTRATION.

Mr. Moore explained the work that was necessary in connection with registration. He expressed his pleasure that there were so many present taking an active interest in the election. He was confident from what he saw and heard that West Peterborough would go Conservative and that Mr. Ross was a goner. It was advisable that every man should register who was not assessed for property here or who was not assessed for the present year on account of a change in ownership. The places of registration were—In Ward One, Spry's shop; in Ward Two, Council Chamber; Ward Three, Police Court; Ward Four, Lee's shop; Ward Five, Town Hall, Ashburnham. In the division in which a man slept at night there was he to register. The oath of qualification required that he be a British subject, over the age of 21 years, residing within the Province for the 12 months next preceeding the 6th of this month, the first day of registration, and that he had his home in the municipality and was a resident thereof for three months next preceeding Jan. 6th. If a man was working out of the municipality or unable to register through sickness, some member of the family or a friend might register for him, although the name would subsequently come before the Court of Appeal. College students registered in the municipality where their school or college was situated and voted there. The dates of registration were January 6th, 7th and 9th from 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 6 p.m. There will be an evening session from 7 until 9.30 Saturday evening. The manhood franchise vote in Peterborough amounted to about 1,500 and it would be necessary to do some hustling in order to get it in.

STANDARD-BEARER

Mr. James Kendry, the veteran standard bearer was well received and he too expressed his pleasure at the interest taken. He paid a tribute to Mr. Bradburn, who he said had been an enthusiastic worker for a great many years. Mr. Kendry expressed himself as quite satisfied that the Ross Government would find itself in the cold shades of opposition after the 25th. Too much could not be done towards organization; it was better than all the money that could be brought into the riding. He advised that each ward should have its committee room and no stone should be left unturned in getting after the available vote.

OLD WAR-HORSE.

The chairman now announced another old war-horse, Mr. James Stevenson, who was heartily applauded as he ascended the platform. He gave a spirited address in spite of his 81 years and his opening words were "I am as much interested in this election as in one of my own." When a man was over 80 years old, he said it was time he gave up politics. For the last 10 years the Province had been robbed right and left by its Government. They had been spending money hand over fist; there was no official auditor, except the head of each department, or they may appoint some person. The Government he charged with exorbitant taxation, referring more particularly to what they made out of the estates of those who were dead, and said that in one case in Toronto, $80,000 had been acquired and of that money not a cent had ever been accounted for.

ROSS DEGENERATED

Said Mr. Stevenson—I used to think a great deal of Mr. Ross, but he is surrounded by men who don't care what they do. He denounced the expenditure of money in order to secure maintenance of power and said the time had come when the people should rise up in their might and declare for honest government. Just 50 years ago this spring Mr. Stevenson was first elected mayor of Peterborough. His first vote was cast for Judge Hall. In those days there was no corruption fund and a man's election expenses only amounted to about $500. There was never any thought of paying for votes. Men were above it. It was when John Gordon came into the riding with $12,000 in silver, as an opponent of the late Charles Perry, that the work began which had since proved the disgrace of the constituency and the Province. The Government would see its own men doing all the deviltry, but would not prosecute.

Mr. Stevenson said he had nursed Mr. Bradburn many's the time. He was an upright, honest man and would make an excellent representative. Referring to his own work in the Dominion Parliament, the speaker said that the Trent Canal would never have been begun but for Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, with whom he pleaded privately and publicly, and had these men been spared the canal would have long ago been completed.

GOOD PROSPECTS

Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald made a short speech stating that he had spent six days north of Buckhorn with Mr. Bradburn and the prospects were most encouraging.

Mr. J. J. Lynch, the President pointed to the great necessity of practical work in the campaign, and advised against over confidence. It should be conducted on a clean, fair even-handed basis.

After a few words by the chairman the committee got to work. The 25th of this month will show the effect of an excellent organization.

Great January Sale

—WHITEWEAR—

COTTONS, SHEETINGS, PILLOW CASES, QUILTS, EMBROIDERIES.

For January, the white month, we are offering special inducement in white goods. This store will be overflowing with BARGAINS. It will be a month of unprecedented Bargains.

A FAIR WITNESS

Many women gratify their taste for the beautiful by wearing the finest of lingerie, much of it hand-made, but more from our ready-to-wear stock. Here you will find a full assortment of Night Gowns, Skirts, Drawers and Corset Covers, in beautiful profusion. Our display delights tasteful women.

YOU'LL BE PROUD

Our Whitewear is pretty enough to satisfy almost any one. The garments are well made, some have elaborate trimmings. Some are quite plain. But they are all unusually nice, and are unquestionably destined to be popular. We would like you to see them while the assortment is unbroken. The prices are no less attractive than the goods.

BARGAINS IN GOODS BY THE YARD

To-day we began a great sale of White materials by the yard, for the special benefit of those who make up their own Whitewear, Sheets, Pillow Cases, &c.

Many women make good use of the month of January for this purpose, as the long winter evenings and dull days at home grow monotonous without something to do.

FOR HOME SEWING

Ladies who do their own sewing, or who have it done at home, will be interested in the price reductions we have made in all the articles that make needle work and mending less of labor and care.

White Cottons, Cambrics, Long Cloths, Sheetings, Pillow Cottons, Table Linens, Napkins, Embroideries, Laces and all the other little things that are used in home sewing come in for their share of these price reductions.

We want you to come and see these genuine reductions as it is almost impossible to enumerate them.

HOW FORESTS GROW

THERE ARE TWO GREAT TYPES, THE PURE AND MIXED.

One of the Marvelous Feats of Nature Is the Balancing of Conditions Where Trees of Different Habits Enter the Struggle For Existence.

The laws which govern the distribution of trees produce the two great types, the pure and the mixed forest. The former is the result of local conditions which trees of one kind only can survive.

In the North woods the balsam occupies the swamps, usually to the exclusion of all competitors, since no other of the native trees can thrive in wet places. In the Black Hills and other parts of the middle west the small demands of the bull pine upon moisture enable it to form pure woods on a soil too dry to support other native trees. The jack pine of the New Jersey barrens and the long leaf pine of the southern states grow in pure or nearly pure stands since they alone can withstand the peculiar conditions of these regions.

Where climate and soil are favorable to various trees we find the mixed forest, the number of species in mixture depending upon the suitability of the locality to forest growth.

Upon the hardwood flats of the Adirondacks the hard maple, the yellow birch and the beech are the only deciduous trees able to withstand the severe climate. In the southern Appalachian forests, where the trees of the north and south meet under conditions favorable to both, we find more than 200 different kinds.

The distribution of trees, therefore, is the joint result of local conditions and of the individual and varying requirements of the different species upon moisture, soil and climate. The laws, however, which govern forest distribution are not identical with those which regulate the behavior of trees in mixture. They do not explain why each species, if undisturbed, maintains the same proportion in the mixed forest. Why does not the hard maple drive out its competitors in the Adirondacks, the oak gain the upper hand in the forests of the southern Appalachians, the red fir exterminate the western hemlock on the Pacific slope?

Wherever a mixed forest occurs there is an unrelenting struggle going on. Let us see how the combatants are armed and why the representation of each species remains unchanged.

The more important of the characteristics which affect the capacity of a tree to hold its own in mixture with trees of other kinds are its demands upon light, its rate of growth and its power of reproduction. No two species require an equal amount of light, grow at the same rate or are identical in their capacity to reproduce themselves. The endowment of each, with habits differing from those of its neighbors, but with strength and weakness so balanced that all which occur in mixture enter the struggle for existence upon an equal footing, is one of the marvelous feats of nature.

The red spruce of the North woods, through its ability to endure dense shade, has been given the power to hold its own against faster growing competitors, some of which exceed it greatly in their capacity to reproduce themselves. The young spruces which spring up here and there throughout the forest struggle along under the heavy crowns of the hard woods, where a tree making more insistent demands upon light could not survive.

In the forests of the southern Appalachians the oak is in many localities the characteristic tree. Growing rapidly and exceedingly hardy, it might be expected to increase steadily its proportion in the mixture. The equilibrium is maintained through the fact that the oak can endure but little shade and that its seed is heavy, limiting its reproduction to the immediate vicinity of the parent tree.

In the same region the yellow poplar and the chestnut, both trees which grow rapidly and are capable of enduring considerable shade, are controlled, the one because much of its seed is barren, the other because many of the nuts are eaten by animals. And the red cedar, of slow growth and sparse representation, is aided through the distribution of its seeds by birds, with their power to germinate unimpaired.

The aspen, short lived and requiring much light, holds its own with longer lived and shade enduring trees because its downy seed is produced in great quantities and is scattered far and wide by the wind. The ash and the basswood, of rapid growth and bearing an abundance of seed, are withheld by strong demands upon light and by the need of a fresh and fertile soil. The red fir, equaled by few North American trees in rapidity of growth and otherwise well equipped to gain the upper hand in its region, is controlled through the usual failure of its seed to germinate except when accident has removed the leaf litter and exposed the mineral soil.

The study of trees as living, striving organisms in a world of their own leads an almost human interest in the forest. Every day spent in the woods will be the pleasanter for some insight gained into what is going on within it, and an earnest observer can gain knowledge of practical value by an attempt to discover the factors which control the occurrence of trees in mixture. Forestry, which deals with the development of the highest utility of forests, means a thorough understanding of the habits of trees.—Overton W Price in Youth's Companion.

There is entirely too much time taken up every day trying to help those make up their minds who don't know what they want.

Wanted a Pleasant Expression.

Mr. Grumps—Good morning. Do you take pictures by the instantaneous process?

Photographer—Yes, sir.

Mr. Grumps—Well, this is Mrs. Grumps, my wife, you know. I want her picture taken.

Photographer—Certainly. But are you particular about having it instantaneous?

Mr. Grumps—Of course. When you get things ready tell her to look pleasant and then snap off the machine before the expression fades away. You've gotter be quicker'n lightning.

Bronchitis
Grows Chronic

AND RETURNS YEAR AFTER YEAR OR DEVELOPS INTO ASTHMA OR CONSUMPTION. THE CURE IS

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

Bronchitis is too serious a disease to trifle with.

Children are most likely to contract bronchitis, and, if neglected, it, becomes chronic and returns year after year until it wears the patient out or develops into some deadly lung disease.

Chills and fever, nasal or throat catarrh, quick pulse, loss of appetite and feelings of fatigue and languor are among the first symptoms.

The cough is dry and harsh. There are pains in the chest, which are aggravated by deep breathing and coughing. Expectoration is of a frothy nature, stringy, tenacious and sometimes streaked with blood.

Pains in the limbs or joints and extreme depression and weakness result from continuation of the disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is, we believe, the most effective treatment for bronchitis that money will buy.

It is the most effective treatment for bronchitis because it is so far-reaching in its effect on the whole system, not only loosening the hard, dry cough, but actually and thoroughly curing the disease so that it does not return.

Mrs. George Budden, Putnamville, Ont., says:—"I feel it my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as I had the asthma very bad; could get nothing to do me any good. A friend of mine persuaded me to try this remedy, as he had it and it proved successful. I tried it and it cured me. I am thankful to-day to say I am a well woman through the use of this remedy. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it."

Laura's breath came short, she fixed her eyes on Sir Ralph's face.

"I told him I did not know where you were any more than he did; but I don't think he believed me."

Laura sighed heavily.

"It is sad for him," she said; "but he will forget me. He must think me so ungrateful; and so I was. I should have remembered all he did."

"You seem to think more of his feelings than of mine."

"It is not that; but I thought of my own. Now I see I should not have done so."

"Well, all that is done and over, at any rate. Now will you think a little of me?"

Laura did not speak. Her dark eyes were fixed wistfully on his face.

"When I read that—well, I do not know what to call it—confession of your father's I was naturally upset. Your motive for refusing me long ago was only natural, too. I don't mind telling you that unless I had cared for you as I do now I should not have wished to marry a woman whose father killed mine. But I have thought it all over and over during the last three months. The blame was not yours; you acted most honorably in refusing me."

"I had no choice," said Laura, in a low tone.

"Many women would have acted differently. Had it not been for this wretched confession you would have married me then, would you not?"

"Yes," half-whispered Laura.

"You cared for me then?"

Laura made an almost mute assent with her pallid lips.

"Then let us throw this miserable acknowledgment of a hidden crime aside. Let it be to us as if it had never been written. Laura, my love for you is so strong and great that I count nothing beside it. You have left Mr. Gifford; that page of your life is done and ended. Come abroad with me and begin a new life."

"I can not! I can not!" she answered. And again she put one of her slender cold hands over her face, but Sir Ralph drew it away.

"My dear one," he said, in a tender tone, "do not let any mistaken feeling of honor stand between us now. Your wrong, as you call it, to Mr. Gifford is done, and never can be recalled. They say you are with me down there, Laura, so let them say it with truth. The world will receive you again when you are my wife."

"I care nothing for the world," answered Laura. "The world smiles on you in prosperity and frowns on you in despair. But—but what I care for, what I most think of, is something higher and surer, Sir Ralph. It has been very sad for us," and for a moment her slender hand slid into his, "this terrible shadow on my life that my poor father left me. But for that there would have been no bar between us now—none, none—between your happiness and mine!"

Her voice broke and faltered as she uttered the last few words, and Sir Ralph felt her hot tears fall on their clasped hands.

"It has been hard, but let us forget it," he said, eagerly and passionately. "I shall never remember it, Laura; never, never, upon my soul."

"I believe you are generous enough to feel this," answered Laura, again raising her head; "generous enough to put it away from your heart. But—but this is not all. There stands between us something more than this dark story. There stands the vows I made, and which I can not break. Sir Ralph, leave me something; leave me my self-respect. Leave me—oh! I must speak it—my hope of a better and future life."

"I can not go into such arguments. This life, with its mysteries and uncertainties, is enough for me. I can not believe in what I do not see."

"But do you not feel it?" asked Laura, wistfully. "Does anything really satisfy you which is not right? Suppose I went away with you now, would I—could I—be sure you would not change to me? You could not respect me. I am putting this only on a low and human standing; but there is another, and that, that—I must cling to."

"I swear I would not change to you!"

"I believe you would always be good to me; but it could never be the same—never as if we had been married long ago. Speak of this no more, Sir Ralph. In my letter I asked you to feel to me as to one who is dead, and—and it must be so."

"And yet you love me?"

"Yes; and I will love no other. I am not one to change."

"Nor I."

"You think so now," said Laura, gently; "but you may not think so in a few years. A woman's life is different to a man's. I try to put self aside in thinking of you. Perhaps some one else—"

But here her voice broke and faltered. Ah, it was very hard on her heart to think, or speak, of "some one else." She wished, she meant, to do right, but human love was strong within her, and the dark face she loved was near her, and his strong hands held hers. For a moment or two a sort of irresistible weakness swept over her. Her head drooped on his shoulder; his lips were pressed on her hair. Sir Ralph thought that she had yielded, and in tender and passionate word he sought her love.

But after a brief pause, after one long lingering sigh, Laura once more gathered up all the spiritual force of her nature, and shook the spell from her which had well-nigh bewitched her soul. She raised her head, she rose and stood before him.

"Go now," she said. "I ask you to leave me now."

Then Sir Ralph also rose and held out his hand.

"But I may come again?" he asked.

He felt half-triumphant. His will had been stronger than hers, he thought; her love too deep for the fight she had held with it. He took both her hands, he fixed his dark eyes on her face.

"You will never regret your love for me," he said.

"No," answered Laura, half-dreamily, "I shall never regret it."

"I will come to-morrow—in the afternoon; we can settle everything then."

"Yes," said Laura, with faltering lips; and so they parted. Sir Ralph went away excited, almost happy. There was no doubt of his strong and deep attachment to the woman he had just left. As he crossed the bridge, with its twinkling lights on either side, he was thinking only of her, and he meant to keep his word to her in the fullest sense, and marry her as soon as it was possible.

He was quite man of the world enough to know that to a certain extent by doing this he was wrecking his career; but this never entered his calculations.

"She never shall regret it," he told himself; and when he had reached the other end of the bridge a romantic desire seized on him again to recross it, and so once more look on the house where dwelt the woman he loved.

He did this. He looked at the dark river rolling silently on; looked at the reflected lights on its gloomy breast. Then he looked at the sky, dark and gloomy also, and finally came to the little lighted house in the steep street, where his Laura, he knew, was thinking but of him.

He could not see through the closed curtains; only a hazy light from the lamp within. He could not see a woman kneeling there in agony—a woman whose soul he had tortured until she could bear no more.

* * *

He was up betimes the next morning, for he had much to do. He meant to take Laura immediately abroad, and remain there until they were married. He had thus his affairs to see after, his bills to pay. He had also the thousand pounds to pay to Mr. Valentine Ross. He felt grateful to the little man, and considered whether he should give him more than his due; but on second thoughts he reflected that Mr Valentine Ross had done very well. He therefore called early at the office with his check-book in his pocket, after telegraphing to Laura that he would be with her at four o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Ross was charmed to see him.

"You have good news on your face," he said, with outstretched hand.

"Yes," smiled Sir Ralph.

"And you found her?"

"Yes," again replied Sir Ralph, nodding his head.

"And it is all right?" inquired Mr Ross, with a smile.

"It is all right," answered Sir Ralph, but a flush rose to his face, and he felt a faint inclination to knock Mr. Ross down.

But he suppressed this. He sat down and produced his check-book, and drew a check in the name of Mr. Valentine Ross for a thousand pounds.

"There is your check," he said, somewhat grimly, "with many thanks."

"No, my dear fellow—" began Mr. Ross, and then he hesitated, though he took the slip of paper in his hand.

"Well?" inquired Sir Ralph, wondering if there was anything wrong with the check.

"Well, you see," continued Mr. Ross, as though unwillingly, "there was the two hundred pounds you so kindly advanced. You ought to take that off."

"Never mind," answered Sir Ralph, with a somewhat hard laugh; "you can take that as a part of your price."

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Mr. Ross, delightedly. "What a funny fellow you are, Woodland! Part of my price, indeed; we have all our price, though yours may be a pair of dark eyes. Ha, ha, ha!"

To be continued.

ASTHMA

Completely Cured after 35 years of agony.

"For 35 years, I have been a sufferer from Asthma. I have spent thousands of dollars with doctors and remedies. A friend brought me a bottle of Clarke's Kola Compound, and I afterwards bought six bottles of this grand medicine. It has made a new man of me: have gained nearly thirty pounds in weight, and my asthmatic attacks have entirely disappeared. Two dollars spent on Clarke's Kola Compound did for me what over two thousand dollars before that failed to do."

[illegible], Montreal, P.Q.

Can you doubt the marvelous virtues of Clarke's Kola Compound after such testimony as this? Surely you will at least try to cure yourself. Simply write us, and we will send a free bottle and booklet, with more letters from those who have been permanently cured of Asthma by Clarke's Kola Compound.

LOSS NEARLY $300,000

Largest Labor-Employing Concern in Brockville Burned.

Canada Carriage Works, Employing a Staff Numbering About 300, Reduced to Smouldering Ruins—Boy Said to Have Entered Paint and Varnish Vault and An Explosion Followed—The Lad Was Badly Burned.

Brockville, Jan. 5.—Between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening fire reduced to smoldering ruins the main building of the extension plant of the Canada Carriage Works, entailing a loss of nearly $300,000, which is covered by insurance, roughly estimated at $225,000.

The industry was the largest labor-employing concern in Brockville and had just got nicely started on the spring orders, with a staff numbering about 300. These are necessarily thrown out of employment.

Boy With a Lantern.

There are different stories regarding the cause of the fire, but it is said on good authority that a boy entered the paint and varnish vault in the southeast corner of the basement, carrying a lantern, when the men had almost completed the day's work. He came out badly burned, leaving the lantern behind, and in a few minutes an explosion followed, carrying in its train flame and smoke.

The shock of the explosion raised the floor of the room above, where several men were employed. These barely had time to get out with their lives.

The fire soon enveloped the entire structure so that nothing could be saved except the office papers and books. The fire has cast a gloom over the town. This is the second big manufacturing concern Brockville has lost in four years, the Cossitt Foundry going up in smoke in 1900.

Adolf Beck Offered $25,000.

London, Jan. 5.—The Government has offered Adolf Beck $25,000 in compensation for wrongful imprisonment. His case was notable. He was arrested in 1896 for obtaining money and jewelry from women under false pretence, and he was convicted on the evidence of women who identified him as John Smith. After he had served five years, John Smith confessed that he was the man committed in 1887 and for whom Beck had been mistaken. A committee of inquiry concluded that Beck had been the victim of a miscarriage of justice and that the blame rested with the judge, Sir Forrest Fulton.

OPERATIONS NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY.

Doctors Frequently Mistaken.

"I suffered untold agony with piles for over three years. Two doctors told me nothing but an operation would cure me. I tried different remedies, but nothing did me any good until I used Pyramid Pile Cure. I bought six fifty cent boxes at the drug store, and now I can do my work and go out, where before I spent most of my time lying down. I thank God for giving the discoverer the knowledge to make such a cure. I recommend it to all my friends, and if I ever have piles again will certainly use this remarkable remedy. You can use this in any way you wish to make known the wonderful merit of Pyramid Pile Cure." Mrs. Wm. Mucky, 81 Marshall street, Elizabeth, N. J.

The experience of this lady is that of thousands of others who have been assured that nothing short of an operation would rid them of this distressing complaint. On the face of it, it appears as if too many surgeons operate in order that they may keep their hand in, and lose no portion of their skill; then, again too many surgeons are anxious to experiment (like the scientific man in Mark Twain's pathetic story of the dog and her little puppy), and do not have proper regard for a patient's physical welfare or condition.

We advise every sufferer to think twice before submitting to an operation for piles, and suggest that those interested write to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book on the causes and cure of piles, which is sent free for the asking.

FLAG OF "RISING SUN"

Japanese Emblem Now Floats Over Port Arthur Citadel.

Entire Garrison Will March Out of the Fallen Fortress To-Day, According to the Terms—Prisoners of War Will Be Held At Dalny Until They Can Be Transported to Japan—Rojestvensky Halted to Await Third Fleet.

Headquarters of the Japanese Third Army at Port Arthur, Jan. 3, via Che Foo, Jan. 4, 3 p.m., censored.—The flag of the Rising Sun floats to-night over the captured citadel of Port Arthur.

When the news of the surrender of the fortress reached the soldiers yesterday, the Japanese fraternized freely with their late enemies.

With nightfall came the great fires, rising from the camp like a blazing halo, while great choruses of "banzai" re-echoed through the hills.

The entire garrison and all the non-combatants will march out of the city Jan. 5 to Yahuthwei, whence the Russian officers will be tansported to Dalny, thence to wherever they may desire.

The prisoners of war will be detained until they can be transferred to Dalny, and thence to Japan.

The conference between the Russian and Japanese commissioners, at which the terms of the surrender were arranged, took place at Shuishiying at 1 p.m. Monday afternoon and lasted until 8 o'clock at night.

Japs Lost 50,000 Soldiers.

Thus Japan has won the great Russian stronghold in the Far East, after a five months' siege, in which she lost over 50,000 soldiers, who were put out of action in the most sanguinary and desperate fighting the world has ever seen.

The surrender of the fortress at the present time is a surprise even to the Japanese, as the desperate determination and courage of the Russians indicated that the struggle would be one to the bitter end.

The first definite intimation of the Russian intention to surrender came Jan. 1, at 4 p.m., when the Russian envoys approached the Japanese lines south of the village of Shuishiying. They were met by Japanese staff officers, to whom they delivered the letter of Gen. Stoessel to Gen. Nogi, asking to have a time for parley arranged. In this letter, as already known, Gen. Stoessel admitted the hopelessness of further continuing the struggle, and that he was prepared to surrender in order to save the lives of the remnant of the brave garrison which had fought so long and so well, provided suitable terms could be arranged. He asked for a conference to settle these terms. Major-General Ijichi, with a large escort, left the Japanese headquarters at 11 o'clock Monday morning and rode to the appointed place. Shortly before 1 o'clock the Russian commissioners arrived, accompanied by a cavalry escort.

The conference took place with few preliminaries and lasted until eight o'clock at night.

GREAT SOVEREIGN, PARDON US.

Stoessel's Pitiful Plea to the Czar For Merciful Judgment.

St Petersburg, Jan. 5.—General Stoessel's last despatch, dated Jan. 1, prior to the surrender of Port Arthur, details the Japanese attack of Dec. 31 and concludes as follows:

"We shall be obliged to capitulate, but everything is in the hands of God. We have suffered fearful losses. Great Sovereign, pardon us. We have done everything humanly possible. Judge us, but be merciful. Nearly eleven months of uninterrupted struggles have exhausted us. Only one-quarter of the garrison is alive, and of this number the majority are sick, and, being obliged to act on the defensive without even short intervals for repose, are worn to shadows."

Order in Port Arthur.

Tokio, Jan. 5.—The following report was received from Gen. Nogi at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon:

"Order is maintained at Port Arthur by the officers. The people are quiet.

"Our minute investigation was not finished until Tuesday night.

"The total number of inhabitants is about 35,000, of whom 25,000 are soldiers and sailors. The total number of sick or wounded is 20,000.

"Common provisions and bread are plentiful, but there is a scarcity of meat and vegetables. There are no medical supplies."

Allowed the Boats to Escape.

London, Jan. 5.—The Daily Mail's correspondent with Gen. Nogi's army before Port Arthur, in a despatch yesterday morning says that the Russian torpedo boat destroyers were purposely permitted to escape from Port Arthur under the eyes of the Japanese fleet as a tribute to the bravery of the Russian garrison.

A Russian Protest.

Paris, Jan. 5.—The Russian Embassy has transmitted to Foreign Minister Delcasse a protest against Japan's alleged violation of The Hague stipulations relative to the immunity of hospitals from attack. The protest is based on Gen. Stoessel's report that the hospitals at Port Arthur were struck during the Japanese bombardment, wounding some of the inmates. M. Delcasse will forward the protest to Japan.

The Actual Transfer.

Tokio, Jan. 5.—General Nogi reports to the Army Department that on Jan. 3 the commissioners of both the Japanese and Russian armies concluded their conference, and that from the morning of Jan. 4 the actual transfer of war materials at Port Arthur as property of the Japanese Government commenced.

Japs Take 25,000 Prisoners.

Tokio, Jan. 5.—The Japanese captured 25,000 prisoners at Port Arthur. The total number of the inhabitants is 35,000, of whom 20,000 are sick.

Russ Torpedoes Disarming.

Che Foo, Jan. 5.—A despatch received here from Tsingtau, Shantung Peninsula, under yesterday's date, says the Russian torpedo boat destroyers Smirli and Berki, which, with a merchantman having 800 soldiers on board, arrived at Tsingtau, Jan. 2, are disarming.

Czar Gives Option.

Tokio, Jan. 5.—The Emperor of Russia has cabled to General Stoessel saying that the giving of their parole or the alternative of imprisonment is optional with the officers.

The Key of Peace.

Tokio, Jan. 5.—The Jiji, discussing the capture of Port Arthur, reviews the price paid in lives, and says: "We ought to keep Port Arthur in our hands so long as our Empire exists. Port Arthur is the key to peace in the Far East, and it is our duty to keep the key in our hands."

Most Serious Feature of Fall.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 5.—One of the most serious features of Port Arthur's fall, according to The Novosti, is the effect upon the already questionable neutrality of the Chinese. Loss of prestige in the eyes of the Orientals, says the paper, is much more serious than the strategical value of the fortress.

Kuropatkin Has 225,000 Men.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 5.—The number of troops at General Kuropatkin's disposal is about 225,000, and the transportation over the Siberian Railroad is proving inadequate.

Will March Out To-Day.

Headquarters of the Third Japanese Army, Jan. 3, via Fusan, Jan. 5.—The request of the Russians for food, medicines and physicians for their sick and wounded has been granted. Itse, Wantai and Tayangko forts were taken over by the Japanese at noon yesterday. The date on which the Russian prisoners of war will be marched out has been delayed until to-day.

Capt. Thacker in Canada.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 5.—Capt. H. C Thacker, who was Canadian military attache with Oku's army, and witnessed the actions at Anchan, Liaoyang and Shaho, arrived by the Empress of Japan yesterday morning. Capt. Thacker was invalided after the battle of the Shaho, returning a month after the great battle. Capt. Thacker says the Russian field gun is superior to that of the Japanese, though the lack of common shells handicaps its service. The Japanese gun is better served. The Shimose explosive is very effective, but not more so than lyddite. The cavalry arm has been notably absent in all engagements. Capt. Thacker, now en route to Ottawa, was decorated by the Mikado before leaving with the Order of the Sacred Treasure.

ROJESTVENSKY HALTED.

Russian Admiral to Wait For Third Fleet Off Madagascar.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 5.—It seems now to be definitely settled that Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron will not attempt at present to reach Vladivostock. The decision has been reached that he will await the third Pacific squadron, on which work is proceeding night and day, and several ships of which are expected to be ready for service by the end of January.

It is by no means certain that Rojestvensky will return with his shops to European waters; he may await the third squadron off the coast of Madagascar, and seize and make his base one of the uninhabited coral islands of Polynesia.

In view of the report that the Japanese intend to invest Vladivostock, General Batiavoff, who has been interviewed, has expressed the opinion that if Vladivostock should be blockaded Rojestvensky would be compelled to return.

Emperor Nicholas is expected to return to-morrow to St. Petersburg, when a council of war will be held.

RESCUED AFTER SUFFERING.

Crew of Schooner Broken in Two By Gale Saved.

Wilmington, N.C., Jan. 5.—After a night of intense suffering from the cold, clinging to the masts of their shipwrecked vessel, heavy seas breaking over decks and carrying everything before the mad rush of their fury, Capt. F. C. Gibbs and six men, composing the crew of the schooner Emma C. Middleton, from Newport News to Charleston, S.C., with a cargo of coal, were brought here yesterday by the Wilmington tug Alexander Jones, the vessel and her cargo being a total wreck on Frying Pan Shoals, ten miles east of Baldhead Lighthouse, on the North Carolina coast. The schooner was struck by the gale Tuesday night and broke completely in two from stem to stern.

Death-Mask Stamp.

Belgrade, Jan. 5.—The new Servian postage stamps, bearing the heads of King Peter and Karageorge side by side, which were issued at the time of the recent coronation of King Peter have been suddenly withdrawn. It has been discovered that when the stamps are held upside down the outlines of the two heads appear to form the death-mask of King Alexander.

Forget Is President.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—The capital of the Dominion Textile Company, the name of the new cotton aggregation, will be $7,500,000. There will be $2,500,000 preferred stock, 7 per cent., and $5,000,000 common. Hon. L. J. Forget will be president of the new organization.

Others Dismantled.

London, Jan. 5.—(C.A.P.)—The dismantling of Trincomalee dockyards, Ceylon, has begun, and they will be closed on March 31, after an existence of ninety-eight years.

ONTARIO DAIRY WORKERS.

President Derbyshire Declares Cheese Output of 1904 Short of That of 1903 By $7,000,000.

Brockville, Jan. 5.—President D. Derbyshire, M.P. for Brockville, was the master of ceremonies at the opening sessions of the 28th annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Butter and Cheese Association here yesterday. Many prominent dairymen were present.

In his address, Mr. Derbyshire said kind things of the agricultural departments of Toronto and Ottawa and enumerated what Hon. John Dryden and Hon. Sydney Fisher had done in the interests of the farmers. He noted that the association's experiment the past season of placing instructors in charge of a certain number of cheese factories throughout the province produced beneficial results.

Cheese Loss of $7,000,000.

The good work of these men as a whole had been reflected in the improvement of the quality of the goods, as well as its uniformity. He went on to say that the make of 1904 was 2,700,000 boxes of cheese, worth about $20,000,000. The record was 300,000 boxes short of 1903, representing at least $7,000,000.

Considerable of this shortage could have been avoided provided dairymen had shown the same zeal as they did in 1903. The butter business showed a good deal of improvement. Canada exported 550,000 packages, worth $7,500,000, an increase of nearly $2,000,000, and, owing to the fine quality, about double the quantity of butter was consumed at home over that exported.

$6,500,000 Short All Round.

The bacon trade was somewhat short, having received only about $14,000,000 for the same, but the total exports of cheese, butter and bacon amount to about $41,500,000, or $6,500,000 short of last year.

Among the speakers at the afternoon and evening sessions were C. F. Whitley and G. H. Grisdale of the Ottawa Experimental Farm; Henry Glendinning, Manilla; Hon. John Gould, Ohio; John Dargavel, Elgin; Prof. Robertson, Ottawa, and Hon. John Dryden.

Mayor Geash welcomed the convention to Brockville and his remarks were seconded by H. A. Stewart, the mayor-elect.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous year's, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

THURSDAY, JAN. 5, 1905.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Collegiate Institute team challenge the local Business College to a game of hockey to be played on the Brock street rink as soon as the ice is available.

Peter Johnston's Tigers challenge the West End team to a game as soon as the Brock street rink can be procured. The Tigers will line up as follows—Goal L. Giroux, point F. Clancy, coverpoint K. Pentland, forwards J. Seymour, C. Clarke, J. Gorman, H. Miller.

The Young Nationals are being overwhelmed with challenges these days by junior teams who are anxious for their scalps. The Nationals will endeavor to accommodate them all, but will have to take them as they come. They play the Riversides on Saturday afternoon and meet the Rough Riders at the Brock street rink between 7 and 8 on Monday evening.

Tonight's games in the City League series are arousing lots of interest. The rivalry between the T.A.S. and Furriers should result in an exciting game, while the Colonials will make a big effort to down the Karnots in the second. Come and see the four strongest teams in the League in action.

Port Perry will be here tomorrow night with a fast bunch to open the O.H.A. intermediate series. The game will be a corker and the largest crowd of the season will be on hand to root for the boys in blue and white. The match will start at 8.30 o'clock sharp.

The Peterborough seniors and juniors had a fine workout last night, and the former will be in the pink of condition for tomorrow night's big game. Glover was out for the first time and played good hockey. McWilliams, of the juniors, showed up well.

The Review team is sorry that owing to the fact that one of their star players is still suffering from the effects of an injury received at the hands of one of the Examiner players in what was supposed to be a friendly practice, it will not be able to accept the Examiner's challenge at the present time.

Fred. Whitcroft left yesterday for Midland. He will play rover for that team against Barrie in a league game at Midland tonight.

Be on hand tomorrow night and see the fastest game of the year. Port Perry has about the same line-up as when they played a tie game with the locals at the Markham tournament two years ago, and can be depended on to put up a great fight. The local boys are not saying much, but will be able to go the whole distance tomorrow night.

The Peterborough seniors go to Lindsay on Monday to meet the Scugogites in a league contest. It will be a battle royal.

The juniors first home game will be played next week with Belleville as the opposing team.

The Cobourg juniors defeated Port Hope the other day in an exhibition game by a score of 8—1. The game was a very rough one.

Hockey tickets for to-morrow night's game are on sale at Sanderson's jewellery store.

George-st Guild team will practice on the Y.M.C.A. rink this evening at 6.30. Everybody wanted.

The Karnots will line up as follows against the Colonials this evening:—

Goal, Kingscote; point, Dormer; cover point, Campbell; left wing, Gilman, centre, Odette; rover, Mulhern; right wing, Grose. The match promises to be a good one.

The Karnot Hockey Club will hold an "At Home" in the Water-st. Labor Hall next Tuesday evening. The pianists will be Miss McCabe and Miss Quinn

---

The following will please turn out from 7 to 8—Fitzpatrick, Moore, Long, Smith, Miller, McFarlane, Parker, McWilliams, Hall, Winch, McDonald, Todd, Wasson and Glover.

The executive of the City League met last evening in the T.A.S. parlor. The question as to whether junior O.H.A. players are to be allowed to play in the League was discussed, but no further action was taken in the matter.

Dr. Harry King will referee both of this evening's City League games.

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held this evening at 7 o'clock in the Oriental. All members are asked to be on hand.

CHAIRMANSHIPS OF NEW COUNCIL

Aldermen Suggested For The Standing Committees.

OLD MEN ARE PROPOSED.

Ald. Mason for Chairman of Finance, and Ald. Adams for the Board of Works—The Other Committees.

On Monday next the standing Committees for the new Town Council will be selected, and just who will have the chairmanships is the subject for some interesting speculation. The opinion seems to be that these should go, where possible, to the members who have already served, as being more familiar with the duties and responsibilities of the office than the new men. The Review has discussed with several aldermen, the possible slate.

The Finance Committee is probably the most important section of the Council and Ald. Mason seems to be the man for the place. His long business experience, his familiarity with financial questions and his close observation of affairs in the Council, for the past year, eminently fit him for the position.

It is making no mistake to say that the Board of Works can claim equal importance with the Finance Committee, and the natural order seems to be that when a man has served one year as Finance Minister, he is well fitted for the Board of Works. Therefore, Ald. Adams is undoubtedly the best man for the place. Moreover he has an important question on his hands, which relates largely to this department, namely, the proposed change in the method of payment for granolithic walks. The public works of Peterborough for the year 1905, would be well looked after by Ald. Adams.

Ald. Johnston has had a year's education in the Council and should make a capable chairman of Fire, Water and Light Committee. An important question which will have to be considered by this department is the improvement of the fire protection equipment and Ald. Johnston realizes the necessities of the case.

Ald. Hicks will probably be the chairman of the Manufacturers' and Franchise Committee. This is an important section of the Council, and one which the people look to for the initiation of movements tending to the attraction and encouragement of possible industrial enterprises. For this place, Ald. Hicks is undoubtedly the man.

Ald. Batten, one of the men who had the honor of being returned at the head of the polls will probably want to remain in charge of the Town's Property. He has improved the buildings greatly since he was placed in control of this department, and has an eye single to the best interests and the good appearance of the town.

Ald. Hall is mentioned for the Court of Revision and Legal Committee. Some knotty questions come up to be unravelled during the year and under Mr. Hall this Committee will have an efficient chairman.

Ald. Scott has been suggested for chairman of Supervision of Police. Peterborough is growing rapidly and the police department may require some attention to meet the demands of circumstances which under certain conditions may develop speedily. Better protection in Ashburnham has often been proposed. All matters pertaining to this department should receive careful attention.

The Council will meet on Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

PERSONAL

Mr. James Fleming, of Port Hope, is visiting friends here.

Mrs. R. R. Hall has returned from a visit to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Heald have returned to Toronto after spending the holiday season here.

Mr. F. W. Thomas, of Toronto, secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew of Canada, is in town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cameron, of Oil City, Pa., who was visiting friends here, have returned home.

Mr. Joseph L. Garvin, B.A., is now Mathematical Master in the Brampton High School. He is a brother of Mr. J. W. Garvin.

Mrs. A. E. Micks has returned from Omemee, where she was attending the funeral of her uncle, Mr. D. O'Connell.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

BITTER FEELING NOW PREVAILS

At the News That Gen. Stoessel Will be Court-Martialed.

FOR SURRENEER OF PORT

Grave Criticism Heard—General Kuropatkin Asked His Opinion of the Situation—Council Meeting Called.

Special to the Review.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 5.—FEW INCIDENTS IN THE WHOLE WAR HAVE AROUSED MORE BITTER CRITICISM THAN THAT ANNOUNCEMENT OFFICIALLY ISSUED BY THE GENERAL STAFF THAT GENERAL STOESSEL WILL HAVE TO COME, AND STAND COURT MARTIAL FOR SURRENDERING THE FORTRESS OF PORT ARTHUR.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 5.—Emperor Nicholas returned this morning to Tsarskoe Selo, 15 miles north of St. Petersburg, from Minsk. An extraordinary council is expected to be held at Tsarskoe Selo immediately, and it is believed that the whole situation will be reviewed. Gen. Kuropatkin has been called upon to telegraph his opinion of the situation at home.

Weihaiwei, Jan. 5 — British cruiser Andromeda, which sailed from here yesterday morning for Port Arthur with hospital stores, etc., returned here to-day, not having been allowed to make a landing at Port Arthur, the reason given being the presence of unlocated mines.

Tokio, Jan. 5.—A supplementary agreement bearing upon the surrender of Port Arthur by the Russian military authorities provides for the unparoled release of all civil officials at Port Arthur who have not served as volunteers in the Russian army or navy.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—Additional local news on pages two and three.

—Have your seats marked now for the T.A.S grand anniversary concert in Bradburn's Opera House on Monday evening, January 9th. 1d

—A meeting of the Chosen Friends will be held in the S.O.E. Hall Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Organizer Shibley will install the officers for the ensuing year

—Coroner Gray and County Crown Attorney Wood went to Cordova today to open an enquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of the man Duval, who was shot near there on Sunday last.

—The report is received from Otonabee that four of the seven candidates who ran for the Township Council were School Trustees, and that the election of three out of the four who received the highest votes at the polls is, as a consequence, illegal. It looks as if another election would have to be held in Otonabee Township.

—In contrast to the somewhat pessimistic reports that were circulated prior to Christmas, comes the statement from what may be considered an authoritative source, that the holiday trade was away ahead of that of a year previous. This is remarkable in the light of conditions, which it was feared would make for business depression. A banker stated this morning that the merchants generally were jubilant over the very profitable season. There are one or two instances of dissatisfaction, but these cases always appear to exist in spite of what may come or go.

Ireland For [illegible] arge.

London, Jan. 4.—(C. A. P.)—The Queen's County Council, Ireland, has entered a protest against the Government allowing the free entrance of foreign store cattle into Great Britain and Ireland, as such a policy would be fatal to the interests of the calf rearing industry and would be a means of preventing those who have purchased land under the Land Act from meeting their annuities.

Joy in Edmonton.

Edmonton, Alta., Jan. 4.—This city has received the assurance of being made a divisional point on the Grand Trunk Pacific, with terminal facilities.

Land in Turkey.

Waste land in Turkey sells at $15 an acre; good farming land at $100 to $150.

A Crazy Clock.

The town clock in a little English village went mad the other day and struck twenty-four times at 12 o'clock. At 4 p. m. it did better and rounded out an even hundred, but at 5 it struck continuously for fifteen minutes and only stopped then because a mob broke it.

The First Soap.

Pliny says that soap was first made by the Gauls.

Memory Joggers.

Vienna has a society to aid persons with short memories. A card is issued, upon which the purchaser writes the date of an engagement and posts to the society's office. By the first post on the day of his engagement the card is received by the purchaser.

The Milky Way.

Scientists roughly calculate from the data so far available that the stars of the Milky Way are situated from 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 times as far away from us as the sun is.

Drinking at Meals.

Don't drink with meals. If food is eaten slowly and well masticated it will soon be possible to eat without drinking, and the meal will digest far better than when swallowed and washed down with liquids.

Last Sunday on That Ship.

"As a lad almost," said an old sea captain, "I became second mate of a Nova Scotia sailing vessel bound from Liverpool to the provinces. It was on a Saturday that we left port, and the following morning the tug which had placed us to windward off Holyhead left us.

"We were making ready for the trip across the north Atlantic, but our minds were diverted from work by seeing the skipper place a blackboard upon the break of the poop upon which was written 'Sunday.' The skipper, a thorough type of the seaman, called all hands aft. He said: 'I want you to know what is on that board. For you fellows who can't read I will spell it.' Then deliberately he said: 'S-u-n-d-a-y.' You understand it, don't you?' Then he gave the word to throw the board into the sea. Over it went, and as it took the waves he said, 'You all know that was Sunday, don't you?' 'Yes,' answered the men. 'Well,' he continued, 'that will be the last Sunday you will see on this ship.' And it was."

Shoe Shops in Japan.

Like all other shops in Japan, a shoe shop opens a broad side to the street.

It seems a misnomer to call it shoe shop, a place where you can only buy sandals or clogs, things we are not accustomed to call shoes. They are footgear anyway.

There is a low platform in front, upon which the customer sits and drinks tea while making his or her purchases, the shopkeeper meanwhile squatting on his heels and discussing the news of the day.

The sandals worn by the rickshaw coolies are called warafi. They are woven of rice straw and are sold for half a cent a pair. They are made in the country villages, and the foreigner watches the weaving with amused interest.

The prehensile big toe of a Japanese is of great assistance, as it is used for catching and holding the straws, leaving the hands free to weave.

People Who Live In Nests.

Travelers who have returned from the heart of Africa and the Australasian continent tell wonderful stories of nest building people who inhabit the wilds of those countries. In the bushmen of Australia we find perhaps the lowest order of men that are known. They are so primitive that they do not know enough to build even the simplest form of hut for shelter. The nearest they can approach to it is to gather a lot of twigs and grass and, taking them into a thicket or jungle, build a nest for a home. The nest is usually built large enough for the family, and if the latter be very numerous then the nests are of a very large size. Sometimes the foliage above will form a natural covering, but there is never any attempt at constructing a protection from the rain and storms.

Value of Routine Work.

Routine is a blessed thing when something happens to reduce the moral driving power which keeps us going, the courage, purpose and good cheer that give life present joy as well as meaning. It is good in moments of depression or weariness that there is a path marked out ahead each day which men follow because it is there; that there is time which custom has set for them to get up, to eat, to work, to rest, to read, go to bed again. They move along the grooves of habit and get all the benefit of their inheritance and their experience. The general may quit the field for a time if he chooses; the army has its marching plan and knows what is expected of it.

A Natural Inference.

They were discussing the couple in the next flat. The husband is silent and reserved, while the wife is a gossip and the most inveterate borrower. Food of all kinds, articles of clothing, money and everything that is capable of being borrowed she endeavors to get from the neighbors on one pretense or another. Some surprise was expressed that her husband should have chosen her as a partner for life when a little girl who was listening created considerable amusement by exclaiming:

"Perhaps she borrowed him too."

The Self Made Business.

"Yes," said the egotistical person, "I am proud of the fact that I am a self made man; but, strange to say, I never have yet encountered a self made woman."

"Oh, that's easily explained," rejoined the auburn haired lady. "One glance at a self made man is enough to disgust a woman with the self made business."

Assured of It.

Dentist (who has pulled the wrong tooth)—I see how I made the mistake. I counted the molars from the back instead of the front. You don't seem to have cut your wisdom teeth yet, young man. Groaning Patient—That's evident from the choice I made of a dentist!

Johnny Was Good.

"I'm afraid, Johnny," said the Sunday school teacher, rather sadly, "that I shall never meet you in the better land."

"Why? What have you been doin' now?"

Seized the Opportunity.

"You must mark down your age in this blank space," said the insurance agent to the beautiful woman.

And she did. She marked it down from twenty-eight to twenty-two.

When a bride is being given away it is hard for her to look self possessed.—Philadelphia Record.

Your Money Back for any Cause.

If after buying a Semi-ready garment you are dissatisfied—we would prefer that you should have your money back rather than keep the garment.

There are two reasons for this: First, the ordinary business reason, that we do not want your money unless you are satisfied; Second, if your returning the garment will show us any point of our careful handling that can be improved—it is then money well spent.

The general prejudice against clothing even when only manufactured up to the trying on stage—necessitates these garments being much better in workmanship and finish than the average tailor garment.

Like every other innovation we have met with prejudice. If it were completely worn down there would not be half the tailors in Canada there are to-day.

We think that even a call at our wardrobe will convince you, and that does not mean you need to buy.

Semi-ready Tailoring

CRESSMAN'S, PETERBORO'

Cleaning Curtains.

Pin a sheet on the carpet and scatter over it dry Indian meal and borax mixed in the proportion of one cupful of meal to one teaspoonful of powdered borax. Over the sheet pin a curtain, and over the curtain scatter more of the mixture, then another curtain, then more mixture, until all the curtains are pinned down and all strewn with the meal and borax. Now pull out all the pins and roll up in a compact roll, so that the sheet shall cover all. Lay this roll away to season for two or three weeks, and then shake out your curtains, when you will find them snow white.

Clothes Hangers.

Skirt or bodice arms or hangers for hanging one's clothes in the wardrobe are easily made thus: Get a good size barrel hoop and cut or saw it into three equal parts. In the center of each part bore a hole. Rub down any rough edges with sandpaper or a file, then cover by binding with strips of sateen or silk or ribbon. Put a loop of ribbon through the hole bored in the center to hang by and tie a piece of scented pumice stone at each end of the arm, and your garments will possess a delicate, elusive odor.

Children and Money.

Training in responsibility and judgment in the use of money is within the reach of every family, even the poorest. I have never seen children so poor as not to have spending money. To be given the responsibility for the spending, saving and giving away of this money in increasing amounts, according to the age of the boy and the circumstances of the family, is one of the most educative of experiences.—Professor W. L. Hervey in Chautauquan.

"Keeping Company."

Here is a bit of advice recently given his parishioners by a New York clergyman: "A young woman should not allow a young man to call upon her longer than six months. If he does not propose marriage at the end of that time she should dismiss him, or if she fails to do so her parents should. Too long acquaintance and 'keeping company' prejudice the interests of a girl. It gives her friends a chance to talk about her and prejudice her morals."

Face Wrinkles.

The lines and wrinkles on the face should be massaged nightly if permanent good would be done. Where the massage is given one night and forgotten or neglected for a week the lines are given an opportunity to return and deepen. Constant care and vigilance are the price one must pay to keep away wrinkles.

Ending a Letter.

It is almost inexcusable to end a letter "Sincerely," "Faithfully," "Cordially," or the like, though many educated women make this mistake. The wording should be, of course, "Sincerely yours" or "Faithfully yours." Otherwise the writer shows abruptness and lack of courtesy to her correspondent.—Harper's Bazar.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

—The annual Sunday school entertainment will be held in All Saints' church this evening.

—Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the popular Conservative candidate, will hold a meeting at Young's Point this evening.

—The joint installation of officers of Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges I.O.O.F. will be held on the evening of January 12th.

—A lecture will be given by Rev. Mr. Pedley, of Toronto, on "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" in St. Paul's School room Friday evening, January 20th.

—The boys' choir practice will take place this evening in the George-st. Methodist church school room at 7 o'clock under the direction of Prof. C. E. Milner, choir leader.

—The Peterborough Radial Railway Co. have placed an order for a new closed car with the Ottawa Car Works. This will make the equipment of the Company—six closed cars, one open and two trailers.

—A public meeting in the interests of Mr. R. F. McWilliams, the Liberal candidate, will be held in the Opera House on Friday evening, Jan. 13th. Hon. J. R. Stratton, former Provincial Secretary and Hon. G. P. Graham the new Provincial Secretary, will address the meeting.

—The body of Darcy Graham, who died in Phoenix, B.C., a couple of weeks ago, reached Lindsay yesterday morning, and was taken to the home of the father of the deceased, Mr. Robert Graham.

—Service preparatory to the communion will be held in St. Paul's church at 8 o'clock this evening. Rev. George Yule, Springville, will preach. It is hoped that all communicants will be present and that members and adherents of the church will endeavor to be in attendance. The Session will meet at 7.45 p.m.

—The Wm. Hamilton Company have received the contract for constructing a Merral's Stamp mill for use at the Bannockburn mines in Hastings County. Great things are claimed for this type of mill. It minimises the cost of gold mining, a six-stamp battery being capable of crushing 60 tons of hard quartz in 24 hours with 15 horse power.

—The North Hastings Conservatives held their convention for the selection of a candidate at Madoc Wednesday. The following were nominated—J. W. Pearce, ex-M.P.P., W. J. Allen, ex-M.P.P., James English, W. J. Moore and J. Earl Halliwell. All the other nominees having retired in his favor, the selection of Mr. Pearce was made unanimous, amid great enthusiasm.

—Mr. F. W. Thomas, of Toronto, travelling secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, is in town, and in company with the Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's church, called upon several citizens to-day. Mr. Thomas, previous to accepting his present position, was in commercial life for 25 years. He leaves shortly for British Columbia and the Northwest in connection with the work of the Brotherhood.

—The union prayer services last night were well attended. Rev. Dr. Crothers was the preacher at the Park-st. Baptist church, the subject being "Home and Foreign Missions." Other clergymen present were Rev. A. H. Brace, who presided; Rev. Dr. Torrance and Rev. W. J. Jolliffe. At Mark-st church Rev. J. G. Lewis presided. The speaker was Rev. J. G. Potter. Rev. F. J. Scott was also in attendance. The closing service of the week of prayer will be in St. Andrew's church to-night. Rev. F. J. Scott will be the leader.

—The arbitrators in the matter—Judge Benson, Port Hope, Judge Winchester, Toronto and Judge Harding, Lindsay—appointed to determine the damages to be paid by the Railway to the Beal Leather Co. for passing their tannery propery and taking one and a quarter acres of land, have made their award giving the Beal Leather Company $4,000. The Railway Company only offered $1,000, so they have to pay all costs. In addition to the $4,000 the Beal Company gets five crossings and the Railway Company are required to keep and maintain their drains and water pipes across the Railway in good repair for all time, and if the Railway is at any time raised, further compensation is to be allowed.—Lindsay Post.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, JAN. 6, 1905

Register! Register!

T. E. Bradburn is the man for West Peterborough.

Ross stands for the Napanee key hole episode.

Thirty-two years of continuous power is too long for any party.

Mr. Ross is growing more reckless in statement and blasphemous in utterance each day.

The Peterboroughs will put two nails in the coffin of Hon. George W. Ross on the 25th inst.

A vote for the candidate of the party that does the rascality is a vote in support of the rascality.

There will be an evening sitting of the registrars to-morrow night from 7.30 to 9 o'clock. Get your name on the voters' list.

Any man who exposes criminal wrong doing on the part of the Grits is in the eyes of several Grit papers a criminal.

Premier Ross piously declares that "righteousness exalteth a nation." He knows though that deviltry keeps his political party in power.

Ontario now has a square chance at the party that has gone brazenly on disgracing her before the world with act after act of flagrant electoral wickedness.

One member of the Rossite Cabinet had decency enough to send word to Mr. Whitney that he was ashamed of the Napanee incident. Needless to say that man wasn't Ross.

What can a respectable man think of a premier who goes about the country relating the story of the disgraceful proceedings by the Grit party at Napanee? asks an exchange.

The burned ballots, the Jackson purchased perjury, the bribe to the Soo workmen, the voyage of the Minnie M., the bogus ballot boxes—are these enough? Is it time for a change?

Registration commenced this morning. Young man see to it that you do not neglect the opportunity of having your name placed on the list, and cast your vote for Mr. Bradburn.

The Government that has been in power for thirty-two years has passed its usefulness. What divine or legal right has it to exist any longer? It's time for a change.

Premier Ross, as the day of his defeat comes closer and closer, is becoming more and more bitter. At Mount Bridges he characterized the Whitneyites as lobsters. Well they have their claws into him alright.

It is suggested that Hon. Mr. Graham is responsible for the espionage upon Mr. Whitney in the Napanee hotel. We hope not. Mr. Graham is a journalist and we sincerely hope that none of the craft is guilty of that dirty specimen of unparalleled meanness.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Mail-Empire well says, referring to the provincial campaign, that "this contest is less of the nature of a party fight than any struggle we have had in recent years." It is in that spirit precisely that the issue is being fought out in Ottawa. There will be found hundreds of staunch Liberals in the Capital whose votes will be recorded for clean government and denunciation of the Ross regime.

JUDGE ATTACKED BY LIBERALS.

In the Hon. Mr. Ross' presence at his banquet in the Temple Building December 30th, Mr. Archie Campbell M.P., made the following statement:—

"If the election scandal investigation in this City (Toronto) had not been choked off, half the Tories involved would have been in jail."

This is a most serious charge for a Liberal to make and it becomes very important for us to know who were conducting the investigation in the City (Toronto) and who choked it off.

The investigation itself was conducted by His Honor Judge Winchester, the senior judge of the County Court of the County of York and a recent appointee of the Government at Ottawa. He conducted the investigation on a resolution of the City Council of Toronto, asking him to do so. Needless to add Judge Winchester was a strong Liberal.

The prosecuting counsel in the conducting of the investigation was Mr. W. R. Riddell, K.C., who also is a strong Liberal.

The Crown Attorney of the City of Toronto, who assisted in the procuring of evidence, and who was paid by the City of Toronto, was Mr. J. W. Currie, K.C., also a strong Liberal. If the investigation as Mr. Campbell states, "was choked off," who choked Judge Winchester, W. R. Riddell and J. W. Currie, or is the insinuation that they choked somebody?

It is the sworn duty of both the Judge and Crown Attorney in such cases as above to prosecute, and if there has been dereliction of duty it is on the part of the Liberal officials and not upon the part of any Conservative.

We are also under the impression that all the Tories involved were sent to jail, and it is an odd thing that all the Liberals involved were not sent to jail.

Mr. Archie Campbell ought to take back his statement. We wonder whether Judge Winchester was sitting at the banquet table and how long will the Judge allow himself to lie under such an imputation without an apology from Mr. Campbell.

When the Liberals accuse one another of choking off an investigation it is high time that they voted for somebody else in whom they can have more confidence than their own friends.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aseptic pepsin (government test), golden seal and diastase. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of raw meat, eggs and other wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and cheap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach.

This is the secret, if there is any secret, of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most widely known of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive pure and simple because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely on the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to cure by the use of "tonics" "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores and the regular use of one or two of them after meals, will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

BIG POWER MERGER.

Pooling of Interests to Take Place in Ottawa Shortly.

In the light of the discussion which took place recently with regard to a possible combination of power interests here, the following despatch from Ottawa has additional importance—

"Preliminary steps have been taken in the formation of a big merger of the different electrical and power interests operating in and around Ottawa. It is proposed that practically all the companies, whose combined capitalization approaches the $7,000,000 mark, should pool their interests. This scheme contemplates the pooling of interests of the Ottawa Electric Company, the Ottawa Electric Railway, the Consumers' Electric Company, the Hull Electric Company, including the Street Railway of that city, the Capital Power Company of Deschenes, the Hull and Ottawa Power Company, and probably the Metropolitan Electric Company. The amalgamation of these varied interests would make a very powerful organization of capital. The scheme involves the development of the water power of the Chaudiere and the details of this have been decided upon the advice of expert hydraulic engineers, who, for months have been at work on the proposal. The different hydraulic companies propose to pool their interests. A great many of the same people control the electrical energy in and around Ottawa, and the proposal is to extend the different electrical and power corporations. There is an admirable power at Britannia, owned by the Metropolitan Company, but it has only partially been developed. It is intended under the scheme outlined to develop this also, when necessary.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hastie Have Been Fifty Years Married.

Mr. Albert Nelson is visiting in Keene.

Miss Lizzie Powell is visiting her aunt Miss B. Reed.

The Y.P.S.C.E. of the Presbyterian church and the Methodist church intend building a cement sidewalk on Church street.

The Reading and Recreation Room Committee intend holding an entertainment on Jan. 18th.

The first carnival of the season will be held on Friday, Jan. 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hastie, of Lang celebrated their golden wedding on Dec. 30th. Besides the members of the family, there were present Mr. and Mrs. John Lang and David Brodie, Oregon. Mr. Hastie's brother in Scotland, who baked the wedding cake, also supplied the cake for the golden wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Hastie were the recipients of a number of valuable presents.

A meeting was held at Villiers schoolhouse in the interests of Mr. William Anderson, candidate for the Legislature, last Thursday night. Messrs. Kerr and Martin, of Peterborough and Mr. Anderson addressed the audience of ten!

Quite a number of Keene young people attended the Roseneath ball on Friday.

CHRISTMAS AT VILLIERS.

What The People Did During the Holiday Season.

Mr. Jas. Robertson is almost well again after an attack of sciatic rheumatism.

Miss Isabella Wood is sick at the home of Mr. Jos. Hastie.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dickson spent Christmas at Fenelon Falls.

Mr. Albert Nelson, of the Hamilton School of Pedagogy, is home.

Mr. Sydney Smithson is spending the holidays at his home near Zion.

Mr. Peter Wood, who has been with the Oakman threshing gang since August 1st, spent Christmas at his home here.

The Fox Bros. threshing gang have purchased a new traction engine from Sawyer and Massey to finish their season's work.

Mr. Jos. Steele, who had the misfortune to lose his fine coon skin overcoat from the halls of the Munroe House, town, has found no trace of it.

Mr. Geo. Renwick, who has been our cheesemaker ever since our factory was built six years ago, is talking of leaving and going to Durham County. He and his family will be much missed in our neighborhood, as he was a dealer in binder twine, flour and feed, also an agent for the Otonabee Power Co.

As Mr. Ryan was unable to be at the cheese meeting, he wishes to have a meeting of all the patrons in March.

Mr. J. M. Henrie was on the sick list last week.

Mr and Mrs. Jos. Carter, Hastings, also Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harris, spent Monday at the home of Mr. Wm. Harris, sr.

Mrs. Joseph Hastie and family attended the golden wedding of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hastie, on December 30th.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. Hunter, Keene, went through the village Sunday.

Mr. W. A. Faux, Mr. Wm. M. and Fred Faux attended the assembly in Roseneath on the 30th. There were also balls in Keene and Westmount that evening, which some of our young folks attended.

The election on the 2nd was quite a stirring day in town. As Mr. Harris the returing officer, was very cautious, no padding the lists or ballot box stuffing took place. A large vote was polled with the result that Humphries led, with Carey second and Howson third. Humphries was favored with plumpers.

Several of the farmers are taking advantage of the good weather to get out their wood. Alex. Wood and Geo. Robertson have been making quite a noise in the woods lately.

Mrs. Jas. Dickson and daughters, with Mrs. Lyons and son, of town, spent the 31st at Mrs. Hewie's.

Mrs. P. Gillespie fell on the ice during the slippery season and received a bad injury on the head.

Rev. Seccombe, of Keene, was expected to preach at the school house on Tuesday evening, but failed to appear.

Misses McMartin of town, are visiting at Mr. Chas. Faux's.

The Villiers Old Boys held their annual meeting on the last evening of the year. New officers were elected. A neat feast was enjoyed and general business wound up.

Mr. Wm. Anderson held a meeting on the 28th in the school house in his interests. Mr. G. W. Renwick was chairman. About ten electors were present. As the walking was very unsafe on account of ice, the Tories did not feel like turning out to risk their lives, as it is thought the Government relief fund is somewhat weak at this time. Mr. Stratton was to have been present, but it was too icy to come. Mr. Anderson will have a harder row to hoe this time, having nothing to say himself, and the Government having nothing to say for him. Mr. H. A. Moore has been through this neighborhood and the people will turn out on the 25th and do well for the coming member and his party. He will do his best to shut down the corruption and the bogus ballot box frauds which the present Government have supported. Vote for Moore and Whitney.

Mr. Jas. Bathgate, a fireman on the G.T.R., spent New Year's at his father's home.

Mr. Wesley, Miss Lizzie Hewie and Miss Eva Mondre are visiting at Mr. Robertson's, from Fenelon.

FORTUNE—To Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fortune, on Dec. 31st, 1904, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Wood spent New Year's eve in Keene.

Three Keene doctors have been through the village this week—a sick Christmas time.

THE VOTE IN NORWOOD.

Mr. E. E. Pakenham Elected Reeve—Sidewalk By-law Defeated.

Norwood, Jan. 3rd, 1905.

The year 1904 has passed and gone. New resolves and aspirations are the natural sequence to this festive season. May our resolves and aspirations be higher and nobler, and our future will be brighter and more happy.

To some the past year has been one of joy and sunshine, while to others the clouds of sorrow have darkened their lives for a while. But after the rain comes the sunshine and the dark days but tend to make the bright ones brighter.

We must remember that the same Providence shapes each life, and whatever is sent is intended only for our highest and best interests. We take this opportunity of wishing our readers a bright, happy and prosperous New Year.

We noticed with pleasure a good many familiar faces during the New Year's time.

Mr. J. Gordon Moffat, formerly of the Union Bank staff, visited his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McKay, of Otonabee, spent New Year's day at the home of his father, Mr. J. McKay, of Asphodel.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Sabin, of Peterborough, at Mr. Geo. Livingstone's.

Mr. Gerald Roxburgh, of Toronto, at Mr. W. E. Roxburgh's.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, at the home of Mr. and Mrs P. W. Reynolds.

Mr. Hermie Nicoll, of Kingston, at his father's, Mr. Richard Nicoll's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fitzgerald, at Mr. John Finlay's, M.P.

Mr. Jas. Webster, son of Mr. Thos. Webster, South Dummer, arrived home on Monday from North Dakota.

Mr. Stanley Hendren has taken over the carriage business of Mr. John McMillen, Peterborough-st.

The following is the result of the polling in the village on Monday:—

As a Convalescent Food

Mr. Wyman N. Thomas, Ompah, Addington, Co., Ont., writes:—"My wife had congestion of the lungs, along with other troubles, and became very weak and run down. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food she was made as strong and as well as ever. Of course I had a doctor, but she was weak, and it was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which built her up."

TEACHER REMEMBERED

Mrs. McCarrell Received Many Handsome Gifts.

Mrs. McCarrell has again given up the profession of teaching after having taught eleven years, eight of which were spent in the Orange Line School, of two terms, three and five years respectively, also three years in Bethel School.

She has always been successful during her term of teaching and has won the affection of her pupils to a very marked degree as is shown by the numerous presents received by her at various times.

Upon the closing of the school last Thursday she was very much surprised upon receiving from Edna Howden, one of the pupils, a beautiful table set of glass; some time ago she received from Ruby and Della Lowes, two dainty handkerchiefs and a picture.

Mrs. McCarrell prized very highly the complimentary published in the Omemee paper by the Bethel correspondent during the summer of 1903, also the numerous presents received by her.

Upon leaving the Orange Line School at the end of the first term of three years she received a silver pickle cruet and two glass pickle holders together with a card of remembrance presented by the Misses Adams, Henderson and Carroll on behalf of the school and at the end of the school. Also during the second ver tea pot and a silver table napkin ring, presented by Leonard Atwell and Dewey Stinson, on behalf of the school. Also during to second term a picture case by Victoria Wilson, a Xmas card and picture by Dolly Stinson and a picture from Joseph Carroll.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, JAN. 6, 1905

WARM WELCOME TO MR. WHITNEY

Greeted by an Enthusiastic Audience at Paris.

LIBERALS SHIELD FRIENDS.

But Law Under their Rule is Swift to Strike at the Enemy—Axe Should Fall on All Alike if it is to Descend.

Paris, Jan. 5.—Before a crowded house here last night J. P. Whitney, K. C., gave his opening address in the Western Ontario campaign and received a rousing reception. The meeting was presided over by Mayor Paterson, who introduced the candidate for North Brant, J. H. Fisher. This was his third contest, and he was out to win and capture some of the good things going for his constituency, a feature which did not characterize the career of the present representative. He felt sure of the support of a large number of Liberals. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P.-elect of Brantford, made a stirring appeal for the Conservative party in terms vigorous and effective, criticising the Reform party and their attitude in the present campaign. He said that the Ross Government were the most corrupt and weakest in the history of Canada since Confederation. He noted in passing that the famous Minnie M. was partly the property of the Government.

In reference to the temperance question Mr. Cockshutt said that the attitude of the press towards Mr. Whitney after an arduous meeting in Napanee was unfair and unmanly.

What's Fair For One.

"If the axe is going to fall, let it fall on all alike, let it fall on Hon. A. G. Mackay and Hon. George Graham, or any others who break the law. I believe that most Liberals are ashamed of the peanut politics displayed in this incident. The law under Reform rule is swift to strike an enemy of the Government, but strong to shield its friends. It is applied when it can hit a political opponent, but the axe is stayed on a boat load of pluggers at the Soo. Nine months is not long enough to put the law in motion at the Soo, but 40 hours is all that is needed to take an advantage of Mr. Whitney on a technical offence."

Spoke Two Hours.

Mr. Whitney, who spoke for nearly two hours, elucidated the different planks in the Conservative platform. He said that if it had not been for the policy of the Opposition in regard to the educational system the Government would not have increased the grant to the Provincial University by $10. Mr. Whitney then spoke briefly of the Gamey question and concluded his address with an appeal for the citizens of the north riding to rally to the cause of pure Government.

Mackay Gets the Nomination.

Owen Sound, Jan. 6.—Hon A. G. Mackay, Commissioner of Crown Lands, was unanimously chosen as the Liberal candidate in North Grey at a largely attended convention yesterday afternoon. Mr. Mackay, in his address at the public meeting, attacked Mr. Whitney for opposing the assistance to the Soo industry by the Government. Mr. Whitney had not been a successful lawyer, and was not a man of administrative ability. J. M. Kilbourn, Jas. Cleland, ex-M.P.P., and J. Frost spoke briefly. An evening meeting was held, which was addressed by Mr. Mackay, M. Kennedy and R. B. Miller.

JOYNT WILL ALSO RUN.

He Is Not Satisfied With Result of Second Grenville Convention.

Brockville, Jan. 6.—R. L. Joynt, ex-M.P.P., for Grenville, was in town yesterday, and when interviewed spoke freely of Wednesday's Conservative convention, at which he was defeated by G. Howard Ferguson by a narrow majority.

He reports a stormy time, and says the result of the convention was not satisfactory to his friends. Protests were entered with the officers of the association against certain irregularities in the election of delegates at several polls.

To settle the matter it is his intention to contest the riding against Mr. Ferguson, and if elected will, as in the past, give his undivided support to Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Pringle Will Run.

Belleville, Jan. 6.—The West Hastings Reform Association held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon, and Henry Pringle, who was on Dec. 22, offered the Liberal nomination in opposition to Mr. Morrison, formally accepted the same.

Hamilton Liberals.

Hamilton, Jan. 6.—The Liberals last evening nominated, for the Legislature, Ald. George S. Kerr in West Hamilton and Dr. Griffin for East Hamilton. The one convention made the nomination for both ridings.

MAIL CARRIERS' BOND.

Which Is Said to Disqualify Member-Elect For West Huron.

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—At the Postoffice Department yesterday a reporter was shown the bond of Thomas Gundry, mail carrier at Goderich, which is alleged to disqualify E. N. Lewis, barrister, and A. M. Polly, gentleman, all of Goderich, in the sum of $400 for the carrying of the mail from the Grand Trunk station to the Goderich postoffice. The bond was witnessed by John Galter, affidavits to the securities were sworn before W. Lane, J.P. It is dated Feb 13, 1903.

What Mr. Pickup Claims.

Halifax, Jan 6.—The counter-petition of S. W. Pickup, M. P.-elect for Annapolis County, for the disqualification of the defeated Conservative candidate, claims that with the consent or privity of the respondent an agreement was entered into with David Russell and Hugh Graham of Montreal and other persons, whereby they were to furnish or cause to be furnished, sums of money to be used as campaign funds for the Liberal-Conservative party; also that an agreement was entered into with James Crathern of Montreal, and other persons, by which sums were to be collected from parties interested in the Liberal-Conservative party to be paid to agents, committees, or political supporters of the party at the election.

TRANSCONTINENTAL DELAY.

Wreck Has Occurred At Sturgeon Falls, But Winnipeg Hears.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—Yesterday's Transcontinental express from the east, due to arrive at 12.30 noon, is sixteen and a half hours late, due to a freight wreck on the main line, on the North Lake section.

Details of the accident are meagre, officials stating that a full report has not yet arrived, but a wreck occurred at Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

It cannot be learned whether the accident was a derailment or a collision, but local officials state that had any passengers on the express been injured they would have been advised.

Pope Blesses Canadian Students.

Rome, Jan. 6.—The Pope yesterday received the students of the Canadian College, with the rector, Father G. Clapin, and the administrator, Father Athanase Vacher, and the Canadian clergy at present in Rome, numbering 45 persons, including the Most Rev. Paul Bruchesi, Archbishop of Montreal. Father Lecoq read an eloquent address in Latin, expressing the loyalty of the Canadian episcopacy, clergy and students to the Holy See. Then the Pope read a sheet in his own handwriting, in which he paid tributes to the bishops, clergy and people of Canada. He afterwards gave the students fatherly advice, insisting on the necessity of sacredotal virtues being united with science. Each student was personally presented to the Pontiff, who blessed them all and congratulated Father Clapin on the condition of the college.

To Reduce the Duty.

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—Dry good importers from Toronto, London and Montreal waited upon the Government yesterday morning and urged that the duty upon woollens not manufactured in Canada be reduced from 30 per cent. to the former rate of 28 per cent. The goods to which the proposed reduction would apply are light dress goods, mohair, linings, etc.

For a Whipping Post.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Representative Adams of Pennsylvania yesterday, in a bill providing for the establishment in the District of Columbia of a whipping post for wife beaters. It prescribes that the whipping shall be done privately.

President For Six Years.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Senator Bailey submitted to the United States Senate a proposed amendment to the legislation fixing the term of president at six years and making him ineligible for re-election.

Asphyxiated in His Room.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Alex. Tate, a paper cutter by trade, was found asphyxiated in his room at 41 Widmer street yesterday. He was about 40 years of age. He had $150 cash with him.

Judgment Reserved.

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—The argument on the Toronto Union Station expropriation proceedings was concluded before the Railway Commission yesterday, and judgment was reserved.

State Ownership of Railways.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—The Empire Club had a full attendance at Webb's yesterday, when W. F. Maclean, M.P.-elect, gave an spirited address on "The Nationalization of Railways."

Young Athlete Dies.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 6.—James S. Byron, a well known young athlete, died yesterday morning, as a result of an operation for appendicitis performed some time ago.

Grain Case in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 6.—C. C. Castle, warehouse commissioner, has instituted criminal proceedings under the Manitoba Grain Act against T. H. Kellett, member of Winnipeg Grain Exchange, charging him with having received grain for sale from farmers and failing to turn over to them the proceeds of the sales.

Find Body in River.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 6.—The body of Neil S. Phelps, the capitalist, of this city, who mysteriously disappeared a number of weeks ago, and who was later supposed to have been located in British Columbia, was found yesterday, badly decomposed, in the river here.

Moderate Tax On Food.

London, Jan. 6.—(C.A.P.)—Under the heading "Protectionist Manifesto," some dozen prominent merchants and manufacturers state their readiness to support a moderate tax on food, provided differential duties be imposed by the colonies in favor of British goods.

Five Die in Ice Plant.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—The refrigerating plant of a brewery at Cobourg overweighted with ice, collapsed yesterday, burying nine workmen. Five of them were killed and four were wounded. Two of the latter may succumb to the injuries they received.

Both Legs Severed By Saw.

Dominion City, Man., Jan. 6.—J. Unrow of Stuartburn was killed on Wednesday while operating his saw machine. He had the misfortune to slip and, falling directly upon the saw, had both legs severed from the body. He died shortly afterwards.

Lost With Ten Men.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 6.—Three lifebuoys marked "Edith Mary," Glasgow, have been found off Cape St. Mary's. It is believed they belong to the Firon barque of that name, Hughes, master, which left Ascension Sept. 14 for St. John's, and is now 113 days unreported. It is feared she was lost off Cape St. Mary's with the whole crew, probably ten men.

Merchant's Strange Death.

Stratford, Jan. 6.—Joseph Rankin, for many years a prominent merchant of Stratford, but who has lately been in poor health, wandered off to the northern outskirts of the city Wednesday afternoon, and later was found in an unconscious condition. He was removed to his home, where he died the same evening.

From Scratch On the Hand.

Halifax, Jan. 6.—Rev. John Franklin Forbes, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of Sydney, died yesterday morning of blood poisoning, caused by a scratch on the hand. He was a graduate of Princeton and studied theology at Knox College, Toronto.

Hurt By Falling Tree.

Flesherton, Jan. 6.—While felling a tree Wednesday, John Stuart and Charles Neil, farmers, were injured, Mr. Neil probably fatally. The tree fell on them, knocking them insensible.

Croup Absolutely Cured

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. Magee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto, Ont.

VERY POPULAR OFFICER.

Is Lieutenant-Colonel MacNachtan, Who Commands 14th Field Battery.

The Canadian Military Gazette for December contains among its personal sketches of prominent personages the following reference to Lieut.-Col. Neil F. MacNachtan, commanding officer of the 14th Field Battery:—

Lieut.-Col. N. F. MacNachtan, commanding the 14th (Midland) Field Field Battery, with headquarters at Cobourg, is to be heartily congratulated on the success of that Battery, which heads the list in the general efficiency return of Canadian Field Batteries for 1904. Colonel MacNachtan is an enthusiastic militia man and an efficient officer. For thirty-four years he has faithfully served his country in the ranks of the militia, devoting his time mainly to the artillery branch of the service. He probably knows more than any other artillery officer in Canada about the technicalities of that branch, being, in fact, the author of quite a valuable treatise on the subject, entitled, "A Guide for Field Artillery," issued this year. In camp Colonel MacNachtan is a worker from start to finish. A peep into his tent at midnight, or even later, would most likely discover him pouring over the latest edition of "Field Artillery Training," or laying plans with one or more of his officers for the morrow's drill. Colonel MacNachtan is a believer in uniform gun laying, and his success in firing is due to the fact that he personally instructs his layers. Consequently he takes his post as battery commander at the ranging flank with a supreme degree of confidence in his gunners, knowing that his shells will burst precisely at the given ranges.

Tokio, Jan. 4—The Japanese captured 25,000 prisoners at Port Arthur. The total number of the inhabitants is 35,000, of which 20,000 are sick.

DOG AND DIPLOMAT

By LOWELL OTUS REESE

Copyright, 1904, by Lowell Otus Reese

Magnolia was one of those quiet little towns by the southern sea where many people go to spend the winter. Its chief beauty lay in the wide forest of live oaks all about, through which wound the level driveway, with its accompanying bicycle path. The sea knocked lazily at the door, but never with enough energy to cause the quiet little town to give it any attention beyond that of an occasional midwinter bathing party or a clambaking expedition up the coast, where the rocks were large and black in the moonlight and the scene peculiarly adapted to the telling of ghost stories and the walks home eminently well suited to the telling of love stories which, while not so thrilling, were infinitely more satisfactory.

Carleton saw her on the avenue one morning. He watched her enter a certain house with magnolias in the front yard. She entered with an air of proprietorship, and Carleton promptly decided that it was her home. He strode away to the nearest drug store and by skillful diplomacy elicited from the benevolent old gentleman with spectacles that the house was occupied by Colonel Barclay of New York, and—

But Carleton promptly forgot the rest of it as being "irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial." He remembered the name, however, and he saw her again that evening—afar off.

He was a modest fellow, and he tried to keep out of sight. However, he thought about her most assiduously, and finally he dreamed about her. This was getting serious. To think all day about a ~~girl you've~~ never met and to dream about her all night is alarming and an indication that it is time for you to leave town or hunt up a mutual friend.

Carleton knew no one in Magnolia, and he could not induce himself to leave. He continued to haunt the beach and drive and tell his troubles to the big pointer, who always listened with an appreciative thump of the tail and a tremendous droop of his cavernous jaw.

One evening Carleton was lying upon the grass half a mile from town when suddenly the pointer sprang up with a startled bark and rushed out into the middle of the bicycle path, frisking and ready for a romp. He was just in time to collide with Miss Barclay's wheel and send that frightened young lady to the ground in an undignified heap.

Carleton ran out in a perfect agony of contrition. "It's all Don's fault!" he cried. "I hope you won't—are you hurt?" he finished anxiously.

The young lady was regarding her muddy costume with mingled wrath and mortification. Her face burned a rosy red, and she sprang quickly upon her wheel and started with all speed from the scene of her tumble.

"He's a horrid, muddy beast," she half sobbed, "and if I owned him I would have him shot." Then with a half glance at the abject young man, who stood hat in hand, she swept around a bend in the road and was gone.

Carleton stood benumbed. "It's all over now," he sighed. "Don, you've done it this time all right." The poor pointer hung his head and slunk away to lie down behind a tree and watch his master with agonized, apprehensive eyes. He was guilty, but so sorry.

Carleton regarded him long and thoughtfully.

"Don, old boy," he said, "it's up to you. You've got to be sacrificed. It goes hard with me, old chap, but she has condemned you, and that settles it."

Don wagged his tail anxiously and with doubt. He didn't understand, only that things were not at all right and that there was trouble ahead.

When Miss Barclay came down the next morning she found the big pointer tied to a magnolia tree in her front yard. Affixed to his collar was a card. She stood for a moment in blank amazement looking at the dog. Don sat down and smiled at her, thrashing his tail vigorously among the leaves to tell her he was sorry, but mighty friendly.

The girl approached slowly. Don watched her, but made no extravagant demonstrations. It was a point in his favor and went far toward excusing his ill chosen frivolity of the day before.

Miss Barclay laid a tentative hand upon his head. Don looked into her eyes gravely, but made no effort to presume upon the short acquaintance by unseemly fawnings.

The girl smiled finally. "Whose dog are you, anyway?" she asked quizzically.

The pointer opened his wide jaws and laughed with a soft, panting breath. Then he solemnly raised the right paw and laid it in Miss Barclay's hand. Curiosity took possession of the girl, and she tore the card from the dog's collar and read it:

> Dear Miss Barclay—Here is the bearer, Don, pursuant to your expressed wish of yesterday. Perhaps it is a bit cowardly, but I confess I haven't the heart to kill him myself. He and I have been chums a long time, and he is the only being I know in the whole south. So, while I express my deepest regret for the annoyance he caused you yesterday, let me bespeak for him an easy and painless death, for he has his good points. Very respectfully, ROBERT CARLETON.

"Well!" ejaculated Miss Barclay when she had read it. "Oh, my!" She glanced furtively up and down the street and across the way and seemed about to run. Nobody was in sight, however, save a ragged negro boy carrying a valise around the corner. "How foolish of me!" she smiled. She reread the note and looked at the dog. Don wigwagged her a friendly signal, and the tears came to her eyes. "Kill such a dear fellow! Never!"

She sat down on the grass and puckered her brows as she thought. Presently a light came into her eyes and she gasped. Then she frowned and smiled.

"Impudent rascal!" she said. "He's trying to get acquainted with me. It's perfectly outrageous of him!" She tried to be angry—very, very angry. But somehow she did not quite succeed. She remembered the picture of a tall, flushed young fellow with a well bred face standing before her with a look of miserable apology, and she was bound to confess that she was not able to feel just as indignant as she ought. She read the note once more.

"Impudent!" she said to Don. "Impudent—but—but clever!" and she laughed. The dog laughed back and whacked the ground violently with his tail.

Then the real serious part of the puzzle occurred to her. She did not know the man's address. How then could she send this valuable animal back to him? And really did she not owe him an apology for her rude remark to him yesterday? He had not been to blame, and he had tried so hard to apologize.

After awhile she decided to advertise—discreetly. It seemed the best solution of the distracting problem. She untied the rope and led the dog around to the rear of the house, where she turned him over to the housemaid, and went in to telephone her advertisement to the paper.

Fifteen minutes later she found herself out in the back yard again. Don's eyes met her reproachfully. He was confined ignominiously in a chicken coop.

Miss Barclay tried her best to think it was all right. Then she gave it up. He was such a splendid dog after all! She took him from the coop and allowed him the freedom of the back yard. Don did not abuse the privilege. He seemed to understand that he was on parole. He lay down at her feet and watched her adoringly. She wandered away to the hammock and tried to forget the whole incident in a book. Don followed, sat down and peered solemnly over the edge of the hammock with grave eyes which seemed to say, "What are you going to do about it?"

That evening Carleton picked up the paper and read:

> R. C.—Your dog has been pardoned and released on his own recognizance. Please come and get him. L. B.

And when Carleton called Don had been promoted. He was in the parlor, lying on the best Persian rug.

• • • • • • •

"Bless old Don!" said Carleton fervently six months later. "He caused it all. He's a diplomat worthy the court of St. James."

"Yes," said Miss Barclay, with a shy smile, "he's almost as great a diplomat as his master, save that he lacks his master's impudence."

"Perhaps," assented Carleton cheerfully, "but much goes with impudence which might possibly be missed by mere diplomacy." And he kissed her.

Indirect Answers.

Yankees are said to answer one question by another. Turks meet questions by another sort of evasion, quite as irritating. Sir A. Henry Layard says in his "Autobiography" that during a journey through Asia Minor he met a shepherd driving his flock.

I asked him how many goats he possessed.

His reply was, "As many as passed by you."

"But," said I, "I did not count them. How many are there?"

"The same number I took with me to the mountains."

"But how many did you take to the mountains?"

"As many as I had."

It was useless to inquire any further.

Passing a caravan of laden camels, I asked one of the drivers whence he came.

"From that side," was the answer, pointing with his finger in the direction.

"But from what town?"

"The town is there," pointing again.

"But the name of the town?"

"It was toward Smyrna."

And so the colloquy ended.

This habit is derived from the suspicion entertained by easterners of strangers, who are generally taken for government officials on some mission connected with taxgathering or other business distasteful to the population.

Fish That Are Not Fish.

On our way into the interior of Newfoundland part of our route was over a lovely lake. We had not proceeded far when I thought I could occasionally see the water break with a splash in close proximity to the canoe. I turned to the native who was handling the paddle and inquired whether there were any fish in the pond.

"Fish? No, sir—no fish, sir."

Presently I saw not six feet from the bow of the canoe a magnificent salmon rise to the surface and with a swish of his tail disappear to the depths. Again I turned to my friend with the remark:

"Daddy, did I understand you to say that there were no fish in this lake?"

"No fish, sir—no fish."

"Yes, but—I beg your pardon—I—a moment ago saw what I took to be a twelve or fifteen pound salmon break the water not six feet from the bow of the canoe."

"Oh, yes, that was a salmon! There are plenty of trout and salmon in all these waters, but no fish, sir. You know, we don't count anything as fish in these parts but codfish, sir."—"Caribou Shooting In Newfoundland."

MONAGHAN IS FOR BRADBURN

Splendid Meeting Held in The Town Hall Last Night.

STIRRING ADDRESSES MADE.

Reasons Why the Ross Government Should be Deposed—Mr. Bradburn Unable to be Present, Owing to Cold—Grit Arguments Shattered.

A splendid meeting in the interest of Mr. T. E. Bradburn was held in the town hall, North Monaghan, last night.

The attendance was large, about fifty electors attending. Owing to Mr. Bradburn suffering from a severe cold he was unable to be present. While this was naturally a disappointment to many of his friends, nevertheless the gathering was enthusiastic and Mr. Bradburn will receive a large vote throughout the township in the Council of which he served so long and so efficiently.

Warden Thomas M. Hunter occupied the chair and spoke of his regard for Mr. Bradburn, who was a gentleman in every way well qualified to represent the riding and with whom he had early and very pleasant associations. Mr. Hunter said that Tom was a lucky name in the township. He personally had always received a large vote, for which he thanked the electors, and he believed that Thomas Evans Bradburn would also be generously supported, the township having given as high a Conservative majority as 50. Mr. Hunter told several stories during the evening—and they were well told and equally well received.

The Arnott brothers—James and Albert—rendered an excellent harmonious duett and were encored. They are good musicians.

Mr. R. A. Morrow explained that Mr. Bradburn had been out in the back country for several days, and while there had caught cold. It had grown so bad that a doctor had to be called and he had advised Mr. Bradburn to remain in for a couple of days until all danger was past. Mr. Morrow regretted the absence of the candidate, but felt that he would receive a very large measure of support in the township.

The next speaker was Mr. Geo. B. VanBlaricom, who dealt briefly with the splendid municipal work of Mr. Bradburn in the town and township, and the cry raised by the Liberals that they were the only fit party for office—that Mr. Whitney was incompetent, lacked initiative, etc. This was largely the talk of the Grit press. Its hollowness, meanness and one-sidedness was referred to, as well as many of the other shallow claims put forward by the Ross Government for hanging on to power, notwithstanding that it was in a minority of two in the Legislature, and had over 7,000 of the popular vote against it in the election of 1902.

MR. PECK'S REMARKS.

Mr. E. A. Peck, ex-Warden, followed in an excellent half-hour address. He said that doubtless the people were getting sick of elections, having had a federal election two months ago, and this week their municipal contest, and now Mr. Ross had brought on an election—not in the interest of the country, but in the interest of Mr. Ross solely, who was in a minority and was making his final effort to hang on to power, which he loved so dearly. Mr. Ross had forfeited all claim to support by his acts in the past. He had called the Legislature early last year to stave off the election trials and there was no doubt that the present combat was brought on hurriedly to prevent the trial against Hon. A. G. MacKay going on in North Grey, against whom some very serious charges had been made by the Conservatives, and it would not have done to have them ventilated in the courts. The Conservative party was not complaining, and was prepared for the fray. Under Mr. Whitney they had an able and experienced leader—one who deserved success, one who had sat for years in opposition faithfully guarding the interests of the Province and criticizing all items of expenditure and legislation when necessary. It was certainly time for a change. What would the electors think of a township council of a particular stripe, or a set of men who would want to hold office for thirty-three years. Such a thing was unheard of in municipal government, and it was only fair that Mr. Whitney should be afforded an opportunity to show what he could do. He had able men behind him and if, after a term in power, he did not give the Province clean, honest and efficient administration, then he should be turned out, but it was only fair that he should have a trial. Regarding expenditure, Mr. Peck said that the total outlay by the Province was increasing rapidly and had now reached about five million a year. This was at the rate of $2 1-2 per head, while the expenditure in Peterborough County annually was about $21,000 or only $1 per head. The revenues of the Province were being depleted by the sale of large timber limits and other means, but the supply of pine would not hold out forever, and in the end, unless a halt was called, direct taxation would have to be resorted to. Mr. Peck dealt with the remarkable piece of legislation whereby the Government had loaned $2,000,000 to the industries at the Sault. If the Government could come to the assistance of one private corporation, with financial aid, then why not to another. There was no telling where the thing would end. Mr. Peck said that a great deal of the legislation in the House was private legislation, but there was no special work that stood out which gave the Liberals the right to make any strong claims. The new assessment act was prepared by a commission consisting of judges and private individuals and was no great credit to the Ross Government, as it gave it power to directly tax municipalities, in case it was found necessary.

Mr. Peck, in conclusion, asked them all to unite in voting out of power a government which, while it made big pretensions, had very little to show in the line of performances for which it could claim direct credit, and invited all on the 25th of January to get out and work for Mr Bradburn.

THE CLOSING ADDRESS

Dr. M. A. Morrison was the last speaker. Although, he said that it was the second political address he had ever made in his life, the doctor promises to be an effective campaign stumper. He deals logically and convincingly with each issue. He said that some eight years ago, when the Conservatives had been in power for about eight years at Ottawa, the Toronto Globe had—honestly, he believed—clamored for a change, saying, "It's time for a change." Well that had come and now the Globe was bitterly combatting such a cry. Attorney-General Longley, of Nova Scotia, who was a close thinker, had said that it was impossible for any body of men to be in power for a continuous period without getting lax in their ideas of public duty. This was the innate tendency of man, and many free and independent thinking men all over the Province had come to the same conclusion. The independent press had joined issue against the Ross Government and many influential Liberals had also spoken out against Ross and his record of corruption and dishonesty.

The speaker quoted from Rev. Dr. MacKay, of Woodstock, Rev. D. C. Hossack, of Toronto, and other Liberal clergymen, as well as from the Halifax Chronicle, a strong Liberal paper, which said that the name of Canada had been besmirched by the Ross Government. Hitherto strong Liberals were demanding that a new Government under Mr. Whitney be placed in power.

Dr. Morrison then dealt at some length with the reasons for a change—the corruption and fraud, the violation of the constitution, the governing without a majority, and the lack of business ability and capacity that had been evidenced in some of the departments. In 1891 the Conservative party in the legislature under Sir William Meredith, laid down the proposition that there should be a thorough stock taking of the forest resources and no sale of the timber limits without legislative authority. This business-like and sensible proposition, was rejected by the Liberals. The Government had rushed sales, advertised only a few weeks ahead, instead of some months or a year, as they should, and favorites had stepped in and bought the limits, whereas healthy competition would have resulted in the limits being sold at the highest possible price. The policy of the government on the timber limit question was not only ill advised, but the administration was not creditable, and at the last session of the House a return was brought down showing that 82 limits had been sold secretly and without competition.

The doctor, in closing, dealt with Mr. Whitney's policy to improve the common school education system in the Province and soundly denounced the school book ring. He said that the publishers were able to live in mansions out of the enormous profits made from the people. He condemned Mr. Ross' wobbling, weak, dishonest treatment of the temperance question, and exposed his broken pledges and false promises. He urged all to support Mr. Bradburn and usher in a better and brighter day in the political history of the Province by ousting the Ross aggregation and placing in power Col. Whitney, a man who would give Ontario good service and honest laws, and if the Conservatives did not do that, then the people should turn them out.

The meeting closed with ringing cheers for the King, Mr. Whitney and Mr. Bradburn.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Dominion Express Co's Delivery Horse Makes Dash for Freedom.

A lively runaway aroused much excitement on George-st. this morning and it looked at first as if a serious accident was about to occur. Fortunately, however, the only damage done was to the sleigh figuring in the mix up.

The Dominion Express Company's sleigh in charge of Driver Fred Sanderson, was driving up George-st. between Simcoe and Hunter when the Street Railway Co's sweeper came along and frightened the horse. The animal started off at a Lou Dillon clip. Near Oke's store it took to the side-walk and crashed into a hydrant, throwing Sanderson over the dashboard. He lit on the whiffle-tree and shafts and managed to hang on until the animal was stopped at the corner. It was a very narrow escape.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD.

Wallace Goodfellow, an Old Peterborough Boy, Dies in Toronto.

The death occurred in Toronto yesterday of Mr. Wallace Goodfellow, a former resident of Pewterborough. Pneumonia was the cause of his demise. The deceased was the son of the late Robt. Goodfellow and lived here all his life until four years ago when he went to Toronto. He was twenty-two years of age. His mother left Peterborough a year ago and is at present living in Toronto.

The deceased has many friends in town who will be grieved to hear of his death. Mr. Geo. Ray, of Dummer and Mr. Wm. Goodfellow are uncles. The funeral will take place to-morrow on the arrival of the 11.45 G.T.R. train from Toronto, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Every member of Sherwood Forest Camp, Woodmen of the World, is respectfully urged to be present at the regular meeting to take place on Monday evening, January 9th, in the Hall, Hunter-st. The installation of officers and other special business will take place. Refreshments will be served after the meeting. By order. ALF. HASKILL, Clerk. 2d

HOW YOUNG JAMES DUVAL WAS SHOT

Evidence Taken in the Inquest Held at Cordova.

THE FATALITY EXPLAINED.

Man Who Held the Rifle Tells How the Discharge Was Made—Thought Trigger Was at Half Cock—Must Have Caught in Trousers' Leg.

Coroner Gray and County Crown Attorney Wood opened an inquest at Cordova yesterday on the death of the late James Duval, who was shot by his brother while walking through the woods last Saturday. It appears that the shooting was accidental, according to first reports, but some doubt seems to have developed, and to clear this up, an official enquiry was considered advisable.

County Constable Cochrane had summoned the following jurors, who were empanelled yesterday:—John Brown, foreman; Adolphus Brown, Absolym Brown, Thomas McLaughlan, William Thompson, John Ferris Purdy, William E. Young, Stewart Crossing, James G. Covert, Elisha Youmans, William Stonourgh, Alex. Leeson, James Trusman and Wilfrid Ellis.

Herman Sisson was the first witness sworn. He stated that he was the son of Mrs. Duval, wife of Willis Duval, and that the families lived together in the same house. John Sisson, his brother, was the boy who shot James Duval. It was on Saturday last, said witness, that my brother went out with the gun. I was going with him and James was following behind. We had gone quite a distance from home when the shooting occurred. We told James to go back, but he still followed. John was ahead with the gun, a rifle, and I had an air gun. John told James to go back, and then the gun went off. There had been no quarrel between the two boys. I was about two or three feet from James when he fell. John had not said anything to James except that he might get shot in the woods. When I saw him fall I was not in a position in which I could see John, but he told me afterwards to go and tell my mother that James was dead.

The next witness was John James Sisson, who carried the rifle from which came the fatal bullet. He said—On Saturday last, Dec. 31st, I and my brother Herman started out on a porcupine hunt, and the little fellow, James Duval wanted to go. I tried to persuade him not to, but he persisted. He finally turned to go back, and I went on. I was holding the rifle in one hand, thinking it was only half cocked, but as I turned from the boy it went off. When this happened, Herman yelled, and I turned back again. I ran to the little boy and threw the rifle in the snow. I went to pick up the boy and found that he was dead. I told Herman to run and tell mother, and I followed right after. She came out and brought him to the house. James was northeast from me when the gun went off. I told him to go back and said he might get shot if he came to the woods. The rifle was pointing in the same direction as my body—toward the boy. I was carrying the gun in one hand catching it in front of the lock. I thought it was half-cocked. My step-father

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Three Drunk and Disorderlies Dealt With—An Assault Case.

There was quite a budget of cases at the police court this morning and considerable money was taken in.

James Murphy was found guilty of being drunk and disorderly and was fined $2 and $2.60 costs.

Buff McManus was also found guilty of being drunk and disorderly. He was assessed $5.00.

John Douglas for a similar offence was fined $2 and $3.75 costs.

John McCoy charged with assaulting his daughter was found guilty and sent to jail for one month with hard labor. He was under the influence of liquor at the time of the assault.

OKE'S STORE ROBBED.

Only a Few Oysters Were Taken—Local Parties Suspected.

Mr. Sam Oke, the George-st. merchant, has received word that the store of his brother, Mr. Fred. Oke, in Port Hope, was robbed on Sunday evening last. It was about 11.30 o'clock, when Nightwatchman Garbutt, of that town, saw some person in Mr. Oke's store lighting matches. Mr. Garbutt intended to place a man at the front door while he went to the back, but before this could be done the thief had made his escape through the rear. Entrance was made by walking through the glass in the door, but the only thing missing is a few oysters. Chief Bond was present shortly afterwards and has strong suspicion as to the guilty party, and arrests are likely to follow.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Thompson, of the Dickson Company, was in Lindsay this week on business.

Miss Ethel Davidson, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. L. McIntosh, Lindsay, has returned.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Parker entertained about 20 their friends at an oyster supper.

Mr. Alphonse Picard, son of Mr. Joseph Picard has gone to New York to take a course in Mitchell's Cutting School.

Miss Elsie Clinkscale, of Peterborough, has returned home after spending the holidays with her aunt, Mrs. L. McIntosh.—Lindsay Post.

Mr. W. H. Greer, of Brandon, Man., is at the Cavanagh House buying all classes of good horses for use in the North-West. He will be here for two weeks.

Mr. A. J. Clarke, town, is in Ottawa attending the annual meeting of the agents of the Canadian Railway Accident Insurance Company.

Mr. Wm. Trout, of the Canadian Machine Telephone Co., who has been spending a holiday in Mount Forest, Toronto and Hamilton, has returned to town.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the popular Liberal-Conservative candidate who has been confined to his room with a severe cold is considerably better and is able to be around again.

THE CHILDREN GET PRESENTS

Happy Gathering of St. Luke's Sabbath School.

AN OCCASION OF INTEREST.

Names of Those Who Qualified For The Honor Roll and For Prizes—A Good Programme Was Rendered by Little People.

A large throng of happy young people, members of St. Luke's Sabbath School, and their friends, gathered in the school room to participate in the Christmas entertainment last night. The occasion was marked by great enjoyment, and the interest was intensified as a result of the distribution of honor certificates, and prizes. The weather was very cold, but this did not prevent a large attendance. Tea was served for the little folks in the early part of the evening. A programme of instrumental and vocal music and other numbers followed. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt was chairman, and during the evening he referred with pleasure to the marked progress of the school during the year.

The programme opened with a Christmas Carol by the children of the school. Recitations that found great favor were given by the following young people—Lizzie Maniece, Rita Gaskins, Wilhilmina Gaskins, and Alex McAlister. An instrumental duett was contributed by Miss M. Sawyer and Miss E. Dawson, a piano solo by Miss Katie Leary, a vocal solo by Miss Lulu Scott, a song by Prudence Long, a tiny tot, who virtually brought down the house. A kindergarten drill by pupils of Miss Williamson was interesting, the little folk in it performing their parts very cutely.

After the programme a large number of prizes were distributed by the rector. There were four grades—those entitled to the honor roll by reason of the attendance for 50 Sundays during the year; the first prize pupils who attend from 48 to 50 Sundays; the second prize pupils who attended from 45 to 48 Sundays, and the third prizers who attended from 40 to 45 Sundays. Of course proficiency in the lessons is also requisite. The prizes consisted of story books, prayer and hymn books and Bibles. Mr. D. H. Curtis received a handsome Bible because of his being the teacher who had served the longest in the school. His record is ten years of faithful service. Several teachers were remembered by their classes. Mrs. Warde and Mr. F. Kelly were the recipients of literary works from the members of the Bible class.

The Superintendent of the School, Mr. David Spence, is deserving of congratulation upon its flourishing condition.

The names of the children who received prizes are as follows—

Roll—Ella Curtis, Ruby Quartermaine, Albert Whittaker, Addie Mitchell, Ethel Packenham, Violet Whittaker, Doris Donaldson, May Curtis, Mable Mackey, Pearl Smith, Annie McLean, Ada Adams, Hazel Crane, Viola Smith, Gladys Whittaker, Willie Colquhoun, Harold Adams, Wilfred Adams, Arthur Lipsett, Ada Norris, Eva Crane, Eunice Curtis. These received a certificate of honorable mention.

First prizes—Ella Curtis, Ruby Quartermaine, Albert Whittaker, Addie Mitchell, Clara Adams, Ethel Packenham, Violet Whittaker, Mabel Sawyer, Tillie Graham, Kathleen Long, Elsie Dawson, Eva Crane, Doris Donaldson, May Curtis, Mabel Mackey, Lillie Scott, Pearl Smith, Annie McLean, Merton Adams, Ada Adams, Hazel Crane, Alice Curtis, Eliza Graham, Willie Colquhoun, Viola Smith, Gladys Whittaker, Lizzie Maniece, Harold Adams, Wilfrid Adams, Arthur Lipsett, Bertie Lipsett, Eunice Curtis, Ada Norris, Guy Quartermaine.

Second prizes—Eva Nesbitt, Percy Crane, Edith Scott, Arthur Packenham, Fanny Long, Retta Gaskin, Joe Graham, Hugh Stewart, Bertie Carpenter, Freddie Long, Greta Packenham, Eva McLean, Maggie Colquhoun, Prudence Long, Georgie Long.

Third prizes—Muriel Curtis, Ethel Sawyer, Willie Butcher, Norman Goulo, Cecil Clitheroe, Helen Denne, Lillian Rogers, Alice Curtis, Katie Leary, Howard Curtis, Alice Neil, Willie McLean, Orlando Waterman, Phylis Dawson, Heber Rogers, Percy Neil, Alex. Butcher, Harold McLean.

DEATH OF MR. ALLEN.

The death occurred this morning of Mr. Michael Allen, at the age of 75 years. He had been ailing for three months and passed away at the home of his sister, Mrs. Patrick O'Neill, 184 Dalhousie-st.

The late Mr. Allen was born in Limerick County, Ireland, and came to this country when 14 years of age, living with his mother in Asphodel township. He resided there for 47 years—until four years ago when he came to town to live with his daughter. He was of a quiet disposition and was highly respected. He was never married. One brother and two sisters are left to mourn his demise. The brother is Martin Allen, of Hudson, South Dakota. Mrs. Wm. Burke, of the same place, and Mrs. Patrick O'Neill, town, are the sisters. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

DIED IN BRANTFORD.

Mr. C. E. Phillips, a former resident of Peterborough, died in Brantford a few days ago. He was a member of Otonabee Lodge, Independent Order of Oddfellows, and the brethren here sent a beautiful floral wreath as a token of their esteem and remembrance. The late C. E. Phillips was also a member of the Woodmen of the World. Friends here will receive with regret the news of his death.

Great January Sale

—WHITEWEAR—

COTTONS, SHEETINGS, PILLOW CASES,
QUILTS, EMBROIDERIES.

For January, the white month, we are offering special inducement in white goods. This store will be overflowing with BARGAINS. It will be a month of unprecedented Bargains.

A FAIR WITNESS

Many women gratify their taste for the beautiful by wearing the finest of lingerie, much of it hand-made, but more from our ready-to-wear stock. Here you will find a full assortment of Night Gowns, Skirts, Drawers and Corset Covers, in beautiful profusion. Our display delights tasteful women.

YOU'LL BE PROUD

Our Whitewear is pretty enough to satisfy almost any one. The garments are well made, some have elaborate trimmings. Some are quite plain. But they are all unusually nice, and are unquestionably destined to be popular. We would like you to see them while the assortment is unbroken. The prices are no less attractive than the goods.

BARGAINS IN GOODS BY THE YARD

To-day we began a great sale of White materials by the yard, for the special benefit of those who make up their own Whitewear, Sheets, Pillow Cases, &c.

Many women make good use of the month of January for this purpose, as the long winter evenings and dull days at home grow monotonous without something to do.

FOR HOME SEWING

Ladies who do their own sewing, or who have it done at home, will be interested in the price reductions we have made in all the articles that make needle work and mending less of labor and care.

White Cottons, Cambrics, Long Cloths, Sheetings, Pillow Cottons, Table Linens, Napkins, Embroideries, Laces and all the other little things that are used in home sewing come in for their share of these price reductions.

We want you to come and see these genuine reductions as it is almost impossible to enumerate them.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

Ladies and Gentlemen.—

The Trades and Labor Council wish through this medium to thank the electors of the town generally for the splendid support accorded the three aldermanic candidates representing this Council in the last municipal election. We feel that the splendid record made by them in this election is sufficient proof of the wisdom displayed in placing them in the field, and we assure their supporters that during the year they will use their efforts to advance such legislation as will benefit all sections of their own, and fill their duties so faithfully that when they come for re-election they will be returned by even larger votes than those which secured their election.

G. W. SLOAN,
President Trades and Labour Council.

DIPHTHERIA.

Watch Children Carefully After an Attack of This Disease.

The sequelae, or the after results of diphtheria, are, I think, more severe and last longer than the after affects of most other diseases. Sometimes a year or more may pass before a patient completely recovers. There are often great paleness and anaemia or lack of blood coloring matter, owing to the severe poisoning.

Diphtheritic paralysis is very common. That of the palate, which is perhaps the most frequent of any, causes difficulty in swallowing, so that fluids instead of going down the throat are regurgitated and returned through the nose. The child should not be scolded for this, as it is not due to carelessness, but to paralysis of the soft palate. This generally passes away in time when the general physical condition becomes better.

The muscles of the eye may also become paralyzed, causing strabismus or squint; the muscles of one side of the body, called hemiplegia; of the legs, called paraplegia, and of the bladder, resulting in retention of urine or difficulty in voiding it.

Sensation of the nerve ends is also frequently changed.

Uniform inflammation of the nerve endings, called multiple neuritis, occurs sometimes.

Paralysis of the heart is not at all infrequent and, as one might suppose, is very dangerous. The normal pulse rate is seventy-two, but in diphtheria it often drops to sixty, fifty or forty or even less, so that heart failure is very apt to occur. The heart remains weak not only throughout the disease, but also for a long while after convalescence is established. Children should therefore be guarded from taking too violent exercise, running, skipping or playing football for a considerable period. The heart should be carefully examined by a physician from time to time.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Her First Stage Speech.

It was at the mature age of three that Mrs. Kendal—then Madge Robertson—made her first appearance on the stage. The theater was the Marylebone, in London, then under the management of her father, and the play was "The Seven Poor Travelers." Her part was that of a blind child, and at the rehearsals it had been impressed upon her that she must keep her eyes shut in order that the audience should think she could not see. "Under the circumstances," says a writer, "it need hardly be said that the first thing she did on going on the stage was to open her eyes as widely as she could. Sitting in the front row of the pit, which [illegible] corresponded to the boxes, 'Baby Madge' saw a favorite servant who had been allowed to go to the theater in order to witness her debut. For the part the child had been provided with new shoes. Proud of their possession and with supreme disregard for the eternal fitness of things, the little girl stalked down to the footlights and, addressing the servant, said, 'Sarah, look at my new shoes!'"

A Friend of Washington.

While many persons have known Lincoln and Grant and a few were acquainted with Washington and Lincoln, so far as I am aware but one person was ever born into this world who knew the triumvirate of uncrowned American kings. That individual was Horace Binney, leader of the Philadelphia bar and among the foremost leaders of the profession throughout the land, with whom I spent a memorable hour in the year 1874. During that delightful interview he stated that when a youth his home was near President Washington's Philadelphia residence, that he had met him almost daily for several years and that he frequently held conversations with the general. Mr. Binney also mentioned the interesting fact that he had been acquainted with every president of the United States up to the time of Grant, during whose second administration he passed away at the great age of ninety-five.—General James Grant Wilson in Cornhill Magazine.

Maddening Silence.

In the rainless interior of Australia there is very little animal or bird life, and what birds there are are voiceless. This absence of singing birds renders the bush almost as silent as the grave. This deathlike silence has a peculiar depressing effect. If two men are camped in the bush and one of them goes to a distant township to get provisions while the other remains behind to look after the camp, the man who is to remain says to his mate, "Don't you be long away; you know what kind of a place this is to live in by yourself." If his mate is away for two or three days the silence gets upon the man's nerves, and in the end he shouts in order to make a noise, and then he is afraid of the sound of his own voice.

The First Printer.

In the language of the high school graduate, "history says" that Johann Gansfleisch of the Gutenberg family was the first to use movable type and on that account should be set down as the "father of printing," but the investigators (not the historians) tell us that the same system was practiced by Lawrence Costar, a Hollander, a long sixteen years previous to Gutenberg's so called discovery, in the year 1422. Nor is this all. We find proof in the sands of the Egyptian and Asian deserts in the shape of stamped brick (some from the identical tower of Babel) that the principles upon which the art ultimately developed existed hundreds of years before the birth of Christ.

A Good Reputation.

A good reputation is a good investment, but the only way of securing a permanent investment of good reputation is by putting a good character at interest. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," but it is often easier to get a character that shall be the basis of a good name. A man may inherit his father's riches, but a man cannot bequeath his character to his favorite son.

"A Soft Answer," Etc.

Mrs. Busybody—Goodby, dear Mrs. Winsom. Before I go I think it is my duty to tell you that your husband was seen in a very questionable place of entertainment last night. Mrs. Winsom—Really! Sorry to hear that! I suppose that is where they went when your husband called for him.

A Moot Point.

"The Mothers' club is to discuss an important question tomorrow afternoon."

"What is that?"

"Is one justified in promising the moon to a baby who cries for it?"

Getting Serious.

You look hopeful. What's going on?"

"The doctors have begun to issue bulletins concerning the condition of that rich uncle of mine who has been hanging on for so long.

Contrasted With Men.

One advantage about a pet dog is that he never smiles sardonically when a girl hits her thumb instead of the tack when she's hanging a picture.—Baltimore American.

Why Do Women Worry

AND THEREBY EXHAUST THE NERVOUS SYSTEM AND RUIN HEALTH?

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The worry habit is an unmitigated evil.

Worry is by far the most frequent cause of nervous disease.

Because of the multitude of household and family cares, and because of the nature of their employment, women are especially liable to give way to worry and anxiety.

The result is wasted nerve force, weakness and disease.

It may be nervous headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, indigestion, discouragement and melancholy, or weakness and irregularities peculiarly feminine.

The only way to restore health and strength is by increasing the nerve force in the body, and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Make a test of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food by noting your increase in weight from week to week while using it.

Notice the improvement in your appetite, and how much better you rest and sleep.

The healthful appearance of women who have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the best proof of what it will do in the way of steadying and strengthening the nerves, rounding out the form and replacing weakness and disease with new strength and spirits.

Mrs. M. A. Sharp, 346 Dublin-st., Peterborough, Ont., states: "For some years I was troubled with indigestion, which developed into nervous dyspepsia, and besides suffering from nervousness, strange dizzy spells would come over me. Hearing of the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I decided to try it. After a pretty thorough test of this medicine, I can say that I never used anything that did me so much good. It seemed to be the very treatment that I needed, and as a result of the use I am quite restored to health."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 0 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

He was overjoyed. He loved nothing so well as money, and to have made twelve hundred pounds by giving a woman's address was a piece of good fortune he had never hoped for. He would have talked of Laura to Sir Ralph, but Sir Ralph gave him no encouragement. He had simply paid him and that was all. After this Sir Ralph went to his banker's and took out letters of credit for a large sum. Then he wrote to his agent in Yorkshire and to his steward at Harewood. He was going abroad for several months, he informed them; and having settled all this he returned to his hotel, intending to make some further arrangements before he drove over to Putney at four o'clock.

When the time came he started, carrying with him a ring, which he meant for Laura's slender hand. He felt a little nervous during the long drive, but this passed off as he approached Putney, and he sprang lightly from the cab when it drew up at the small linen-draper's shop, and inquired for Miss Boyd.

The melancholy-looking shopkeeper looked more melancholy still.

"You have not heard then, sir?" he said, sadly.

"Heard what?" asked Sir Ralph, quickly.

"Miss Boyd's gone, sir—she left this morning; and my wife's in a sad way about losing her, for she was a good lodger, and a nice lady, and times are bad." And he sighed.

"Gone!" echoed Sir Ralph, blankly.

At this moment, however, the landlady, the wife of the shopkeeper, who had been listening at the back parlor door to the foregoing conversation, advanced into the shop and addressed Sir Ralph.

"Oh, sir, you're the gentleman, aren't you, who came to see Miss Boyd last night. And I fear you brought her ill news. She was up nearly all night after you were gone, for I heard her a-walking up and down the room, and groaning like anything. And this morning she said to me she must go."

"And she is gone?" asked Sir Ralph, whose face had grown very pale.

"Clean away, sir. She paid for a week's notice, as agreed, and did everything that's handsome, for she is quite the lady; but she looked just awful, sir. If you're a friend of hers, I think you should see after her, for she had a look on her face I did not like to see. I once saw a poor creature drawn out of the river who had tried to take her life, and her eyes had the same fixed gaze as this poor lady's this morning. Excuse the liberty of me saying this, sir, but I feel that upset and put out, and I wish no harm may come to her."

Sir Ralph did not speak. He grasped the back of a chair which was standing near and leaned heavily on it, and his breath came hard.

"Excuse me, sir, for speaking of it, but I thought perhaps you might be a friend or relation, as the poor lady had no other visitors until you came last night," went on the landlady, looking curiously at the gray pallor which had spread over Sir Ralph's face. Her husband also drew near and looked at the "gentleman" curiously. They both thought something had happened, that somehow or other Sir Ralph was connected with their lodger's departure.

"Can I see her room?" at last Sir Ralph said, slowly and painfully.

"To be sure, sir," answered the landlady. "It's just as she left it, for I've been so upset I've not had time to clear up yet. She took all her books and papers away with her, and when I asked her if there was any hope of her coming back she only shook her head. I fear it's a bad business," added the landlady, with a sigh. "But come along, sir."

Then Sir Ralph followed the landlady up the narrow staircase, as he had done the previous evening, and she showed him into the empty room. He noticed all the signs of a hasty departure. The grate was full of half-burnt torn paper; there were fragments here and there. He looked blankly round, and a strange desolation fell on his heart. Again she had fled from him, and once more all his hopes were dashed low.

"And she left no address?" he forced his pale lips to ask.

"Not a word, sir. She just said 'Good-bye, Mrs. Hare,' that was all. But she forgot no one; not even Jane, the girl, though she's a poor worker, and not much at anything. Still, Miss Boyd put as much as half a crown into her hand, and then she went away; and I'm afraid, somehow, none of us will see her any more."

Sir Ralph asked no further questions. He put a couple of sovereigns into Mrs. Hare's lean hand, and then he also went away. He felt completely cast down and defeated; he had been so sure, and this was the bitter end.

He drove back to his hotel, and found a letter from Laura awaiting him there, and he read it with a shamed heart and an intense feeling of disappointment and pain.

"I entreat you, for God's sake," it began, "not to seek me out any more. I can not bear the pain that I went through last night; I can not bear the struggle with my own heart. I can not, I will not go with you as you wish; and I ask you, as a gentleman, as a man, to leave me alone. To see you utterly unnerves me, and would drive me mad if it went on. I scarcely know what I am writing as I write this, but I ask you again to see me no more. L."

That was all. In these brief ill-written lines Sir Ralph felt Laura had written her last words to him. After this he could not pursue her any more; it would be cowardly to do so. He sat with her letter in his hand staring blankly before him. He had loved her truly; and a great desolation fell over his soul. It seemed to change everything to him. His interest in life was gone.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Sir Ralph went abroad the next day after receiving Laura's letter. He went a moody and disappointed man, and at Suffold George Gifford heard that he had gone alone. Of Laura George heard nothing.

"I sometimes think she is dead," he one day said, gloomily, to Anna Lindsay.

Anna Lindsay only shook her head; she wished Laura was dead with all her heart, but she did not believe it. She believed Sir Ralph Woodland had gone abroad to join her; that he had waited three months before doing so for appearance' sake, but that he was with her now.

But when George Gifford again heard of Sir Ralph's movements he was still alone. He had been traveling from city to city, and then, finally, had started for India. And months and months passed away—six months, nine—and no news was heard at Suffold either of Sir Ralph or Laura Gifford. Then a rumor spread in the little town, a rumor started by the steward at Harewood. Sir Ralph was about to return; the steward had heard from him, and he had written that the house had to be in readiness for him by a certain date.

George Gifford heard this news, and Anna Lindsay heard it, and they both pondered over it in their hearts. George did not speak of it at Red House, but at last Anna Lindsay plucked up her courage and did.

"Have you heard that Sir Ralph Woodland is coming back to Harewood, George?" she said one evening to her cousin.

"Yes, I have heard," he answered, and that was all, and Anna Lindsay dare say no more.

But George, though he was so reticent about it, had made up his mind how he would act. He had determined to seek an interview with Sir Ralph, and try and learn if he knew anything of Laura's fate. And the very day after he heard of Sir Ralph's arrival at Harewood he carried this resolution into effect.

He rode over in the morning to the Hall, and as he entered the avenue he saw Sir Ralph leaning listlessly on one of the park gates smoking a cigarette. Sir Ralph heard the sound of his horse's hoofs, and looked up, and when he saw George a dusky red spread over his sallow face. But he raised his cap, and turned round at once to meet his visitor.

"I wish to speak to you, Sir Ralph," said George, gravely, also touching his hat.

"Certainly," answered Sir Ralph. "Do you wish to speak to me here, or will you go into the house?"

"What I have got to say would be best said indoors," replied George sternly. He was wondering how far this man had wronged him. That he had injured him he knew.

Sir Ralph whistled, and a groom almost immediately appeared.

"Take Mr. Gifford's horse to the stables," said Sir Ralph.

"No," interrupted George; "if he will hold him that will be enough. I will not detain you long."

The two men walked in silence to the house after this, and Sir Ralph closed the door behind them. Then he looked at George.

"I have come to ask you a question, Sir Ralph," said George, with some excitement. "Do you know anything of—my wife?"

"I deeply regret to say I do not," answered Sir Ralph, steadily, and very gravely.

"Have you ever seen her since she left her home?" asked George.

For a moment Sir Ralph hesitated. Then he replied, still slowly and steadily:

"Yes; I have seen her once. I forced my company on her some ten months ago. I bribed a man, in fact, to betray to me where she was."

"And where was she?" asked George, eagerly.

"She was at Putney. I can give you the address. I saw her there one evening against her will, and the next afternoon when I went to see her I found she was gone. And she wrote to me the same day to request that I would never seek her out again; that if I were a gentleman I never would. And I never have."

"And this is the truth?"

"On my word of honor the exact truth."

There was a short silence after this. George Gifford did not doubt Sir Ralph's words; in fact, no one could doubt them. He looked brown, ill, and worn, but there was a steadfast look in his dark eyes as he spoke that was unmistakable.

"And," asked George, after a moment or two, "what was she doing? Did she tell you?"

To be continued.

NO SUBSTITUTE

has yet been found for cod liver oil. There are so-called extracts, wines and cordials of cod liver oil that are said to contain the active principles but not the oil itself. This is absurd on its face. You might as well extract the active principles of wheat and make bread with them. The best form of cod liver oil, that can be digested and assimilated most easily, is Scott's Emulsion.

THE SYNDICATE METHOD

Eastern Ontario Dairymen Are Shown That It Pays.

More Money Was Expended in Improvements and Cheese Product of the Two Months and End of Past Season Showed Marked Advance—Prof. Ruddick Speaks On "The Cool Curing Question"—The Licensing Problem.

Brockville, Jan. 6.—The sessions of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Convention yesterday were attended by an increased number of delegates who evinced keen interest in the proceedings. G. G. Publow, chief inspector for Eastern Ontario, presented an exhaustive report of the past season's result of syndicate work, and addressed the members on the subjects of "Cheese Making," in the course of which he stated that since the adoption of the syndicate method nearly $100,000 had been invested by manufacturers on improvements in cheese factories, and that the cheese product of the two months ending the past season showed a marked improvement over the product of the same season in prior years.

Much to Be Done.

G. A. Putnam, superintendent of farmers' institutes for Ontario, stated while much advance is perceptible in the dairy industry a great deal more remains to be done, for fully 15 per cent. of the factories of the Province are away below the standard that ought to be maintained. He also noticed that 95 per cent. of Ontario's farmers exhibit apathy in getting into touch with agricultural organizations. Farmers needing instruction should be visited in order to get them into touch with progressive methods, and the opportunities of instructors should be enlarged.

A general discussion followed, in which Prof. Robertson suggested that syndicate instructors, on finding conditions showing progress, should give the greatest publicity to the facts.

Farmers Responsible.

In answer to a speaker, who attempted to make it appear that instructors were to blame for encouraging the manufacture of fodder cheese, Prof. Publow said that the persons responsible are the farmers who produce the milk. Instructors do not go out until after May 1 of each year. He also remarked that the greatest percentage of rejected and poor cheese put upon the market at Montreal came from Brockville district. One great reason for this is the existence of many small, poorly equipped factories.

Mr. Breese of Delta, advocated the grading of cheese in order that the best factories and best makers may obtain the best prices.

Prof. Ruddick Speaks.

The most important address at the afternoon session was delivered by Prof. Ruddick, chief of the dairy division, Ottawa, on "The Cool Curing Question." He recommended a temperature of 60 degrees as the best for the curing of cheese, and pointed out that the saving effected by a cool curing room was about 1 lb. per box in the season. He gave results of the Government Cool Curing Stations, and figured out that to factories patronizing the Brockville Station the past year there was a profit of about $1,000.

R. M. Ballantyne, A. W. Grant, A. Hodgson, and others, representing the Montreal Merchants' Produce Association, discussed the cheese question in its various aspects.

Dr. Connell, Kingston; Prof. Dean, Guelph; Hon. John Gould, Ohio; C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. Sydney Fisher, Ottawa, took part in the evening exercises. A committee appointed to report upon the advisability of licensing cheese factories recommended that the matter be postponed for another year, which was adopted.

The convention closes to-day.

Killed By a Train.

Cornwall, Jan. 6.—The already long list of railway accidents in the vicinity of Moose Creek, was increased on Tuesday when Regis Vimenauve, 65 years of age, was struck by the east-bound express at the village crossing. The unfortunate gentleman apparently did not hear the express until too late. He was picked up at a distance of 40 yards from the crossing, death being instantaneous.

Baby Eczema

"My daughter was afflicted with eczema when from three weeks old. Her entire face and head were raw, and she was in awful distress. When doctors failed we began the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which has entirely cured her and she has never had the least symptom of the trouble since."—Mr. Patrick Sullivan, Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont.

ROJESTVENSKY'S FLAGSHIP FOUNDERS

Russian Battleship Knias Souvaroff Strikes a Rock.

One of the Second Pacific Squadron Escapes From the Japanese—48,000 Russians Surrendered At Port Arthur, and There Are in Addition 16,000 Sick and Wounded—Court Martial Will Try Gen. Stoessel.

Paris, Jan. 6.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Paris edition of The New York Herald telegraphs that Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's flagship, the battleship Knias Souvaroff, has struck a rock and foundered.

The latest report from Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron was contained in a despatch dated Tamatave, Island of Madagascar, Jan. 2, in which it was stated that the Vice-Admiral's division of the Russian second Pacific squadron, consisting of five battleships, three cruisers, two transports and a hospital ship, had anchored on that day in the roadstead of Sainte Marie, an island on the east coast.

The Knias Souvaroff was built at St. Petersburg in 1902, and was of 13,516 tons displacement. Her length was 367½ feet, her beam 76 feet, her draught 26 feet, and indicated horse power 16,000. Her armament was of the Russian Krupp pattern and consisted of four 12-inch, 12 6-inch, 20 3-inch, 20 3-pounder and six 1-pounder guns. She had six torpedo tubes. Her complement of men was 740.

St. Petersburg Uninformed.

London, Jan. 6.—There is no confirmation here of the report from St. Petersburg of a disaster to the Russian battleship Knias Souvaroff. According to a despatch to The Daily Mail from Mahe, one of the Seychelle Islands (about 1,000 miles east of Zanzibar), Jan. 5, both divisions of the Russian second Pacific squadron were proceeding in the direction of Diego Suarez. Merchantmen who passed Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's division report that the squadron keeps good stations and appears to manoeuvre well.

Japs Lost 80,000.

Che Foo, Jan. 6.—The statement of the censored despatches from correspondents with Gen. Nogi's army that the Japanese lost only 50,000 men in taking the fortress is declared to be absurd by Russian naval officers here. Their lowest estimate, they say, based both on personal observation and on stories told by the prisoners, is that the Japanese lost 80,000.

Stoessel Meets Nogi.

Headquarters of Third Japanese Army, Jan. 5, via Fusan.—A meeting between Gen. Stoessel and Gen. Nogi took place yesterday at Shushi village. The hour fixed for the meeting was noon, but owing to a misunderstanding of time, Gen. Stoessel arrived at 10.40 o'clock, and was received by a lieutenant. General Stoessel remained at Plum Tree cottage until 11 o'clock, when General Nogi arrived with his staff. The two generals met in a room of the cottage, and after an exchange of greetings held a long conference. When they emerged from the cottage the two generals shook hands and General Stoessel mounted his horse and rode away.

To Fortify the Port.

Che Foo, Jan. 6.—Advices from Japanese sources say that the condition of Port Arthur is chaotic, but that Generals Nogi and Stoessel are rapidly systemizing affairs there. Gen. Nogi is prepared to put a horde of Chinese coolies at work in the fortifying of Port Arthur immediately the Russians are disposed of.

Marshalled Thursday.

London, Jan. 6.—Special despatches from Tokio say that the Port Arthur garrison was marshaled at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at Yahutsui, in accordance with the terms of the supplementary agreement.

48,000 RUSSIANS SURRENDERED.

There Are Also About 16,000 Sick and Wounded in Garrison.

Tokio, Jan. 6.—A report received yesterday from Gen. Nogi's headquarters largely increases the figures of the surrendered garrison, and intimates that the force handed over to the Japanese at Port Arthur will be 32,000, exclusive of 15,000 or 16,000 sick and wounded, making a rough total of 48,000.

The report is as follows:

As previously reported, the transfer of objects mentioned in article 2 of the capitulation compact took place on Jan. 4, and the transfer of the forts and batteries has been completed.

The prisoners will be assembled at the place appointed on Jan. 5, but the investigation relating to these prisoners is so complicated that the result cannot be reported at present.

Reports received up to date are as follows:

Generals	8
Admirals	4
Colonels and majors	57
Captains and commanders	100
Army captains and lieutenants	531
Naval lieutenants and officials	200
Army officials	99
Surgeons	109
Rank and file of army	22,434
Rank and file of navy	4,500
Army non-combatants	3,645
Naval non-combatants	620
Total	32,307

Besides these there are about 15,000 or 16,000 sick and wounded in the hospitals.

The volunteers are chiefly included in the list of non-combatants.

One hundred saddle horses and 1,870 draft horses were surrendered.

To Court Martial Stoessel.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 6.—Few incidents of the whole war have aroused more bitter criticism than the blunt announcement officially issued by the general staff that Gen. Stoessel will have to come home to stand court-martial for surrendering the fortress of Port Arthur. The Novoe Vremya, despite the example made by the suspension of The Russ Wednesday, says:

"By all means, let us have a court-martial and make it, if possible, severe. The cruel judge will, perhaps, deal leniently with those who have given their blood and lives for their country. Perhaps, also, the court will determine why a fortress known to be threatened with blockade is not supplied with necessary food, and munitions, to enable it to hold out. Perhaps such a court will bring to light many dark, hidden things and expose the creeping, underground enemies of Russia who are infinitely more dangerous to the nation than the foe who fights in the open."

Civil Officials Freed.

Tokio, Jan. 6.—A Port Arthur supplementary agreement published yesterday, provides for the appointment of commissioners to superintend the enforcement of the provisions in the capitulation compact and deals with the treatment of officers and men. The Commissioners meet at noon on Tuesday next.

Civil officials not connected with the army or navy shall follow the officers. Those who have not served as volunteers shall be released without parole.

Persons who are necessary to effect the transfer of the fortress buildings, warships, etc., must wear an emblem given by the Japanese authorities.

Private property carried by officers and officials shall be subjected to inspection, and must be limited in weight.

The agreement further provides for the transfer of hospitals, the immunity of non-combatants, their freedom of action, and the removal of private property.

It promises to facilitate the movement of families of officers and officials, but reserves the right of removal of objectionable persons and the release of Japanese prisoners.

CALLED BACK.

Second Pacific Squadron Will Return to European Waters.

London, Jan. 6.—The most important effect of the fall of Port Arthur on the general military situation in the Far East became apparent yesterday in the decision of Russia to recall her second Pacific squadron. A despatch from St. Petersburg announces that the squadron will return to European waters.

The Emperor of Russia has returned to Tsarskoe-Selo from Minsk, and it is reported that an extraordinary council is to be held, at which the Empire's whole situation is to be reviewed, both as relates to the war and present internal affairs. The revolutionary leaders are apparently taking every advantage of the Government's position to compel the summoning of a national assembly, while the press is criticising bureaucracy with increasing savageness and boldness.

In fact, yesterday's despatches indicate that the internal situation is so grave that the conclusion of peace with Japan may be compelled in order to deal with it. The decision of the general staff, that Stoessel must return and face a court-martial for surrendering Port Arthur, even though it is a form compelled by army regulations, is also serving as a text for bitter criticism by the Russian papers.

British Ambassador's Denial.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 6.—Sir Charles Hardinge, the English Ambassador, has taken the unusual course of calling Foreign Minister Lamsdorff's attention to the statements of The Novoe Vremya, Jan. 3, to the effect that it had authoritative news that British warships were following Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron and reporting its disposition and movements to Tokio from each cable port reached, which the Ambassador declared to be false. Sir Charles particularly denied the imputation that British warships were committing breaches of neutrality by communicating Admiral Rojestvensky's movements to Japanese agents.

The Nigretia Condemned.

Nagasaki, Jan. 6.—The British steamer Nigretia has been condemned as a prize.

Clearing Away the Mines.

Tokio, Jan. 6.—The work of clearing away the mines in Port Arthur harbor commenced as soon as the Russian charts provided for in the capitulation agreement were delivered to the Japanese. The foreign attaches entered the fortress Wednesday.

Offer of Assistance Refused.

Wei-Hai-Wei, Jan. 6.—The first-class British cruiser Andromeda, which sailed from here Wednesday morning for Port Arthur with hospital stores and surgeons to assist the sick and wounded, returned here yesterday, not having been allowed to make a landing at Port Arthur. The cruiser proceeded to a small bay ten miles north of Port Arthur, where she met with some Japanese. The latter refused all offer of assistance or stores of any kind and declined to allow the ship's officers to approach closer, the reason given being the presence of unlocated mines.

Stabbing Case At Sudbury.

Sudbury, Jan. 6.—An Italian named Guiseppe Silvestre stabbed Antonio Domario, another Italian, here Wednesday night. Domario died one hour afterwards. Silvestre is in custody. Several Italians were eye-witnesses of the crime. The deed was committed in an alleyway adjoining the Italian boarding-house owned by a Greek named Christako.

Killed in Runaway.

Kingston, Jan. 6.—Dr. N. F. Saidler, a leading Conservative of Odessa, is dead as a result of a runaway accident. He was driving, with his wife, when his horse threw him out against the ridge pole of a bridge.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock at the city market were large, 99 car loads, composed of 1256 cattle, 1600 hogs, 1746 sheep and lambs, with about 75 calves.

There were few shipping cattle offered in comparison with the receipts. Prices for exporters ranged from $4.40 to $4.90 for steers; bulls sold from $1.50 to $4.25, but few brought the latter figure.

Picked lots of choice butchers' heifers, 1150 lbs. each, of which there were few offered, sold at $4.30 to $4.40. McDonald & Maybee sold 1 lot of 4 at $4.40, and one lot of 10 at $4.35 and these were equal in quality to best exporters. The bulk of the butchers' cattle sold from $3.25 to $3.90 per cwt., as will be seen by the sales quoted. Good butcher cows, $3.25 to $3.70; common cows, at $2.50 to $2.70; canners, at $2 to $2.50.

Deliveries of feeders were larger than for sometime. Feeders of good quality, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, sold at $3.50 to $4; feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.60; stockers, 500 to 700 lbs. each, of good quality, are worth $3 to $3.25 per cwt.; inferior and off colors, $2 to $2.50 per cwt.

There were about 40 milch cows and springers, of which there were too many of the common to medium class. Prices ranged from $25 for inferior to $30 for common; $35 to $45 for medium to fair and $50 to $54 for the best. But few brought the latter price.

Deliveries of calves were larger than for some time, but prices remained strong for the best, ranging from $2.50 for inferior, $4.50 for common to medium, and $5 to $6.50 for good to choice and $8 per cwt. was paid for an extra choice quality calf. But the bulk sold from $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

There was a fair run, about 1800. Prices were firmer. Sheep sold as follows: Export ewes, $4.25 to $4.50; bucks, at $3 to $3.25; lambs, sold at $5.25 to $6 per cwt., and one choice picked lot of ewes and wethers brought a little more, as will be seen by our sales quoted.

Mr. Harris bought 1600 hogs on Wednesday and Thursday at $4.90 for selects and $4.65 for lights and fats, fed and watered.

Irish Stock Raisers Alarmed.

London, Jan. 6.—(C. A. P.)—The growing agitation for the admission of Canadian store cattle to Great Britain is viewed with alarm by the Irish stock raisers who interpret it as involving the total ruination of their industry. The agitation against the removal of the embargo is growing day by day. Special stress is laid on Lord Onslow's former declaration that Ireland is supplying the deficiency caused by the act of 1896, and that now the price of store cattle is lower than the days of free imports. William Field, M.P. (Nationalist), is championing the case of those opposed to the admission.

Need Canada's Seed Wheat.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 6.—Secretary Shaw will within a few days send a letter to Congress, requesting legislation admitting seed wheat grown in Canada into the United States free of duty. This condition is brought about by a scarcity of hard wheat for seed purposes in the United States.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and the pleasures of life. If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous year's, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

DOUBT IN DEATH OF GOODFELLOW

Body of Former Peterborough Man is Held.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE INQUIRY

Deceased Was Out of Bed When His Temperature Was 103 and His Pulse 130 -- Interment Was to Have Taken Place Here.

The funeral of the late Wallis H. Goodfellow, a clerk in the G.T.R. office, Toronto, and who formerly lived in Peterborough, was to have taken place here today, but has been postponed by Coroner J. M. Cotton, of Toronto, who has issued a warrant for an inquest. The Mail and Empire says:—

"Coroner Cotton will open an inquest at No. 3 Police Station this afternoon to determine the cause and fix the responsibility for the death of the late Wallis Goodfellow, a young man who lived at 61 1-2 Vanauley street, and who died while under treatment by Christian Scientists. The young man, who was married only a month ago, was employed as a clerk in the G.T.R. freight offices, and took sick shortly before Christmas. His parents, being Christian Scientists, removed their son to their house, No. 61. The other clerks in the G.T.R. freight offices related the facts of the case to Dr. Riordan, and he called on Goodfellow on December 24. The doctor found that the young man was suffering from typhoid fever and congestion of the lungs. Dr. Riordan stopped the hemorrhage of the lungs and advised that Goodfellow be removed to one of the hospitals, as he was in a very low condition. Dr. Riordan called again the next day and found that none of his instructions had been followed. No medicine had been purchased and the patient was getting worse. On Dec. 27th Dr. Riordan again visited the house, and was met at the door by Goodfellow's parents who stated that they would not allow the doctor to see their son. He insisted, however, and found the young man down stairs, dressed in his everyday clothes, with a temperature of 103 and a pulse of 130. His parents said Goodfellow was doing nicely and did not need a doctor. Dr. Riordan then stated that the young man would certainly die if he was not given medical attention. He then wrote to the Crown Attorney, giving the facts of the case and advising that some action be taken. He then saw Mrs. Goodfellow and related the facts of the case to her, and told her that her husband was going to die. The patient's parents then enquired if they could get another doctor, and Dr. Riordan advised them to call Dr. Cotton, saying that he was a coroner and would soon be needed. Dr. Riordan heard no more of the case till yesterday when Mrs. Goodfellow came to him and told him that her husband had died yesterday morning. Chief Coroner Johnson was notified and the issuing of a warrant for the inquest followed.

When seen last evening Mrs. Goodfellow was almost overcome with grief. She stated that when her husband took sick she wanted to keep him in his own house, but his parents insisted upon removing him to their house and having him treated by Christian Scientists. Mrs. Goodfellow did not know the names of those who treated her husband, but thought they were Mrs. Grant and one or two others. She was of the opinion that a thorough investigation should be made, and had asked that the inquest be held.

Neither of the young man's parents would talk concerning the death of their son.

Arrangements have been made to ship the body to Peterborough for burial.

MR. LANGFELDT'S CLASSES.

TWO FAST GAMES IN CITY LEAGUE

Karnots Won From the Colonials by 9 to 8.

THE T. A. S. AGAIN DEFEATED

Good Crowd and Fast Hockey—Colonials Show Unexpected Strength—Karnots Finish Strong in the Second Game.

A large crowd saw two warmly contested and well played games of hockey at the Brock-st. rink last evening. They were the third in the City League series and were by far the best exhibitions seen in the league so far. The four strongest teams of the league were on the ice, and the spectators were certainly given their money's worth of fast hockey. In the first contest the Farriers defeated the T.A.S. after a hard game by 5—2, the half time score being 2—1 in their favor. It was a fast game, both sides playing clean hockey. The second game was an exciting struggle with a ding-dong finish. The Colonials led at half-time by 3—2 and maintained their lead for the greater part of the second half, when the Karnots once more demonstrated their ability to finish strong, and banged in four goals in the last five minutes, winning out by 6—3.

THE FIRST GAME.

The Farriers gathered in the first goal by good fast hockey. They have a dangerously speedy and well balanced team, which will bear watching. The forwards are heavy but fast, good stick handlers and play a very effective combination game. The defence is like a stone wall at critical moments. Thornton in goal turned aside many a well aimed shot. Squires and Blade at point and cover blocked splendidly and relieved well. Smith played a great game at right wing. He was always in his place and his shooting was deadly. Long at rover worked hard all the way through. The team deserved to win the game.

The T.A.S. put up a game fight all through, but could not win out. The forward line played well individually, but combination was badly lacking. They bunched too much to play an effective game. Callaghan at rover was the pick of the bunch and never let up. McGrath worked hard at left wing. The defence was fairly strong. McFadden got in the road of some hot ones. He had hard luck with a shot from Nicholls.

Rollie Glover refereed the game to perfection. He has an eagle eye for off-sides, and any attempt to rough it was nipped in the bud.

The teams faced each other as follows:—

Farriers.		T.A.S.
	Goal
Thornton		McFadden
	Point.
Squires		Dorris
	Coverpoint.
Blade		Foley
	Rover.
H. Long		Callaghan
	Centre
Simpson		Deforge
	Right Wing
Smith		McGrath
	Left Wing
Nicholls		Rose

The Farriers started with a rush. Within one minute Long drew a pass from Nicholls and whistled one past McFadden. Score 1—0.

Nicholls went off for slashing. Playing six men against seven the Farriers still pressed, and Long rammed in another from a scrimmage in two minutes. Score 2—0.

Blade went off for tripping and a moment later Deforge followed for too free use of his body. Long was sent to the boards for slashing. The T.A.S. wakened up and McGrath scored on a pass from the side. Score 2—1. Half time was called soon after.

Within the first minute of play in the second half Smith made a nice dash along the boards and scored with a pretty shot. Score 3—1.

T.A.S. began to press and Thornton turned aside some good ones. Finally Deforge scored on a pass from McGrath. Score 3—2.

Simpson was hit over the eye and went off, the T.A.S. dropping Foley. Nicholls rushed up the side and shot from quarter way. McFadden attempted to slash the puck away, but the elusive rubber glided into the net. Score 4—2.

A moment after Nicholls again scored on a pretty rush and shot. Score 5—2. This ended the scoring.

THE SECOND GAME.

The Karnots won the second contest by 6—3, although they had to work hard for all they got. The Colonials showed unexpected strength and lead for the greater part of the game, but couldn't stand the pace.

The Karnots, although a little late in starting, played great hockey. They are very fast and clever and will take a lot of beating. The defence is strong and the forwards speedy and great shots and stick handlers. Campbell at rover was the star of the defence. He is very fast and uncorked some beautiful dashes last evening. Dormer blocked and lifted well. It would be unfair to individualize any of the forwards. All played good hockey and are fast enough to make any defence in the league uncomfortable. Gilman and Grose on the wings did some great shooting. Mulhern at centre was always in his place and nicked in nicely with the rest of the forwards in combination play.

The Colonials' defence was the strongest part of the team. They put up a regular Port Arthur resistance, especially during the first half. Clancy in goal played a great game, and it is owing to his fine work that the Karnots' score was not greater. He turned aside shot after shot, and most of the goals scored on him were from scrimmages.

The forwards, with the exception of Foley, were not extraordinarily fast, although they checked hard. Foley was easily the star and did the bulk of the work.

W. Meagher refereed to the satisfaction of both teams. His duties were light, as the players for the most part played clean hockey.

The teams were as follows:—

Karnots.		Colonials.
	Goal
Kingscote		Clancy
	Point
Dormer		Thompson
	Coverpoint
Campbell		Overend
	Rover
O'Dette		Frost
	Centre
Mulhern		Rouille
	Right Wing
Grose		Foley
	Left Wing
Gilman		Callaghan

The Colonials had the advantage at the start. Almost before the crowd knew the game had started Foley had scored on a nice rush. Score 1—0.

A combined rush soon after netted another, Callaghan doing the trick. Score 2—0.

The Karnots woke up and pressed matters. Clancy was always in the way for some time. Finally Grose shoved one in from a scrimmage. Score 2—1.

A moment later Grose repeated the trick, tieing the score by a shot from a mix-up. Score 2—2.

The Colonials were not to be denied and the forwards broke away in a beautiful rush, Frost scoring on a pass from Callaghan. Score 3—2. Half time.

The Karnots rushed matters from the beginning of the second half, but could not score for some time. The Colonial forwards were all in, only getting a couple of shots during the half. Clancy made a Stoessel defence and stopped shot after shot. Finally after several shots had been blocked, Mulhern scored from a mix-up. Score 3—3.

A moment later he again scored on a pass from Gilman. Score 4—3.

The Colonial defence "blew up" and the Karnots broke through at will. Grose's shot was stopped, but O'Dette batted the rubber through. Score 5—3.

Grose scored the last on a nice shot from the side. Final score Karnots, 6; Colonials, 3.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

A report of the hockey match between the office staff and mill of the American Cereal Co. is held over until to-morrow. The score was office 5, mill 4.

The Karnots will play the Lindsay Collegiate Institute in Lindsay the latter part of next week.

There has been very little said in reference to the Port Perry team, but it is reported that they can travel faster than a great many have been figuring on, and that they will certainly be heard from.—Lindsay Post.

The following team will represent Peterborough in the game with Port Perry to-night.

Goal—Wasson.
Point—Glover.
Cover Point—Crowley.
Rover—Cavanah.
Centre—Morgan.
Right Wing—Parnell.

This is the strongest team the locals have had on the ice this season. Graham and Morgan have been under the weather for a day or two, but will figure in the game to-night.

W. E. Irving, of Lindsay, will referee the contest.

The Young Nationals will play an exhibition game to-morrow afternoon with the Riversides.

The executive of the City League will meet to-morrow afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at the T.A.S. rooms. Business of importance is to be discussed and all members are asked to be on hand.

The City League standing to date is as follows:—

	Won.	Lost.	To play
Karnots	2	0	3
Farriers	2	0	3
Colonials	1	1	3
T.A.S.	1	2	2
Verniers	0	1	4
Earl Greys	0	2	3

The juniors had a great work out out last night and will be in the pink of condition for next Wednesday's game with Belleville.

The West Ends and Beavers meet to-night at the Brock-st. rink after the Peterborough-Port Perry game.

The biggest crowd of the season will be at the rink this evening to see the opening of the intermediate O.H.A. series. The ice is lightning fast and a great game may be looked for. Port Perry have the reputation of being a fast, well balanced team.

Port Perry will have the following line-up in to-night's game.

Goal—Van Sinclair.
Point—Carnegie.
Cover Point—Powers.
Rover—Dennison.
Centre—Jamieson.
Right Wing—Stewart.
Left Wing—Whitaker.

RACING.

The Lindsay Trotting Association purpose holding a winter meet on the agricultural park track on Monday and Tuesday, January 16th and 17th. There will be two races each day for purses of $150 in each event.

BOBCAYGEON RACES.

The first winter races of the Bobcaygeon Trotting Association were held on Monday and created a good deal of interest. There was only one race with four contestants. In its first heat Dr. Vrooman's Malvoleo met with an accident when he looked like a winner. Following is the result:—Daisy Garlick, 1st; Kelly's Staunton Boy, 2nd; Dr. Vrooman's Malvoleo, 3rd; A. Wilson's Minnie M., 4th.

THE TURF.

The Rice Lake races will take place at Bewdley on the 28th and 29th of January, when attractive purses will be offered. A splendid mile track has already been laid out and Capt. Nixon, of Port Hope, is doing his best to make every arrangement for the success of the races.

The Port Hope Times says:— Mr. Lewis Bennett's famous race horse, Looking Glass, together with Birdie Hayes, belonging to Mr. N. Gordon, left yesterday morning for Newmarket where they will enter the races to be held to-day and to-morrow. These two horses are among the best that will be on the ice this winter. They will be entered in the races at Port Perry, Peterboro, Picton, Belleville and will wind up at the eight days meeting at Ottawa, which are the largest ice races in the world and where there is $8000 in purses.

THE RING AND MAT.

One of the most interesting bouts ever pulled off in the town will be seen at Bradburn's opera house Saturday evening, January 7th, when the following men clash:—Leon McDonnell, of Toronto, will wrestle Bob Long, of Peterborough, best two out of three falls, at 120 pounds. Two well known local Peterborough boys will wrestle for the 125 pound championship of Peterborough, best two out of three falls. Roy Sabin, the Hamilton Jew, who wrestles Geo. Gauthier, the Frenchman, of Peterborough, at 160 pounds, is one of Tobin's, Hamilton, pupils. He is training very hard for this contest, and will very likely arrive in Peterborough early, where he will put on the finishing touches. This should prove a rattling good wrestling match. Abe Harris, who boxes D. Christie, will be remembered for his good showing against Dickson, who he easily defeated at the last show. This should prove an interesting bout as Christie is the best 115 pound man in Toronto. This bout will last eight rounds. The main bout of the evening will be between Pete Barry, Toronto, and J. Edwards, Buffalo, N. Y., 15 rounds at 122 pounds. Edwards is one of the best 122 pound men in Buffalo, who has a long list of knock-outs to his credit and is considered a dangerous proposition as he starts to rush the fighting from the sound of the gong till it is over. In Barry he will meet a man who will be there to meet his rushes and land punch for punch. Barry has arrived in Peterborough and finished up his training at the Oriental gym. There will be lots of music.

BASKETBALL.

The feature of tomorrow night at the Y.M.C.A. will be the basketball league games between the Athletics and Class Team and the Harriers and Brownies. The First Aid class will meet at seven o'clock to-morrow evening, when Dr. Scott will give a lecture. There is an admission of ten cents to the basketball games.

CURLING.

The following is the schedule for to-night:—

Thompson vs. Greer.
Matthews vs Morrow.
Aylmer vs Conaul.
Rutherford vs. Edwards.
Medd vs Waddell.

Two rinks of Lakefield curlers are also expected for to-night.

How to Cleanse the System.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of scientific study of the effects of extracts of certain roots and herbs upon the digestive organs. Their use has demonstrated in many instances that they regulate the action of the Liver and the Kidneys, purify the blood, and carry off all morbid accumulations from the system. They are easy to take, and their action is mild and beneficial.

NEW BUSINESS FIRM.

Tenice Guerin & Co. Buy Out Goselin Bros—Ready for Big Trade.

The meat business of Goselin Bros, 243 George-st., has been puchased by Messrs. Tenice Guerin and W. R. Tetley, who will conduct the same under the name of Tenice Guerin & Co. Mr. Guerin has been 35 years in the meat business and thoroughly understands the varied wants of the public. He was for 23 years with the Winch Company, and also for some time with the Matthews Company.

The announcement of the new firm appears in to-day's Review. They will keep a large, fresh and well selected stock, and the prospects for Guerin & Co. doing a large trade are exceptionally bright.

FIRE IN LAKEFIELD.

What came very near being a serious fire in Lakefield occurred yesterday. The roof of Moore's saw-mill was discovered to be ablaze, a spark from the smoke stack evidently having started the mischief. The Fire Brigade was called out, but men belonging to the mill had climbed to the roof and there tackled the flames. It was a dangerous fight, but the application of several pails of water from the river was effective. A hole several feet square was burnt in the roof of the mill.

HOW YOUNG JAMES DUVAL WAS SHOT

and my uncle told me to always carry it half-cocked. It was loaded before I went out of the house. I think now it was full-cocked, because I do not see how it could have gone off. James was about 15 or 16 yards from me when he was shot. The accident occurred about 9 o'clock in the morning.

THE CONSTABLES STORY

County Constable Cochrane, sworn said—I went to this boy's home yesterday and got him to show me where he went Saturday morning. He said the trigger must have caught in his trouser leg. I pointed out to him that if the rifle had gone off in that position the ball would have gone into the swamp. John was standing at about four feet below the point where James stood. If he had stood where the boy says he stood, the ball would have struck the ground within four feet of that position.

The inquest was adjourned until next Wednesday at 2 o'clock when further evidence will be taken into consideration.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—Typographical Union, No. 248, will hold its annual banquet at Long's Palm Gardens tomorrow night.

—Mr. John King slipped on the ice on Hunter street to-day at noon and fell heavily to the ground, badly cutting his head. He was able to walk home.

—The annual Sunday school entertainment of St. John's Church Sunday school will take place this evening in the school house. A good programme has been prepared. Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, the efficient Superintendent, will preside.

—A limited number of invitations are out for the Karnot Hockey Club At Home on Tuesday evening, January 10th. Music will be provided by Misses McCabe and Quinn. Price for gentlemen, 50 cents. Dancing from 8 till 12 o'clock.

—The Water Commissioners held their first meeting of the year yesterday afternoon. There were present Messrs. W. H. Hill, W. H. Moore and T. F. Matthews. Mr. Matthews was re-elected chairman of the Board for the coming year.

Mr. Fred E. Darcy and Miss Mary Southworth were united in marriage at the residence of Rev. Dr. Torrance.

The gentlemen who went to Cordova Thursday to officiate at the inquest state that there is at present nothing being done in connection with the actual operation of the gold mine. Several men are employed, however, in keeping the mine clear of water, and in preserving good repair. It is expected that the mine will begin operations in the spring.

—A Montreal despatch says:—The Rev. Messrs. Hunter and Crossley, the well-known Canadian evangelists were in Montreal this week, en route to Truro, Nova Scotia, where they will open union evangelistic meetings on Sunday. The three Presbyterian churches, the three Baptist, the two Methodist and the Congregational churches, will join in the services, which will continue throughout January. Messrs. Hunter and Crossley are on the 21st year of their evangelistic work and they look as young and vigorous, and as capable of prolonged effort, as they did ten years ago. They are fresh from a series of very successful meetings in Collingwood, Hamilton and Ridgetown. After the Truro meetings they go to Chicago, where they have been asked to remain for three months.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

MOTHER CARED NOT FOR LAW

Evidence Taken in the Toronto Christian Science Case.

CHRIST'S PEOPLE PUNISHED.

Remarkable Statement Given by Mrs. Goodfellow Sr—Evidence Given by Deceased's Mother-in-law.

Toronto, Jan. 7.—An inquest upon the remains of Wallace H. Goodfellow was begun at J. D. McGill's undertaking rooms yesterday afternoon by Coroner J. M. Cotton and a jury. After taking the evidence of Mrs. Hannah Taylor, mother-in-law of deceased, an adjournment was made to No. 3 police station on Thursday next at 8 p. m. In the course of her evidence Mrs. Taylor swore:

His mother said Brunderwitt, Christian Scientist, had taken the case in hand, and was treating it. She spoke to him about medicine and left saying: "Remember if anything happens Wallace Goodfellow I will push it to the uttermost." Dr. Rierdan had said that the case was one of typhoid, and she warned both the mother and Brunderwitt that they were doing wrong. Mrs. Goodfellow, sr., said: "I don't care for the law. Christ's people were punished before, and I don't care a bit." She warned both of them that she would hold them responsible.

The young widow said she would prefer to give her evidence at the adjourned inquest on Thursday night.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., has been retained by Mrs. Goodfellow, mother of Wallace, as there is a possibility of the Christian Scientists who had the case in hand being charged with manslaughter. He was not present at the inquest yesterday.

Sues For $41,000.

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—Through her Ottawa solicitors, the widow and children of the late Simon Howard of Eganville, have entered an action against the W. R. Brock Company, Limited, of Toronto, to recover the sum of $41,000. The plaintiff, Mrs. Howard, claims that this amount was loaned to Brock & Co. by her late husband. She also demands an account of all dealings between the late Mr. Howard and the company. The case promises to be a very interesting one, and will probably be heard at the January sittings of the assizes, which open Monday next.

PROBABILITIES.

Light snow falls to-day, becoming colder. Sunday, fair and quite cold.

Remember the Jessie Alexander concert in Opera House Tuesday, Jan. 10th. Plan open at Ormond & Walsh's Monday, at 10 a.m.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

—The Lakefield skating rink will be opened for the season this evening.

—For the benefit of members of the Y.M.C.A. Association, tickets for the Alexander-Field concert can be had at the office of the Y.M.C.A.

—Remember the Jessie Alexander concert, in the Opera House, Tuesday, January 10th. Plan opens at Ormond & Walsh's, Monday, at 10 a.m.

—Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen, B.A, will be the speaker at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday at 4 p.m. His subject will be "A Man's Purpose." Miss Florence C. Hall will sing.

—Two bus loads of young people drove down to Peterborough on Wednesday evening and spent a few pleasant social hours at the home of Mr. Wm. Sherwood.—Lakefield News.

—At a meeting of the congregation of Bethany Tabernacle Thursday evening the year's reports from the different departments of work were presented. The records showed that the year's progress had been in every way most satisfactory.

—The Warsaw Methodist Sunday School held their annual entertainment on Monday evening, Dec. 26th, at which the small children sang a couple of Christmas choruses, and Mr. Jas. Stubbs, of Peterborough, with his phonograph and views filled in the time between. The church was well filled. The receipts amounted $55.30.

—According to the statistical report of the traffic through the canal at the "Soo" this year's December traffic is the greatest on record. It is 970,865, against 497,189 last year, an increase of 413,6[illegible] net tons. The total for the year was 31,515,166, a decrease from last year of 3,129,331. The total tonnage through the Michigan Canal was 26,517,916, and through the Canadian Canal 5,028,190. There were 16,120 vessel passages as against 18,196 last year.

—A romance of Ontario's new mining district in the Temiskaming region was revealed in a statement made by Mr. T. W. Gibson, Director of the Bureau of Mines. The owners of the silver mines near Haileybury, he said, were beginning to get returns from their work. They recently shipped four carloads of ore to New York, and the prices realized were satisfactory. One carload of silver cobalt ore, shipped by Mr. W. G. Trethewey, consisting of about 20 tons, realized $37,500, or about one dollar a pound.

—Lakefield News—On Thursday of last week a serious accident took place at the Cement Works. Guisippe Dinoble, a young Italian about nineteen years of age, was stooping under a rapidly revolving belt, when the end of one of the bolts used to fasten the belt together, struck him on the back of the head, knocking him down and rendering him unconscious. Medical aid was summoned and on examination it was found that his skull was fractured. The injured man was removed to St. Joseph's hospital, and at latest accounts he is getting along as well as can be expected.

—A petition has been presented to the Manitoba Legislature asking for the incorporation of the Independent Telephone Company of Canada. The promoters of this company, it has been learned, are residents of Minneapolis and the state of Ohio, and it is their purpose to establish in Winnipeg and in towns throughout the province the dial system of telephones, which does away with the central exchange, each subscriber finding and calling the person to whom he wishes to speak, by simply making connection by a system of figures and hands on a dial which is fixed on each phone.

—The circulation of United States money in Canada has again become the subject of a general newspaper discussion, from which it is evident that any drastic measures to prevent it would have slight support. The chief complaint is in connection with the silver coins. The banks of their own accord and at their own expense, ship back large amounts in U. S. bills in connection with their exchange operations. They find the express charges on silver too heavy, however, and, it is understood, have asked that the Government, which loses through its own coinage being displaced, shall pay the expense of sending back the foreign silver to the country from which it came. There are many who think this would be at once the cheapest and most effective way of correcting the situation.

EVENING WITH BOBS.

Smith-st. hill was the scene of pleasure for a large number of young people Thursday night. The college boys, who are home for the holidays and their friends, formed a merry sleighing party, who for a couple of hours enjoyed that exhilaration which is peculiar to sporting with the bobs. There were about 40 people in the party, and after their outing the scene was changed to Mr. Harry Long's Palm Gardens, where an excellent collation was served. The evening proved exceedingly enjoyable to all those who participated. The following composed the party:—Mr. and Mrs. Crane, Misses V. Hunter, Eva Bradd, Alta Bradd, J. Dennistoun, Edith Aylmer, H. Wilmot, J. Perks, M. Harmer, P. Lundy, Daisy Mills, A. Hall, Hamilton, S. Hamilton, Gertrude Kendry, N. Hall, E. Munroe, H. Dean, and Messrs. Basil Hall, C. Rogers, F. Collins, Colledge, Carey, G. Perks, J. Lundy, F. Bradburn, Oscar Dumble, L. Hall, Shaw, Hamilton, Fred Roy, R. Munroe and Arthur Boucher.

DIED.

ALLEN—On Friday, January 6th, 1905, Michael Allen, aged 75 years. The funeral will take place from the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. Patrick O'Neil, No. 184 Dalhousie st., on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 8th at 3.30 o'clock and proceed to Cathedral, thence to the Roman St. Peter's thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

POTVIN.—On Friday, January 6th, 1905, Frederick Potvin, aged 42 years. The funeral will take place from the family residence, 29? Simcoe-st., on Monday morning, January 9th, at nine o'clock, and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

ST. PAUL'S LADIES.

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Aid held yesterday afternoon:

President—Mrs. J. Dennistoun.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Robt. Hall.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Robt. Innis.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Rich. Hall.
4th Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. L. Davidson.
Treas.—Mrs. R. B. Hall.
Sec.—Mrs. McLean.

A committee was also appointed. The report for the year was very encouraging.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The citizens of Peterborough and especially the Town Council are to blame for the neglect with which our Public Library is treated. Why cannot the Council appoint a Library Committee or do something to put life into a very poor institution. The directors cannot be held responsible for popular neglect.

Mr. Peters is an excellent librarian but he is like one crying in a wilderness. A good library is the only source of education for a large part of the reading public of mature age and for many a youth of inquiring mind. It is a matter for regret that so few subscribers attend the annual meeting. The annual meeting is called for Monday evening.

Yours, etc.
READER.

WHAT A CHANGE?

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The supporters of Mr. Anderson are already beginning to boast that the committee of organizers from West Peterborough will put him in by a majority nearer 2,000 than 1,000. There is no doubt that the organizers from West Peterborough are moving heaven, and the other place to put Mr. Anderson in, and pave the way for Mr. Stratton to become the representative of the East Riding in the House of Commons. If they once get their claws on East Peterborough, what a change, O, what a change will be there

Yours truly
SYMPATHIZER.

SABBATH SCHOOL OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of Murray-st. Baptist Sunday school was held last evening. The reports showed a good year's record and will be published on Monday. Following are the officers elected:

Superintendent—Mr. E. B. Edwards.
Assistant—Mr. Albert Martin.
Secretary—Miss May Garbutt.
Treasurer—Miss M. J. Barnard.
Librarian—Mr. A. J. Redden.
Assistant-Librarian—Miss Edith [illegible].
Organist—Miss Aldridge.
Executive—Messrs E. B. Edwards, Geo. Lee and A. J. Redden, Miss Nicholls, Mrs. Ellis and the Secretary.

In washing woollens and flannels Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will be found very satisfactory.

REASON Nº 4
WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose Tea

Because It Is Economical.

Red Rose Tea is composed of what are known in the trade as "high-grown" Ceylon and Indian teas. These teas are grown at high altitudes on the mountain slopes, where the tea bushes grow more slowly and are more carefully cultivated than in the valleys, where the climate is warm and humid.

High-grown tea is not only a finer quality, but contains much more tea juice or extract than valley-grown tea.

This can be easily proved by comparing a drawing of Red Rose with any other tea. By doing so you will find that a pound of Red Rose Tea will spend as far as 1¼ to 1½ lbs. of other teas.

The saving is most apparent in the Blue Label and better grades—buy a pound and make the test.

The Daily Review

SATURDAY, JAN. 7, 1905.

Stick to work.

Young man, if you have not registered yet do so this evening.

Vote for the moral as well as the material interests of Ontario by supporting Bradburn and Moore.

The snow storm to-day is not a patch to the one that will bury the Grit Government out of sight on the 25th.

The most careful and accurate forecasts show that Mr. Whitney will have a majority of twelve in the new Legislature.

Mr. Whitney is honest enough to be bold, and bold enough to be honest. That's the kind of man to be Provincial Premier.

Apropos of Mr. Ross' latest speeches—give the most guilty time enough and he will convince himself that he is all right.

Hon. G. W. Ross seems to be getting back to first principles. Twenty-five years ago he was dubbed a "political Annanias," owing to his propensity to stretch the truth. He is at it again. An old dog can never forget its old tricks.

If the Ross Government is so pure and holy as the Premier himself paints it, why are so many clergymen, hitherto strong Liberals, condemning it. Perhaps Mr. McWilliams will take this as the text of his next political speech.

Wednesday's Mail and Empire wants to know if Mr. Ross is truthful? Well, neighbor, that's a hard question, but we know that if we made some of the remarks he has made the Examiner would call us a "liar," at least that is the word they use.

At the rate he is going in his campaign speeches Mr. Ross will soon convince himself, and try to convince others, that there were no elections held in North Renfrew, West Elgin, and the Sault, and therefore there could have been no election frauds committed.

Mr. Ross says that the Conservatives will have to repent for their past sins before they will be entitled to the confidence of the people. When has Mr. Ross repented for the sins of his governmental machine? It seems to us that what is sauce for the gander should be sauce for the goose.

In previous elections says the Toronto News, it was argued that the Opposition brought trivial charges against the Government, and that this was a sign of weakness. Those who took this view will do well to note the ridiculous prominence given to the paltry Napanee charge against Mr. Whitney.

It is very good of the decanter of the Grit journals to tell the Globe that it is engaged in mighty small and most detestable business in printing stuff about Mr. Whitney's drink at Napanee; but they should go further and condemn Mr. Ross, who is using the episode for political effect.
—Hamilton Spectator.

A great deal has been heard in the Grit press—the Examiner, of course among the crowd—of the gigantic, over-whelming offence of Mr. Whitney in taking a drink of Scotch whiskey in his room before retiring for the night in a Napanee hotel. It happened to be after eleven o'clock and as is well known some of Mr. Ross' spies thought they had unearthed a great scandal and so the hotel keeper was summoned, the law set in motion, evidence taken, etc. How certain Grits have shouted with delight. The fact was that Mr. Whitney after a long journey and after speaking for hours in a cold hall was advised to take a little whiskey before retiring in order to avoid catching a severe chill at the outset of the campaign. Here are two opinions on the matter worth perusing and both are from Grits. The Grit Toronto Star says—"Mr. Whitney merely had a 'night-cap' sent to his room on retiring after the strain of delivering a long speech. There was nothing illegal about that—no violation of law, no menace to law and order. If a public man does nothing worse than that the country will be safe. Whether a public man after a hard day's campaigning does or does not take a 'night-cap' on retiring, whether he procures it from the depths of his hand-bag or has it sent to his room in a tumbler should be considered his own business and is not a profitable subject for political discussion." Mr. James Haverson, K.C., another good Grit observes—"I tell you that in all my experience in the trials of liquor cases in Ontario, this was the first time that evidence has been taken after a plea of guilty was entered. In my 12 years or more of dealing with these matters I have had to do with hundreds of cases and the action of the magistrate at Napanee is unprecedented. Why, for a month before elections hotelmen are not interfered with and I have forced license inspectors to withdraw cases. Yes," he added, in response to query, "even by going to a candidate about it. And I have made no secret of it, either. I'm a Grit myself and I know something about Grit tricks."

FORGET CORRUPTION.

This is a sentence from the Premier's speech in Toronto on December 30th.

It is a very serious statement. Why should he not discuss a subject that has burned itself into the hearts of the people of Ontario. Instead, he quoted St. Paul, "Forgetting the things that are behind I press forward."

But with what new resolve?

Was St. Paul intending to press forward to place and power and to forget crimes and immoralities without repenting of them?

There is no word of regret for things, as the Premier admitted at Napanee, done by Liberals for the benefit of the party.

Instead he says he desires "that the people of this country should not "weary themselves by talking over "and discussing that which was "practically useless."

The Premier need not be anxious to save the electorate of Ontario from weariness, but in his cynicism he may be right. It may be practically useless to hope for better things so long as the Liberal party are in control of the Provincial elections.

It may be useless to hope that the "Minnie" shall never again be allowed to sail with a cargo of pluggers so long as the Attorney General disdains the occupation of policeman.

It may indeed be useless to trust that the ballot boxes to be used on the 25th of January may be legitimate and that on that day a free and unstifled vote may be cast.

But the weariness has almost worn off and the dawn of a new day may be nearer than some think.

No one can reflect calmly on the fact that the administration and enforcement of criminal justice has become such a farce that in this province there are men walking about who have been reported by the election judges for corrupt practices and who have never heard from the provincial law officers and, in one case at least, have furnished an agent for a Cabinet Minister.

If purity of elections is one of the great problems then the Premier's advice may be taken in a sense which he did not mean. "It was time the people should direct themselves to those problems."

THINGS TO OVERLOOK.

"I said in a previous speech that I would be glad to forget something" —Hon. G. W. Ross in his speech at Temple Building on December 30th, 1904.

"Public responsibility is not new to me. As County Councillor, Member of the Legislature, and Justice of the Peace, I have served the public for many years. I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that public honor in Canada has steadily declined."—Police Magistrate Wood at Belleville, Dec. 9th, 1904.

"That the declared number of votes for Mr. Macnish largely exceeded the number of bona fide votes cast for him."—Confession signed by D. Macnish at the trial in St. Thomas June 1899, and put in by Mr. Aylesworth.

"Here is Mr. Jackson, a lawyer in Ingersoll, has associated with men of the lowest possible character. It is evident that he must have desired evidence to be made to procure the proving of charges in this petition. There is no doubt of it. Nothing was ever heard in my experience before like it. It is impossible to trace out all these underground influences."—Mr. Justice Street at the trial in South Oxford, 1902.

"The matter is important, the charges serious and the evidence all one way, that is to say, there is no contradiction. There was no regard to the law in a cluster of offences included in that company. We find the active members of the party, or those in responsible positions, or who had influence to bring about results, all active. McClurg is the officer who is employed. Sutherland is with him. Sutherland and McClurg both go after midnight, or about 2 a.m., to Curle's house, where he is in bed. Sutherland who was the general of the whole campaign and the chief officer in charge."—The Chancellor at the trial at Sault Ste. Marie on the "Minnie M." charges.

"Instead of taking legal voters, Kennedy chose to collect together a lot of rascals who were prepared to commit this crime. I think the conclusion is irresistable that Kennedy clusion is irresistible that Kennedy knowledge and authority of Sutherland, and that the knowledge and authority of Sutherland was such as to make the respondent responsible for what was done under the authority and by the connivance and direction of Kennedy."—Mr. Justice Teetzel at the trial at Sault Ste. Marie on the "Minnie M." charges.

"We find the case involved in the "Minnie M" charges to be proven, and we find agency proven through Sutherland, Coyne, Ferguson or Kennedy and Galvin."—The Chancellor at the trial at Sault Ste. Marie.

As a Convalescent Food

Mr. Wyman N. Thomas, Ompah, Addington, Co., Ont., writes:—"My wife had congestion of the lungs, along with other troubles, and became very weak and run down. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food she was made as strong and as well as ever. Of course I had a doctor, but she was weak, and it was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which built her up."

DOWNEYVILLE SCHOOL.

Inspector Makes Report on Extraordinary Proceedings.

A despatch to the Catholic Register, from Lindsay says:—

Lindsay, Dec. 31 — Mr. J. H. Knight, Public School Inspector, has sent to the Minister of Education the following statement regarding some extraordinary proceedings on Wednesday last at Downeyville:

"I beg to report that I attended the annual meeting at Downeyville, School Section No. 4, Emily, on Wednesday, December 28. The adoption of the trustees' report was moved just after my arrival. After this the priest, Rev. Father Brethercon, said this was a separate school meeting, and only supporters of the separate school could vote. Then an auditor and trustee were elected. In answer to questions by ratepayers, the priest said the separate school owned the property. The trustees of the public school never had a deed of the land, but the trustees of the separate school had got a deed. Also that no notice of meeting of supporters of the public school had been given because the public school had ceased to exist. The notice calling a meeting of supporters of the separate school was then read. This was received with surprise by many present.

"When it was proposed to hold a meeting after adjournment for the election of public school trustees, the priest said they had no right to do so. When my opinion was asked I said that such a meeting would be legal, as, though notices had not been given, the ratepayers had come for that purpose. The meeting was then held and trustees for one, two and three years respectively were elected, the three trustees having retired from the public school board. An auditor was also appointed.

"As one of the trustees appointed was not present, I advised the other two to call a meeting forthwith, appoint a Secretary, and instruct him to demand the books from the late Secretary, of whom three appeared to act with the priest and the rest against him. I understand that two or more meetings of ratepayers were held, of which I received no minutes."

WASHING DIRTY LINEN.

Professional Hockey League Talks of Showing up O. H. A. Teams.

A despatch from the Soo to the Montreal Star, referring to professional hockeyists, will be of interest here—

Sault Ste. Marie, January 4.—The Smith's Falls Hockey Club has put its foot in it, and if the Ontario Hockey Association lives up to its professions, will lose two of its best players in McDonald and Hummell.

McDonald and Hummell are among others who signed contracts to play with the Soo and the perhaps thinking that contracts to play hockey were not as binding as other ordinary business contracts, refused to come on to the Soo. At the last meeting of the O.H.A. executive, J. A. Washburn, the Smith's Falls man on the committee, brought up the matter of these two men having signed with the Soo. It was probably thought the Soo might be taking some action, and it would be a good idea for Smith's Falls to step in first and present its side of the case. The Soo did not take any action, but the result of the matters coming up for discussion was that the Soo came in for considerable abuse, all of which was aired in the Toronto newspapers, whose sporting writers are the main guys in the O.H.A. It was stated that the Soo had made threats it was unable to carry out.

The outcome is that the Soo has taken up the bluff and the O. H. A is now in possession of all the documents in the case, including correspondence leading up to the signing of McDonald and Hummell, and the signed contracts, which, however, would not have been sent in had Smith's Falls kept quiet.

The Soo Club does not claim to be the only professional organization in Ontario, but it does believe it is the only one brave enough to be honest about it.

Hod Stewart's letter in the Montreal Star a few days ago, in which he denies having offered inducements to a player named Hannah, to go to Calumet, has brought forth further comment here. It now appears that many hockey players have acquired the habit of using such means to boost their salaries in their home towns. In some cases, professional league managers have first heard of players by their announcements in the outside press, that they have received offers to play professional hockey.

One who received considerable notoriety in such a way was a Toronto bank player, who was reported in the press of that city as having received a good offer to play in Pittsburg. When the Pittsburg team was here, Manager Dohaney said he had never made any offer to the player in question, and had only lately learned there was such a player. If he got any offer from Pittsburg, it must have been to play on Arthur Sixsmith's team, which is being organized to play home games and which is securing players only by getting positions in the city for them.

McDonald, the Smith's Falls man was in the Michigan Soo last winter, but jumped his contract shortly before the opening of the season. People in the Soo have every reason to believe that McDonald's return to Smith's Falls was a result only of better inducements having been offered him there. When the Toronto 'Varsity team came to the Soo last winter, it was accompanied by a representative of President J. Ross Robertson's paper, who, in his reports of the hockey situation in the two Soos referred to the McDonald case and advised an investigation by the O.H.A. Such an investigation was never held, or if it was, it was in a quiet way which resulted in nothing.

The professional league never wished any harm to the O.H.A., but since that association has adopted the policy of being "uncompromisingly antagonistic" to the professional league, it is in the power of the latter to show up the methods of many Ontario teams to be far from amateur. What could be told of some of the players who have come here from O.H.A. towns would make interesting reading in view of the O.H.A.'s amateur professions.

THE TUBE COLLAPSED.

William Hamilton Company Meet With Accident in Orillia.

The Orillia News-Letter says—

The Ragged Rapids furnished another object lesson in hydraulics on Saturday evening when Foreman Harvie, of the William Hamilton Company works, Peterborough, let the water out of the new steel tube. The tube is ten feet in diameter, built of 5-8 inch steel and is about 180 feet in length. In the construction of the pipe the air valve appears to have been overlooked somewhat and instead of being placed on the summit, was put in the draft tube, and was too low to allow the air in when the water was drawn off. A vacuum was thus formed with the result the tube was subjected to a pressure of about a ton to the square foot, and as a consequence the top of it, for about 140 feet in length, flattened down about three feet and formed a little gulley in the centre. The pressure on the pipe would be equal to the water pressure from the top to the water level in the tailrace, at or about 28 feet head. The W. Hamilton Co. are the losers owing to the accident, but the town will suffer from a month's delay in getting the new wheel started.

HAVE HAD THEIR DAY.

Old Fashioned Medicines For Catarrh No Longer In Vogue.

For many years past the usual treatment for catarrh diseases was with local douches, sprays, inhalers and liquid medicines composed principally of alcohol, all of which never cured but simply give the temporary relief and stimulation.

A thorough cure can be made only by the treatment which removes the catarrhal poisons from the blood.

A new remedy which meets the requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membrane only.

They can hardly be classed as a secret patent medicine as they are composed of such valuable remedies as blood root, Hydrastin, red gum of Eucalyptus tree and similar antiseptics, combined in tablet form which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous membrane the poisons of catarrh.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant lozenges, to be taken internally, allowing them to dissolve in the mouth, thus reaching the throat, trachea and finally the stomach.

If desired they may also be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However when there is much stoppage of the nose a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use internally will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche.

Dr. Bennett stated "that the internal treatment of catarrh by means of pleasant medicated tablets is rapidly taking the place of douches and local applications" and further says that "probably the best, and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition and all the really efficient catarrh remedies are concentrated in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cts. for full sized package, and he will tell you there is no safer, more palatable, efficient and convenient catarrh cure known to the trade.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck-Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Thursday night at 5.30 in Brock-st. rink the Quaker Office bunch crossed sticks with a picked team from the mill in a fast and exciting game of hockey. The office team, although much lighter than their opponents, outclassed them in stick handling and fast following up. The forwards showed good combinatin and their shooting had deadly effect, while the defence was of a stonewall variety, refusing to be drawn out, and checking accurately. Considering the practice that the mill team has had, it was rather disappointing to their supporters to see that they did not get into the game and use their combination to better advantage, although the individual work of Simpson more than made up for their lack of combination. The team on the whole played a gritty game and worked hard to turn down the pen gushers.

The line-up of the team was as follows:—

Office—5.	Mill—4.
Goal
J. Sullivan	McSweeney
Point.
W. Cochrane	L. McCoy
Cover Point
C. Williamson	W. Shaw
Centre
E. Carr	W. Distin
Left Wing
J. Moore	R. Gillman
Right Wing
F. Heaslip	K. Simpson
Goal Umpires.
T. H. G. Denne	M. J. Kirn

Referee—H. Blade.

Mr. Blade refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams.

Mr. E. M. Best, who kindly consented to referee the game, telephoned at the last moment that owing to a very pressing social engagement in the west end, he would be unable to attend.

The only man ruled off for rough play was Shaw, of the mill team, who was slightly inclined to rough it.

Croup Absolutely Cured

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. Magee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto. Ont.

Selection, "Crown Him," by the Band.

DON'T BE ALARMED is a favorite expression used by friends when you complain of the first attacks of rheumatism. "It will pass away" they tell you, but instead it grows worse and worse. Sometimes it does pass away, only to return a few days later in a more severe form. Don't let your friends assuage your fears with mere words; what you want is practical treatment, and there is no better treatment than with the great

South American Rheumatic Cure

It gives immediate relief and will save you much suffering and prevent further attacks of this distracting and dangerous disease.

Geo. W. Platt, Manager, "World's" Newspaper Agency, Toronto, says:—"I am at loss for words to express my feelings of sincere gratitude and thankfulness for South American Rheumatic Cure. I had a severe attack of rheumatic fever and your remedy relieved and cured me." —9

MOST NORTHERN HOUSE

IT IS AT TASSIUSAK, ON THE COAST OF GREENLAND.

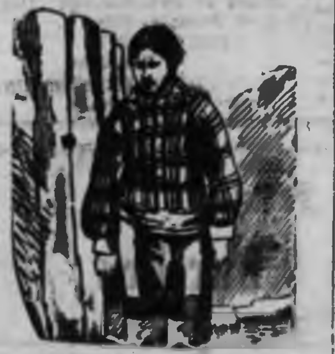
Few English-Speaking Persons Ever Visit the Bleak, Ice-Clad Island That Denmark Guards Jealously—In No Other Way Can the Natives Be Protected From the Ravages of Alcoholic Drink.

Being resolved upon visiting Greenland, I found that some difficulties had first to be overcome, says a writer in Black and White. No private vessel plies there either with passengers or cargo from any port of the world. Of the Dundee whalers few remain, and if they happen to take fresh water on the Greenland coast their stay is limited to hours.

Some fishing schooners of Gloucester, United States, frequented the Greenland banks ten years ago, but after a couple of seasons found the halibut catch was not to be relied on. The Miranda, an American steamer, attempted a cruise with tourists in 1894, but was wrecked at the gate of the first harbor she tried to leave. One of the fishing schooners brought her people home.

Apart from Arctic expeditions, no other foreign visitors have risked a voyage for about two centuries. The whaling ships are handled by experienced men, yet the Vega was nipped last year, her people barely escaping. For Arctic expeditions, one ship lost in each twenty measures the scale of risk. Fog, ice pack, bergs, currents and death trap reefs bar out casual shipping.

There also exists an international treaty, whereby most Europeans and Americans are forbidden to enter Greenland. This treaty is enforced by Denmark on behalf of her Royal Trade, a Government department which is trying to civilize the native tribes of the country. By this means alone can the Eskimo people be shielded from disease, alcohol and interference with the hunting on which they depend for existence.



AN INNUIT BELLE.

It was fortunate in getting permission—the second granted to an English speaking man since 1735—to visit Greenland in one of the royal ships. At Copenhagen I was examined by a doctor to make sure that I carried no contagious disease to the Greenlanders. So we sailed from Elsinore on May 17 in the little bark Thorvaldsen, and just a month later sighted the Greenland coast.

The coast of Norway, best seen in mid-winter, and certainly the grandest in the Old World, is tame compared with the seaboard of British Columbia and Southeastern Alaska. I would not disparage that coast, and yet it is not so beautiful as the west coast of Greenland. The sunny Arctic day which lasts for months, a sky all flaming glory, the fretted spires of the Alps flanked with stupendous cliffs, and based on the restful levels of the sea, cities of crowded bergs, compound of dazzling light and radiant color—such scenery as that blots out one's former memories. The ship went drifting on, and slowly eight hundred miles of heaven unrolled before us its varied and wondrous loveliness.

Our first port of call was Jakobshavn, at the head of Disco Strait, largest of the northern villages, a metropolis of nine white persons and four hundred natives. Beside a pocket harbor, perched on round shoulders of the naked granite, are the buildings, all tarred black, of the Royal Trade. For a background to the dismal scene rise higher rocks, littered with garbage, and turf huts, the homes of the natives.

At heart the place is gay, for our sailors went ashore every night to dance with the Eskimo girls, while the officers of ship and colony swapped dinner parties, breakfasts and luncheons all through a nine days' festival.

The palace might have been a Hudson Bay port uglified, but the Danish traders are much more civilized than the British.

Men and women alike were linguists, well read, accomplished, a little too polite for comfort, living a metropolitan life on one batch of letters a year in an Arctic wilderness.

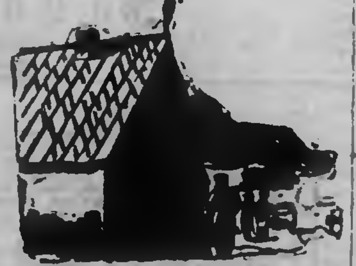
The Innuit servant maids wore the furry breeches, boots to the hip and curious topknot of their national dress—one had to fall promiscuously in love with all of them. The Danish men also wore native dress, with only one distinction—that they washed.

The food, apart from Danish groceries, was seal meat, fish, reindeer, venison, shellfish, ptarmigan, sea birds and their eggs, which as served in Greenland are always pronounced in flavor, like the political egg used at elections. There was also at one port a dish called mattak (the skin of the white whale), a hard fat with a delicious nutty flavor, which would be esteemed by epicures in Europe. Tasteless radishes and other small vegetables are grown under glass, and there are plenty of blueberries on the hills.

Nearly the whole of Greenland is covered with a continental ice cap like that of the Antarctic continent. Nansen and Peary have crossed the inland ice, but even to reach the edge is a difficult journey. At Jakobshavn I persuaded a sailor to come with me, chartered a skin boat with a native crew, and set off at three o'clock one sunny morning. Our way led southward, past the mouth of Jakobshavn Fjord, where a shoal about the size of London is covered with jammed and stranded bergs. Some of the spires are said to be six hundred feet high; the overhanging coast of ice was certainly more than two hundred.

Beyond it we had to carry the boat over two ranges of hills, then traveled one day's march along a fjord, and finally the sailor and I, with a guide, set off afoot upon a four mile walk. The land was hilly, of broken rock with a layer of moss on top, so arranged that one sinks through the moss into unseen holes full of pain.

The land is not good for cripples, and yet there were compensations, for I found native silver and a precious stone called olivine, besides many lovely flowers, including the bluebells of Scotland. There were also mosquitoes in great plenty.



MOST NORTHERLY HOUSE ON EARTH.

Five hours of climbing brought us to the top of Damned Mountain (Krakrapatak), and after I had photographed my companions, we sat down to fight the mosquitoes and try to enjoy the view.

After leaving Jakobshavn the Thorvaldsen called at an outpost northward of Disco Island, where we picked up the Governor of North Greenland and officers of the staff, taking them on to Upernavik, the most northerly settlement. Thence the Governor went by boat on a cruise of hundreds of miles through the Archipelago, inspecting outposts, and he was kind enough to take me as his guest. Even in skin clothes and heavy winter furs we suffered discomfort from the cold, as, traveling night and day and spreading our sleeping bags in the boat for rest, we threaded amazing channels choked with bergs.

So we came at last to Tassiusak, the most northerly house on earth. Its tenant is Neilson, a Dane, under whose guidance we ventured another sixteen miles into the wilderness.

A Quaint Epitaph.

A good tombstone inscription to add to your collection is given in a recent book. It is said to be of seventeenth century date and runs as follows:

Here lies the body of Thomas Woodhen,
The Kindest of Husbands, the best of men.

And directly under the inscription the explanation, "His name was Woodcock, but that would not come in the rhyme."

WHAT IS ANTI-PILL?

A Somewhat Peculiar Name Explained—How Dr. Leonhardt Came to Call his Famous Prescription "Anti-Pill".

Dr. Leonhardt found in his practice that chronic constipation and its kindred complaints were the result of a dried-up condition of the mucous membrane lining of the stomach and bowels. He investigated further and found that this condition was invariably brought about by the use of cathartics, which all contain a certain amount of resinous matter.

After the first action of such medicines a resinous residue remains behind and this has a drying effect on the lining of the stomach and bowels.

He made up his mind to produce a medicine for all stomach and bowel derangements which would be entirely free from all resinous matter.

After much experiment he succeeded, and to emphasize the difference between his treatment and the old-fashioned treatments, he gave it the name "Anti-Pill."

Anti-Pill will cure dyspepsia, biliousness or constipation perfectly and for ever—cure to stay cured—with no pill habit left to be overcome later.

VISITED THEIR CHILDREN.

Mr. and Mrs. George Scott Have Returned From the West.

Mr. George Scott, of Smith Township, and Mrs. Scott have returned from a visit to their sons and daughters in Manitoba. He states that there has been a fine fall in the Souris district. His sons have done well in the West, three of them owning farms on which there was a good crop this year, yielding No. 1 and No. 2 northern grades and selling at from 80 to 90 cents a bushel. Messrs George and John Scott are working their own farms, while Joseph has his rented, and is living with his sister, Mrs. Robert Newton, at Brandon, whose husband died a little over a year ago. Mr. Scott's other daughters are married to prosperous farmers in the West, Mr. Robert Moffatt and Mr. Wm. Trumcott. His children are well satisfied with conditions in the land of their adoption and are in love with it to such an extent that they would not entertain the thought of returning east.

Mr. Scott considers that a farmer is much better off in the West than in Ontario. He enjoyed his visit there greatly, although the travelling was very tedious. They started for the east on Tuesday.

They Know It.

Thousands of people throughout the country know that the ordinary remedies for piles—ointments, suppositories and appliances—will not cure.

The best of them only bring passing relief.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally that removes the cause of Piles, hence the cure is permanent. Every package sold contains a guarantee with it.

It is perfectly harmless to the most delicate constitution. A month's treatment in each package. Sold at $1.00. At any drug store, or The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. 5

CONSTABLE WOUNDED.

Prisoner Shot His Captor At Windsor, But Another Recaptured Him.

Windsor, Jan. 7.—Sergt. Abe Nash, of the Windsor police force, lies in a serious condition at his home on Sandwich street with a gaping wound in his neck caused from a revolver shot fired by a burglar he had arrested at an early hour yesterday morning.

The arrest was made near the waterworks after an Italian fruit store had been robbed. Sergt. Nash had brought his prisoner as far as All Saints' Church, within one hundred yards of the city lockup, when the burglar suddenly turned on the sergeant, drew a revolver and fired two shots, one taking effect in the neck. The officer fell in the snow, while the attempted murderer ran towards the alley in the rear of Windsor avenue.

Officer Langlois was at the corner near Sandwich street, when the shots were fired. He rushed around at the head of the alley and ran into the burglar. The latter shoved a revolver into Langlois' face, but the patrolman grappled with his man, throwing him to the ground and finally succeeding in arresting him.

The prisoner at first declined to give his name, but an envelope found on him was addressed Thos. Murray, Detroit, postmarked from Toronto, Dec. 24, containing a card read on one side, "Best wishes, from mother," on the other, "Mrs. J. A. Jarvis, Toronto."

May Be Toronto Criminal.

Toronto, Jan. 7.—The man who shot Police Sergeant Nash at Windsor yesterday, while being taken into custody, is said by the local police to be George, alias Sam Jarvis, alias Henderson, alias George Johnston, a Toronto criminal, who has done considerable time since 1893.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's church will be held on Wednesday, January 18th.

DESIGNING A HEAD.

An Interesting Tonsorial Operation by the Famous Whistler.

"Amazing!" the favorite ejaculation of the brilliant and eccentric artist, James MacNeill Whistler, is the word which seems best to fit the curious combination of personal peculiarities—mischievous wit, tricksy jests, gay quarrels, harmless vanities and remarkable artistic performance—revealed in Mr. Mortimer Menpes' recent recollections of his "Master." The eccentricities of Whistler's character were matched by those of his appearance, for he never dressed like anybody else, and he had, just over his left eye, a single lock of white hair amid a mass of black curls. His own interest in his appearance was great, for he regarded the composition of costume and coiffure with the same seriousness which he would have bestowed upon the composition of a picture, and indeed the result was unmistakably picturesque.

"Customers ceased to be interested in their own hair," says Mr. Menpes of Whistler's entrance into a barber's shop. "Operators stopped their manipulations; every one turned to watch Whistler, who himself was supremely unconscious. His hair was first trimmed, but left rather long, Whistler meanwhile directing the cutting of every lock as he watched the barber in the glass. He, poor fellow, only too conscious of the delicacy of his task, shook and trembled as he manipulated the scissors. The clipping completed, Whistler waved the operators imperiously on one side, and we observed for some time the rear view of his dapper little figure, stepping backward and forward, surveying himself in the glass. Suddenly he put his head into a basin of water, and then, half drying his hair, shook it into matted wet curls. With a comb he carefully picked out the white lock, wrapped it in a towel and walked about for five minutes, pinching it dry, with the rest of his hair hanging over his face—a stage which much amused the onlookers.

"Still pinching the towel, he would then beat the rest of his hair into ringlets (combing would not have given them the right quality) until they fell into decorative waves all over his head. A loud scream would then rend the air. Whistler wanted a comb. This procured, he would comb the white lock into a feathery plume and with a few broad movements of his hand form the whole into a picture. Then he would look beamingly at himself in the glass and say but two words, 'Menpes, amazing!' and sail triumphantly out of the shop."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

An awkward man in society is usually a thoroughbred in business.

The only case of overwork we know of, though many claim it, is that of the growler.

A great many people tell not the way a thing is, but the way they would like to have it.

To win in this world you must have more confidence in yourself than you really amount to.

Here is the mark of one who boards: Search him, and you will find something to eat in his pockets.

Give father credit for one thing at least—at his place at the table there are no wads of chewing gum on the underside.

The Lease of Life.

It is the inevitable law of nature that we must die. The vital energy that is implanted in the body at birth is only meant to sustain it for a certain number of years. It may be husbanded or wasted, made to burn slowly or rapidly. It is like the oil in a lamp and may be burned out to little effect in a little time or carefully husbanded and preserved and thus made to last longer and burn brighter.

It is a moot question whether every individual is not at birth gifted with the same amount of vital energy and of life sustaining power. The probability is that each is. The circumstances of the environment from the cradle to the grave determine its future destiny.

Bad Company For Him.

"What have you to say for yourself?" demanded the bailie of the drunk and disorderly. "Am verra sorra, sir," returned the charge, "but a cam' up frae Glesca in bad company." "What sort of company?" "A lot o' teetotalers." "Wha-at!" roared the bailie. "You mean to say, sir, that teetotalers are bad company?" "Weel," rejoined the prisoner, "ye ken how 'twas. A had a hale mutchkin o' whusky wi' me, an' a had to drink it all to mysel'."—London Judy.

Trust Your Appetite

It Knows What is Best for Your Health.

Your appetite knows what is best for your health.

That is the theory of modern medicine—the doctrine of common sense.

Bread your appetite does not like is bread that is bad for your health.

How easily the human system assimilates good bread?

How hard bad bread is on health.

First, it's hard to eat the soggy, tasteless stuff, so many families call bread.

Your appetite rebels against it.

The appetite is wise.

It knows what's best.

You can trust it.

If it doesn't want a certain bread, make up your mind the bread is wrong.

The appetite is never wrong.

We can safely leave our bread to the judgment of the appetite.

Once one has tasted Royal Household bread, made just right by following the recipes, that person will accept no other.

Other bread is flat and tasteless compared to it.

Eating Bad Bread Sours the Stomach.

Bad bread sours the stomach—lies undigested—creates dyspepsia.

No dyspeptic can work well.

THE FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF ST. PETER'S T. A. S.

Historical Sketch of Organization Which Has Been Great Success.

The Leading Temperance Society in the Dominion of Canada To-day—Founded in 1900 by Rev. Father O'Sullivan—How it Has Progressed—Captured the Banner at the Dubuque Convention—Its Sphere of Usefulness.

Great preparations are being made for the celebration on Monday evening next of the anniversary of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society. The history of this organisation is not only an interesting one, but also a remarkable one in every respect, and it is doubtful if any other similar organization in America can boast of such a proud record in the space of six years.

One evening in December, 1900, at the close of a private debate in the Catholic Association rooms, Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan, who was chairman of the evening, in his criticism of the subject under discussion, which, by the way, was temperance, made the important announcement to the small gathering of C.L.A. boys that it was his intention to organise a temperance society in the parish.

Rev. Father F. J. O'SULLIVAN,
Of Lindsay, who organized St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society.

This announcement was hailed with delight by those present, for there were present that evening a number of young men who were staunch temperance advocates, and who had on more than one occasion, expressed the opinion that a good temperance organization was needed in Peterborough, in order to save the youth, and the older heads, for that matter, from the besetting sin of intemperance.

THE BEGINNING.

An announcement was made from the pulpit of St. Peter's Cathedral on the first Sunday of the year 1900 urging all friends of temperance to rally at the Catholic Association rooms on January 6th, for the purpose of organising a temperance society.

A grand response was made to Rev. Father O'Sullivan's appeal, and the gathering that assembled in the C.L.A. rooms was not only a large one, but it was also very enthusiastic. On the platform were Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan, the founder of the T.A.S.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey opened the meeting, which was attended by young and old of St. Peter's congregation. Brief addresses were made by the clergy present, when the needs of a good temperance society were emphasised. The mode of organization was next considered, and the election of officers decided upon. There were several present, however, who felt that the enthusiasm displayed that evening was of a spasmodic nature, and one of them ventured the suggestion that the election of officers be deferred until a latter date, as the enthusiasm would abate considerably by that time. Up rose Dr. O'Brien from his seat, with the rejoinder, "Why talk of the enthusiasm dying out? God's blessing is on this work and it is bound to succeed." Subsequent events have proved how prophetic were his words.

THE FIRST OFFICERS.

The election of officers was proceeded with that evening and resulted as follows—

Spiritual Adviser—Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan.
President—Dr. Moher.
Vice-President—T. J. Doris.
Secretary—T. J. Begley.
Treasurer—M. J. Maher.

After the election a call was made for members, and it was an inspiring sight to see those present signing the pledge—some for life, and others for a number of years. The Society met in the Catholic Association rooms, but the needs of a larger hall for the temperance organisation became manifest, as the Society was rapidly growing in membership. A few months after organisation an announcement was made that caused deep regret in the society. Rev. Father O'Sullivan, the founder and spiritual adviser of the Society, whom the members had learned to love, was obliged to resign his position owing to the transfer of the diocesan clergy and his removal to another field of labor. But his mantle fell on worthy shoulders in the person of the present well beloved spiritual adviser, Rev. Dr. O'Brien, who has nourished and protected the good seed planted by his predecessor during the past six years until now Peterborough can boast of the banner temperance organization of the Dominion.

THE BANNER ORGANIZATION.

Rev Dr. O'Brien, after he assumed the duties of spiritual adviser, realised the need of new quarters for the temperance society, which was rapidly growing in membership at each meeting held. A happy thought struck the reverend gentleman. The Catholic Association occupied the present quarters of the T.A.S., the latter organization renting the concert hall for meeting purposes. Nearly all the directors of the Catholic Association were members of the T.A.S., and Dr. O'Brien suggested that the T.A.S. take over the property of the C.L.A. and assume its liabilities. After a conference or two of the governing bodies of the organizations referred to, the result was the Catholic Association passed out of existence and the T.A.S. assumed management. Steps were next taken to organize auxiliary organizations in connection with the society, and a literary committee was organised and has since been a permanent organization, doing excellent work for the society proper. A dramatic section was also started and every year on St. Patrick's Day, highly creditable performances have been given for the benefit of the society.

As the membership of the society increased the question of enlarged quarters became a live one, and the society decided to annex more floor space in order to meet this growth. The pool and billard room was situated on the first floor and adjoining the library. This was totally inadequate to meet the requirements of the devotees of those pastimes, and a change was decided upon. The old concert hall also proved too small to accommodate the members at regular meetings and for concert purposes, and the old Oddfellows' hall on the same flat and just across the hall, was secured and a door cut in the wall, which connected it with the rooms proper. This made an ideal concert hall, and to-day a visitor would be surprised on visiting this department to see a handsome little stage with scenic effects, to say nothing of the beautiful appearance of this department. The old meeting room was next converted into a recreation room and at present some half dozen pool and billiard tables are at the disposal of the members. The room vacated down stairs has been fitted up as a reception room, and an ideal one it is.

LADIES' LITERARY SOCIETY

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, who has displayed Napoleonic ambition and tenacity decided to enlist the co-operation and sympathy of the ladies of the parish in the good work. He accordingly fitted up and furnished a handsome room adjoining the library and supplied the tables with good wholesome literature. A Ladies' Literary Association was also organised in connection with the parent society, and the reputation this literary circle has achieved is indeed a creditable one. To meet the literary revival which had assuredly set in, the old C. L. A. library received attention, and about $300 was expended in replenishing the shelves with good, wholesome literature.

NIGHT SCHOOL.

Not content with these improvements and inducements the needs of a debating society were next met with alacrity as well as a night school and to-day both of these departments are in a flourishing state. The indefatigable spiritual advisor did content himself with looking after the moral and literary upbuilding of the members of the T.A.S., but at once took up the physical side of the work. Athletic sports were encouraged and in all departments of athletics the members came out on top, and achieved provincial records. The number of valuable trophies to be seen in the society's rooms is testimony of the remarkable success the T.A.S. achieved in the world of athletics.

Rev. Dr. O'BRIEN.
The Spiritual Adviser of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society.

The athletic ground on Murray-st. was the favorite "hunting ground" for the total abstainers, and the Society went to considerable expense, transforming what was but a few years ago a miniature pine forest, into an athletic field, with a commodious pavilion. The record of the lacrosse, baseball and hockey clubs is known to all. The Society also installed an up-to-date bath room and lavatories for the members and the nucleus of a first class gymnasium in connection with the society is in position in the rooms.

A BRASS BAND.

Last year the society introduced a new feature in connection with the many excellent advantages offered, and which necessitated the addition of several rooms to the already large floor space occupied by the organisation. This was the formation of a brass band, which is progressing satisfactorily, and which will be heard from later on. In the winter of 1901 the cause of temperance received a wonderful impetus in Peterborough through the visit of Rev. Father P. J. Murphy, Paulist, whose powerful sermon in St. Peter's Cathedral will long be remembered. His remarks created a profound impression on the large congregation present, as he clearly and unmistakeably defined the church's attitude towards the liquor traffic, condemned those who engaged in it and eloquently painted out the terrible ravages caused by the vice. In an address about that time in the T.A.S. rooms he urged the members to make an effort to capture the membership banner offered by the C.T.A.U. of America (with which the T.A.S. was affiliated) at its next session in Dubuque in Aug., 1904. "Dubuque, 1902" became the slogan of the local temperance organization, and the members vied with each other in swelling the membership in the hope of capturing the coveted prize. At last the day came for Dr. O'Brien's departure, and many a silent prayer went up that victory would be won.

BANNER ARRIVES

A few days afterwards the joyful news was flashed across the wire that the local T.A.S. had won the banner in competition with the leading societies of the Union. St. Peter's had received a continental reputation as a result of that triumph, and the reception accorded the reverend doctor on his return home was fit for a monarch. The banner was borne in triumph through crowded streets to the cathedral where solemn benediction of thanksgiving was offered up and the blessings of Almighty God envoked on the society. The past year has been the most successful in the history of the T.A.S. The membership keeps growing and the interest manifested by the members shows no signs of abating. They love their spiritual advisor and he in turn loves them. It is that happy unanimity and good fellowship that contributes in no small degree to the success of the society. The members are all happy and nothing pleases them more than to be able to contribute in some degree to making the work a success. The society is a power for good in the community and many a home is happier, and more contented and many a father and son better off in many ways as a result of their membership in St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, which long ago passed the initial stages of its existence, and has come to stay.

T.A.S. NOTES.

To-morrow will be the fifth anniversary of the founding of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society.

The men's and boys' branches will receive Holy Communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass.

On Monday evening a grand concert under the Society's auspices will be given in the Opera House. Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan, of Lindsay, founder of the Society, will deliver an address. In addition to a splendid musical programme a beautiful tableau, "The Angel of Temperance," will be a feature.

A new departure has been made in the Society's methods of business. In future it will hold itself responsible only for such accounts as have been contracted upon its written order, signed by the chairman of the Board of Trustees.

THE NEW WARDEN.

It is more than likely that the next Warden of the County of Peterborough will be Mr. W. T. Buck, who has been returned as the representative of the Asphodel Division. Mr. Buck has been a member of the County Council for over six years and it is understood that the office comes to him by natural succession. He was last year Chairman of the Printing Committee. Mr. Buck has had considerable experience of County affairs is a gentleman of progressive views and his occupancy of the presiding chair should not only be creditable to himself but to the County.

MR. SMART'S SUCCESS

CHRISTMAS TREE ENTERTAINMENT

Children of All Saints' Have a Merry Time.

SANTA CLAUS WAS VERY GOOD

Brought Many Gifts and Prizes to the Little People—Sick Children's Hospital was Generously Remembered.

These are the days of Christmas entertainments and one of the latest successes was that held last night by the Sabbath School of All Saints'. The occasion was full of delight for the very large number of children who attended. Tea was served from 6 to 7.30, and an excellent programme was introduced afterwards. Rev. Wm. Major, the rector, was in the chair. A special feature of the evening was the presentation of gifts by the little people for the Sick Children's Hospital, in Toronto. At the children's service on Christmas day a collection was taken up for that institution, the amount received being $10.55. The rector, on that occasion, also requested of the pupils that they bring him, on the night of the entertainment, one of the books or toys which Santa had favored them with. These were also for the Hospital, and that the children of All Saints' realize the blessedness of giving and have learned well the lesson of self-denial, was evidenced by their very generous response to the rector's request. A large number of gifts were received and a large box will be made up and sent to the hospital.

Another special feature in connection with the awards was the presentation of the rector's two prizes—one for knowledge of the catechism, and the other for knowledge of the Bible. The first was won by Olivia Cuffe and the other by Mr. Fred. Dixon.

Rev. Wm. Major made a few remarks preceding the programme. Those who contributed were—Miss English and Miss Mulholland, instrumental duett, encored; Freddie Hooper, recitation; Gladys Williams, solo; Pearl Haskill, instrumental; Helen Rush, solo, encored; Miss Flowers, instrumental; Annie Drury, recitation; Mr. Coleman, solo; Mabel Hooper, instrumental; Lillie Lightfoot, recitation; Pamella Williams, instrumental; Muchius Clementi, recitation; Gladys Mulholland, solo; dialogue between several children and Santa Claus—Mr. Chas. Coleman.

After the programme the distribution of prizes from the two Christmas trees took place, and as the children left the hall each was presented with an orange and bag of candy. The evening was in every way a success and a great deal of credit is due to the teachers and officers.

A Coming Treat.

Mr. H. M. Field, the well known pianist, of Toronto, is one of the artists appearing at the concert given in the opera house on Tuesday evening next. The London Advertiser has the following to say of a recent appearance in that city —:

"From the pure, sweet melody of Mendelssohn and the liquid notes of Chopin to the bold harmony of Liszt's Tarantellas, Mr. Field brought forth the very soul of the composition." Plan opens at Ormond & Walsh's on Monday at 10 a.m. 1d

FREDERICK POTVIN DEAD

Had Been Resident of Peterborough Since a Boy—End Was Unexpected.

Death came very unexpectedly last night to Frederick Potvin, the well known barber, who has for many years been a resident of Peterborough. Mr. Potvin had been ill for about two weeks, his heart being affected. His friends, however, did not despair of again seeing him about, but last night a serious change developed and the end was sudden. The late Frederick Potvin was born in St. Louis, Quebec, and at the time of his death was forty-two years and nine months old. His father, Mr. Louis Potvin, is still living, his home being on Lake street. Mr. Potvin came to Peterborough with the family when he was a boy, and about 22 years ago he married Miss Angeline Mayhew. His wife and two daughters, Miss Angeline and Miss Louise survive. The brothers are Messrs. Leandre, of town; Isadore, of Midland; Joseph, of Brockville; and Archie, of Ottawa. The sisters are Mrs. Casse, of Bracebridge; and Miss Merinse, at home.

The death of the late Frederick Potvin will be deeply deplored in the large section of the community to which he was known as a friend. The funeral will take place on Monday at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemetery.

THE CHILDREN WERE MADE HAPPY

Prizes Distributed at St. John's School Entertainment.

SANTA CLAUS WAS VERY GOOD

List of Those Who Received the Awards of Merit—Very Fine Programme Was Rendered—Large Attendance of Children.

The annual Sabbath school entertainment at St. John's took place last night, and in spite of the very stormy weather, the attendance of children was very large. Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, the Superintendent, presided. Two large well-ladened Christmas trees, one on each side of the platform, were the centre of considerable interest for the little folk. The trees were illuminated by means of incandescent electric lamps, and were otherwise attractively decorated. A very excellent programme was the first feature of the evening, and was followed by the distribution of prizes to three pupils in each class who by their attendance and proficiency in lessons had earned them. The Christmas trees also contained a gift for almost every member of the school, and these favors were distributed by Santa himself, who in this case was Mr. James Bell.

The musical programme was introduced in the overture by the Halpany Orchestra, consisting of Mrs. Halpany, pianist; Mr. J. Halpany, cornet, and Master Frank Halpany, violin. Several numbers were given by the orchestra during the evening, and all were exceedingly well received. The recitations by Miss Tate were appreciated, and a cornet solo by Mr. R. Gliddon was a number that received hearty applause. The Spanish dance by Miss Roy, Miss Wallace and Misses Burnett was very gracefully executed. Miss M. Burnett contributed a violin solo which was very well executed. A song by Mr. F. A. Lount proved a popular number. Miss K. Wallace's violin solo was a rendition of considerable merit.

Following the programme, the gifts were presented. Mr. Wallace, the secretary of the Sunday school, and Mr. J. Butcher, the sexton of the church, were each the recipients of a handsome gift in token of the fact that their services during the year had been greatly appreciated by the Sabbath school. Following is a list of prize winners:—

GIRLS

Mrs. Stone's Class—Margaret Burnett, Katie Morris, Eleanor Seward.

Miss Burnham's Class—Alma Foote, Hazel Baker, Louisa Morris.

Miss Layfield's Class—Dora Dutton, Grace Crowe, Florence Drury.

Mr. Mitchell's Class—Jim Dennistoun, Jack Dennistoun, Carl Halpany.

Miss Brown's Class—Wilfrid Stratton, H. Godfrey.

Miss Sawer's Class—Frank Pigeon, A. Horfield, Carl Baker.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

The gospel meeting to be held tomorrow afternoon at 4.15 will be led by Mrs. H. P. Kennedy and special music will be rendered by Mrs. G. B. Miller. All young women are cordially invited to be present.

Miss Weir's Literary Club will meet for the first time this year on Tuesday, Jan. 10th, at 8 p.m.

Mrs. J. M. Roberts has kindly consented to take charge of the Bible class, the first meeting of which will be held on Friday evening, Jan. 13th.

It is hoped that all members of these classes will be present at the first meetings of the new year and any new members will be very welcome.

FIRST BIG STORM DELAYED TRAINS

Sixteen Inches of Snow in About Twenty-four Hours.

STREET RAILWAY TROUBLES.

The Sweeper Has Been Busy Throughout the Storm—Good Schedule Being Observed—Trains Were Late To-day.

The first heavy fall of the winter is now descending. It has been doing business since early yesterday afternoon. The result is now being noted in the delay to all kinds of traffic. Trains to-day were somewhat late, for the fall has continued steadily. The Peterborough weather man says that sixteen inches of snow fell between three o'clock yesterday afternoon and 12 o'clock today.

The Street Railway Company's sweeper has been busy since early last evening, and in order to keep the tracks clear, continued its operations during the night. A very good schedule is working to-day and the citizens who live at a distance from the centre of the town appreciate the service.

The C.P.R. east was chiefly affected by the snow. The 5.10 west-bound express did not reach here until about one o'clock, and the 7.20 local followed about 1.30 The noon train from the West was only twenty-five minutes late. The G.T.R. train from the north at noon was one hour late. The Belleville flyer was late, but his was on account of a wait at the starting point for passengers from the main line. The train from Port Hope this morning was about on time.

Should the storm continue it will have a very serious effect upon railway traffic.

OYAMA TO KUROPATKIN

Tells of Port Arthur's Fall and News is Confounding.

Russians Had Anticipated Long Resistance, and It Is Believed That Marshal Oyama's Letter Will Have An Immediate Influence On the Situation On Shakhe River—Rojestvensky Struck Unchartered Rock—No Details.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—The Lokal Anzieger's Mukden correspondent in a despatch, dated Jan. 6, says:

"Field Marshal Oyama has sent a letter to General Kuropatkin communicating the news of the capitulation of Port Arthur, and praising the bravery of its defenders. The effect of the news was especially confounding, last reports anticipating a long resistance. It is believed it will immediately influence the situation on the Shakhe River. Continued and intense cannonading has been heard since dawn along the railroad near Shinchiapu and Shakhe. A resumption of cannonading to-morrow is expected."

Turn Searchlight On.

Mukden, Jan. 7.—The night of Jan. 5, the Japanese turned searchlights on the Russian position at the Village of Ingoy, and tried to drive out the troops from the advanced positions, but were driven back. The same day there was a collision of Russian foraging parties with Japanese scouts near the Ilun River. The foragers drove back the Japanese.

Struck On Unchartered Rock.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 7.—A despatch received at 1 o'clock yesterday morning says that the squadron under Rojestvensky had departed from Antongil Bay on the east coast and that on the passage outward to the Diego Suarez Bay the Kniaz Souvaroff struck an unchartered rock off East Cape, about forty miles from Antongil Bay.

The coast line all the way north to the harbor of Diego Suarez is very rocky and merchant ships always keep off the coast from fifteen to sixteen miles. If it be true that the battleship was lost off East Cape there was little chance that the men on board could be rescued by natives. The nearest town of any consequence, the Admiralty says, is Antalaha, ten miles directly north toward Diego Suarez Bay.

Crew May Have Been Saved.

It is regarded, however, as strange that the first news should come from Tamatave, as the important town of Maudritsaraff at the head of Antongil Bay, is more than seventy miles nearer the point at which it is said the great warship foundered. Further details are expected every moment. It may be that one of the battleships or torpedo boat destroyers were near at the time, in which event nearly all of the crew must have been saved.

The Admiralty fears, however, that the battleship must have struck the rock at night and may have been far in advance of the other ships in the fleet. The navigator of the battleship is one of the most experienced sailors in the navy and served a long apprenticeship in the merchant service.

Nothing has been heard from the other division of the squadron of Rear-Admiral Voelkersam, which was on the same side of the Madagascar coast, but 110 miles further south. It was the intention of the Admiralty to order the entire squadron to return by way of the Suez Canal, pending further additions to the fleet from the Baltic Sea.

80 GO ON PAROLE.

Gen. Stoessel and These Officers Will Return Via Nagasaki.

Tokio, Jan. 7.—The Navy Department announces that the Japanese force at Port Arthur has sunk the following Russian war vessels in that harbor:

Torpedo boats—The Gaidamak and [illegible].

Torpedo boat destroyers—The Jeffiny, Siak and Boevol.

The armored cruiser Bayan is lying on the south coast of the harbor, severely damaged.

The gunboat Bobri is entirely burned as the result of the Japanese shelling.

Only eighty Russian officers have accepted parole.

All the regular Russian troops marched out of Port Arthur and left for Port Dalny yesterday.

Japanese troops entered the city Thursday to keep order.

Non-combatants are allowed the option of remaining at Port Arthur.

The Japanese navy is removing mines against the Japanese hulls at the harbor mouth.

All the forts have been taken over by the Japanese.

General Stoessel, and the other Russian officers, who leave Port Arthur on parole, will return to their homes via Nagasaki.

Only Ten Serviceable Vessels.

Tokio, Jan. 7.—Discussing the condition of the Russian war vessels at Port Arthur, a naval officer said to the Associated Press yesterday:

"At present there are only ten serviceable vessels there and those were used by the Russians to regain the shore after setting fire to the warships, sinking vessels and almost blocking the harbor mouth. It is still unsafe to bring outside vessels through the mine fields and entrance obstructions. The lack of divers' appliances and small boats makes it impossible to closely examine the water filled hulks, and it is difficult to destroy them at short notice."

Jap Diet's Opinion.

Tokio, Jan. 7.—The Diet at a special session yesterday adopted a resolution felicitating the Emperor on the subject of the year's campaigning climaxed by the fall of Port Arthur, attributed it to his majesty's illustrious virtue and thanked General Nogi and the third army for their glorious achievement.

Returned to Russia.

Moscow, Jan. 4.—A telegram from General Kuropatkin to the Grand Duchess Sergius, who has been active throughout the war in aiding the sick and wounded, states that since the opening of the war 1,000 officers and 19,615 men have returned to Russia, of whom 520 officers and 5,065 men were wounded, and 570 officers and 14,730 men were sick.

Report Unfounded.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 7.—Reports that Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's flagship, the battleship Kniaz Souvaroff, has struck a rock and sunk, are unfounded.

NO PEACE OVERTURES.

Japan Will Press the War More Vigorously Than Ever in the North With More Troops.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 7.—Japan has made no overtures for peace to Russia, directly or indirectly, through the United States or any other power; she contemplates no such action and, now that Port Arthur has fallen, proposes to press the war in the north all the more vigorously by reinforcing the Japanese armies at Liaoyang, with the greater part of the troops which have been besieging Port Arthur. This in brief represents the views of Gogoro Takahira, the Japanese minister.

"The fall of Port Arthur," said the minister, "is but a step in the war which Japan is waging for a principle. Certainly it is an important step, but nothing could be further from the truth than the assumption that because Japan has captured a stronghold, the fall of which long has been expected, the Japanese Government will now make overtures for peace, nor have the powers approached us with any idea of intervention."

PEACE.

Count Cassini Says No Russian Will Admit Such a Probability Just Now.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—Count Cassini, Russian Ambassador, yesterday granted an interview. He spoke of the rumors that the fall of Port Arthur would hasten peace, of reports of dissensions within the Russian Empire, and of the statement from St. Petersburg that the fleet now at Madagascar would be recalled.

"Have any peace proposals been made to Russia, or will they be considered if made at this time by Japan, either directly or through another power?" the Ambassador was asked.

"No such proposals have been made, so far as I am aware," he replied. "No proposals for peace would be accepted or considered under present conditions. As I have said many times, we made it possible to avoid this war, but we were forced to enter it. It is perhaps well to repeat that when war began there were in Manchuria only 60,000 Russian troops, and this is the best proof that we had no idea of initiating hostilities.

"Now, we have made immense sacrifices of blood, and in money, and it is clear that Russia is obliged to and will pursue this war to the bitter end. There is no Russian who at this moment can admit the possibility of entering into discussion of peace."

"SLIM" DALY ARRESTED

Detectives Day and Cockburn Take Him to Woodstock.

Later, An Accomplice, Kinsella, Was Arrested in Buffalo, and Confessed That They Had Torn Up Securities Worth Thousands the Property of An Englishman Which Were in Valise Taken From G.T.R. Train.

Buffalo, Jan. 7.—Railway Detectives Day and Cockburn of Toronto, left here yesterday for Woodstock, Ont., taking with them Charles, alias "Slim" Daly, who is wanted by the Canadian authorities on a charge of grand larceny. Soon after the departure of the officers, the Buffalo detectives captured one of Daly's pals, who it is alleged was an accessory to the crime charged against Daly. He is known as Gus Phillips and also by the name of Kinsella.

Kinsella and Daly, it is alleged, stole a valise from an English tourist, who was on a Grand Trunk train en route from Detroit to Buffalo. The valise, which is said to have contained papers worth thousands of dollars, was taken from the train at Harrisburg. It was traced back to Woodstock and thence to Buffalo. The Buffalo detectives located Daly first and placed him under arrest. They found the valise, which contained clothing and a valuable scarf pin belonging to the English tourist, but found no trace of the missing papers.

In watching for the return of Kinsella, the detectives made another arrest, which is regarded as important. The prisoner gave his name as Harry Brown of New York. In searching Brown, they found letters addressed to him by Kinsella and other young men employed as bell boys in various cities. These letters caused the detectives to suspect that many bell boys employed in various cities were banded together for theft.

After the arrest of Brown and Daly, Kinsella kept away from their room, but the detectives located him late yesterday afternoon and placed him under arrest. Kinsella admitted his association with Daly and Brown. He said that he and Daly, not knowing the value of the papers in the valise taken from the Grand Trunk train, had torn them up while they were in Woodstock. This information was wired to the officers who took Daly away. They at once wired back that they would return to Buffalo for Kinsella as soon as possible.

The Canadian officers displayed great interest in the missing papers. They said the papers consisted of thousands of dollars worth of securities, which the Englishman intended to sell in Boston before returning to his home.

Africa Once an Ocean.

In Lake Tanganyika is found a certain species of jellyfish, or medusa, unknown to any other fresh water lake. It therefore seems probable that the lake was once connected in some way with the sea. This theory has been strengthened by the presence of a series of whelklike mollusks found in the lake.

Is Your Liver To Blame?

HERE ARE THE SYMPTOMS WHICH TELL OF A CONGESTED LIVER, AND INDICATE THE NEED OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The tongue is coated, the appetite impaired, digestion is deranged, the bowels are constipated and there are feelings of fulness and soreness about the liver.

You may have nausea and dizziness, pains in the limbs, feverishness, yellowness of the eye and skin, depression of spirits, and irritability of temper.

So great is the influence of the liver on the other organs of the body that once it is deranged, the whole system seems to be upset.

There are no means by which you can so quickly and certainly obtain relief from torpid, sluggish liver action as by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

One pill at bedtime, and the result is a thorough cleansing of the filtering and excretory systems, and new vigor and regularity for liver kidneys and bowels.

No family medicine has been more extensively used in Canada than Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and none has such a reputation for reliability and certainty of action.

Enliven the action of the liver by this well known treatment, and you ensure good digestion and regular action of the bowels—the foundation of good health.

"I was a sufferer for years with stomach trouble and terrible headaches, and spent a good many dollars in medicine without receiving any benefit. Hearing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills highly recommended, I determined to give them a trial, and did so with the most satisfactory results, as I was very greatly benefitted and do not hesitate to recommend this treatment as the best obtainable for such ailments."—Mrs. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterborough Co., Ont.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"It was through her pen that I traced her. She had taken a story to a man called Valentine Ross. But she did not speak of her affairs. When we parted I expected to see her again."

Sir Ralph's voice slightly faltered as he said these last words, and again that dusky color rose to his face.

"Then—you went to her with—a purpose?" said George, slowly.

"I went to her with a purpose," answered Sir Ralph. "As I told you before, Mr. Gifford, I do not seek to defend myself; to you, at least, I have no defense to offer. I went to try to induce her to go abroad with me until we could be married; but she refused to accept my offer. There is no blame due to her; none, none!" continued Sir Ralph, excitedly, and he began to pace the room with irregular footsteps. "If ever there was a woman who deserved respect and honor from all men it is—your wife. She asked me to leave her; to leave her for motives which I do not understand, and yet which I honor. She has been alone since she left you; alone, toiling, I believe, for her daily bread rather than accept all I could offer her."

"Then she will probably starve," retorted George Gifford, bitterly. "I do not believe she can make enough to live on—and this is all your doing."

"I would do anything to undo what I have done. And I ought to tell you, when I saw her that evening she spoke of you—spoke with regret and kindness."

"Much kindness she showed!" interrupted George, angrily.

"At all events, she seemed to think more of your feelings than she thought of mine. But why continue this conversation? It can do no good; it is only painful, and I have told you everything I know."

"Will you give me the address where she was lodging at Putney, and I will go?"

"I will get it for you. She went there by the name of Miss Boyd, and she was lodging above a small linen-draper's shop, just after you have crossed the bridge. They call the people Hare."

George took down the address, and then almost without another word he left Harewood. He was now convinced that his wife had never been with Sir Ralph, but he knew also that she had left him for Sir Ralph's sake. He rode moodily back to Suffold. He asked himself what he should do. At all events he was bound to see that she did not starve. He remembered the straits she had been in before he married her. He understood now why she had married him, and the thought was very bitter to him. She had married him because she believed Sir Ralph was changed to her, and she had nothing to live on.

George felt an angry man when he returned to Red House, and Anna Lindsay knew that he had heard something fresh, but she dare not ask him what it was. But when, two days later, he announced his intention of going up to town, without giving any reason, she felt very uneasy.

"Could he have heard where Laura was, and was he going to her?" Anna asked herself, jealously. But there was something in George's manner that forbade her to make any inquiries.

So George went away unquestioned, and at Putney he heard every word of Sir Ralph's story confirmed.

"Oh, yes," said sad-faced Mrs. Hare, "I remember Miss Boyd perfectly, for she was quite the lady, poor dear." And Mrs. Hare shook her head.

"And did any one come to see her?" asked George, with darkling brow.

"Just once. A tall, dark-faced gentleman. He came one evening, and I misdoubt he brought poor Miss Boyd some bad news. I heard her a-moaning and groaning most all the night after he was gone, and walking about as if she could get no rest. And in the morning she went away, with such a look on her face I could not get it out of my head for days. Then in the afternoon the gentleman came back, and he was that awful put out when he heard she was gone I thought he was going to take a fit; but he didn't. He put as much as two pounds into my hand, and then he went away, for he was quite a gentleman, as any one could see."

"And you have heard nothing more of the lady?"

"Not a word. My belief is there is nothing more to hear, and that she's lying in the river-bed; but that's only suspicion. And to be sure she took her books and papers with her, and they could be of no use to her there."

"But what makes you think of such a thing?" asked George, in some agitation.

"Just her looks when she went away. She had a kind of it's all up look in her face as she crossed those doors, if ever a woman had."

This was all George could learn at Putney, and the police had no news for him. He, however, renewed his offer of a reward for any information concerning his lost wife, and he left her photograph with the superintendent, with whom he was in communication.

Then he returned to Suffold, but still he did not tell either his father or Anna Lindsay of his errand to town. He did not speak of Laura now, and they also did not speak of her to him. They fell into their old ways, Anna Lindsay ordered the house and studied George's tastes, and played whist with her uncle and cousin in the quiet evenings. It was the same as before his marriage, and yet with a difference. Laura's memory rankled in George's heart, and he could not forgive the wife who had forsaken him.

But suddenly, in the winter-time, news came of Laura at last. A telegram first, and then a letter from the superintendent of police in London, with whom George had intrusted the case, recalled him to town. In the letter the superintendent regretted to inform Mr. Gifford that the body of a poor lady had been rescued from the river, who appearance bore so strong a resemblance to the portrait in his possession that he himself had no doubt as to its identity. But he requested Mr. Gifford at once to proceed to London, also for the purpose of identification.

This letter was a great shock to George. He remembered at once what the shopkeeper's wife had said at Putney of the despairing look on Laura's face when she had left her house; he remembered a hundred things which in his anger against her he had well-nigh forgotten.

He went up to the town at once, and was met by the superintendent, who led him, half-dazed, to the place where the still figure lay whom he was to pronounce had been his wife or not.

"The face is a good deal disfigured," said the superintendent, pitifully, gently raising the white cloth that covered it, "but still I think there is no doubt."

For a moment or two George could not look. The place seemed to swim around him. The cold stillness struck a deadly chill on his heart.

"This is the portrait," said the superintendent, still gently.

Then George glanced at the picture in the man's hand; glanced at the handsome smiling woman—at Laura, taken on her bridal tour in Paris; at Laura, dressed in the gown and jewels he had given her—and then—

He looked at the dead face before him. It was white, save where a hideous mark across the upper part of it had disfigured the fair lineaments. The dark hair fell thickly around the shapely head. The little hand with the wedding-ring on the third finger was clenched. The eyes were closed, but the fringed lids George thought he remembered only too well.

"I think there's no mistake, sir," said the superintendent, and he held the portrait of the bride down so as to touch the dead face. "She must have struck against something as she fell; it's broken the nose bone, d'ye see?"

No word came from George's pale lips. He stood staring as if spellbound at the ghastly figure lying before him.

"There is no mistake," something seemed to whisper in his ear, "no mistake;" and then he staggered back and almost fell into the superintendent's stalwart arms.

"Do you identify the poor lady, sir?" he asked.

"Yes," half-whispered George: and then the man led him away, and George shuddered as he went.

• • • • • • • • • •

The next day they laid her in her untimely grave and George followed her to the quiet cemetery they had chosen for her last resting-place. She was buried there as the wife of George Gifford of Suffold, but nothing was told of her tragic ending or her brief sad life. It was a case of suicide, it was supposed, but there was no fact absolutely to prove this. It was a mystery, and in spite of all investigations such it remained.

But on the day after the funeral George wrote two letters, one addressed to his father and the other to Sir Ralph Woodland at Harewood. To his father he simply told the sad news that poor Laura was dead, that he had seen her after death, and that she was buried. He felt that it would do no good now to fill the gossips' lips with any dreary particulars. Only to Sir Ralph Woodland he told the bitter truth.

"Sir," he wrote, "Yesterday I followed my poor wife to her grave. Her body had been found in the river two days previously, and I was called to London to identify her. There was no doubt; and I think your own conscience must now reproach you for your unjustifiable conduct toward her.

"GEORGE GIFFORD."

This letter was forwarded to Sir Ralph from Harewood to his club in town, and absolutely overwhelmed him with horror, and bitter unavailing remorse. For days he was a man distraught, and then he decided to leave England, carrying away with him the ever-present memory of the woman he loved.

To be continued.

—The annual meeting of the Townships of Smith and Ennismore and Village of Lakefield Agricultural Society will be held in the town hall, Lakefield, on Wednesday January, 11th, at 1.30 p.m. A full attendance of the members is requested.

DEAF?

And have Catarrh? Japanese Catarrh Cure will Cure you of both.

Japanese Catarrh Cure has cured more cases of deafness than all the "cures for deafness" in existence. Simply because 90 cases out of 100 come from catarrh. The tubes, leading from the back of the throat to the ears, become inflammed by catarrh. The ulceration prevents sound from reaching the drums, causing buzzing, roaring and finally deafness. Japanese Catarrh Cure kills the catarrh germs, clears away the offensive discharges, and heals the membranes.

The Baby Sick?

Then probably it's a cold. Babies catch cold so easily and recover so slowly. Not slowly, however, when you use Vapo-Cresolene. Then a single night is all that is necessary for a cure. You just put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and place near the crib. While baby sleeps he breathes-in the healing vapor. Cold loosens, inflamed membranes heal, and all trouble ceases. It's a perfect specific for whooping-cough and croup.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists, or sent express prepaid on receipt of price. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including a bottle of Cresolene, complete $1.50. Send for free illustrated booklet. Leeming, Miles Co., Ltd., Agents, 288 St. James St., Montreal.

The Daily Review

SATURDAY, JAN. 7, 1905.

RESCUED CANADIANS.

Crew of Nova Scotia Brigantine Taken to Gloucester.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 7.—The Gloucester schooner Theodore Roosevelt reached port last night bringing the captain, two mates, steward, four seamen and the captain's wife of the British brigantine Ohio, from Kingsport, N.S., for New York with a cargo of lumber. The Ohio was abandoned yesterday leaking, badly crippled by the terrific gale off Grand Manan. The Roosevelt put on board the brigantine a crew of eight men who are trying to work the vessel into this harbor.

19 Probably Dead.

Hamburg, Jan. 7.—The sea-going tug Cyklop with a crew of seven and the steamer Oskar, whose crew numbered 12, have not been reported since Dec. 30, and are given up as lost in the hurricane which raged a week ago.

STABBED AT LINDSAY.

Aged Man From Peterboro Meets With a Serious Mishap.

Lindsay, Jan. 7.—At 9 o'clock yesterday morning a man named Henry Syers was found lying in an open shed at the Central House, benumbed with cold and liberally bathed in blood that flowed from a nasty two-inch wound on the inside of his thigh, near the main artery of the leg. Syers says that he came to town from Peterboro on the 9.45 train Thursday night, and that when walking from the station he was accosted by a stranger who persisted in walking with him. He turned into the hotel yard to evade the stranger, who followed him, stabbed him, and robbed him of $30. Syers was taken to the home of his son in town. There is no clue to his assailant's identity.

Cleared River of Ice.

Quebec, Jan. 7.—In eight hours Thursday the powerful ice-breaking steamer Montcalm cleared the St. Lawrence of packed ice varying from 8 to 15 feet in thickness for a distance of about two miles, extending from St. Romauld to a point about a mile west of Quebec bridge.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poisons of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and, although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in the ordinary charcoal tablets."

THEY ELECT OFFICERS

Eastern Dairymen's Association Choose Officials For 1905.

D. Derbyshire, M.P.-Elect, Chief For Another Term—Prof. J. A. Ruddick, the New Dairy Commissioner, Delivers An Interesting Address—Prof. Grisdale Speaks of Sister Industries, Dairying and Bacon Production.

Brockville, Jan. 7.—The closing session of the Dairymen's Convention was held yesterday morning. The first speaker was J. W. Mitchell, principal of the Kingston Dairy School, who confined himself to topics of a scientific and technical nature. The merits and defects of the system of cream gathering in vogue in Ontario was taken principally as a text. Professor Dean thought the adoption of the system unwise. To make good butter the milk must be delivered in sweet condition.

The following officers were then elected: President, D. Derbyshire, M.P.-elect; first vice-president, J. R. Dargavel, Elgin; second vice-president, G. G. Publow, Kingston; third vice-president, L. L. Gallagher, Wilton; fourth vice-president, J. H. Singleton, Newboro.

Directors: Division No. 1—E. Kidd, M.P., North Gower; No. 2, William Eager, Morrisburg; No. 3, L. Patton, Brockville; No. 4, J. Whitton, Williams Corners; No. 5, T. B. Carlow, Warkworth; No. 6, H. Glendenning, Manilla.

Honorary Director, Jas. Anderson, Mountain View.

New Dairy Commissioner.

Prof. J. A. Ruddick, the new dairy commissioner, in an interesting address showed the increase in the dairy industry of Canada in the ten years comencing 1890 to 1900. The total value in 1890 was $10,699,879, divided as follows: Ontario, $7,569,338; Quebec, $2,918,527; Prince Edward Island, $8,448; Nova Scotia, $47,675; New Brunswick, $29,152; Manitoba, $103,887; Northwest Territories, $17,322; British Columbia, $3,580.

The output of 1900 totalled $29,462,402 as follows: Ontario, $14,968,922; Quebec, $12,874,277; Prince Edward Island, $567,802; Nova Scotia, $127,077; New Brunswick, $245,695; Manitoba, $416,272; Northwest Territories, $156,687; British Columbia, $105,690.

This shows an increase in Canada in ten years of $18,764,523. In 1890 there were 1,565 cheese factories and 170 creameries; in 1900 2,398 cheese factories and 629 creameries, and 584 combination cheese and butter factories.

Bacon Production.

Prof. Grisdale of Ottawa, discussed the sister industries, dairying and bacon productions, and stated that Eastern Ontario had not yet taken the place it should in producing bacon for the reason that the farmers do not apply the valuable by-products of the dairy in cultivating the production of bacon.

G. A. Putnam, who followed, spoke relative to the requirements for the production of marketable bacon.

On motion of Prof. Publow, seconded by J. H. Singleton, a resolution was passed recommending all cheese manufacturers to cool milk to a temperature of 65 degrees in preference to depending solely on the use of the aerator.

The concluding address of the convention was delivered by Dr. Stark of Finch, with regard to the question of freight transportation, and suggested that dairymen should hold public meetings to protest against the arbitrary raising of rates on dairy products, and to make an effort to have both freight and passenger rates adjusted at a fair and equitable hearing.

J. BARRY'S SUICIDE.

Farmer Worth $25,000 Shoots Himself in a Winnipeg Hotel.

Winnipeg, Jan. 7.—J. Barry, who committed suicide in the Palace Hotel yesterday morning by shooting himself with a 44-calibre revolver, was a prosperous farmer, and the papers found in his possession would indicate that he was worth about $25,000. He left a note requesting that his body be shipped to Brymner, Ont., his former home, and this will be done. No inquest will be held, as a deliberate suicide was apparent. He had quarreled with his wife recently.

Aged Tramp Tries to End His Life.

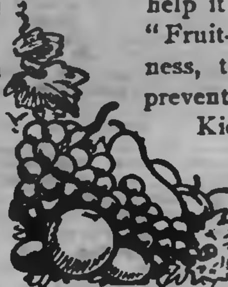
London, Jan. 7.—What was apparently a deliberate attempt at suicide occurred yesterday morning about 9 o'clock, near the Cove bridge. An old man, who gives his name as James Ryan, plunged into the water on the north side of the river, but crawled out again. He wore all his clothing and was immersed from head to foot. Dripping wet he went to the house of Mrs. Smith, who lives near-by, who passed him on to another neighbor. Her warm blankets were wrapped around him and the ambulance telephoned for. Ryan was taken to Victoria Hospital, where he is recovering from his voluntary dip. He is about 70 years of age.

Toronto's 1904 Fire Loss.

Toronto, Jan. 7.—The annual report of the Fire Department, which will be presented by Chief Thompson to the Fire and Light Committee today, will contain a statement of the biggest loss by fire that the city has sustained in its history. The figures as compiled by Secretary McGowan and Statistician Reddick of the department will set forth an approximate loss of $10,500,000, which amount has never been at all approached in any previous year.

Sir Percy's Position.

London, Jan. 7.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Percy Girouard has been appointed staff officer to the commanding officer of the eastern district.



Biliousness

You can't cure Biliousness with calomel, liver pills, or "purely vegetable" purgatives. They "stir up" the liver, but after their effects are gone, the trouble returns worse than ever.

Fruit-a-tives

or Fruit Liver Tablets

are fruit juices in tablet form. The corrective and curative effects are, however, increased many times by the secret method of making them. They tone up the liver—enable it to give out more bile—and help it to get strong and well. While "Fruit-a-tives" are curing the Biliousness, they set the stomach to rights, prevent Constipation and relieve all Kidney Diseases.

FRUITATIVES, Limited
OTTAWA

Will Tender For Mail Contract.

Montreal, Jan. 7.—The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company of Southampton, England, have decided to tender for the carrying of the Canadian mails between Canada and the West Indies. A representative of the company held a lengthy interview with Sir Richard Cartwright recently, when all particulars as to what the company is prepared to give to the Canadian Government were discussed. It is believed that the Elder-Dempster Steamship Company will also tender for this contract.

After the Session.

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—It is doubtful whether Sir Wilfrid Laurier will meet Senator Fairbanks in the immediate future. The Prime Minister will be engaged from now on with his Parliamentary work, and Mr. Fairbanks will be tied down at Washington by his Senatorial duties. If a meeting between the two gentlemen takes place, therefore, it may not be until after the session.

Died Four Years After Fall.

London, Jan. 7.—The death occurred yesterday morning at the residence of his father, London township, of Llewelyn G. Russell, youngest son of Alexander Russell. The deceased, who was in his 23rd year, fell out of a tree on his father's farm about four years ago, injuring his spine. Since then he has been unable to leave his bed.

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," a tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proved that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils, and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease, as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics, and so-called blood "purifiers," will find Stuart's Calcium Wafers, a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

WHITNEY WELCOMES ROSS.

Glad to Hear He Was Nominated As An Independent.

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—P. D. Ross, the independent candidate, nominated by the Conservatives here, replies to the story published in Toronto as to dissatisfaction with his nomination by handing out the following letter:

"My Dear Mr. Ross,—I was very glad to hear of your nomination as a candidate for the Legislature. I welcome it, particularly on the conditions laid down by you in accepting it and hope that the new Legislature will contain other gentlemen holding similar views of public duty. Yours faithfully, J. P. Whitney."

Can This Be True?

On Friday The Toronto Globe said: When the news reached Mr. Whitney yesterday in this city that Mr. P. D. Ross had accepted the Tory nomination in Ottawa, with the reservation that he should be given an independent hand after the fight to turn the Hon. George W. Ross out of office had ended, there was a hurried consultation called at the offices of the Conservative organizer. The fear was expressed that the Ottawa Tories, recognizing that their party would be defeated, desired to have at least one candidate in the field, who, if he succeeded in securing election, should be free to give to the victorious Liberals an independent support. It is understood that Mr. Whitney has asked that Mr. Ross, as well as Mr. Murphy, be requested to give a pledge that, if elected, they will stand by the Tory party in Opposition. It is further alleged that if this pledge is not given there will be another convention called and other candidates nominated.

The Globe printed the foregoing paragraph in its morning issue. Mr. Whitney's letter to P. D. Ross was received by all the papers Friday morning. The Globe did not use it in its afternoon edition, but reprinted the paragraph concerning Mr. Whitney's alleged displeasure.

Hugh Blain in North Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 7.—About 200 delegates to the North Toronto Liberal convention in St. Paul's Hall last night selected Hugh Blain of the firm of Eby, Blain & Co., to oppose Dr. Beattie Nesbitt on Jan. 25. The selection was a unanimous one. Complimentary nominations were tendered to T. C. Robinette, K.C., J. G. Ramsden, Stapleton Caldecott, Elias Rogers and F. S. Spence.

PICKED UP AT SEA.

Six of Crew of Nova Scotia Schooner Rescued By Orient Liner.

New York, Jan. 7.—Six men of the crew of the Lockport, N.S., schooner Julian H. Archer, were brought here yesterday on board the steamer Prinz Adalbert, having abandoned their vessel on Christmas Day after a terrible two weeks' experience in a prolonged winter gale. They were rescued from their sinking craft by the German steamer Nubia, bound from New York for the Orient, and were transferred to the Prinz Adalbert a week ago. All the members of the shipwrecked crew apparently had recovered from their hard experiences when they arrived here yesterday.

Insensible On the Roadway.

Belle Ewart, Jan. 7.—Thomas Ferrier, foreman here for the Belle Ewart Ice Company, died on his way from Toronto to this place on Tuesday. He was picked up insensible on the roadway near Temperanceville, a small place five miles north of Richmond Hill, and one and a quarter miles west of Yonge street. He died within a few hours and nothing is known as yet as to how the accident happened. He leaves a widow and several children.

Baby Eczema.

"My daughter was afflicted with eczema when from three weeks old. Her entire face and head were raw, and she was in awful distress. When doctors failed we began the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which has entirely cured her and she has never had the least symptom of the trouble since."—Mr. Patrick Sullivan, Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont.

GERMANS FIGHT HEREROS.

Part of New Year's Day Was Spent in a Struggle.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—Four companies of German infantry, one of cavalry and half a battery of artillery, in German Southwest Africa, spent part of New Years Day in a fierce fight with insurgent Hereros that ended in a bayonet charge through the undergrowth, and the rout of the natives. Lieutenant-General Von Trotha in telegraphing the news did not give the number of killed or wounded on either side, but says the natives lost heavily.

Loyalty Not Bought.

London, Jan. 7.—(C.A.P.)—Referring to the statement of the agent-general for South Australia, that if England did not enter into a preferential arrangement, Australia would seek a commercial treaty with some other power, Right Hon. G. H. Reid, Premier of Australia, said the loyalty of Australia was something much higher than any bargaining transaction. It was inconceivable that the commonwealth would ever make a commercial treaty with any power other than England, and thus be oblivious to the fact that Great Britain keeps her ports open to Australian products.

France and Morocco Agree.

Washington, Jan. 7.—France and Morocco have settled recent misunderstanding, and the French Minister at Tangier is proceeding to the court of the Sultan for an audience.

The Economy of it.

Armour's Extract of Beef

is an economy as well as a necessity. There's a "thousand and one" uses for it in the modern home.

It's the cheapest of all stocks for soups, gravies and sauces. It makes the most delicious addition to chafing dish dainties. Hot water and ¼ teaspoonful of Armour's Extract makes the richest bouillon and beef tea you ever tasted.

It's so handy to have in case of emergencies for luncheon and dinner—indispensable for the sickroom—always ready for use—instantly prepared.

If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous year's, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

HOCKEY.

The West End team defeated the Beavers in a rough contest at the Brock-st. rink last evening. The winners played good hockey. The losers were heavier and did considerable rough playing. The score was 6—1 in favor of the West End.

The teams were as follows—

West Ends		Beavers
	Goal
McFadden		Halpin.
	Point
Kenneally		Lazure
	Coverpoint.
McKnight		Hayes
	Rover
Whaley		Ross
	Centre

PORT PERRY WAS BADLY BEATEN

Local Seven Ran up a Score of 20 to 8.

FIRST INTERMEDIATE GAME.

Visitors Were Outclassed in Every Department of the Match—Some Fast Work Done by the Local Forwards—Played Runaway Game in Second Half.

About 900 people saw Peterborough walk away from Port Perry in the opening game of the O.H.A. intermediate series last evening. The locals had no trouble at any stage of the game, winning handily by 20 to 8. The half time score was 7 to 4 in favor of Peterborough. The game was a good fast exhibition, though a trifle one-sided, and some of the playing was of a decidedly spectacular nature. The feature of the match was the great playing of the locals. They put up the grandest kind of game and should make it more than interesting for the Lindsay team in the match on Monday night.

Port Perry put up a stubborn fight in the first half but faded away during the second period, the locals scoring at will. The game was a clean one, only a few players being sent to the boards.

PLAYED GREAT HOCKEY.

The home team played great hockey all the way through. They have a fast and well balanced team, and are able to go the entire distance at full speed. They were going faster at the finish last night than at any other time in the game. The forwards played a beautiful game. Their combination was very pretty to watch and nearly every goal was scored as the result of a combined rush. Two, three and sometimes four men handled the puck during these rushes, and the way it was passed back and forth delighted the hearts of the local fans.

Morgan, who has been under the weather for the last few days, was at centre, and certainly didn't show any effects of his illness. He put up a beautiful game, rushing splendidly and shooting like a Gatling gun. His shooting ability is evidenced by the fact that he scored 10 goals, just half of the total gathered in by the locals. Parnell at right wing also played grand hockey. He was in almost every combination play, and his stick handling was splendid. He also shot with deadly effect, netting five goals. Cavanah at rover was as dangerous as ever. He tore off many beautiful rushes and his long shots were very effective. He played his position as it should be played, checking back fast to aid the defence. Graham at right wing was not in fit condition to play hockey, having been ill for a few days, but he put up a fine game, sticking to his man like a leech and nicking in nicely with the other forwards in the combination plays.

The defence was strong and the Port Perry bunch had troubles of their own in breaking through. Crowley played an effective game at cover, breaking up many dangerous looking advances and rushing well. Glover at point checked like a pile driver and was always in the way when matters looked bad for the locals. "Rollie" has not had much practice, but he played a fine game last night. Wasson turned off some good ones, and also made a rush or two of his own at times to relieve the monotony.

THE VISITORS.

The Port Perry team was outclassed in every department of the game, although they worked hard all the way through. They had no combination to speak of, and the individual rushes were not effective against Peterborough's strong defence.

Dannison at rover played nice hockey and did some fine rushing. He was about the fastest man on the forward line. Stewart at right wing put up a horse of a game. He has a deadly wrist shot, which was instrumental in netting four goals. The defence was fairly strong, but could not do much with the local forward line when they cut loose with their combination. VanSinclair in goal kept the score from being even larger than it was, turning aside many shots labelled for the nets.

N. E. Irving, of Lindsay, refereed the game impartially and kept the players down to clean hockey.

THE TEAMS.

The teams lined up as follows:—

Peterborough (20).		Port Perry (8)
	Goal
Wasson		VanSinclair
	Point.
Glover		Carnegie
	Coverpoint.
Crowley		Powers
	Rover.
Cavanah		Dennison
	Centre
Morgan		Jamieson
	Right Wing
Parnell		Stewart
	Left Wing
Graham		Whitaker

Referee, N. E. Irving, Lindsay; timekeepers, W. H. Harris, Port Perry; J. T. McCabe, Peterborough; penalty timekeeper, Fred Clarke, Peterborough; goal umpires, H. Lucas, Port Perry; C. Earls, Peterborough.

THE GAME.

The locals went right after them from the start. Port Perry defence broke up one rush, but Cavanah found the nets one minute after by a beautiful dash. Score 1—0.

Port Perry was not long in evening up, Dennison scoring from a neat rush along the boards. Score 1—1.

Port Perry pressed and things looked bad. Parnell and Morgan broke away from a scrimmage in front of Peterborough's nets and carried the rubber the length of the rink, the latter scoring. Score 2—1.

Port Perry again tied the score, a long shot from Stewart fooling Wasson. Score 2—2.

The locals pressed, but could not score for some time. Finally Parnell and Morgan worked in another beautiful combination rush, Morgan finding the nets with a neat shot. Score 3—2.

Once again Port Perry tied the score, Stewart doing the trick with a nice rush. Score 3—3.

Jamieson was ruled off for tripping. The locals had all the best of the playing. Cavanah's shot from the side was blocked, but Morgan was "Johnnie on the spot," and batted the rubber through. Score 4—3.

Morgan went off for bodying. Crowley and Parnell went the length of the ice, but failed to score. One of Cavanah's terrific wrist shots found the nets. Score 5—3.

Parnell served time for slashing. Dennison carried the puck from centre for a score. The result was 5—4.

From now on it was all off with the visitors, and Peterborough made a runaway game of it. Morgan and Cavanah worked in a nice combination rush, the former scoring. Score 6—4.

The four Peterborough forwards broke away and Graham scored from the side. Score 7—4.

Crowley and Stewart went off for mixing it up too freely. Half time was called soon after.

THE SECOND HALF.

The beginning of the second half found Crowley and Stewart still on the side line. Peterborough started off at a lightning clip, and within one minute Morgan had found the nets on a pass from Cavanah. Score 8—4.

Graham, Morgan and Cavanah carried the rubber the length of the ice, passing the puck back and forward, Graham scoring on a nice shot. Score 9—4.

Parnell and Morgan again broke loose and Parnell slammed in a nice one. Score 10—4.

There seemed to be only one team on the ice. The local forward line went right in on the nets and nothing could stop them. Morgan and Parnell made another nice two-man combination rush, Morgan finding the nets by a nice shot. Score 11—4.

A moment after he repeated the trick on a pass from Graham. Score 12—4.

Port Perry came out of their trance for a moment and Jamieson eluded the defence and scored on a neat rush. Score 12—5.

Parnell and Morgan again worked in another combined rush. The latter's shot whistled past VanSinclair. Score 13—5.

The next two goals went to the visitors, Stewart and Dennison finding the nets on a pretty individual rush. Score 13—7.

Glover broke up a rush and went nearly the length of the rink, passing to Parnell, who placed it where it would do the most good. Score 14—7.

A moment after Parnell again scored on a neat pass from Morgan. Score 15—7.

Graham broke a skate and had to go off, the visitors dropping a man. Parnell made a beautiful rush and handed the rubber to Cavanah, who slammed it in. Score 16—7.

Crowley went off for bodying and Powers followed for tripping Parnell. There was only five players on each side. Parnell made a beautiful shot from centre. Score 17—7.

Port Perry woke up for a minute and Stewart got their last goal on a shot from the side. Score 17—8.

Morgan got the next on a pass from Cavanah. Score 18—8.

From now on it was all Peterborough. Cavanah rushed the length of the ice, but fell when about to shoot. Another rush by the same player with a neat pass to Parnell resulted in another goal. Score 19—8.

Morgan made another neat rush, landing the puck in the nets. Score 20—8.

Peterborough scored another goal just after time was up, but it was not allowed.

Final score—Peterborough, 20; Port Perry 8.

Following are the players who scored the goals:—

Morgan, 10; Parnell, 5; Cavanah, 3; Graham, 2; Stewart, 4; Dennison, 3; Jamieson, 1.

HOCKEY

The West End team accept the challenge of Peter Johnston's Tigers, game to be played as soon as the Brock street rink can be secured.

The locals go to Lindsay on Monday night to do battle with the senior team of that place. If they play the game they did last night they should have no trouble in winning although Lindsay is said to have a pretty fast bunch. The local club will not run an excursion to Lindsay this game.

The Juniors will also play away from home on Monday night, playing Port Hope in that town. They will have the strongest team that has represented them this season and will make it decidedly interesting for the Port Hope bunch. Several rooters will accompany the team.

The Peterborough teams will play five league games next week. The seniors play with Lindsay on Monday night in Lindsay and also meet the same bunch here on Friday night. The juniors play in Port Hope on Monday and cross sticks with the speedy Belleville team here on Wednesday night. The T.A.S. play their first Trent Valley game on Thursday in Campbellford.

Cobourg has been transferred from No. 2 district of the Trent Valley league to No. 1 district, which will be composed of Picton, Belleville, Colborne, Brighton and Cobourg. This will leave T.A.S., Campbellford and Keene to struggle for the championship of District No. 2. The schedule for No. 2 will be the same except that the Cobourg scheduled games will not be played.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—A full attendance of workers is requested at Mr. Bradburn's committee rooms this evening. Let every worker turn out.

—Miss Shaw-Hillier will lecture in the Charlotte street church lecture room, to ladies, on Friday, Jan. 13th, at 8 o'clock. No admission.

—A regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held on Monday night. It will be the last meeting of the old Board for the year.

—The new Council will hold its inaugural meeting on Monday morning at 11 o'clock, when Mayor-elect Best will take the chair. The Aldermen will subscribe to the oath of office and the committee will be appointed to strike the standing committees for the year. The Council will then adjourn until the evening to receive the report.

—The Fortnightly Club meets on Monday evening at the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Jones, of Toronto, lectures on Temagami, with lantern slide illustrations. The tickets of membership for the whole course are only 25 cents. A large number of people will doubtless be interested in this part of our country.

—Preparatory communion service was held in St. Paul's church last night. There was a good attendance. Owing to the severe storm Rev. George Yule, of Springville, who was to have preached, was unable to get through and the service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Torrance. Twenty two communicants were received—twelve by certificate and ten on profession of faith. Communion will be dispensed in the church at the Sunday morning service.

A LOST ART.

The Blend of Metals Which Certain Races Used For Tools.

Fame and fortune await the lucky individual who can rediscover the combination of metals from which the Egyptians, the Aztecs and the Incas of Peru made their tools and arms. Though each of these nations reached a high state of civilization, none of them ever discovered iron in spite of the fact that the soil of all three countries was largely impregnated with it. Their substitute for it was a combination of metals which had the temper of steel. Despite the greatest efforts the secret of this composition has baffled scientists and has become a lost art. The great explorer, Humboldt, tried to discover it from an analysis of a chisel found in an ancient Inca silver mine, but all that he could find out was that it appeared to be a combination of a small portion of tin with copper. This combination will not give the hardness of steel, so it is evident that tin and copper could not have been its only component parts. Whatever might have been the nature of the metallic combination, these ancient races were able so to prepare pure copper that it equaled in temper the finest steel produced at the present day by the most scientifically approved process. With their bronze and copper instruments they were able to quarry and shape the hardest known stones, such as granite and porphyry, and even cut emeralds and like substances.

A rediscovery of this lost art would revolutionize many trades in which steel at present holds the monopoly. If copper could thus be tempered now its advantage over steel would be very great, and it would no doubt be preferred to the latter in numerous industries. It is a curious fact that, though this lost secret still baffles modern scientists, it must have been discovered independently by the three races which made use of it so long ago.

THE COMMON SPARROW.

He Is Not Always the Selfish Vagabond He Is Painted.

The house sparrow has been called a nuisance, a street gamin, a vagabond, a thief, a robber, and this by many so called bird lovers, yet, in my opinion, he is one of our most interesting birds. He is lively, bright, thrifty and brave. No one, not even his worst enemy, can gainsay this. He is also ever ready to help his own kind out of any difficulty into which they may fall.

One day, as I was walking up street past a large mill where dozens of sparrows were collected, I saw something which has much increased my esteem for the so called little street gamin. It was in nesting time, and young birds hardly able to fly were quite common. As I walked on my attention was attracted by one of these in the middle of the road alone. He was sitting there and every little while giving out a little disconsolate chirp. While I was watching him a delivery cart came down the street at full speed. The young bird was likely to be crushed, but I was not the only observer of its distress. As I watched about a dozen sparrows flew down and gathered round it. I didn't know what was going to happen for the minute, but I was soon enlightened. The flock of newcomers fairly hustled the little one out of the way of the oncoming cart and into the safety of the ditch. I don't know exactly how they did it, they moved so quickly, but I think it was in the same way that a man is carried onward in a crowd. He helps himself a little, and the people around him sweep him forward. The little incident clearly showed that sparrows are not always as selfish and unfeeling as they are painted.

Leader of Cossacks.

Major-General Rennenkampf, commander of Cossacks on the left flank of the Russian army in Manchuria, who recently checked a Japanese turning movement, is one of the most brilliant officers in that arm of the Czar's service.

In his early career as a soldier General Rennenkampf attracted the favorable notice of his superiors, with the result that he was called to St. Petersburg, where for several years he served on the general staff, going thence in the field with the Cossacks of the Don. In 1895 he was made colonel of the Thirty-sixth Regiment of Dragoons and four years later was appointed chief of staff of the Transbaikal Army Corps.

MAJOR GENERAL RENNENKAMPF.

Reaching the grade of major-general in 1900, he served in Manchuria throughout the Boxer uprising as leader of the Cossacks, winning the commendation of the Czar for his work. General Rennenkampf is about fifty years old and has two sons in the army.

Where Men Chew Paper.

Large quantities of papier mache will be used in rebuilding the palace of the King of Corea, which was burned last spring, and 1,000 natives especially selected for their strong jaws are employed in making pulp. Evidently gum chewing schoolboys and girls are scarce in Corea or men would not be diverted from their proper sphere to chew paper. This novel use of paper is not confined to Corea. There are houses of paper in Russia, chimneys made of paper and streets paved with paper. Krupp, the great German gunmaker, tested field-pieces made of paper and found that they offered greater resistance than steel pieces of the same calibre.

Advice to Athletic Girls.

Mrs. Frank Leslie writes to athletic girls thus:

Get strong, but without acquiring the insolence of strength. Be independent, but not aggressive. Cultivate grace of limb and body, and at the same time do not neglect that inner graciousness of spirit which is supposed to come natural to you without any training at all.

Then, glad nymph of the open air, will life be worth living, and then you can be made love to as never yet, for there is superb fresh ardor in the blood whose pulse throbs to the dash of the surf, the breath of the mountain pine, the wild gallop against wind and weather.

Toothbrushes.

The Buffalo Commercial records that a customer asked one of the women at the counter in a Main street drug store if he could take home some toothbrushes "on approval." The somewhat astonished young woman answered that she did not believe that the firm would allow it. "Now, possibly that strikes you as improbable," said the man in charge of the pharmacy counter, "but only last week I personally sold to a woman a toothbrush. Yesterday she brought it back and said it hurt her mouth and asked if we would be willing to exchange it."

Satisfaction.

Mrs. Upmore—You found a house to suit you at last, did you? Mrs. Highmore—Yes. I found one yesterday morning, and I amused myself the rest of the day by going around among the real estate agents and asking them if they had an eligible flat to rent to a family with fourteen children. You don't know how much fun it was to watch them go into conniption fits.

TRUNKS WENT OUT TO COAST

When They Should Have Gone to Victoria County.

EXPRESS COMPANY'S ERROR.

Costly Experience of Mr. M. A. Strohl, Employe of Lakefield Cement Co., Who Had to Pay $88.37 for Two Trunks of Clothing.

Mr. M. A. Strohl, who is employed at the Lakefield Cement Works, is having troubles of his own these days. Some two months ago Mr. Strohl and his wife left Lazaraus, Penn., where he was then working and came to Victoria Road, to work for the Cement Company there. They did not bring their trunks with them, and Mr. Srohl also left a portion of his tools in that city, intending to have them forwarded to Victoria Road later on. Mr. Strohl arranged with a friend in Lazaraus to have the trunks and a box shipped by express to them, and he did so, addressing them in this manner: "M. A. Strohl, Victoria, Victoria Co, Ont," and gave them in charge of the American Express Company. The express charges were to be collected at the end of the journey. By some mistake the trunks were sent to Victoria, B.C., and on their arrival in that city there was some difficulty in finding the owner. By this time Mr. Strohl had left Victoria Road, Ontario, and had entered the employ of the Lakefield Cement Company, and was anxiously awaiting his property. After tracers were sent out by the Express Company his belongings were found at Victoria, B.C. Mr. Strohl told the station agent at Lakefield to telephone the express people at Victoria, B.C., to send forward the trunks by freight to Lakefield, at the same time sending $40.63, which was the amound demanded as the express charges from Lazaraus, Penn., to Victoria, B.C. The goods were re-expressed from Victoria, instead of being sent by freight, as ordered, and reached here Saturday, and were placed in bond until the express charges from Victoria, B.C., to Lakefield, Ont., being $47.74, were paid.

Mr. Strohl has paid just $88.37 express charges on his two trunks and a box, which had a long journey to reach here. And he does not feel any too happy over the fact that he has had to pay at least four times the amount that he would have been charged had the parcels been properly shipped in the first place. Doubtless some satisfactory arrangement will be made with the Express Company whereby Mr. Strohl may not be so heavily taxed, but it goes to show how carefully address labels should be written and scrutinized by those who are responsible for their reaching their proper destination.

—The first meeting of the new County Council will be held on Tuesday January 24th, not on the 17th as Councillors will elect a Wadren and Provincial election it is probable the then adjourn for a few days, as most of the members are anxious to get home to record their votes.

—Mr. S. Stinson, the newly elected County Commissioner, requests the Review to state that a mistake of twenty votes was given to the public with regard to his election. Instead of receiving 613 votes he secured 633. The mistake in counting was at May's in North Monaghan.

—Mr. Jas. Backus, of Tweed, is the lucky possessor of a very valuable gold coin which was given to him last year. It is a two-dollar gold piece, minted in the year 1855, and said to be very, very rare. Its catalogue value is about $10,000. Mr. Backus wears the valuable emblem as a stick pin.

THE SEPARATE SCHOOL CASE.

The Downeyville Trouble Comes up Before Chancellor Boyd.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—The Downeyville Separate School trouble was brought up at Osgoode Hall this morning before Chancellor Boyd. It will be remembered the public school trustees sold the school at a nominal price and a public school ratepayer applied for an injunction against the Bishop of Peterborough. With the consent of counsel the case was adjourned until next Monday, application being made to continue the injunction in the meantime.

POWERFUL ADDRESS

Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen's Stirring Words at Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

"That man speaks as if he had lived what he spoke" was one of the comments on the address of Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen, acting assistant pastor of St. Paul's, at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday.

The subject was "A Man's Purpose" it being handled in a forcible manner by the speaker. The climax was an appeal to young men to live to glorify God through the surrender of their lives to Him.

All who heard Mr. Ketchen yesterday will want to hear him again next Sunday with many others.

Miss Florence C. Hall sang a solo which was a decided addition to the meeting. Mrs. MacGregor kindly played the accompaniment.

Miss Jessie Alexander. Mr. H. M. Field.

PETERBORO' BOY MARRIED.

The Salt Lake City Herald recently contained the following item of interest here—

"Miss Jean Maltky, a popular young Provo woman, became the bride of John W. Reid, also of that city, yesterday. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Reid left for Salt Lake and are now in this city the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Campbell. The groom is manager of the hardware firm of Brubaker and Campbell, of Salt Lake City. After January 1905, Mr. and Mrs. Reid will be at home in Provo." Mr. Reid is son of Mr. Alex. Reid, of town.

The Daily Review

MONDAY, JAN. 9, 1905.

Mr. Whitney will protect popular rights.

Ontario cannot stand another four years of Rossism.

Only two and a half more weeks of hard work, and the victory will be won.

Ontario wants no more of the corrupt time-serving and pledge-breaking Ross Government.

Work for Bradburn and Moore until the 25th, and then turn out and vote for them.

Read the statements of life long Liberals as to what they think of the Ross outfit.

Hon. George P. Graham has given up talking politics on Sunday. He will speak here on Friday next.

When Premier Ross is relieved from office, then a better and brighter and purer day will dawn in the history of this Province.

Mr. Ross is going to carry on the war in Africa, which is a polite way he has of saying from the Opposition side, after the 25th.

Help to raise the standard of political morality and honesty of administration by voting against the Ross candidates.

Hon. G. W. Ross, will find out who the "lobsters" are on January 25th. If he is not the biggest one in the puddle we greatly miss our guess.

A man who has a majority of the electorate at his back should be able to defend himself against a man who is willing to be a minority premier.—Mr. Whitney at Barrie.

I hope that if we are elected to power and we drag as low the standard of political morality, there will be then honest Conservatives who will unite with Liberals in meting out merited punishment.—Mr. Whitney at Brampton.

Mr. Ross would have the electors believe that he is the only person who can govern the affairs of the province. Well, perhaps, he is, in the shameful, disgraceful and corrupt way they have been administered.

The Conservative party is united, aggressive and energetic. Never was it in better shape to face the electors and more confident that the verdict of the people on the 25th inst. will sound the death knell of bribery, corruption and dishonesty.

The late Sir Oliver Mowat, in 25 years only increased the outlays of the Province $1,181,000. Mr. Ross, in four years made them $1,177,000. Where did all the money go? Oh, yes, to colonization roads, farmers' institutes, fall fairs and dairy schools —perhaps.

Mr. Whitney at Barrie.—Prohibition, as the people understand it, is an impossibility in this province. Prohibition can best be aided by enforcement of the existing law freed from partisan officialism. As enforced today the license act is used as a reward for party hacks and a punishment for political opponents.

Hon. G. P. Graham, who in announced to appear in Peterborough, had charge of the Liberal organisation machine in Eastern Ontario during the recent federal election. Everyone knows what a creditable showing his party made in West Hastings and Frontenac. Organizer (now Provincial Secretary) Graham, is as meek as Moses, modest as a violet, and virtuous as a saint—you would think so after hearing him talk.

The political necessities of Hon. G. W. Ross, not the welfare of the province, have thrust a political fight and election on the people of Ontario in this blustery inclement weather. Of all the unnecessary evils of this country let winter elections be named first. To subject men to a hustling campaign of three or four weeks, amid storm or ice, bad or blocked roads, delayed trains, crowded hotels, and a thousand other discomforts is to violate the law against cruelty to animals, let alone human kind. Winter elections mean coonskin coat politics and coonskin coat statesmen with a flask. Mr. Ross should be put out for this one offence, if no other. —Toronto World.

Mr. Whitney is honest enough to be bold and bold enough to be honest. Mr Ross, on the other hand, is daily growing bolder in prediction and more reckless in utterance. When he and his supporters speak of being returned by a majority of 12 to 15, the average elector can gauge something of the "front" the party is putting on just to keep up the courage of some of its laggard and nerveless followers. If the Hardy administration could, in 1898, only win out by eight or nine and Mr. Ross, in 1902 carry the day by only three, how can he, in wildest dreams or most exhilarating moments, hope to obtain a majority? The wish is father of the thought. Mr. Ross says that the machine has gone out of business, that bribery and corrutpion are now unknown in the Liberal ranks, which are at present as pure as the driven snow; then without these agencies, which have cheated the voice of the people and stolen constituencies in the past, how does the Grit party expect, robbed of these profits, to come out of the fray triumphant? How idle the talk, how vain the boast. But something must be done to inject a little confidence into the wavering hundreds who this time are going to throw aside party and vote for the elevation of the Province morally, and materfially, by supporting Mr. Whitney and the cause of clean, honest and progressive government.

Mr. P. D. Ross, the able editor of the Ottawa Journal, has been nominated in the Capital as the Independent Conservative candidate, and will have as his running mate, Mr. Denis Murphy. Mr. Ross has heretofore been an independent in politics, but he feels, like many other self-respecting and right thinking men, that the present is a crisis in the history of the province, and the first consideration is to oust the moribund and discredited administration at Toronto. The battle cry with him is the purification of provincial politics, and Mr. Ross deserves commendation for the firm and noble stand he is taking. Some opponents are fond of dubbing him "a turn coat" and "a renegade," but Mr. Ross is not thin-skinned. He is well qualified by his clean, upright record and his virile pen to ward off all these petty attacks. No better testimony to his strength as a candidate and the soundness of his views could be disclosed at this juncture than the abuse, misrepresentation and villification he is receiving from certain quarters. All honor to Mr. Ross and the cause he has espoused. He will manfully do his part to terminate the reign of fraud, chicanery and selfishness of his office loving and egotistical namesake.

THE RING AND MAT.

Only a fair sized crowd saw the boxing and wrestling bouts at the Opera House on Saturday evening. Local people have been fooled so often with such entertainments that they hesitate to attend them. Several so-called boxing bouts have been put on before, where the two contestants danced around each other for 6 or 8 rounds, making fancy passes and taking care not to land on each other. The boxing events on Saturday evening were not of this character. The men went at each other viciously, especially in the last bout, and the fight was of the give and take variety. The wrestling bouts were all spiritedly contested and aroused lots of interest. The victories of Gauthier and Long, of town, were very popular.

The first event of the evening was a wrestling bout at 120 pounds, between Leon McDonnel, of Toronto, and Bob Long, of Peterborough, best two out of three falls. Long was very aggressive, and the Toronto boy was on the defensive all the way through. Long won in straight falls, getting the first in 6 minutes 20 seconds, and the second in 13 minutes, 35 seconds.

The second wrestling bout was between two local boys and was an interesting affair, taking three falls to decide the winner.

The main wrestling event of the evening followed, a bout at 160 lbs. between Roy Stein, of Hamilton, and George Gauthier, of town, best two out of three falls. The Hamilton boy looked good, but was no match for Gauthier, who did all the aggresaive work. Gauthier won in straight falls, getting the first in 7 minutes with a hammerlock, and the second in 3 minutes and 30 seconds with a half Nelson. At the conclusion of the bout Stein challenged Gauthier to another match. The Peterborough boy accepted, and the two will come together here soon.

The first boxing event was an 8-round bout at 122 pounds, between D. Christie, of Toronto, and P. Wallace, of Peterborough. The Toronto boy was cleverer, but his punches lacked steam. Wallace's blows told when they landed, which was not very often. The bout was declared a draw.

The last bout was the big event of the evening, a 15 round contest at 135 pounds between Pete Barry, of Toronto, and J. Edwards, of Buffalo. The bout was lightning fast while it lasted and the men mixed it up wickedly. The Buffalo boy had about 10 pounds advantage in weight, but did not seem to be in the best of condition. Barry took the count in the third from a stiff punch over the heart, but rallied and forced the fighting from that on, knocking out Edwards in 1 minute 40 seconds of the 6th round with a solar plexus blow.

The manager of Saturday night's show, Mr. M. Wilkes, will put on another wrestling and boxing bout, on Tuesday, January 17th, on the last day of the Peterborough Turf Club's races. Pete Barry, of Toronto, and Bert Greene, the little Englishman, will come together again, and Bobbie Long and Fred Ferris, both of town, will meet in a wrestling event. There will be several other good bouts.

YEAR WAS MOST SATISFACTORY.

Report of Murry St. Baptist Sabbath School

AN ADVANCE IN ATTENDANCE

What the School Has Done For Missions Balance on Hand $154.20 — All Departments Doing Good Work.

Following is the report of W. G. Cochrane, Secretary-Treasurer of the Murray-st. Sabbath school, the annual meeting of which was held on Friday evening last:—

The past year is in many respects the most satisfactory the Sunday school has ever had. The religious interest has been very marked and a large number of scholars have united with the church. While Mr. Bastow was with us he and Mrs. Bastow were untiring in their efforts for the religious welfare of the scholars and Mr. Edwards and the teachers have likewise been very much in earnest in this regard.

In the matter of attendance there has been a very marked improvement. Last year our average attendance was 151, but this year we are pleased to be able to state it reaches 192, a net gain for the year of 43, which is a very creditable showing. As usual, we held our Sunday school during the months of July and August at 10 a.m., and with very satisfactory results. Our average attendance for these two months was 148 compared with 86 for the corresponding two months last year, or almost double. Last year we were able to report three scholars as being present every Sunday; this year there have been 16 scholars and 2 teachers who have not missed a Sunday, or if they have not been present at our school have brought a card showing their presence at some other Sunday school out of the town. The names of these scholars are: Bessie Elcombe, Willie Hardwick, Samuel Oliver, Anna Green, James Ellis, Robert Lang, Agnes Eastwood, Ethel Rutherford, Selena Oliver, Ethel Hardwick, Mamie Robinson, May Stabler, Minnie Ellis, Ethel Kennedy, Clifton Kidd, Bertram Cross, Mr. George Lee and Mrs. Ellis. In addition to these 10 scholars missed only one Sunday.

In regard to star classes, last year Miss Bradshaw's class headed the list with a total of 25 Sundays. This year Mrs. Elcombe's class has the largest number to its credit with a total of 39 Sundays. Other classes with a good record are:—

Mrs. Ellis—33 Sundays.
Mrs. Martin—30 Sundays.
Mrs. Chalmers—29 Sundays.
Miss Miller—29 Sundays.

According to the record furnished the secretary, Minnie Ellis and May Stabler have each recited verses on 45 Sundays of the year, Emily Miller on 44 Sundays, Mamie Montgomery on 37, and Hazel Kidd on 32.

The average attendance of teachers and officers for the year is 27, being 2 more than last year, with the same number on the roll.

In keeping with the increased attendance our collections have also shown a gratifying increase. Last year our average daily collection was $4.60, while this year it is $5.84, but the average collection per scholar per Sunday remains about the same, namely, about 3 1-4 cents. Our total collections amounted to $304.06, as compared with $239.35 last year, or an increase of $64.71. The comparison of amounts given to missions and benevolent objects is as follows:—

1903.

Sick Children's Hospital...	$ 11 61
Man. and North-West Missions...	8 11
Foreign Missions...	32 17
Home Missions...	35 00
Grande Ligne Missions...	46 50
Total...	$ 143 39

1904.

Sick Children's Hospital...	$ 10 62

Grande Ligne Mission...	52 40
Bungalow Fund (For. Missions)...	8 36
Peterborough Cot, Muskoka ...	12 23
Total...	$ 199 84

Increase of $56.45.

While these nearly all show an increase our expenses show a heavy increase. Last year our supplies cost $71.65, while this year they reach a total of $88.40, and as a reward for increased attendance we spent during the year on stars and other rewards for regular attendance the sum of $69.35, with the stars for the last six months still unpaid for.

The statement of receipts and expenditures for the year is as follows:—

RECEIPTS.

Balance on hand last year...	$166 01
Monthly collections...	304 04
Home Dept. collections...	29 84

Balance on hand...	$154 20

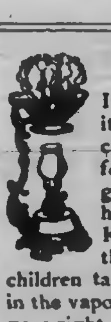
Since last year we have lost Mrs. Bastow, and after she has gone we fully realize, if we did not before, what a help she was in the Sunday school. Not only as Assistant Superintendent, but as a general lookout committee Mrs. Bastow did wonderful work. Besides her the following teachers and officers have left the Sunday school:—Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. White, Miss Bradshaw, Miss Hunter, Miss Roberts and Miss Perrin. Mrs. Chalmers and Mrs. Roberts have, however, been a very welcome addition to the teaching staff, and with Mrs. Lee's class and Miss Nicholls' it is not so difficult to get a supply teacher when one is wanted. As far as we know there have been no deaths in the school during the year, for which we have to be thankful.

Our annual excursion was held on July 7th, per train to Lakefield and thence by steamer Stony Lake to Sandy Point, where dinner was partaken of. After the sports had been run off the party enjoyed a sail to Burleigh and had tea. The day was ideal, and about 200 took in the trip, which was, perhaps, the most successful the school has ever held. In addition to all the enjoyment the scholars had we have the additional pleasure of being able to report a surplus of $3.50 after all expenses were paid.

According to the last report received from the Secretary of the Home Department, all visitors have reported good work as being done, but that the number of lessons studied cannot be reported, as strict account was not kept. The total collections for the year amount to $29.84, which is quite a source of revenue.

In closing the secretary wishes to thank the teachers and other officers for their assistance on various occasions during the year, and for their kindness in giving any information asked for in regard to the class books and records.

W. G. COCHRANE.
Sec.-Treasurer



The Croup.

It's a terrible thing, isn't it? Somehow, that awful cough, that hard struggle for air, can never be forgotten. Be a little forehanded and prevent it. Keep Vapo-Cresolene in the house, and when the children take cold let them breathe in the vapor during the evening. It goes right to the throat, just where the croup lies. All irritation subsides the cough quiets down and serious trouble is prevented. It never fails to cure whooping-cough.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists, or sent express prepaid on receipt of price. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50. Send for free illustrated booklet. Leeming, Miles Co., Ltd., Agents, 288 St James St., Montreal.

Pills And Piles.

A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature, which is always followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure—to stay cured.

It's an internal remedy that removes the cause of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles.

A guarantee goes with each package containing a month's treatment.

It can be obtained for $1.00 at druggists', or The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. 6

Sold in Peterborough by Jas. Lynch, 168 Hunter street.

SNOWBOUND 48 HOURS

A Hundred Railway Passengers Suffer From Intense Cold.

Storms On British Coasts—Two Cases of Vessel Collisions, in One of Which Crew of Ten Men Likely Perished—Fourteen Mills Closed As Result of Rain and the Schuylkill River Flood At Philadelphia.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 9.—A Nova Scotia Central train which left Bridgewater on Friday reached here yesterday after having been snowbound near Alpena station for 48 hours, during which time the 100 passengers suffered intensely from cold and hunger.

ON BRITISH COASTS.

Several Shipping Casualties Reported Owing to Storms.

London, Jan. 9.—Stormy weather still continues on the British coasts, and several shipping casualties are reported. The Glasgow steamer Stella Maria collided Saturday night seven miles off Holyhead with the Spanish vessel Oris, and both sank. The crews were saved in the boats after drifting all night.

The Belfast schooner Dispatch collided with the Sunderland steamer Dinnington off Ramsgate yesterday morning. The Dispatch was towed into Ramsgate, but the Dinnington is believed to have sunk with her crew of ten men.

Several other vessels were driven ashore at different points their crews being rescued with great difficulty.

Tidal Flood in Britain.

London, Jan. 9.—A tidal flood on the east coast Saturday morning caused an enormous amount of damage at watering places from Scarborough as far south as Dover. Eight hundred feet of the pier at Scarborough, which cost $125,000, were swept away, and the promenades on the sea front were broken up. Nearly all parts of the Town of Yarmouth were inundated, hundreds of houses were flooded, and the inhabitants were obliged to vacate the ground floors. The esplanade and beach gardens were swept bare. Blocks of concrete were tossed about, wrecked everything they came in contact with. Similar destruction was caused elsewhere. Sea walls were washed away, and waves swept over adjoining esplanades, destroying numerous costly, permanent attractions, inundating houses, churches, and stores, and causing immense losses both to corporations and individuals.

Fourteen Mills Closed.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—The effects of Friday night's heavy rainfall, which was driven by a 36-mile gale, were in evidence Saturday in all sections of the city and environs. The most serious result is the swollen condition of the Schuylkill River, which is seventeen feet above normal at Manayunk, a suburb. Fourteen mills are closed as a result of the flood, and 4,000 hands are idle.

The rapid rise of the river is due partly to the great masses of ice which were carried down from the upper Schuylkill River and became jammed. The water dammed by the ice backed up and overflowed into the basement and first floors of the factories and mills, which line the banks of the river at that point.

The residents of the place were aroused early Saturday by the screeching of the factory whistles, and the employes, after several hours of strenuous work, succeeded in saving many thousands of dollars' worth of goods.

Railway Tracks Under Water.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 9.—Floods in Connecticut are the result of Friday night's storm. The heavy rain has swollen the streams so that village streets and railroad tracks are under water, seriously hampering all traffic.

In Winsted, Mad River overflowed its banks so that the main street of the borough was ten inches under water Saturday. Trolley traffic was partly suspended and goods stored in the cellars of stores were seriously damaged.

Buffalo Buried Deep.

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 9.—Snow has been falling in this vicinity incessantly for 48 hours, and at 10 o'clock Saturday ten inches were recorded at the weather bureau.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S CATARRH CURE ... 25c.

is sent direct to the diseased parts by the Improved Blower. Heals the ulcers, clears the air passages, stops droppings in the throat and permanently cures Catarrh and Hay Fever. Blower free. All dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Toronto and Buffalo.

SUICIDE BY HANGING.

Katherine Brisley's Continued Ill-Health Preyed On Her Mind.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—Ill-health drove Miss Katherine Brisley of 328 Rusholme road to suicide on Saturday morning by hanging. Miss Brisley, who was a woman of about 30 years of age, had for some time been subject to attacks of epilepsy, and her condition so preyed on her mind that she determined to end all. Her sister, Josephine, went out to attend church on Saturday morning and upon her return found her sister dying. When Dr. Brand arrived a short time later he found the unfortunate woman expiring in her sister's arms. Coroner McConnell is investigating.

Deputy Minister of Manitoba Dead.

Winnipeg, Jan. 9.—George Simpson, Deputy Minister of Public Works for Manitoba, passed away yesterday morning at the General Hospital after a lingering illness. An operation was performed Monday last. The late Deputy Minister was born in Picton and was at the time of his death about 63 years of age. He came West in 1875.

Shrinkage Shown.

London, Jan. 9.—(C.A.P.)—Returns show a considerable shrinkage in live stock exports from Canada to Great Britain last year, being 5,420 head of sheep, 4,268 head of cattle, less than the year before.

WHITNEY AT INGERSOLL.

Largest Meeting of Present Political Campaign Saturday Night.

Ingersoll, Jan. 9.—J. P. Whitney, leader of the Ontario Opposition, was tendered an enthusiastic welcome by the Conservatives of South Oxford at Ingersoll Saturday evening. The gathering was in every particular a magnificent tribute to the Conservative leader, and the late member for the riding, Donald Sutherland. A torchlight procession, headed by the band, escorted Mr. Whitney from the depot to the Opera House. Hundreds were turned away from the hall, which was crowded to the doors. Mr Whitney declared it to be the largest meeting he had addressed in the present campaign.

Mr. Whitney's address was a masterly reply to the arguments advanced by Premier Ross at Ingersoll on Thursday night. His effective arguments were cheered to the echo, not by Conservatives alone, but by Liberals, who had attended the Ross meeting, and had become disgusted, as they declared with the reasons advanced by the Liberal leader for support.

Sam Clarke Nominated.

Cobourg, Jan. 9.—At the West Northumberland Liberal convention on Saturday, the late member, Sam Clarke, was again made the nominee. In spite of the inclement weather a fair attendance was present. Not a moment was permitted for other nominations.

What the Gazette Says.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—The Gazette will come out to-day in favor of R. L. Borden as the leader of the Conservative party. Mr. White's paper states that Mr. Borden is absolutely the best man for the position.

COLLAPSE OF STAGE BRIDGE.

Twenty Members of a New York Chorus Seriously Hurt.

New York, Jan. 9.—More than twenty members of the chorus of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company were seriously injured Saturday night by the collapse of the bridge in the street scene in the opening act of "Carmen." The uninjured members of the chorus heroically massed at the front of the stage and sang on. The curtain was run down as soon as possible, and Heinrich Conreid, the impressario, prevented a panic by urging the great audience to remain seated and not be frightened. The injured removed to hospitals were: Giovanni Rossi, two fractured ribs; Wanda Adamsky, fractured ribs; Natalie Cornnolie, both legs fractured; Katherine Hahn, left hip injured and ribs bruised; Ida Robenstein, internal injuries and shock; Italio Langogari, dislocation of right shoulder; Desadoria Paccettir, right leg fractured; Vincenzo Raggario, fractured ribs; Giovanni Maninca, fractured ribs. Madame Ackte was slightly bruised on the right arm and the right foot by a piece of flying timber from the bridge, but she continued in the cast.

In addition to these, twenty or thirty more members of the chorus were painfully hurt.

At the close of the performance, Frank H. Palmer, master mechanic of the Metropolitan, was arrested and locked up, charged with criminal negligence.

W. C. CALDWELL, EX-M.P.P., DEAD.

Clean Politician Who Enjoyed the Respect of All Classes.

Lanark, Jan., 9.—W. C. Caldwell, B.A., ex-M.P.P., for North Lanark died at his residence, "The Hielands," on Saturday evening in his 62nd year. He was born in Lanark on May 14, 1843. For over 25 years Mr. Calwdell represented North Lanark in the Liberal interest in the Provincial Legislature. At the party convention held here on Dec. 16 the announcement of his withdrawal, owing to ill-health from political life, was received with general regret. His record as a politician is clean and honorable. W. C. Caldwell held the admiration and respect of all classes. He was known far and near; a long public career as well as large business interests bringing him into contact with almost every person in the district. He leaves a widow and family of seven, three sons and four daughters.

A LIBERAL WINS.

Chamberlain's Policy Loses in a Staunch Tory Riding.

London, Jan. 9.—In the Parliamentary bye-election at Staleybridge, Cheshire, Saturday, J. F. Cheetham (Liberal), defeated M. White Ridley (Conservative), by a majority of 951. Hitherto, for 20 years, Staleybridge has returned a Conservative.

The election, which was warmly contested turned almost completely on free trade as against Mr. Chamberlain's policy. Mr. Ridley announced that he was opposed to the taxation of food, but that otherwise he would support Mr. Balfour's program.

This capture of a Conservative stronghold has aroused great Liberal enthusiasm.

$500 For Broken Leg.

Mitchell, Jan. 9.—The case between John Waters and John Connolly of Logan, both well-to-do farmers of Logan, was aired here Saturday in court. The trouble happened on Christmas Eve in the Hicks House, where a scuffle ensued and in the mix-up Waters got his leg broken above the knee. He claimed that Connolly kicked him in the leg with the above result. Connolly stoutly denies doing anything of the kind. Connolly must pay $500 damages and $70 costs, amounting to $570 in all.

C.P.R. Train Ditched.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—An accident was reported yesterday to the C.P.R. train westbound near Trudeau, on the North Shore. Owing to a disarranged condition of the telegraph wires, no details have been received by officials beyond that a portion of the train was ditched and that no one was seriously hurt. A telegram received by a Toronto man from his son read "slightly hurt in wreck to-day."

Whole Municipality Arrested.

Uskub, European Turkey, Jan. 9.—On Dec. 28, by order of Hilma Pasha, the whole municipality of Uskub, together with the vicar and clergy of Vicorate, were arrested, the accusation being that they had formed a revolutionary tribunal. A search of the domiciles of the accused was without result.

TEMISKAMING RAILWAY.

To Be Taken Over From the Contractors Saturday, Jan. 14.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—At a meeting of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission on Saturday it was decided to take over from the contractors on Saturday next, Jan. 14, the new Government road from North Bay to New Liskeard. For the present, it is announced, the line will be operated with the existing staff of the contractors.

Superintendent Black, whose appointment was announced sometime ago, will have charge of the operations, and will from time to time make recommendations for the regulation of the freight tariff.

For the extension to the junction with the proposed G.T.P., the rails are laid for a distance of 22 miles north of New Liskeard. The line has been located for 65 miles, and graded for about 45 miles. There is a ravine at the 25th mile that will cause some delay.

The Jury Disagreed.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—The famous St. Alban's School case, which has been going on before Justice Curran for the past week, was concluded late Saturday evening. The jury or rather 10 of them were of the opinion that Rev. Charles J. Boulder, principal of St. Alban's School, Brockville, was not justified in expelling young Dunlop from school. In the matter of damages, however, 10 were for no damages and two for nominal damages.

Rev. Arthur Browning's Death.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—While out enjoying an afternoon walk, meeting and chatting with friends, Rev. Arthur Browning, one of the oldest and best known of Methodist ministers in Canada, fell on the sidewalk on Broadview avenue on Saturday, and before aid could reach him was dead. He was in his 72nd year, and was born at Launceston, England, coming to Canada in 1859. Rev. Mr Browning was one of the first Methodist missionaries in British Columbia.

Died in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 9.—R. J. Wilson, registrar of the Court of King's Bench, died yesterday of typhoid, after two weeks' illness. Twenty years ago he arrived here and opened up a law office. Eleven years ago he was appointed to his present position, which he held until his death. He was 50 years of age, unmarried, and lived the first 30 years of his life in Toronto.

Found Frozen to Death.

Rat Portage, Jan. 9.—Early yesterday morning a squaw was found frozen to death on the Hudson Bay Reserve.

New Zealand Law.

"Adjacent" is the latest word to enjoy the honor of judicial interpretation. A bridge was constructed in New Zealand under an act that enabled the council of the district in which the bridge was built to call upon the council of any adjacent district to contribute to the cost. The supreme court of New Zealand decided that a district more than six miles from the bridge was "adjacent" within the meaning of the act, and the judicial committee of the privy council has declined, after some argument, to disturb this decision. Sir Arthur Wilson, who delivered the judgment of the judicial committee, truly observed that "adjacent" is not a word to which a precise and uniform meaning is attached. A reference to Mr. Stroud's Judicial Dictionary will show that the house of lords once decided that "even in the wide region of South Africa" two mines, four miles apart, were not "adjacent."

PAINFULLY SEDATE.

A Professor's Evening Party In the Paris Latin Quarter.

"It was difficult to imagine that I was in the heart of Paris, among people bred and born in the capital," says a writer telling of the section of the Latin quarter in which the professors of the University of Paris have their homes. "These men, these luminaries of science, how different they looked among their womankind! Since then I have visited many professors' homes and have found them all curiously alike. No matter whether the apartment be on a second, third or fourth floor, whether it be an expensive or cheap one, the inmates are all alike, talk alike, dress alike. If you have seen one house, you have seen them all. Follow me to a fourth floor in the Rue Gay-Lussac. We are ushered into the drawing room. The furniture is mahogany, always mahogany, and of a bad period. There are no flowers, but a dusty fern in a majolica pot; on the mantelpiece a clock and a candelabra, with framed photographs in the spaces between; over the cottage piano the portrait of M. le Professeur in the green embroidered uniform of a member of the Academy of Science, with his dress sword, over which he generally stumbles. But do not think that the professors' families are blind to beauty. They will admire and appreciate a work of art as well as you or I, but in their homes they consider beauty a negligible quantity. They also give very little attention to their bodies—to the inner or outer man. I have often wondered whether the same tailor supplies them all with their old fashioned coats.

"Nor does the inner man fare much better. The cooks in their establishments seem to be altogether different creatures from those we meet elsewhere. They eschew slang, their grammar is better, but their cooking is worse—very much worse—than in the homes of the less intellectual members of society. The women form a distinct type. They seem to belong to a past generation, and their dress is in keeping with the style of their hair. Living among themselves, they appear to have no notion of what is occurring in the worldly part of Paris. Their dressmakers are 'of the quarter,' and their milliners make their hats with the odds and ends brought to them. Such a thing as a fashion paper never crosses their path. I am certain these ladies are much more interested in the latest microbe than in the latest hat. They have little notion of comfort.

"An evening party at one of their houses is a never to be forgotten entertainment for the outsider. They still dance the schottish, but the greater part of the evening is devoted to what are called 'society games,' a gaping trap to the butterfly from across the Seine. I have forgotten the name of the fiendish game, but I recall that we were all seated in a ring—about thirty of us—old and young, and we had to answer questions and find out some antediluvian fact. To them it was child's play, but if it had not been for the six-year-old child of the house who prompted me I should have cut a poor figure. Imagine coming from the electric lights of the boulevards to the oil lamps of the professors' salon and being suddenly called upon to know that Dalmatia was conquered by Metellus in 118 B. C.! Delightful evening!"

Retelling a Joke.

A west side man heard a joke, new to him, the other day, and the first thing he did upon reaching home for dinner was to tell it to his wife. "Mary," he said, "here's a new joke that's mighty good. One man says, 'The theater caught fire last night.' 'Did they save anything?' the second man asks. 'Yes,' says the first, 'they carried out the programme.' Isn't that a good one?" His wife said it was, and next day she tried it on her grocer. "Mr. Blank," she said, "here's a new joke for you. One man says, 'The theater caught fire last night.' Another asks, 'Did they save anything?' 'Yes,' replies the first, 'they went on with the programme and finished it.' Isn't that a fine joke?" The grocer said it was excellent, but confidentially he acknowledges that he hasn't yet seen the point.

A Blind Man's Blunder.

A blind man named Green made a curious defense at Birmingham, England, to a charge of smashing a plate glass window worth £15. He had been blind, he said, for seven years. On the night in question he cried for assistance to cross the road, but no one came. Then he heard some one at a distance and struck at what used, when he could see, to be boards surrounding waste ground. He was astounded when he heard the sound of broken glass. The jury acquitted him, and he was discharged.

Lacked the Lawyer's Facility.

Lawyer (to witness)—Never mind what you think. We want facts here. Tell us where you first met this man. Woman Witness—Can't answer it. If the court doesn't care to hear what I think there's no use questioning me, for I am not a lawyer and can't talk without thinking.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Practice Versus Preaching.

"You kin help de cause of honesty a heap," said Uncle Eben, "by preachin' about it, but you kin help it a heap mo' by not danglin' roas' chicken under a hungry man's nose."

A man is not going to get a crown of righteousness just because he gives some poor fellow his old straw hat along about November.—Chicago Tribune.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS—1905.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandizement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,

Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

Peterborough, Dec. 2. '04.

A joint political meeting will be held in the town hall, Lakefield, on Thursday next, January 12th. Arrangements have been made by representatives of candidates Bradburn and McWilliams and it is expected there will be a large attendance. Mr. Bradburn and Mr. J. H. Burnham will speak on behalf of the Conservative party, while Mr. R. F. McWilliams will talk in the interests the Liberals. Reeve F. J. Moore will be chairman.

TOWN COUNCIL FOR 1905 HOLDS INAUGURAL MEETING

The inaugural meeting of the Town Council of 1905 was held at eleven o'clock this morning. After the usual oaths of office had been taken, the representatives of the people assembled to transact the business which demanded their attention. His Worship, Mayor Best, was in the chair, and all the Aldermen were present, namely, Messrs. Frank Adams, Joseph Batten, G. J. Tovey, Joseph Crowe, T. J. Begley, E. F. Mason, Adam Hall, Wm. Scott, W. J. Johnston, R. H. Leary, Robert Hicks and Archibald McIntyre.

The clerk read the result of the vote taken in the municipal election.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Mayor Best, in his inaugural address, congratulated the gentlemen present on their success at the polls. There was so much new blood brought into the Council, he observed, that they ought to be able to do some energetic work during the year. This, however, depended on harmony, and if such existed, he had no doubt but that a great deal would be accomplished for the material progress of the town.

Many questions would come before the Council which were impossible to foresee, but His Worship referred to work which would have to be taken up in the immediate future. It would be necessary to appoint either the usual assessors or a commissioner at an early date. Many changes had been made in the assessment act, and an opportunity should be given the officials whom the town might appoint, to study it before beginning the work in July. The Committee on Appointments would have to consider whether it was advisable to have the present system changed; if they did, some person should be recommended for the position.

Another matter which the Council would have to take up was that relating to the agreement between the town and Ashburnham to build an outfall sewer at an estimated cost of $10,000. He understood that plans had been prepared by Mr. Chipman, of Toronto, and he understood a committee had been appointed, but just what condition the matter was in at present would have to be considered by the Board of Works.

PERMANENT ROAD.

The usual road improvement would be carried out by the Board of Works. Last year the Board had secured about $2,000 worth of stone with which it was intended to improve George street and parts of Water street. Owing to the reconstructive operations of the street railway, however this had been impossible, and the stone remained as a substantial asset for the Board of Works of 1905.

The Board had also been discussing the laying of a permanent pavement on the central portion of George street. One thing that had delayed the matter was the difficulty presented by poles on the street, it being impossible to make a good road with these standing at the sides. The Mayor said he thought it was possible to have them removed during the present year. He had just learned from Mr. Doan that the Telephone Company intend placing their wires underground this summer. A full report on the matter was promised for an early date. The Street Railway might be asked to put iron poles inside the curb lines, on which to carry their trolley wires, thus doing away with the wooden ones now standing. The Light and Power Companies might also be approached to see if it were possible to have them put their wires underground in the district to be affected. If the telegraph companies had any poles within the district, they might act on the suggestion that they run their poles behind the buildings or adopt some other plan.

Ald. Hall pointed out that the only wires which the G.N.W. had on the street were for alarm purposes. Their main lines came in by Brock street to the office.

Mayor Best expressed the opinion that the merchants would approve of such a change. A good pavement of bitholithic or vitrified brick would be laid from curb to curb and the streets could be kept perfectly clean

The Mayor stated that some five miles of permanent walks had been built last year at about 9.50c. per square foot. He thought it possible to get even a better price this year, and a mile a month, or six miles for the season should be laid. One reason why this work should be continued was the cost in connection with the old plank walks. To keep these in repair last year had called for an expenditure of over $1,000, made up as follows—Labor, $775; new material, $90.20; estimated value of lumber used $200. If six miles were laid this summer it would do away with so much repairing and the plank walk would be replaced with pavement that would last for 40 years.

PAYMENT FOR WALKS.

A question that presented itself was how is the town going to pay for walks? A vote had been taken approving of a change to general tax. It was his opinion that it would be impossible to get legislation to confirm this without compensating those who have already paid improvement taxes. The merchants along George-st. who have been paying for 6 years would be all through in 14 years, and they would not be called upon to pay any more for 20 years, it being assumed that the pavements are good for 40 years. How, also, was it proposed to pay for the pavement roadway on George-st.? In London one-half was charged to the property and the other to the general taxpayer, and this seemed reasonable. The bitholithic walk there cost, he was informed, $2.50 per square yard.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

Mayor Best pointed out that the attraction to Peterborough of new industries required the Council's very best efforts. During 1903 and 1904 there had been good Manufacturers' Committees, and their chairmen, Mr. Rush and Dr. Morrison, had spared no pains in communicating with people in the United States and Canada, but did not succeed in getting any industries to locate here. Competition was very keen and it was advisable to keep a lookout for industries coming from the United States, or for American capital seeking investment in Canada.

His Worship, in conclusion, expressed the hope that, with the new blood in the Council, and with harmonious operations during the year, satisfactory results would be shown the taxpayers at the end of 1905.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Regular business was not taken up and the minutes of last meeting were confirmed.

A communication was received from Dr. E. F. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's, inviting the Mayor and Aldermen to attend service in that church on the evening of January 15, when a sermon would be preached by Rev. Dr. Crothers.

On motion the invitation was accepted. The Council will meet at the town buildings at 6.30 and proceed in a body to the church.

A circular letter was received from the mayor of Toronto, accompanying a petition asking Parliament to amend all charters granted telephone Cos. denying them the right to erect poles and conduits on streets without the consent of the municipalities interested.

The Mayor and Clerk will sign the petition.

Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine applied for the position of auditor.

The Water Commissioners advised that arrangements be made whereby they would receive, out of the $20,000 for improvements, $5,000 on the first of April, $5,000 on the first of July and $5,000 on the first of September.——Referred to Finance Committee.

Mr. Geo. K. Martin applied for the position of auditor.

A statement was read from Mr. Green, the tax collector, showing the amount collected in December as $748.43; interest, $37.39; total $785.82; total amount of taxes on roll, $108,607.54; collected, $99,931.47; back, $8,676.04.—Received.

A letter was received stating that Mrs. Elizabeth Jackson sought to recover, from the town the sum of $300, compensation, for expense incurred by her on account of the grade on Hunter-st. having been lowered in front of the Crown Hotel.—Referred to the Board of Works.

AUDITORS APPOINTED.

A by-law was passed appointing Mr. Geo. K. Martin and Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine auditors.

Ald. Adams pointed out that he understood Sheriff Hall would not be able to act as auditor this year, owing to his being busy with the elections.

Ald. Mason stated that Sheriff Hall had told him he would be able to act.

Ald. Hall moved in amendment that Sheriff Hall's name be substituted for Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine's. He thought it advisable that an old and faithful officer be retained.

The amendment was lost by a majority of one.

His Worship the Mayor, Aldermen Hicks, Hall, Johnston, Mason, Batten and Adams were appointed a committee to strike the standing committees.

An adjournment was made until this evening at 8 o'clock.

OBITUARY.

The death occurred on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls' Hospital of John W. Wilson, of Harvey. The deceased was eighteen years of age and had been in the hospital for a week suffering from typhoid fever. His mother and brother were in town on Wednesday when the patient seemed to be getting along nicely. On Thursday he took a turn for the worse and sank rapidly. His mother arrived in town on Saturday, just in time to be present at his death bed. The funeral will take place to-morrow to Lakehurst Cemetery.

CHILD DIES

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown, 264 Rubidge street, will sympathize with them in the loss which they have sustained in the death of their little son, David Harold which occurred yesterday.

The little one was two years of age. His demise was due to an attack of pneumonia. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

DEATH OF MRS. SEDGWICK.

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Mary Sedgwick, widow of the late Thomas Sedgwick. The deceased was born in the County of Cavan, Ireland, fifty-six years ago and came to Peterborough when very young and has lived here ever since.

The late Mrs. Sedgwick was a sister of Mr. Jas. Graham, Dublin-st. The deceased had three sisters, Mrs. Alex. Fitzgerald and Misses Christina and Elizabeth, all of town. Senator Dobson, of Lindsay, is an uncle.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence, 428 Market., Fifth Ward to Little Lake Cemetery.

MR. GEORGE WRIGHT.

The death occurred this morning at at six o'clock of Mr. George Wright, who for many years had been a resident of this town. The deceased was fifty-two years of age, and was born in Ashburnham. He had lived in town all his life, following the trade of carpenter. He had been ill for some time with consumption, and his death was not unexpected.

His wife and seven children survive. The children are, John, Margaret, Edward, Ethel, Brock, Albert and Roy, all of town. Mrs. James Stewart and Mrs. John Gilman, of the Fift Ward, are sisters of the deceased.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 from the residence of his son, 425 Bethune street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

LAST DAY TO REGISTER.

833 Have So Far Been Placed on Voters List of Town.

Today is the last day to register under the Manhood Suffrage Act. The sittings will close at six o'clock this evening.

All who desire a vote should see that their names are placed on the lists before that hour.

The total number of names registered up to the closing of the booths on Saturday night at 9 o'clock was 833—at Ward No. 1, 289; Ward No. 2, 220; Ward No. 3, 150, Ward No. 4, 98 and Ward No. 5, 76. This record is slightly ahead of last year for the first two days.

TYPOS ABOUT FESTIVE BOARD

They Made Merry at Their Annual Banquet.

SOME ELOQUENT SPEECHES.

An Occasion on Which Reminiscences Added to the General Pleasure—Typographical Union Passes Another Milestone.

Peterborough Typographical Union had a garland placed on another milestone of its existence on Saturday evening, when the annual banquet was held in Mr. Harry Long's palm gardens. It was a very happy occasion for the members and their guests, the latter being representative of the business, editorial and reportorial departments of the newspaper offices. The oysters and other delicious edibles were served to the devil's taste and his majesty, as known to the exponents of the art preservative, is very particular. To the laymen, however, it might be well to explain that the repast was a sumptuous one and lacked no enjoyable constituent. Those who gathered about the festive board were, Mr. W. Dredge, the newly elected President of the Union, who filled the office of chairman very acceptably, Messrs. W. A. Lewis, J. E. Sharrard, T. J. Twilley, J. G. Perry, J. A. Bowers, C. H. Read, R. B. Pearson, Geo. Paxman, C. S. Brownlee, E. H. Bartlett, J. W. Ross, H. Graham, Walter Peters, R. B. Beattie, Jas. Kennedy, Jas. Brown, Ald. T. G. Begley, F. H. Dobbin, Jos. Legg, Norman Jolliffe, H. Lasheur, Wm. Cowie, B. E. Canniff, G. F. Cairns, F. Hubbs, G. B. VanBlaricom and S. S. Moore.

The chairman, in opening the after dinner programme, expressed his appreciation of the honor that had been conferred upon him in his election to the presidency. He referred with pleasure to the fact that the Union had passed another very successful year, and he welcomed those who were not of its membership, but were connected with other departments.

The health of the King was loyally honored and a song, "When the Blue Sky turns to Gold," by Mr. Jas. Brown proved very acceptable. A speech by Mr. Walter Peteram the Peterborough weather prognosticator, took the form of a prophecy to the effect that the winter was going to be marked by much changeable weather, but he assured the company that there would be a moderation before the next printer's picnic.

A speech by Ald. Begley went to demonstrate that he has already begun to assume the dignity of one who, as the victor of a stiff fight, has skipped several rungs in the ladder of fame in winning a position high in the public confidence.

Mr. G. B. VanBlaricom, who was a resident of Peterborough eleven years ago, and has returned, made a felicitous speech in which he recalled similar occasions and expressed his pleasure at again meeting old friends. He extended his best wishes to the Typographical Union.

Mr. Wm. Cowie and Mr. F. H. Dobbin contributed some interesting reminiscences to the pleasure of the occasions, their memories clustering around the career of that excellent citizen and remarkable inventor, the late Robert Romaine, in whom the spirit of enterprise gave impetus to the resourcefulness of genius, with the result that in his day and generation his name was written large across the scroll of fame.

Mr. J. A. Bowers and Mr. Wm. A. Lewis also made short speeches, on the suggestion of the chairman that the book-makers be heard from.

The health of the ladies was honored in deep draughts, and a merry song, "They are jolly good fellows" and responses were made by Mr. B. E. Canniff, Mr. E. H. Bartlett and Ald. Begley. The latter had one year ago registered a promise that, as he was about to become a benedict, he would a twelvemonth hence, make a scintillating speech on this toast. This failed to materialize, and Ald. Begley advanced the excuse that his duties and responsibilities crowded so thickly upon him that the past to him was like a blank.

The health of the Press was proposed and the reporters present responded.

Interspersed in the speeches were songs and trios by Messrs. Norman Jolliffe, Mr. Jas. Browne and Mr. Jos. Legg. These were much appreciated.

The chairman paid a tribute to the excellent hospitality of Mr. Long and that gentleman assured the company that it was a genuine pleasure to entertain the members of the Typographical Union.

In conclusion the chairman, on behalf of the Union, expressed appreciation of the kindness of those who had contributed to the delight of the occasion in songs and speeches, and of the Y.M.C.A. in having loaned their organ for the occasion.

The banquet closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Croup Absolutely Cured

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mrs. Wm. Magee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto, Ont.

T.A.S. RECEIVED HOLY COMMUNION

Address on Temperance Delivered by Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

SOCIETY IS CONGRATULATED.

There is Now a Membership of Over 600—Spiritual Adviser Looks for Time When Every Man in the Parish Will Belong—Bishop O'Connor Administers the Sacrament.

The members of St. Peter's T.A.S. attended eight o'clock mass in the Cathedral yesterday morning. Several hundred total abstainers were in line and proceeded in a body from the rooms on George-st. to the sacred edifice. The occasion was significant in that Sunday was the 5th anniversary of the founding of the Society. There was a very large congregation present and his Lordship Bishop O'Connor was the celebrant in the Holy Communion which was received by the members of the T.A.S. from the youngest to the oldest member present.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien at the conclusion of the Sacrament, delivered a short, but impressive and appropriate address. He said it was with sentiments of thanksgiving to God, and of congratulation to the members of the Society that he did so. It was in, by and through Almighty God that the work of five years has been brought to a successful issue. It had not been done in reliance upon a mere pledge, nor in their own strength, but rather was it that, in placing their good resolutions in the hands of the Divine Father, and invoking the assistance of His Holy Mother, no less than 600 men were now members of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society. They were to be congratulated in belonging to it, and that they were now keeping their pledges. The speaker considered a total abstainer, providing he was a good Christian every other way, the most noble of men, for not only was he doing something to perfect himself, not only doing something which Almighty God had not commanded, but which the Scriptures had counselled, but he was performing a beautiful act of charity which showed itself in love to God.

NOBLE SOULS

There were noble souls in St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society. The officers had always been men of self-abnegation, of self-sacrifice, who had spent time and money in furthering the cause that was dear to their hearts. Many of the good deeds of the rank and file also, would not be known until the Judgment Day; they had been untiring in their efforts to make others members of the Society. Rev. Dr. O'Brien said it was a matter of congratulation to these men; he was sure it was a consolation to them to know that they done some good, that they had done what they could not only to advance the material interests of men, but also their supernatural good. They had benefitted the unfortunate victim of drink, as well as his wife and offspring and therefore, society at large.

GROWING MEMBERSHIP

Making brief reference to the beginning of the Society, Rev. Dr. O'Brien stated that in the first year there were 189 members on the books of the Society; to-day there were 632, and the membership was increasing steadily. He addressed a word to those who were yet non-members. He did not wish to be understood as saying that the use of strong drink in moderation was sinful, but on account of the awful consequences, a man was safe only when a total abstainer. It was a fact that much crime owed its origin to strong drink and the regret was that the percentage is increasing. What good was there to come from the use of it? Did a man's daily occupation demand it? Was it necessary that he should have some stimulant for his body? It was held by authorities that there was no disease that could be more successfully treated by alcoholic stimulant than without it. The doctor who insisted upon giving spirits was to be put aside as a quack. By its administration to the body, the nerves are temporarily stimulated, the patient imagines he is better, and the miserable doctor gets the benefit for having wrought some cure, whereas there has been no cure, but simply a spur to the nervous system. The natural man tells us we are to leave alcohol alone, and if we consult the supernatural man we find that there is no excuse for the use of liquors.

IMAGE OF GOD

It was written in the Book of Genesis that God made man in His own image and likeness, gave him a soul an intellect and a will capable of knowing and loving his Maker and carrying out His commands. Could such a man take any chances when he saw the majority of men drinking liquor and getting the worst of it, stultifying their will and endangering their immortal souls. In the light of these things no excuse could be presented why every man in the parish should not become a total abstainer. Example was better than precept, and the speaker asked if the non-abstainers realized the full extent of the efforts that had been made during the last five years. The fact of the existence of a Total Abstinence Society did not imply an obligation on every man, but it suggested that a whole lot of good had been done as the result of united, persevering effort. Homes had been made happy and men had been rescued from depths of degradation and sin. There were those who had fallen by the wayside and had withdrawn there allegiance from the standard of temperance. Such men, the speaker was sure, deserved to be reprehended and severely so.

VESTIBULE OF HELL

There had been one persistent enemy to temperance during the past five years, and he would always be present. It was the man who invited some poor unfortunate into the saloon there to obtain liquor. There was no place that more resembled hell than the average saloon. There were hotel-keepers who were entitled to be regarded as exceptions but they were mighty few in Peterborough. The saloon keepers were the men who wrested from the priest of God, and from St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, many of the men. Nothing is more contemptible, more debased or more suggests the agency of Satan, said the speaker, than to see men we have spent years upon going into a saloon. Our men should be strengthened against such temptation. The saloon is the vestibule of hell itself. What excuse is there for its existence?

LOCAL OPTION

Rev. Dr. O'Brien referred to the local option vote which had been taken recently. The scurrying away of those men who owned saloons showed very well why the saloon existed. It was to put clothing on the lazy backs of the men who run the bar-room. He did not wish to be understood as denouncing hotel-keepers, but the men who have the bar-rooms, into whose hands there passed the money which otherwise might be used for the comfort and happiness of those families from whom it was taken. He asked every man to consider the question; If I did not drink during the past five years, how much happier man I would be and how much greater a blessing in the sight of God?

Rev. Dr. O'Brien in conclusion said he would continue to pray for the movement, and continue to look forward to the time when every man in the parish would be a total abstainer.

DREAM OF CECIL RHODES

CAPE TO CAIRO RAILWAY WHICH WILL SOON BE A REALITY.

Sketch of the Route—Southern Portion of the Route About Ready for Traffic—Victoria Falls, the Scenic Wonder of Africa, Is on the Line—Great Bridge Over the Zambezi River.

The majority of Europeans come to this country chiefly to see Niagara Falls. Perhaps the time is not far distant when Canadians will voyage to Africa chiefly to see Victoria Falls. Thousands of Canadian tourists have seen the pyramids of Egypt. They are an old story in more than one sense of the word. But very few Canadians have seen Victoria Falls, and this scenic wonder is as yet a novelty among the sights which the world affords. The realization of the late Cecil Rhodes' dream of a "Cape to Cairo" railroad will bring the great scenic spectacle of the dark continent within reach of the ordinary tourist. The South African Premier's dream is now in a fair way to be realized at no distant day. Rhodes himself died too soon to witness the fulfillment of his plans in respect to a highway of commerce through the length of Africa, but those plans have gone forward, and now in a short time trains will be running over a considerable portion of the route.

The road is being built primarily for its value as a commercial highway and the use it will have in connection with the development of the natural wealth of the parts of the African continent which it will reach. But incidentally the tourist traffic is expected to produce a considerable revenue, perhaps enough to pay the running expenses of the road, for there will be widespread eagerness to witness the scenes which for the first time will be brought within reach of the average globe trotter by the opening of this route.

CAPE TO CAIRO RAILWAY ROUTE.

Over a thousand miles of the journey from the Cape to Cairo will be by water. Fast steamers will ply over the lakes and rivers connecting the different portions of the railroad, and thus for the tourist the journey will be diversified and the attractiveness of the trip increased. Before the death of Cecil Rhodes the railway forming the southern portion of the route had been built from Cape Town to Bulawayo. Work was interrupted to some extent by the Boer war. Construction has since progressed until the Victoria Falls have now been reached, and work is being pushed on a bridge across the Zambezi River at the falls. The latter somewhat resemble the falls of Niagara, but are on a grander scale. They are over a mile wide and about 400 feet high, or about two and one-half times the height of the falls of Niagara. The bridge over the Zambezi in front of the falls and within reach of the spray will be a remarkable work of engineering. It is a single span bridge and crosses the river at a height of 420 feet above the water, the banks of the gorge being most precipitous. The bridge is being built from each end simultaneously until it meets in the middle, a very difficult task, but one that the modern engineer attempts without any particular misgivings.

Near the Victoria Falls the line of the road has been diverted from the original to touch the mammoth coal deposit known as the Wankie coal fields. It is estimated that from this region enough coal can be taken in the next ten years to pay the entire cost of the road. About 2,785 miles of railway in the Cape to Cairo route have now been completed, 350 miles are still under construction, and some 860 miles of the route occupy the status of projected lines. But at the rate the work is progressing it will not be long before the journey through the length of the dark continent can be made comfortably and even luxuriously by any one with the money to pay the fare.

To Loosen the Cough

AND BRING ABOUT A THOROUGH CURE OF COLDS, USE

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

It is sometimes dangerous to stop a cough.

The aim should be to loosen the cough, relieve the tightness and pain in the chest and aid expectoration, so that the obstructing and irritating mass may be passed out of the air passages.

This is exactly what is accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

It is not a mere cough mixture, and not intended to stop the cough, but rather to cure the cold.

If you have tickling in the throat, pains and tightness in the chest, sensations of irritation, of oppression, or suffocation this great family medicine will afford almost instant relief and thoroughly overcome the cold which gives rise to these symptoms.

Not only is Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough asthma and severe chest colds, but is also a preventive of all diseases of the lungs.

It has time and again proven its right to a place in every home, and is the standby in thousands of families.

Mrs. F. Duyer, Chesterville, Ont., says:—"My little girl of three years had an attack of bronchial pneumonia. My husband and I thought she was going to leave this world, as her case resisted the doctor's treatment. I bought a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine from our popular druggist, W. G. Beister. After the first two or three doses the child began to get better and we are thankful to say is all right today, after seven weeks' sickness."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 8

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

But before he went he paid a last visit to Laura's grave. He took with him a cross of white flowers, and laid it on the new-turned sod. Long he stood there, a gloomy-faced man, dressed in deep mourning, and some passers-by looked at him with pity, and whispered to each other that his heart's best hopes must be buried there. Then, when he was quite alone, when the last echo of footsteps had died away, he knelt down and kissed the turf above her head.

"Good-by, my darling," he whispered; "you would have been happier with me, Laura; though I wrecked your life you would have been happy with me."

* * * * * * * *

George Gifford went back to Suffold, and his father and cousin received him with silent sympathetic handclasps, and by his wish all the household at Red House were clothed in deep mourning. It was known in the little town that Mrs. George Gifford was dead, but the widower gave no particulars.

"I saw her," he told Anna Lindsay; but the subject was evidently so painful to him that they forebore to ask him any questions.

Then, little by little, new interests arose; new anxieties. Old Mr. Gifford took seriously ill in the winter-time, and Anna Lindsay nursed him with unceasing devotion. This threw her, of course, constantly with George, who naturally felt grateful to her for her kindness to his father. She did not, however, press her attentions on George, but she studied him in every way, and gradually he seemed to recover his usual spirits.

But Mr. Gifford did not recover his health. He threw off the sharp attack of illness, but it was plain to all eyes, and to the old man himself, that he was fast going to his long rest. He grew weak and listless; he sat dreaming vaguely of bygone times, and seemed to take little interest in things around him.

Yet one evening, when the days were lengthening for the spring, he spoke to George of Anna Lindsay.

"I have provided for her, George," he said, "but after I am gone what will you do?"

"Please do not speak of such things, father," answered George, moving uneasily.

"My boy, my time for here is not long," continued the old man, "and I should be pleased to think that Anna would remain with you. She would make you a good wife, George, and she loves you well, for the news of your first marriage nearly killed her."

"What?" said George, startled.

"I never told you," went on Mr. Gifford, "for it could have done no good; but when I read your letter in which you told us I shall never forget Anna's face, it frightened me."

There was nothing more said. Mr. Gifford was not a man of many words, but George knew that his father would not have spoken thus without reason. It softened his feelings toward Anna. Here was one woman, at least, who had loved him for himself; and then he sighed, and thought of the dead woman who had not loved him, lying in her grave. But he made no difference in his manner to his cousin, and it was not until after Mr. Gifford's death that any change took place in the quiet household.

But as the spring advanced the good old man slept peacefully away, dying with the respect and love of all around him. Both George and Anna Lindsay were deeply affected by their loss. But about a week after the funeral Anna had a word to say to her cousin which had a great influence on their lives.

"George," she said, one evening after dinner, when the twilight was gathering around them, "I must be thinking of leaving Red House now."

"I do not see any occasion for that, Anna," said George, somewhat nervously, for he remembered his father's words.

"Yes, George," said Anna, in an agitated voice, "I must go, for people would talk about you and me—unless—"

"Unless we were married, I suppose. Well, Anna, do you wish this? If so, let it be as you will."

CHAPTER XXX.

Three years after old Mr. Gifford's death, three long years to the weary of the earth, and short to the happy ones, a great storm broke over our northern seaboard, carrying death and destruction on its wild, tumultuous breath.

It swept with terrific force over a sea-girt village perched on a high cliff, and inhabited chiefly by fisher-people. The village is named Reddrift, and about midday, when the sky was one dull, uniform gray, and the wind blowing a hurricane, and the rain falling in great blinding, splashing drops, a cry arose from the little group of fishermen and seamen collected on the shore below the cliff that a ship was to be seen struggling amid the boiling mass of waters out at sea.

"They've lost all power over her," said an old weather-beaten pilot, scanning her through his glass.

"She's drifting fast on the rocks," said a young fisherman. "Let's man the life-boat; she may strike not far from here."

This was quickly done; and every eye was strained watching the struggles of the vessel amid the mountainous waves. Sometimes she seemed to disappear; then again she rose. She seemed a trim little ship, and the seamen present pronounced her to be a yacht. Among those watching her on the shore was a tall, slender woman dressed in blue serge and wearing a sailor-hat. By her side was another woman, a girl, who apparently was her servant.

"Go, Elizabeth," said the tall lady to the girl, and producing a bunch of keys as she spoke, "and bring down the brandy out of the cupboard in the parlor and two blankets. If the ship strikes we should have something ready for the poor men."

"Yes, madame," replied the girl, and she turned and ran with quick light steps up the steep path that led from the shore to the village.

Ten minutes later the doomed ship, swaying, tumbling, helpless, drifted with a grinding, crushing blow against one of the huge brown half-submerged rocks that stand out into the sea only a few yards distant from Reddrift. The life-boat was ready; there was a momentary lull; gallant hands pushed her off, and six gallant young fishermen instantly manned her.

They rowed slowly out. The foam swept over them, the waves seemed to engulf them, but still they went on. They reached the ship;—the bystanders saw some of the sailors leap from the ship into the boat. They saw, too, one man lowered by a rope by those on board, and received in the arms of the men in the boat; he was evidently injured. Then they saw the life-boat push off again from the sinking ship. There were still some sailors on board of her, but the life-boat now quickly sped her way to the shore, and men standing there ran out into the surf and drew her in.

The rescued sailors sprang out of the boat, but still they carried the injured man in their arms, and he was quickly laid on the shore. Then the tall woman, whom they called madame, bade them lift him on the blankets she had sent for; she knelt down beside him and moistened his lips with the brandy her servant had brought her. His face was haggard and marked, his hair gray at the temples, but as madame bent over him a little cry escaped her lips.

One of the sailors of the wrecked ship, who was also bending over him, now looked up.

"How was he hurt?" asked madame, quickly.

"A spar struck him, my lady," answered the man, "about an hour ago, and he's never spoken since. He's the owner of the yacht, Sir Ralph Woodland."

"I know," answered madame, with her dark eyes fixed on the haggard face lying before her. "He's an old friend of mine. He must be carried at once to my house in the village."

This was quickly done. A mattress was procured, and on this Sir Ralph Woodland was carried to madame's picturesque old-fashioned house in the village. It stood back in a garden. It showed all the signs of care and attention in its surroundings and details.

"Take him to my room," said madame, who was walking by the side of the mattress. "Elizabeth, run on and stir the fire, and show the men the way. And Davidson," and she turned to an old fisherman who was also walking in the procession, "run as fast as you can for Doctor Newbridge. Tell him to come at once; that a gentleman, the owner of the wrecked yacht, is seriously injured."

"Yes, madame," answered the old fisherman, touching his cap respectfully. They evidently all knew her. She was, indeed, considered the great lady of the village, and in times of poverty, sickness, or sorrow was never appealed to in vain.

In a few minutes more Sir Ralph Woodland was carried into a comfortable bedroom and laid on the bed. Here, as outside, everything was arranged with good taste. Again madame bent over the prostrate man, and this time he swallowed a little dose of the brandy she held to his lips. Then his drenched clothes were removed and replaced by a warm flannel dressing-gown, and his wet boots pulled off, and his cold feet chafed with spirit. Madame, assisted by one of the sailors of the yacht, did everything she could to revive him, and a quarter of an hour later the village doctor hurried in.

"Ah, madame," he said, also respectfully, "I hope that there is nothing serious the matter."

He was a long, lean, weather-beaten man, this village doctor, but he apparently had his wits about him, and after examining the patient he beckoned madame out of the room.

"It's slight concussion of the brain," he said; "the sailor says a spar struck him on the head, but he'll pull through all right. He'll wander a bit, most likely, and must be watched."

"I will watch him," answered madame, calmly, though her handsome face was very pale. "I thank God that it is no worse."

A serene expression of trust and hope shone in her dark eyes as she spoke. She looked a woman of lofty aims and a pure and stainless life, and the village doctor regarded her with admiration.

"It is very good of you," he said; "but you are always good."

"He is an old friend of mine," replied madame, "and I am naturally pleased to help him. The other poor men, doctor, can have what they want in the kitchen. Elizabeth can see after them, and I will pay for their accommodation in the village until we see what Sir Ralph's wishes are regarding them."

"Sir Ralph?" said the doctor, inquiringly.

"Yes, Sir Ralph Woodland, I knew him several years ago."

The doctor, after doing what he could for Sir Ralph, and giving madame directions, hurried away to see what assistance the rest of the men required, and madame was left alone with her unexpected guest. She stood looking at him, and her eyes grew soft and moist as she did so.

"It is strange—strange," she murmured; and she bent down and took one of his brown, lean hands in hers.

Her touch seemed to affect his dull senses. He stirred, and a moment or two later opened his eyes and fixed them with a bewildered look on her face.

"Do you feel better?" she asked, softly. "This is a strange meeting."

"After death," murmured Sir Ralph, still looking up at madame's face; "this is after death."

She did not contradict him. She thought he was wandering, as the doctor said that it was not unlikely that he would do so.

She therefore sat quietly down by the bed, and Sir Ralph's sunken eyes followed her as she did this.

"You are not much changed," he said, presently, in a dreamy, far-away voice, "only you look happier."

"I am happier," answered madame, gently. "I have lived through the storm and found rest at last, Sir Ralph."

WASTING AWAY

It's the small but constant loss of flesh that indicates physical waste—the gradual slipping away of healthy flesh, pound by pound, which no ordinary food seems to restore. Scott's Emulsion will restore it. This Emulsion is the greatest flesh builder obtainable. Scott's Emulsion first stops the wasting—that's one gain. Then when it supplies new flesh and takes one back to normal strength and weight, that's another gain and a big one.

BRITAIN AND GERMANY

Said to Have Been On the Verge of War Last Week.

Astonishing Statement of National Liberal Leader At Creuznach—Expert Diplomacy Prevented the Warlike Complications From Maturing—Despatch From Vienna Via New York Says Anglo-German Relations are Causing Anxiety.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—The National Liberal leader, Dr. Paasche, addressing his constituents at Creuznach Saturday made the astonishing statement that Germany and Great Britain were on the verge of war last week, referring evidently to the representations which the German Foreign Office made to Great Britain regarding a bellicose threat against Germany in The Army and Navy Gazette.

Dr. Paasche's words were:

"I know with absolute certainty that Germany and Great Britain last week were much nearer warlike complications than many people dream.

"Our diplomacy succeeded in averting the danger, though with difficulty."

Why This Anglophobia Disclaimer.

Vienna, Jan. 9.—(Special via New York.)—In well informed circles here the conviction has gradually come to prevail that for some reason or reasons unknown the state of Anglo-German relations is causing anxiety to the German Government. As far as is known in Vienna those relations are not now much worse than at any time since Count Von Buelow measured tongues with Mr. Chamberlain and found that he had still something to learn in the art of political controversy.

At the same time it is presumed that the German Imperial Chancellor would not have disclaimed Anglophobia for himself and his country, as he has recently done in an English review and in the Reichstag, and that he would not have instructed German diplomatists in foreign capitals to deplore Anglo-German misunderstanding, had he not some special object in view. If this object be simply the improvement of Anglo-German relations, it is clear from the tone prevailing in authoritative quarters here that Count Von Buelow would possess the sympathy of the Austro-Hungarian Government.

Nevertheless the situation existing between England and Germany is not regarded as alarming, for Count Von Buelow is known to be too able a diplomatist and too expert a manipulator of newspaper opinion not to change at one stroke the daring of German representatives and of the German press if he were really apprehensive of trouble. Austria-Hungary is too well acquainted with Pan-German clamor to attach much importance, intrinsically, to the dreams of German naval enthusiasts, for she regards them as not unlike Pan-Slavist dreams, which are only formidable in so far as they are supported by official influence.

COOLNESS AVERTS PANIC.

How Rev. Frank DuMoulin of Chicago Acted in Fire.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Flames appearing among the decorations over the altar of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 1737 Bel avenue, last evening, summoned the officiating priest, Rev. Frank DuMoulin, from prayer at the chancel to service in stilling panic, dismissing a frightened congregation of several hundred persons and fighting the fire that threatened both the lives of the worshippers and their sanctuary. By reason of the priest's calmness and quick grasp of the situation, inspiring confidence and presence of mind in those imperiled, the church was quickly emptied without disorder or confusion, and pastor, with the aid of the choir, were left free to subdue the flames and save the building, a task they accomplished before the firemen arrived. Rev. Mr. DuMoulin is a Canadian, native of Niagara Falls, Ont., and a son of the Bishop of Niagara.

Hon. Mr. Lariviere Appointed.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 9.—Hon. A. A. C. Lariviere, late member for Provencher in the Dominion Parliament, has been appointed immigration commissioner for the Province of Manitoba with headquarters in Montreal. He will enter upon his new duties at once, which will be to secure settlers for the west from Quebec, and also to visit New England States, where there are a considerable number of French-Canadians, who are on the lookout for new homes. He will also meet immigrants from Europe, more particularly from France, on their arrival at Montreal.

BEFORE JAPS GET HELP

It is Expected That the Czar Will Order Battle.

Kuropatkin to Attack Oyama Before Nogi's Veterans From Port Arthur Can Reinforce Him—Russian Emperor and Council Likely to Continue the Policy of War to the Bitter End—Transfer of Prisoners At Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 9.—General Kuropatkin reports the frustration of a Japanese attempt to surprise his centre front on the night of Jan. 6, and the bayonetting of twenty-one Japanese the night of Jan. 8 by a cavalry reconnaisance in the valley of Taitse River, in the direction of Sianchan.

It is expected here that the Czar will order Kuropatkin to take the offensive immediately before Nogi's veterans can join the Japanese forces on the Shakhe, and at any expense to gain some success to offset the effect of the loss of Port Arthur upon the Russian people. Such instructions will place Kuropatkin in a most difficult position.

The severity of the winter in Northern Manchuria makes extensive military operations next to impossible, even with troops having the best equipment. It is known that the Russian army is suffering great deprivation of such necessaries as boots and overcoats, owing to the wholesale robberies of supplies, and a battle fought solely for political reasons would be with advantage strongly on the side of the Japanese.

Advance Not Yet.

Huanchan, via Mukden, Jan. 9.—The expected advance of Japanese, which the Chinese prophesied would take place on the Russian Christmas, has not occurred. Even the usual cannonading has not taken place. The troops celebrated Christmas Saturday quietly. There were Christmas trees in many companies and little celebrations in various officers' quarters. Many men exchanged presents, mostly their own handiwork, quaint and curious gifts, there being little obtainable in the way of conventional presents.

To the Bitter End.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 9.—The conferences which Emperor Nicholas has been holding with members of the council of the empire, M. Witte and other ministers and advisers on the internal and external situation have not yet been concluded, but nothing has occurred which would indicate that the Government is prepared to depart from its present program of continuing the war to the bitter end.

Nevertheless talk of peace was heard Sunday in many quarters, the foundation for it being ascribed to Foreign Minister Lamsdorff's alleged position in favor of such a course on the ground that aside from the humiliation to military prestige involved, it would only mean the relinquishment of Manchuria, to which Russia already is formally pledged. There is no confirmation of this statement of Count Lamsdorff's position beyond the general knowledge that he always has belonged to the peace party.

The army in Manchuria has not been informed of the fall of Port Arthur.

PRISONERS TRANSFERRED.

Total On Saturday Reached 875 Officers and 23,491 Men.

Tokio, Jan. 9.—Gen. Nogi's report, received here at 11 o'clock Saturday night, announces that the transfer of Port Arthur prisoners was completed Saturday afternoon; total of 875 officers and 23,491 men.

The total number of officers and men transferred on Saturday was as follows:

Gen. Stoessel's Kwantung command, 48.

Gen. Stoessel's headquarters, 21.

Engineers Co., 280.

Telegraph corps, 65.

Railroad detachment, 56.

Cavalry, 181.

Officers and crews of war vessels: Retvizan 22, Pobiedo 22, Pallida 11, Peresviet 15, Poltava 327, Sevastopol 538, Bayan 274, Robri 11, Storoshevoi 56, Otvashni 130, Gilyak, 77, Amus 180. Naval defence headquarters 328, harbor office 985, naval brigade 90, torpedo brigade 152, field posts and telegraphs 56.

Of the number 366 were officers and 8,654 soldiers and sailors.

Three judges and three clerks of court were also transferred.

Refuse Parole.

Headquarters of Japanese Army, at Port Arthur, via Fusan, Jan. 9.—Lieut.-Gens. Fock and Smirnoff have decided to go to Japan as prisoners of war. Gen. Smirnoff was in command of the forts at Port Arthur and Gen. Fock commanded the fourth division of the army there. Fifty per cent. of the Russian officers will go to Japan and share with their men the fate of prisoners of war. There are five Russian admirals at Port Arthur, one of whom will go to Japan. Among the admirals is a prince. Twelve foreign naval attaches have visited Port Arthur and inspected the remains of the Russian fleet.

Stoessel Leaves Jan. 12.

Tokio, Jan. 9.—Lieut.-Gens. Fock, Smirnoff and Goldbakuski and Rear-Admiral Wilmann will be brought to Japan as prisoners of war. Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel will leave Dalny, Jan. 12, on a Japanese transport for Nagasaki. He will be accompanied by the other paroled officers. The Russians probably will remain in Japan a few days and then proceed on a French steamer to Europe, going by the way of the Suez Canal. General Nogi reports that the officers paroled to date number 441 and orderlies 229.

To Transport Prisoners.

It is understood that the San Yo Railway has been instructed to make preparations to transport 20,000 Russian prisoners from Shimonoseki to Kure. The most serious cases of sick and wounded will be left at Port Arthur in the field hospitals for the present. Those capable of being moved will be brought to Japan, when arrangements for housing them have been completed.

Left For Port Said.

Suda Bay, Jan. 9.—Vice-Admiral Botrovsky's division of the Russian second Pacific squadron, consisting of the cruisers Oleg, Izmrud, Dnieper and Rion, and the torpedo boat destroyers Gromski and Rezity, which had been delayed in Suda Bay, left yesterday afternoon for Port Said.

VANCOUVER JAPS CELEBRATE.

Speeches, Processions and Bands in Honor of Port Arthur Victory.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan 9.—Local Japanese residents celebrated the fall of Port Arthur Saturday. Their places of business were closed early in the day and stores and houses were all gaily decorated.

In the afternoon they assembled on recreation grounds, where the surrender of Port Arthur was officially announced by Hon. K. Morikawa, the local Japanese consul. Congratulatory speeches were made by several prominent Japanese, the tenor of the remarks being that if Japan were successful in war she would proffer terms of friendship to her present foe and endeavor to assist in giving people of Russia more liberty in a better civilization.

A procession was then formed and, headed by two bands, marched through the principal streets to the Japanese consul's residence. There were several hundred Japs in line, each carrying a lighted Chinese lantern. The procession then returned to the grounds, where the celebration kept up till a late hour.

HOLD-UP MEN ARRESTED.

Trio in Recent Desperate Attacks Are Now in Custody.

Winnipeg, Jan. 9.—At last three men who have been playing the hold-up game in Winnipeg are in custody. The leader of the gang, John Sandercock, was placed under arrest on Saturday night at Port Hope, Ont., by Chief Bond of that place, acting under instructions received from Winnipeg.

His two associates, William McDonald and another, were taken into custody on Saturday afternoon by Detectives Chatterson and Stodgell here. An officer left this city yesterday for Port Hope to bring Sandercock to Winnipeg.

The trio are charged with assaulting and robbing Dronsoco Frank, fruiterer, 577 Main street, Dec. 21. Frank was badly beaten and robbed of $80. Another charge is that they assaulted and robbed James Ferguson on Thursday, Dec. 29, at the corner of Magnus and Main streets.

In this case over $25 was stolen and Ferguson was terribly beaten about the head by his assailants.

Headed For Toronto.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—Sir Edward P. Morris, Attorney-General; Sir James Winter and Hon. A. B. Morine of St. John's, Nfld., and Donald MacMaster of this city, left last evening for Toronto to take part in the arbitration between the Government of Newfoundland and R. G. Reid.

Maud to Be Divorced.

Paris, Jan. 9.—It is rumored here that Major McBride is getting a divorce from Maud Gonne on the ground of incompatibility. Both are in Ireland, he at Westford, she in Dublin.

To Succeed Milner.

Liverpool, Jan. 9.—The Post hears on good authority that J. N. Lowther, M.P., will succeed Lord Milner as Commissioner to South Africa in April.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aseptic pepsin (government test), golden seal and diastase. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of raw meat, eggs and other wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and cheap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach.

This is the secret, if there is any secret, of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most widely known of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive pure and simple because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely on the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to cure by the use of "tonics" "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores and the regular use of one or two of them after meals, will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

Harmsworth's Scheme.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—Sir Edwrad P. Morris, Attorney-General of Newfoundland, stated here yesterday that Harmsworth of The London Daily Mail had closed a deal with the timber estates of Newfoundland and the Government, by which they will erect a $4,000,000 plant and ship from Lewisport one shipload of paper and pulp every week. Sir Edward also declares that a fast steamer can make the run from Lewisport to Queenstown in three days, and that the Newfoundland Government will probably subsidize the project. The Attorney-General says that confederation is now further off than ever.

A Secret Papal Bull.

Rome, Jan. 9.—One of the most important acts thus far in the Pontificate of Pope Pius X. has been embodied in a secret bull, the text of which will not be made public until the Pontiff is dead, when it will be read as forming part of the constitution in the next conclave to elect his successor. The bull is in connection with the claims of Austria, France and Spain as to their right to veto the election of any cardinal to the Papacy.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and the pleasures of life. CURES GUARANTEED OR NO PAY. 25 Years in Detroit. 250,000 Cured.

If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous year's, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

ANOTHER YEAR IN ITS HISTORY

Anniversary Day at George St. Methodist Church.

SERMONS BY Rev. Mr. PARKER

Advises His Hearers Not to Crowd Heaven Out in Their Rush for This World's Things Congregational Re-Union this Evening.

Rev. Caleb. Parker, of Norwood, preached two eloquent sermons to large congregations in the George street Methodist church yesterday morning and evening. The anniversary services were held yesterday, and the contribution was toward the church debt fund. The Rev. Mr. Parker is a forcible and eloquent speaker and his sermons yesterday cannot fail to be productive of much good.

At the morning service he chose as his text the last clause of the 8th verse, II Timothy, "And that which is to come." In the beginning he said he did not purpose to talk of the material workaday life, but of the life which is to come. The question often arose, "Is there anything to come?" It was a hard, logical question; one of the most important that could be asked; the great problem for solution.

The speaker said that if he thought that there was nothing to come hereafter, he would not care how soon he was out of this life. He did not think God had created us in His image with ideals and thoughts to be snuffed out for ever at the expiration of sixty or eighty years.

Sometimes the question was asked, "What are your reasons for thinking there is something to come hereafter?" One reason was because we are not satisfied down here. There are moments when we turn away from this life because there is not enough to satisfy us in it. This was as the Lord intended it should be. He never intended that we should be satisfied down here, but rather should look towards that which is to come hereafter.

He did not believe that since we were not satisfied with this life that God would be so cruel as to deprive us of its counterpart which is to come. We are here because God put us here to be His representatives, and to work out our destiny. In doing the work of the Lord we are preparing to meet Him.

Mr. Parker here read several passages from the Old and New Testaments proving the existence of a future life.

The question was often asked, "What is your conception of Heaven?" He thought the absence of many things, such as the absence of sorrow, sin, imperfections and errors made up Heaven. Heaven was a place of rest. Often in our musing moments we think of our Father's House, and get a glimpse into the pearly gates.

The present age is a time of rush and turmoil and confusion, a great deal of which doesn't amount to much. Rev. Mr. Parker advised his hearers not to crowd Heaven out and to take time for rest.

By and by there would come rest for the weary hand and whirling brain, the rest with which God rewards His willing workers.

He looked upon Heaven as being the land of the Sun, while this life is the land of the Shadow. Heaven was was the land of light, rest and perfection.

Our aspirations would never get us to Heaven. We must get in the right way and stay there. He advised his hearers to pick up the telescopes of Faith, which would bring them closer to Heaven and bring God down to their comprehension.

Many feared the approach of death and the thought of the dark river over which they had to pass before they could enter Heaven.

The speaker said that death was bridge which spans the gulf between this and the other world, the way home, the way to life, God's appointed way.

At the evening service the large and well trained choir rendered the anthem "Sun of My Soul" in a pleasing manner. A quartette of Messrs Davis, Brown, Gardiner and Cunningham, impressively contributed "The Wayside Cross" the solo part being admirably taken by Mr. James Brown Prof. Millner ably presided at the organ.

TONIGHT'S RE-UNION

The congregation of George street church will meet together tonight for a social time, and will receive reports from different deparments on the progress of the work during the past year. Addresses and a programme will be given.

Baby Eczema

"My daughter was afflicted with eczema when from three weeks old. Her entire face and head were raw, and she was in awful distress. When doctors failed we began the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which has entirely cured her and she has never had the least symptom of the trouble since."—Mr. Patrick Sullivan. HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Peterborough put it all over Port Perry at Peterborough last night and walked over them in a worse manner than Lindsay did Markham. The score was "only" 20 to 3. Peterborough will meet with about the same medicine on our rink Monday night.—Lindsay Post.

Talk about being optimistic, the Post dope artist has all the optimists in the world's history beat a mile.

The Young Nationals will stack up against the Rough Riders on the Brock-st. rink this evening between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The T.A.S. will practice this evening between 7 and 8 o'clock. All members are asked to turn out as the senior team goes to Campbellford on Wednesday to open the Trent Valley series in this district.

The juniors had a good workout Saturday night and are in the best of shape for to-night's game in Port Hope. They will have the strongest team that has represented them this year and with any kind of luck should win this game.

By the way, that junior bunch is going to make things interesting for the rest of the teams in this district. In the past the juniors have been rather neglected. No one except themselves seemed to care whether they won or not. This year it is different. They are being carefully looked after and are practising faithfully. There line-up is the strongest that has ever represented the juniors, since the Colts, after winning the junior championship passed into the intermediate series, winning the championship of that series too. The team is heavy and fast. The forwards are playing good hockey and the defence will be strengthened by the addition of Parker.

The Cobourg people, we are told, announce their intention of protesting little Mr. McWilliams, who, it be remembered, played a star game for Peterborough here. The Cobourgites claim, it is alleged, that the speedy little rover is away over the age limit and could easily grow side-whiskers if he wanted to. If that story be true it will prove a serious blow to the Peterborough team for "Mac" was just about the whole works for them when he was here.—Belleville Intelligencer.

The local club are not afraid of an investigation being made in the case of any of their players. Each one possesses the necessary qualifications as required by the O.H.A.

Referring to the victory of the Marlboros over the Argonauts in the hockey game on Saturday night, the Mail and Empire says—"Armstrong, at rover, is inclined to want to play the game too much alone. A little more passing would have given the Dukes more chances for goals. The Peterborough man, however is a clever palyer, and can assist both defence and forward line.

George street hockey team will practice at 8.30 this evening on the Y.M.C.A. rink. A meeting of the officers will be held afterwards.

The following amendments were passed at a meeting of the Executive of the City Hockey League held on Saturday afternoon—

"If the Peterborough Hockey Club wishes to play any City League player in any of their games that they be allowed to do so, the same rule to apply to the T.A.S. and Trent Valley League teams.

"That the Colonials, Earl Greys and Verniers be allowed to strengthen themselves with one junior O.H.A. player each."

St. Andrew's Guards do hereby challenge St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild to a game of hockey to be played in the Brock street rink at as early a date as possible.

Charlotte street Guild team will practice tonight from 8 to 9 on Alll Saints' rink.

The seniors left on the 5.38 G.T.R. tain for Lindsay, where they will clash with the Scugog bunch in a league game this evening. Lindsay is confident of winning, and the locals are equally certain of gaining the victory, so an exciting game will likely result. Chris. Graham is under the weather and did not accompany the boys. Meagher will take his place. The team will play a double cover point game, which is expected to be more advantageous on a small rink as three forwards will be able to do more work than four on a narrow sheet of ice. The team will be:—Goal, Wasson; point, Glover; cover points, Crowley and Meagher; forwards, Cavanah, Morgan and Parnell.

The juniors left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train for Port Hope this morning They have on their strongest team and are confident that they can trim the speedy Ontaries on their own ice. Mr. Ernie Ford was in charge of the boys and Messrs R. McKee and B. Cameron also accompanied the team. The line-up will be as follows

Goal—Fitzpatrick,
Point—Moore.
Cover Point—Parker.
Rover—McWilliams.
Centre—McFarlane.
Right Wing—Long.

Lifebuoy Soap—disinfectant—is strongly recommended by the medical profession as a safeguard against infectious diseases.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—Additional local news and sporting gossip on page 2.

—Rev. Dr. Crothers preached in Norwood Methodist church on Sunday.

—Mr. T. F. Bradburn the popular Conservative candidate will address a meeting of his supporters in the hall, Selwyn, to-morrow night

—There is no skating at the Street Railway rink owing to the snow. The rink will soon be put in shape again

—Street Commissioner Evans this morning had a large force of men at work clearing the snow off George street.

—The largest month at the Peterborough Customs House this year was October, when the receipts were $21,844. For the same month last year they were $14,514. The smallest month was December, when the returns amounted to $12,119.

—The Peterborough Radial Railway Co. are worthy of great credit for way it kept all lines open during the recent storm. The cars were run almost on schedule time and the management deserve much praise for their enterprise and energy.

—Mr. E. J. Murphy, leading hand of the round house staff, Havelock, has been transferred to Toronto. Before his departure this week a large number of his friends entertained him to a supper on Monday night, and also presented him with a gold chain and locket. Mr. Montgomery, of Toronto, is now in charge at Havelock.

—The staff of Robert Fair and Company are to-day busy stock-taking, and the Golden Lion is of necessity closed. Consequently the large number of people who sought to obtain entrance to the store to-day were disappointed. To-morrow morning at nine o'clock the doors will be thrown open and the great trade consequent upon stock taking will begin.

—The funeral of the late Frederick Potvin took place yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetary, and was largely attended. Rev. Father Galvin conducted the services at the Cathedral and Rev. John O'Brien those at the cemetery. The pall bearers were as follows:—Messrs Joseph Picard, P. Grady, Chris. Rutherford, Thomas McGrath, H. Brien and A. Levasseur.

—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Hon. L. B. Brodeur, Hon. Charles Hyman, Hon. Wm. Patterson and Sir William Mulock this week met a large delegation of importers an dmanufacturers from Winnipeg, Montreal, London, Toronto and Quebec. The matter of reducing the tariff on woollen dress goods made only in Britain, was considered and the matter left open for further action.

—Last week County Constable Smith, of Colborne, brought to the Cobourg gaol from Brighton Sylves Babins on the charge of lunacy. Babins joined a religious sect known as the Holy Rollers ,and becoming enthusiastic with his new doctrine, began to suffer from religious mania. He believed that the Almighty required him to dispense with his shoes and stockings, to go without any covering on his head and live in a tent. When taken into custody he and his wife and month-old child were living in a cotton tent, and he was following out what he believed to be a Divine inspiration. At the goal he and his Bible are inseparable, and he is expounding his belief most of the time.

As a Convalescent Food

Mr. Wyman N. Thomas, Ompah, Addington, Co., Ont., writes:—"My wife had congestion of the lungs, along with other troubles, and became very weak and run down. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food she was made as strong and as well as ever. Of course I had a doctor, but she was weak, and it was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which built her up."

THE TURF.

Following are the results of the Orillia winter races held last week.—

2.30—Orillia Belle, Orillia, 1; Jim X Peterborough, 2; Black Boy, Lindsay, 3.

Free-for-all—Sphinx B, Orillia, 1; Velma, Oshawa, 2; Brain Hunter, Coldwater, 3.

DON'T TAKE ANY BOGUS MONEY

Counterfeit Fives Are Now Coming to Light.

THEY ARE BAD IMITATION.

Product of Photographic Process and Lines are Not Clearly Defined—Two Banks Got One Each This Morning.

The most substantial evidence of the operation in this vicinity of parties who are placing counterfeit money in circulation has come to light within the past few days. The public, as a result, are asked to be particularly cautious with regard to bills passing through their hands, as the cases which have been discovered show that the bogus material is of such a character as to easily deceive any other than the closest scrutiny. Mr. Peter Campbell, local manager of the Bank of Toronto, showed the Review today a bogus $5 Bank of Montreal bill, which was received in a deposit this morning, although detected by the teller. The bill was evidently the product of a photographic process, as the outlines were not as clearly defined as in the genuine article, and in many respects it was a bad sample, the paper also being very poor. This is the second bill of this kind that has been detected by the Bank of Toronto, the other coming to light but recently. The date on the bill discovered today was January 2nd, 1896, and the number 078944. It is said that the first one was found in Lindsay a few weeks ago.

Enquiry at the other banks today went to show that the Ontario Bank also caught one of the bogus fives this morning, it being brought in for deposit. This would warrant the supposition that very recently a number of the "goods" were placed in circulation here. The opinion expressed by some is that they originally came from Port Hope. The Bank of Commerce people state that they detected a bogus $2.00 Dominion bill last week, but have not seen any of the counterfeit fives. Neither has the Bank of Montreal.

It is understood that bank detectives are working on the case. The bad money seems to have been circulated only in this locality.

To-night's Grand Concert.

The concert to be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. this evening, in the Opera House promises to be the best of the season. The artists taking part are Miss Jessie Alexander, elocutionist; Mr. H. M. Field, piano virtuoso, and Mr. R. Norman Jolliffe, vocalist. The plan has filled up rapidly and there will likely be a large audience. The admission prices are 75c, 50c and 25c. 1d

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

—All Saints' church will hold an oyster supper on Tuesday evening, 24th inst.

—The Field-Alexander concert takes place in the opera house this evening.

—The Karnot Hockey Club will hold an "At Home" this evening in the Old Labor Hall, Water-st.

—The report of the Town Council meeting and other local news will be found on pages 2 and 3.

—The Chief of Police has a lady's pocket book picked up on Dalhousie-st., for which he would like to find an owner.

—The district meeting of the West Peterborough Orange Lodges will be held this evening, in the Orange Hall, Simcoe-st.

—The St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild and St. Paul's Young Men's Guild will each hold a meeting this evening.

A local hotel keeper, charged with selling liquor during prohibited hours, was discharged at the Police Court this morning.

—The annual meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Co. will be held on Monday next, January 16th, in the Town Council chamber.

—The Meister Glee Singers, which scored such a success on their recent visit here, will appear in the Opera House again on February 7th.

—The Royal Templars of Temperance will hold their annual meeting this evening when reports will be presented and officers elected. All members are requested to be present.

—The work of the Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peters' T.A.S. will be resumed next Friday evening, Jan. 13th, at 8 o'clock. Miss Coleman will read an essay on "Julius Caesar," and a musical programme will also be presented. The members of the ladies' committee are especially requested to attend a committee meeting after the reading.

—The Young People's Society of St. Paul's church met last night. There was a fair attendance. The old officers will remain at the helm for a few weeks yet and it is hoped the weekly gatherings will be more largely attended. Miss Williamson is the president; Mr. W. J. Stacey, vice president. Miss Dean is Secretary and Mr. Stanley Fife, treasurer.

—A citizen complained to the Review to-day that no snow plough had appeared on Rubidge-st., west side, between Wolfe and Sherbrooke, at 9 o'clock this morning. He also said that the south side of Albert-st. was not visited by the plough until a late hour. He thinks the town should have more ploughs to cover the large steet mileage promptly.

—The South Dummer Methodist congregation very kindly remembered their pastor, the Rev. H. W. Foley, B.A., B.D., at Christmas time by presenting him with a fine fur coat. The ladies of the W.M.S. also presented him with a beautiful Persian lamb cap and a raincoat last spring, and the Westwood Ladies' Aid gave him a very fine secretary in the summer. These tokens of appreciation and confidence are very much appreciated and form strong links of attachment between the pastor and his people.

MANY MEN LEAVE.

Gen. Nogi's Army to Assist Field Marshal Oyama at Shakhe River.

Special to The Review.

London, Jan. 10—The Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company hears from New Chwang that fifteen thousand of Gen. Nogi's men have left Port Arthur and gone to reinforce Fie Marshall Oyama at the Shakhe River.

Nagasaki, Jan. 10—The Japanese transports brought 28 Russian officers, who were landed here, and one thousand men, who were transhipped for Kokvena.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 10—The Russians today confirm the Paris Temps' report of yesterday that the first division of the third Pacific squadron will leave Behan at the end of January. The Novoe Vremya urges the immediate reinforcement of Vladivostock, the island of Sakhahr and Kamdalke.

OFFICERS HONORED

Berlin, January 10—Emperor William has conferred on General Stoessel and General Nogi the order of "Pour Le Merite" in recognition of "the bravery of themselves and their troops at Port Arthur.

MR. BOYD'S PROPOSAL

Was Entertained by Lady from Lakefield This Morning.

A startling announcement was made to-day to the effect that Mr. C. J. Boyd, of Coldwater, who has been in town looking for a wife, had reached the end of his quest and was about to be married. Mr. Boyd was seen at the Crown Inn at noon to-day and to the Review he stated that the report was not correct. He says that a lady from Lakefield called on him this morning and made a proposition to him. He was inclined to seriously consider it. The lady was a widow with five children, two of whom were working and earning money. Mr. Boyd states that if he married the Lakefield woman, he would undertake to look after her children, but he does not think that he will consider the proposition.

Mr. Boyd has in view the occupancy of a large dairy farm at no great distance from Peterborough. In view of this fact he is looking for somebody who would be to him a help-mate. He has not despaired of finding one here.

Wasn't One of Turner's.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—We notice by the papers that a man and his family were arrested at Brighton for living in a tent this very cold weather. The only mistake this man made, was that he did not buy one of J. J. Turner & Sons' Celebrated Double Tents. If he had there would not have been any fear of his being arrested or his family or himself being cold, as these tents are quite warm and comfortable in the very coldest weather, as I have proved them so.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, JAN. 10, 1905.

The Grit organs are making quite a fuss over the fact that they have over two millions cash in the banks. Sir Matthew Crooks Cameron left them nearly four millions in cash, saved during his short four years of office, so that they have not, by any means, done as well as he did.

Mr. Ross says that "so far as honesty and integrity is concerned Grits and Tories are individually pretty much alike." There is some comfort for us in that, but the Tories never had a "machine" to go from one constituency to another working its sweet will trying to get the better of "honesty and integrity."

The Examiner says that "Mr. Whitney has one important plank—office." May we ask our contemporary if Mr. Ross and his party are not tarred with the same stick? By the way, let us remark that Mr. Whitney says that he refused office more than once during the past few years. If this be so, the Examiner's falsehood is not deserved.

There is too much being made of the phrase, "The Tories are only after office." If it be true, the same remark applies to the Grits. They have had it in Ontario for more than 30 years, and it is time for a change. If the change had been made five years ago the Grit party would have been incomparably better off regarding their reputation as the "party of purity."

The Globe is still barking away on the wonderful strength of the present Ontario Cabinet. It is more than strange how every goose becomes a swan the moment it is taken into that Cabinet. For instance, Mr. MacKay has been in the Ontario Legislature less than two years, and has yet his spurs to win, but still he is immeasurably superior to any man on the Opposition side of the House!

Mr. Ross said in his speech at Barrie that "the Liberal party adopted the principles of public ownership long before the Conservative party was born." Well, well, when you consider that the two parties came into existence at the same time this is a wonderful assertion for Mr. Ross to make. His recklessness of statements will soon cause him to tell the public that there never was any Conservative party.

Mr. Ross in his speech at Barrie said that "a prohibitory law without a good, solid public sentiment back of it would be worse than useless." He has been a long time finding out that evident truism. Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson told him the very same thing twenty years ago, and he should have thought of that before he made so many rash promises to his temperance friends. The chickens have come home to roost, and he is now finding out that the straightest course is generally the best one to run.

They are making a lot over the fact that Mr. Whitney asked that a hot drink be sent to his bedroom after he returned late from a political meeting in Napanee. It is wonderful how the license department have suddenly become active, after all these years spent in winking at violations of the license law everywhere. The fact that Mr. Whitney was a political opponent had, of course, nothing to do with it. Oh, no! The poor old Globe has been trying to make a mountain out of this mole hill—the poor thing, it is getting into its second childhood.

UNAUDITED PROVINCIAL ACCOUNTS.

The Premier in Toronto at the end of December, made this statement:—

"There was an auditor today who had the same power as Mr. MacDougall and some people thought too much power—were not the finances of the Provinces safe in his hands."

This assumes that the Auditor does really audit all the Provincial accounts—the Premier meant to say—so, and as he is Provincial Treasurer he ought to know.

But the Auditor does not tell the same story.

He was examined before the Public Accounts Committee in 1902 and explained that he audited the Provincial Treasurer's accounts, but not those of the other departments. Now these departments are where the money first reaches the hands of the officials of the Government. It is their duty to pay the moneys received by them over to the Treasury and whatever the Treasury receives is of course properly audited.

But who checks over and audits the accounts of these departments and of the officials who first receive moneys from the public. It is certainly not the Auditor. His version is quite different from the Premier's.

The Provincial Auditor in his public examination in 1902 answered thus—

"You audit the books of the different Departments?"

A.—"Yes, in a general way as to the results."

"You check all their accounts and vouchers?"

A.—"We cannot examine them individually."

This is a very serious omission when the very large sums are considered which reach the Departments from outside, from timber dues, timber and liquor licenses, corporation fees, &c.

The Auditor admits that the present system permits this practice and yet fails to secure a proper audit at first hand and at the cash book, as he says, it is only "in a general way as to results."

On being asked what amount passed through the Crown Lands Department books in 1902, he says it amounted to over a million and a half dollars ($1,634,733.00.)

Then this question was asked in order to test whether such a receipt was unusual.

"Do you know of an instance where a person has sent a cheque direct to the (Provincial) Treasurer in payment of his account in the Crown Lands."

A.—"It is very seldom, very exceptional in connection with the Crown Lands accounts."

The result is that out of a total revenue of $6,200,000.00 over $1,500,000.00 is annually received by officials of the Crown Lands Department and the only audit of their books is, as explained by the Provincial Auditor, "in a general way as to results," "we cannot examine them individually."

This explains why the Provincial Treasurer never received from Mr. Alfred McDougall the sums received by him and which his trial would have disclosed.

Is it in the interest of this Province to retain a Government which collects $1,500,000.00 annually without any audit of the accounts connected therewith.

Was Cured of Asthma

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. VanBuskirk, Robinson Street Moncton, N.B.

Fled With Her Child.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Lawrence, a good looking German woman, 35 years of age, of Staten Island, N.Y., was before Judge Lafontaine yesterday afternoon on a warrant of extradition, charging her with having kidnapped her 8-year-old daughter from New York. The woman's husband, who is manager of a patent medicine concern in New York, secured a divorce from her two weeks ago, and he was awarded the custody of their two children, a boy of 10 and a girl of 8 years. Before the written decision of the judge, who had heard the evidence in the divorce proceedings, had been served on Mrs. Lawrence, she left the court room and a few hours afterwards took a train for Montreal, with her little girl. When she arrived here she took a room at 1147 St. Lawrence street, and a private detective, who was put to work on the case in New York by the woman's divorced husband, located her here through a letter that she wrote to her sister in New York.

—Mr. E. J. Murphy, leading hand of the round house staff, Havelock, has been transferred to Toronto. Before his departure this week a large number of his friends entertained him to a supper on Monday night, and also presented him with a gold chain and locket. Mr. Montgomery, of Toronto, is now in charge at Havelock.

POSTOFFICE FACILITIES CONDEMNED BY COUNCIL

Memorial to be Presented to Government Asking for Improvement.

STANDING COMMITTEES WERE SELECTED.

New Aldermen Get Down to Work—Two Money By-laws Passed—Robert Fair and Vincent Eastwood Appointed School Trustees—Alderman Tovey Registers Complaints About Number of Things Shelter for Carters Proposed—Many Questions to be Considered by the Council.

The Standing Committees of the Town Council for the year 1905, are as follows:—

Board of Works — Ald. Adams, Chairman; Tovey, Batten, Johnston, Hill and Hicks.

Manufactures (Railways and Franchises)—Ald. Hicks, Chairman; Begley, Adams, Tovey, Hall and McIntyre.

Finance (Licenses and Printing) — Ald. Mason Chairman; Batten, Leary, Adams and Crowe.

Legal (Legislation and Court of Revision)—Ald. Scott, Chairman; Johnston, Mason, McIntyre and Begley.

Property (Building and Market)—Ald. Batten, Chairman; Hicks, Leary, Crowe and Scott.

Fire, Water and Light—Ald. Johnston, Chairman; Hall, Tovey, McIntyre and Crowe.

Supervision (Reception and Health) Ald. Hall, Chairman; Scott, Mason, Johnston, Leary and Begley.

The above arrangement of Committees was last night adopted on the recommendation of the Committee appointed to strike the list for the year. A clause granting the Mayor $400 to defray the contingent expenses of his office was adopted.

THE EVENINGS' BUSINESS.

The new Council made a good record last night by beginning well on time, and devoting the whole of an hour and a half's session to business.

A proposal to change the mode of assessing by the appointment of a commissioner was referred to the Board of Works.

The third readings were given the $20,000 and $12,000 by-laws recently approved of by the ratepayers.

Messrs. Robert Fair and Vincent Eastwood were appointed School Trustees, and Messrs. Wm. Eyres and George Schneider, members of the Board of Health.

Immediate action will be taken with reference to the extension of streets, in accordance with the by-law just passed. The request of W. H. Meldrum for a siding on East Simcoe street will also receive early attention.

Indignation was freely expressed with regard to post office conditions, and the Council will memoralize the Government in that regard.

The appointment of an inspector of plumbing and sewer construction will be reported upon at next meeting by the Legal Committee.

The Property Committee will see what can be done towards erecting a carters' stand on the market square.

Ald. Tovey evidenced that he knows considerable about the requirements of the South Ward when he pointed out that snow-plowing was not done well in that section, and that the arc lights were put out too early in the morning. He also complained of the inclination of loafers to cluster on George street.

Last night's Council meeting may well be considered an important one, the new members evidencing a healthy desire to take hold. There were present, His Worship, Mayor Best, Aldermen Adams, Scott, Batten McIntyre, Tovey, Hall, Leary, Crowe, Mason, Hicks, Begley and Johnston.

The minutes of last meeting were confirmed.

A communication was read from the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, stating that as they purposed erecting a smokestack on their premises it would be necessary to plant a pole on Aylmer street. They asked for the necessary permission.

On motion of Ald. Adams, seconded by Ald. Johnston, the request was granted, subject to the supervision of the Town Engineer.

Ald. Adams presented the report of the Committee appointed to strike the standing committees, which recommended as above.

THE ASSESSMENT ACT

Ald. Adams, referring to the proposed change in the mode of assessing, moved that the matter be left in the hands of the Committee of the Whole. It was advisable that action be taken at the earliest possible date, in order that the new Assessment Act be thoroughly understood by the official or officials appointed.

Ald. Johnston seconded Ald. Adams' motion which was carried.

BY-LAWS PASSED.

Ald. Mason, as Finance Minister, introduced the third reading of the by-law to authorize the borrowing of $20,000 for the purpose of making improvements, extensions and alterations in the waterworks system of the town of Peterborough. This by-law was approved of by the ratepayers at the municipal elections, and it was given its final reading last night.

Ald. Hall and Ald. Tovey introduced a by-law to appoint School Trustees and member of the Board of Health. The Trustees selected were Mr. Robert Fair and Mr. Vincent Eastwood. The appointments were moved by Ald. Hall and seconded by Ald. Johnston.

Ald. Crowe moved in amendment on the by-law that Dr. Boucher be substituted for Mr. Eastwood. He had heard of some complaints with regard to the putting in of a heater and purchasing of supplies.

Ald. Johnston said he had considered the complaints referred to and discussed them with Mr. Eastwood, and the conclusion he had come to was that Mr. Eastwood might benefit by the experience of the year and should be given another term.

Ald. Crowe's amendment was not seconded, and the original motion carried.

The members of the Board of Health appointed were Mr. George Schneider and Mr. William Eyres.

An amendment to substitute Mr. James Middleton for Mr. Eyres was defeated by a vote of seven to five, and the by-law was read a third time and passed.

Ald. Mason moved the third reading of a by-law authorising the borrowing of $12,000 for the purpose of re-constructing and repairing bridges in the town of Peterborough, and purchasing land for the opening of new streets. The by-law was passed.

In reply to a question, the Mayor pointed out that the work intended under this by-law was in the hands of the Board of Works.

OPENING OF STREETS.

In connection with the opening of the streets, Ald. Adams pointed to the necessity for immediate action, and moved that a committee be appointed to secure the necessary rights of way for street openings and that the committee have authority to instruct the solicitor to give notice of appropriation of any property needed, if satisfactory arrangements could be made, the committee to be Ald. Mason, Ald. Hall and Ald. Adams.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Johnston and carried.

In reply to Ald. Hall, the Mayor stated that the town solicitor had the matter of purchase of the Separate School property in hand, and that it would undoubtedly be closed up as soon as possible. He did not think that any difficulty would arise in getting the Government to pay their share.

MR. MELDRUM'S SIDING.

Ald. Batten pointed to the necessity of action being taken to give Mr. Meldrum the required siding rights at the east end of Simcoe-st. Mayor Best replied that the hitch seemed to be with the owners of the Dawson property and the engineers interested. So long as the parties in the case assumed all responsibility with regard to the Dawson people the town was willing to agree. He suggested that a committee of the whole receive the railway people at any time when they were ready to meet.

This was embodied in a resolution and carried.

POST OFFICE CONDITIONS.

Ald Johnston emphasized the importance of the Council memorializing the Government for improvement of the post office. The conditions here were disgraceful. A promise had been made some time ago, but no action had been taken. There should either be better facilities in the office or free delivery.

Ald. Tovey in speaking on the by-law, said that conditions at the office were only fit for the back woods. He had been a witness of a disgraceful scene there on the 2nd of January, when a gang of men used brute force in ploughing their way through the crowd gathered about the solitary wicket. It was surprising that the merchants had stood for these things so long.

Ald. Begley also stated that he had been promiscuously hurled into the stampede at the office, and he had seen one man lose a coat sleeve, and a lady thrown against the ledge. The greatest good to the greatest number should be considered. There was here no system whatever, and he questioned whether there was anything to equal it even in the Yukon. The existing state of affairs was disgraceful, and the Council should insist on a remedy. The time was at hand when the town should have free delivery. Many people had spoken to him on the matter. The conditions were such as to place a blur on the fair name of the town, in the opinion of strangers.

Ald. Hall pointed out that the member for West Peterborough had impressed the Government on this matter and the Minister of the Department had assured him that just as soon as the holiday rush was over immediate action would be taken in connection with the office here. The conditions existing were disgraceful and some step should be taken, even if the police were necessary in order to have some system adopted.

Ald. Johnston was of opinion that the present office was too small even if there were three wickets and Peterborough should be satisfied with nothing short of postal delivery.

Ald. Hall explained that the excuse given by the Government was that if Peterborough secured delivery other towns from 6,000 up would be after the same thing.

PLUMBING INSPECTOR.

Ald. Adams impressed the necessity

IMMIGRATION TO ONTARIO.

Figures For the Year Will Probably Reach 24,000.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—Thomas Southworth, director of colonization, has received returns showing the total immigration into Ontario, exclusive of those coming from the United States, up to Dec. 1, to have been 23,206. For the full year the figures will probably reach 24,000. The number of immigrants last year was 19,000. In 1900, when the department was organized, the number was only 3,000

Canadian Sues For $25,000.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Jan. 10.—Canadian capitalists have begun suit in the Supreme Court against the Village of Waddington, St. Lawrence County, for $25,000 for breach of contract. The village recently voted to sell the water power, which supplies the place with light and water for $4,000. Before the property was transferred the Remington Paper Co. of Watertown obtained an option on it at $1,500, intending to build a railroad at Norfolk to carry Canadian pulpwood to the mills at Racquette. The village electors then decided to control their own light and water service, and unanimously rescinded their previous action.

Capt. O'Hagan Dead.

St. Catharines, Jan. 10.—Capt. Daniel O'Hagan, a well-known mariner and boat-owner, died very suddenly at an early hour here yesterday morning of heart failure, being ill but a few minutes. Deceased was 49 years of age and a native of Picton. Twelve years ago he came to this city, and in company with Capt. John Malcolmson, purchased the Welland Hotel. He retired from this and since has owned and run many different boats.

Australian Wheat Shortage.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—According to D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent at Melbourne, the Australian Commonwealth will have approximately about 20,000,000 bushels of new wheat available for export, against 40,000,000 bushels exported in 1903-04. The effect of this serious decline is likely to be noticeable in European markets, and should harden prices.

$5,000,000 Company.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 10.—Sir Alfred Harmsworth, heads the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co., incorporated here yesterday with a capital stock of $5,000,000 to manufacture pulp and paper in this land.

Apology Accepted.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—The libel suit instituted by Hon. F. R. Latchford against The Free Press has been settled out of court. The apology offered by The Free Press was accepted by the Minister.

Department Divided.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—An Order-in-Council for the decentralization of various agriculture divisions has been signed. Heretofore the live stock, dairy and seed divisions have been under Prof. Robertson, who held the rank of Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying. Henceforward each of these divisions will have a Commissioner in charge who will be responsible only to the Deputy and Minister of Agriculture. Thus W. Hodson will be Live Stock Commissioner, J. A. Ruddick Commissioner of Dairying, and Mr. Clarke Seed Commissioner.

Mafia Leaders Arrested.

New York, Jan. 10.—In a raid Sunday, the police of Jersey City captured nine Italians, whom they believe to be leaders of the Mafia or Black Hand Society. The prisoners are all Sicilians.

Lowther Denies.

London, Jan. 10.—J. W. Lowther, M.P., denies the report circulated by The Liverpool Post, that he is to succeed Lord Milner as High Commissioner in South Africa.

Nervous Dyspepsia

Mr. George Bolen, Bury, Bruce Co., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia for some years, and after using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt better than I had for years. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

JAPS' SECRET SERVICE

Definitely Announces Return Home of Baltic Fleet.

Rojestvensky, Russian Admiral, Fears Conflict With Admiral Togo's Battleships—Must Be Through Suez Canal By Jan. 20 Or His Return Will Be Cut Off—Japs Expect to Greatly Increase Naval Strength.

Tokio, Jan. 10.—The secret service department of the Japanese navy has definitely informed the Government that Russia's Baltic fleet is on its way back to Europe. This information, posted last night in the Imperial navy board, explains the prolonged stay here of Admiral Togo and Vice-Admiral Kamimura. From the beginning Japan has been accurately informed with regard to both divisions of the Baltic fleet, and is now able to announce that the warships are returning.

They will go through the Suez Canal in three divisions, the first led by Admiral Botrovsky and the battleship Oleg. He has with him three cruisers, two colliers and a small torpedo boat flotilla. There was some hope here that the Baltic squadron would sail as far as the South China Sea, in which event its return would have been doubtful. Admiral Rojestvensky's division of warships was south of Diego Suarez Bay Sunday, the Imperial board was informed, but it would be dangerous for him to remain on the northeast coast of Madagascar for any lengthy period. His return through the canal could be cut off by Jan. 20. It is expected here that he will sail not later than Wednesday for Port Said.

The belief now is that the warships will set out in March, reinforced by the news ships of the Baltic squadron They could not arrive in the Sea of Japan before June. Before that period Japan will have three new armored cruisers built at home, and, undoubtedly, some of the battleships in Port Arthur harbor. That these sunken vessels can be raised is regarded now as most likely. The Government's opinion is best expressed by the departure for Port Arthur yesterday of Vice-Admiral Shibeyama, chief of the Kure navy yard, who has designed the construction of all cruisers built in Japan in the last five years. It is clear that the Government hopes to add the Poltava, Pobieda, Peresviet and Retvizan to its war fleet.

STOESSEL AMAZED.

Had Been Promised Relief and Could Not Credit News of Kuropatkin's Defeat and Heavy Loss.

Headquarters Third Japanese Army at Port Arthur, Jan. 7, via Tientsin, Jan. 10.—Capt. Tsunoda, the Japanese staff officer who was sent to Port Arthur to inform Gen. Stoessel of the contents of the message of the Emperor of Japan, saying that the garrison should be treated with the greatest consideration, says

"Gen. Stoessel's first inquiry was about the whereabouts of Gen. Kuropatkin. I did not know exactly, but understood he was somewhere about Mukden. Gen. Stoessel remarked that he had last heard from General Kuropatkin Oct. 6, saying he would relieve Port Arthur soon. General Stoessel added that he had sent out spies who returned and reported that General Kuropatkin, with a relieving army, was at Kinchou, twenty miles north of Port Arthur.

Didn't Believe the Story.

"Gen. Stoessel was plainly incredulous at my statement that Gen. Kuropatkin had been defeated and driven back towards Mukden, so I produced maps, showing the position of the two armies near the Shakhe River, and gave Stoessel details of Kuropatkin's defeat with the loss of 50,000 to 60,000 men, at which the Russian general expressed amazement and quickly remarked that he had been misled.

"Gen. Stoessel then asked where the Baltic fleet was, and I told him that some of the ships had not passed the Cape of Good Hope.

"With a hopeless expression look, Gen. Stoessel said 'Now that Port Arthur has fallen, there is no use for the fleet coming any further.'

"I then asked Gen. Stoessel what had caused the most damage to the garrison during the siege, and he replied: 'Your eleven-inch Howitzers. After they arrived our defensive works became useless.'

Knew Japs Fighting Power.

"Gen. Stoessel then pointed out that he and Admiral Alexieff had been through the Boxer trouble and had seen the work of the Japanese army. Gen. Stoessel also said he had been associated with the Japanese generals, Yamaguchi and Fukushima, at that time and expressed the opinion that the Russians and the Japanese forces had borne the lion's share of the work. Since then he had had high ideas of the organization and fighting qualities of Japanese army.

"The real cause of the war was, in Gen. Stoessel's opinion, the ignorance of the Russian people of the fighting qualities of the Japanese. The first attack on Port Arthur in February by the Japanese fleet was a tremendous surprise. The forts, he explained, were only partly garrisoned by 2,000 troops.

Always Opposed It.

"At this point Gen. Stoessel said he always opposed the scheme of Governor Sakharoff of Port Dalny, in spending money in building up Port Dalny instead of finishing the defences of Port Arthur. Sakharoff, who was an engineer officer, died of dysentry during the siege.

"Continuing, Gen. Stoessel praised the ingenuity, pluck and patience of the Japanese infantry.

"Referring to the artillery, General Stoessel said that at first he did not think the artillery practice good, but he was soon compelled to recognize how good it was. Gen. Stoessel said that he had served his Emperor in many wars. Now he felt he had earned the right to return to Russia to live in his old age with his family. The general adds that he was taking home with him five children of officers who had been killed during the siege.

Pleased With Old Nogi.

"After his conference with General Nogi, General Stoessel expressed gratification at meeting so pleasant a gentleman. He had not expected the considerate treatment accorded to him. General Nogi appeared to General Stoessel as an old friend, rather than as the commander of an army which had forced him to surrender."

GOING NORTH.

Large Part of Gen. Nogi's Army Has Gone to Liaoyang.

London, Jan. 10.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Che Foo telegraphs that the Japanese Consul there has received notice that there was a disastrous mine explosion at Port Arthur.

The same correspondent asserts that a large portion of Gen. Nogi's army has been already hurried north to Liaoyang.

A despatch from Port Louis, to The Daily Mail, says: "Nothing has been seen or heard of the Russian second Pacific squadron It is supposed it is sheltering either in some harbor off Madagascar or off Comoro Islands.

"There are mysterious rumors here of the approach of Japanese cruisers and of the receipt of strange wireless messages."

News By Kites.

Huanchan, Jan. 9, via Mukden, Jan. 10.—The news of the fall of Port Arthur was received here first unofficially from the Japanese, who let loose numerous paper kites bearing letters and triumphal inscriptions.

These kites were picked up by Russian soldiers, who received the announcement doggedly, regret being expressed that the troops had been unable to relieve the garrison.

Russian artillery is steadily pounding the section of the Japanese line west of Sinchinpu and about Baitoshan and Sintunglun.

The Japanese are using balloons and searchlights in efforts to locate Russian batteries which have been causing great annoyance.

The past two days the Japanese have made two unsuccessful attempts to break through the Russian advance lines.

Gen. Stakelberg, who has been ill, has returned to the front.

A Pathetic Spectacle.

Headquarters of the Third Japanese Army at Port Arthur, Jan. 6, via Kinkow and Tientsin, Jan. 10.—Five thousand men of the Russian garrison at Port Arthur to-day were marched from Yahutsui to Chang Ling Tzu, and the other detachments followed soon after. Each detachment was accompanied by six loaded transport carts. The Russians during the night will be taken on special trains or open trucks to Dalny, and they will immediately embark for Japan.

The long procession of remnants of the gallant Russian garrison was a pathetic spectacle. The first arrivals at Chaulingtzu were four droskies, drawn by sorry looking horses. They contained the staff officers who had refused to give their parole. All wore their swords, as they were allowed to do under the terms of the capitulation compact.

A few minutes later the first detachment arrived. The regimental officers marched with their men, their heads bowed and their faces seamed with lines, showing the result of the mental and physical strain they had undergone during the long defence.

The prisoners were treated with the greatest respect and kindness, though they were regarded with much natural curiosity. The soldiers were given food, cigarettes and beer and the Japanese soldiers voluntarily carried the effects of the prisoners when they were overcome by fatigue.

Original Garrison.

Tokio, Jan. 10.—In well informed circles it is estimated that the original garrison of Port Arthur numbered about 38,000 to 40,000 men, including sailors. The killed, those who died of sickness, and the missing, are placed at over 10,000.

Wounded Prisoners.

Nagasaki, Jan. 10.—One thousand wounded Russian prisoners of war from Port Arthur have arrived at Dairel Hospital.

Storms Hamper Work.

Tokio, Jan. 10.—The work of removing the mines and other obstructions at the entrance to the harbor of Port Arthur and by examining the Russian war vessels, is hampered by the storms and cold weather. There is every indication, it is reported, that some of the ships are salvable.

JAPS REGRET IT.

Explain Why a British Cruiser's Aid Was Declined.

Tokio, Jan. 10.—The Navy Department announces that it regrets the misunderstanding in the case of the British cruiser Andromeda, which recently sailed from Wei-Hai-Wei for Port Arthur with hospital stores and surgeons to assist the sick and wounded, and was not permitted to land.

The department says the commander at Port Arthur refused the aid offered by the Andromeda owing to the fact that he had not received instructions. The British authorities at Wei-Hai-Wei were late in notifying Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister at Tokio, of the cruiser's mission.

When the minister received notification, he immediately obtained from the Japanese authorities there their grateful acceptance of the cruiser's cargo. Orders to receive the supplies were sent to Port Arthur, but when they reached there the Andromeda had left on her return to Wei-Hai-Wei.

POST OFFICE FACILITIES CONDEMNED BY COUNCIL

that an inspector of plumbing be appointed. This was important when the public health was considered. Last year the Legal Committee had charge of the question.

Mayor Best said that it was also advisable that sewer connections be properly inspected.

Ald. Mason pointed out that the Legal Committee was preparing a report on these questions and this would be presented at next meeting night.

Ald. Johnston moved and Ald. Begley seconded, that the question of extension of the town's fire limits be referred to the Committee of the Whole.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Mason, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that when the demand from the Board of Education for the year be received, the treasurer be authorized to pay the sum required for January.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the mayor and clerk be authorized to sign a memorial to the Dominion Government from the Council showing the great lack of accommodation and facilities at the post office here and the need for a free postal delivery and hand it to Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., for presentation to the Government.—Carried.

STAND FOR CARTERS.

Ald. Johnston suggested that a carter's stand be constructed on some part of the market square. He said it would be appreciated by the men who now have to stand on the streets.

Ald. Leary considered this a good idea. The carters would undoubtedly be willing to equip the stand with a telephone and this would be a great accommodation, not only to them, but to the public.

COMPLAINTS MADE

Ald. Tovey suggested that action to have the arc lights be kept burning until at least seven o'clock in the morning. At present the employees of the C.G.E. Co. had to go to their work in the morning in the dark.

Mayor Best and Ald. Johnston agreed to interview the Peterborough Light and Power Co. on the matter.

Ald. Tovey also pointed out that the snow plowing, particularly in the south end, had not been done properly. The men ought to be kept up to the work. It should be done at night, if necessary.

The Mayor explained that the town officials had charge of this matter. Until a couple of new snow-ploughs were procured, men should be put on with snow shovels. Mayor Best promised to look into the grievance.

Ald. Tovey further pointed out that ladies had frequently complained to him of the impossibility for them to pass along George and Charlotte streets for the loafers who were allowed to congregate.

The Mayor stated that he would bring the matter to the attention of the Chief of Police.

The Council adjourned.

Indigestion and Headache

Mr. Duncan McPherson, Content, Alta., writes:—"I was for many years troubled with indigestion and headache, and derived no relief from the many remedies I used. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking four boxes, the result is that I am once more in the full enjoyment of the blessings of good health."

THE TEMAGAMI COUNTRY.

Mr. Edmund Jones Gives Fine Description Before the Fortnightly Club.

There was a large attendance, at the Fortnightly Club meeting last night, of those interested in the Temagami country. Mr. Edmund Jones, of the firm of Du Vernet & Jones, Toronto, who was accompanied by his wife, gave an exceedingly interesting pictorial account of his canoeing trips through the Temagami and Temiscaming country. The slides revealed immense lakes, beautiful rivers, picturesque falls and the forest primeval.

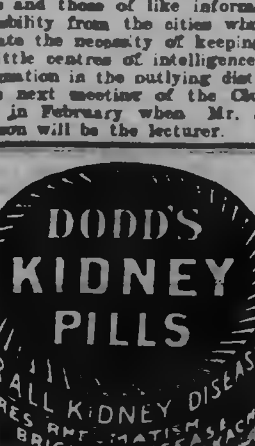
The waters are full of finest fish, and if the lumberman's fire can be kept out of the country, it will be a paradise for those in search of health and recreation. He informed the Club that he had been told that the unexplored country to the north west of the district he was describing was still more bold and beautiful.

Mr. Burnett moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Jones and Mr. Fife complimented the lecturer on his description; he himself had been through a portion of the country described. To put it tersely the country straight through, north of central and western Ontario is a continuance of Muskoka and the Lake-of-Bays district on a more extensive scale.

Rev. J. C. Davidson joined heartily in the praise of the lecture as did also Mr. E. B. Edwards, K.C.

Mr. Burnham, the President, put the resolution to the meeting and it was carried with loud applause. In tendering the resolution he expressed the gratitude of the Club to Mr. Jones and those of like information and ability from the cities who appreciate the necessity of keeping alive little centres of intelligence and information in the outlying districts.

The next meeting of the Club is early in February when Mr. J. S. Willison will be the lecturer.



There is nothing like Sunlight Soap for Household Utensils.

When you have to use hard water it is not an easy matter to wash household utensils. To do good washing you should have good soap and soft water (rain water). If you use hard water you must have good soap, and the best soap you can get is Sunlight Soap because it softens the hard water and makes a copious creamy lather. Use Sunlight Soap for all household purposes and the results will surprise you.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—A commercial line of the C.P.R. Telegraph Co., has been placed in Denike's drug store, Havelock, and is now in operation.

—Bob. Independent— Mr. Elijah Windover, of East Harvey, was in the village this week getting medical care. Happening to notice a weasel around his house, and weasels being very destructive of poultry, he went into the house for his rifle. He is a crack shot, is Mr. Windover, and that weasel was as as good as dead when Windover drew a bead on him. It might be said that there is many a slip, for the cartridge, or the bullet did not slip, for the cartridge or the bullett, or something stuck, and the charge of powder burst backwards and injured Windover's face. It was Dominion ammunition. The weasel is reported in good health and fit as a fiddle

Started off With a Hurrah!

The extraordinary sale of Winter Suits, Overcoats and Furnishings at H. LeBrun & Co.'s, which has started off with so many inducements, is an occasion of interest to men, young men and boys. The surprising reductions in the tailoring department, especially in black dress suits, and Scotch tweed and worsted suits, made to order, come in good time. Gentlemen who need a dress suit for the long social season ahead, will save good money by leaving their measures at LeBrun's at once. Full Dress Suits that formerly were made to order for $30, are now reduced to $25. formerly $35 and $40, reduced to $28 and $30, with a very large stock of cloths to choose from. Men's Dress Trousers, that were formerly made to order for $7.50, are reduced to $6, and Scotch Tweed Worsted Trousers are reduced from $4 and $4.50, to $3 and $3.50. We take your measure and make up just as carefully as if you were paying the full price. Our cutter, Mr. Thompson, will fit you just as fashionably and as accurately as he always does.

AN EVENING OF SONG AND SPEECH

Anniversary Concert of T. A. S. Was Splendid Success.

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan Lectures on the Origin of the Organization—Large Attendance and Great Tribute Paid to Work of the Society.

The concert in Bradburn's Opera House last night, under the auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S., on the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the Society, was marked by a large attendance, an excellent programme and a bright lecture on the work of the organization by its founder, Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan, of Londsay.

The building was crowded to the doors, notwithstanding the tempestuous weather. All who braved the elements were well repaid, for such an evening of song and speech and harmony is not any too frequent an attraction

The programme, while lengthy, was enjoyable, and nearly all the artists were accorded hearty encores.

The opening numbers were played by the T.A.S. Band under the leadership of Mr. L. A. Halley. Their selections were "The Canadian Medley March" in which were interspersed many popular airs, and "La Pitteri Waltz."

The Band, for a new organization, plays well, and will doubtless develop into a strong musical body. The members were given every encouragement last night.

Mr. R. N. Jolliffe is always a favorite, and his reception was cordial, even enthusiastic. His first contribution was Bevan's "Kings of the Road," which stirring song earned for him a recall to which he generously responded. Miss Kline, of Lakefield, who was to have given a solo, was unable to be present, and Mr. Jolliffe took her place at a last moment call. He gave "My Bonnie Barque" in very pleasing style.

Mr. Gilbert Markle's violin solos demonstrated his mastery over that instrument. His free bowing, delicate shading and expressive tones won many plaudits. He gave Jemo Huda's Csarda, Op. 32, and answered a recall. A later selection was the familiar, but ever sweet and welcome "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls" which was well rendered.

Miss L. Hallihan sang with good expression and in excellent taste Luder's "Message of the Violet," and in response to a hearty encore, furnished that catchy and lively selection from the opera "Florodore," "Are There Any More at Home like You," which was one of the gems of the evening.

Miss Lillian Bell's solo, "Killarney," was another feature of the evening. Miss Bell has a sweet, well trained voice and also earned a recall.

Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot, for her artistic and admirable rendition of Welling's love song, "Forget, Forgive" deserves the highest encomiums. She gave as an encore "Hold Thou My Hand," in which her well modulated voice, purity of tone and superb expression were heard to the best advantage.

The drill song, "The Sea Fairies," by twenty little girls from the Convent, was a novel part of the programme. The little ones showed careful training, their marching and drill being excellent, while their singing was in good taste. The ensemble effect of the drill and song won unstinted admiration. The children, by their quaint dress all made pretty fairies. They were ably trained by the convent sisters and certainly did their part well.

The quartette, "Juanita" (arranged by Parks) the closing vocal number on the programme, by Messrs. Legg, Browne, Jolliffe and Shepherd proved to be an attraction par excellence. They answered the call for more by giving that comic selection, "The Teacher and the Tack."

The accompanist of the evening were Mrs. W. J. Morrow, Miss K. Hurley and Miss M. Doherty, who respectively deserve much credit for the success and enjoyment of the evening. The piano was a Heintzmann, kindly loaned for the occasion. The tableau, "The Angel of Temperance," showed the difference between a home blessed with temperance, and the downfall of one addicted to strong drink, and was an appropriate finale.

THE LECTURE

The lecturer of the evening was Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan, of Lindsay, founder of the society. Mr. Fred. Cook, the past President, and Mr. Maurice O'Heron, the present President, were on the platform during the delivery of the lecture, as well as Rev. Father McColl, who ably acted as chairman and Rev. Dr. O'Brien, the popular spiritual adviser of the T.A.S.

Father McColl said that Father O'Sullivan needed no introduction to a Peterborough audience. His work was well known and it had accomplished great good. His efforts in behalf of total abstinence would long be remembered. All recognized that prevention was better than cure. The good cause started by Rev. Father O'Sullivan had been kept up by the great courage and untiring energy of Rev. Dr. O'Brien, and our young boys and men had grown up thoroughly imbued with the spirit of total abstinence.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan was enthusiastically received. He thanked all for their cordial welcome and was glad to see so many happy faces around him. He recalled the first meeting of the society and was pleased that he had been the instrument under God in starting a work which had been blessed and had done so much good, saved so many souls and was such an honor to the church and to Peterborough. The success achieved and the good done were an object lesson more eloquent than any words of his. What was the origin or cause of the phenomenal success of the work? It had not died out as some had prophesied, but had prospered under God's blessing and those engaged in it had been given supernatural courage to continue. It was fostered by the prayers of the church and of the mothers, sisters, daughters and fathers of the parish. Then, there were action and energy at the back of the prayers, as well as the unselfish labors of Rev. Dr. O'Brien and the hearty co-operation of the Cathedral clergy. Men and women in large numbers had aided the good priests by influencing their neighbors, and speaking a word in season urging them to join the society. Fault should not be found if one member or two went astray. Often general conclusions were drawn from very small premises—in politics, in the church and in society—but the whole was not a failure, owing to the lapse of an occasional one. Too much must not be expected from a human society like this. However, the grand results have amply demonstrated its success and stability.

The reverend father and founder of the society referred to the labors of those who had assisted in fixing up the rooms, preparing for the concerts, arranging the debates, and looking after the library, etc. The Society had made happy homes, resulted in the saving of souls and rescuing many from ruin; and the influence it exerted, extended outside the parish; its members who had gone away, carrying the example and life of total abstinence with them in other parts. Moral suasion had been exercised. He said that a society like St. Peter's T.A.S. would do more to settle the temperance question than legislation could. Its influence in athletics was referred to and the praises the T.A.S. athletic club had received were dwelt upon.

Good reading had been encouraged and many young men in the debating club had learned to express their thoughts freely and easily and one young man, who had taken a great interest in the Society had just been honored by being elected a member of the Town Council. His success as a speaker was largely due to the training he had received at the rooms. Father O'Sullivan looked forward to the time when the society would celebrate its tenth anniversary and believed it would go on and prosper more abundantly in the great and good work it was doing.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien referred to the inauguration of the organization by Father O'Sullivan and said it was no light task to launch a society of this kind. They had received great encouragement from Catholics and those who were not Catholics and he thanked all for their help. It was a good omen of the times to see all standing together in the great cause of temperance.

He had said considerable on Sunday on this subject and would not further take up their time. At the 10th anniversary of the society—five years hence—he hoped the membership instead of being 600, would be 1,000, and he urged all not to cease in their vigilance and efforts on behalf of the noble work.

Mr. Gilbert Markle, the violinist, who scored such a signal success last night, is on the teaching staff of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music.

The stage and boxes were elaborately decorated, the draping being artistically and effectively arranged. There were many pictures displayed to good advantage, the large photo of the T.A.S. Lacrosse team made by Mr. G. E. Whiten occupying the most prominent position.

The stage decorations were placed in position by Messrs Bert Shaw and W. S. Merrell, who deserve great credit for their excellent work.

The committee's thanks are due to all those who so kindly lent goods for the decoration of the stage and to the members of the Ladies Literary Society for their valued assistance.

SOME TIMELY ADVICE.

People Urged to Settle Up All Small Liabilities This Month.

In St. John's church on Sunday the rector gave his congregation some good advice, which is particularly timely at this season of the year. He urged upon his hearers, in the course of his sermon, to start the year 1905 right, by settling up all accounts. This would have a far-reaching and beneficial effect on the community. The rector dwelt upon the value and need of promptness and pointed out the good that would result and how thrift would be encouraged by the payment of all accounts as soon as possible.

REGISTRATION CLOSED.

There Were Over Eleven Hundred Names Recorded.

The registration of manhood suffrage voters for the Provincial elections closed yesterday, after three days of activity on the part of workers for the two candidates. The returns from the different registration booths show the total to be 1,117 This is less than that recorded for the Dominion elections, when the number was something over 1,200. The registrations last year, however, were on a municipal list of almost a year previous, whereas the very latest lists made out in December and containing about 150 names who last time had to register, were available for this year. Following are the deputy registrars and the total number of names recorded in each ward—

HOW THE CHURCH IS PROSPERING

George Street Methodists Hold Pleasant Reunion.

REPORTS OF YEAR'S WORK.

Delightful Programme Rendered—Activity in All Departments—Closing Proceedings of Very Successful Anniversary.

An important event in connection with George-st. Methodist church is the annual congregational meeting, which was held last evening. It was a gathering where the members and friends of the church assembled together to spend a social time and to hear the report from the different branches of the church work. The attendance last evening was very large, although the inclemency of the weather doubtless kept some at home who would otherwise have been present.

The pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers, was in the chair. In his address he said that he thought the gathering was an ideal meeting. They had not assembled to make money, but just to have a pleasant time together. The longer he lived among the people of this town the more he liked them. He had never been in a place he liked more than Peterborough. There was a bustle and a stir about it that pleased. He closed by urging his hearers to make themselves thoroughly at home.

Prof. C. E. Milner contributed a delightful piano solo after which reports from the different organizations in connection with the church were read. All were very encouraging and showed what great progress was made during the past year.

The report of the Girls' Guild was first read by the secretary of the Guild, Miss Jean Eyres. It was as follows:—

RECEIPTS.

Cash on hand from last year.	$ 7 47

At the conclusion of the report Miss Eyres on behalf of the Girls' Guild, presented the chairman with $85 in gold, to be added to the church debt fund.

Mr. Garnet Galley then read the report of the Young Men's Guild, which also showed a very prosperous condition of affairs. The report showed:—

RECEIPTS.

B. A. ARMSTRONG,
Rec.-Sec.

Miss Maud Crothers delighted the gathering with a beautifully executed violin solo, and had to respond to an encore.

Mr. A. E. Dixon, the treasurer of the Church Debt Fund Committee, gave the report of that part of the work. They had started five years ago with a debt of upwards of $21,000, and had undertaken to raise $10,000. This had been raised within five years, $2,000 in the past year. The indebtedness now stands:—

Church mortgage...	$ 7000
Note...	1000
Amount on which interest is to be paid......	3000
Total...	11,000

Mr. Dixon said that the committee hoped to be able to raise another $1,000 out of the old subscription list written a short time ago.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe then presented the report of the Trustee Board from the 15th of May, 1904, which is the end of the church year, to Dec. 31st, 1904. It was as follows:—

RECEIPTS.

MINISTERS MET.

Practical Paper Read Yesterday by Rev. A. H. Brace, of Park St. Church.

A regular meeting of the Ministerial Association was held yesterday morning. Those present were Revs. J. C. Davidson (President), Dr. Crothers, J. G. Potter, F. J. Scott, A. H. Brace, J. G. Lewis, Dr. Torrance and W. J. Jolliffe. Rev. Caleb Parker, of Norwood, and Rev. R. McKnight, of Pipestone, Man., formerly of town, were visitors.

The hospital visitation for January will be as follows:—

Jan. 9—Rev. A. H. Brace.
Jan. 16—Rev. J. G. Potter.
Jan. 23—Rev. J. C. Davidson.
Jan. 30—Rev. J. G. Lewis.

A practical paper was read by Rev. A. H. Brace on "The Drifting of our Young its Cause and Cure." The cause is an oversight and neglect of children by the home and the church. The cure is in giving first place to the care of the children in both home and church.

A most interesting discussion followed, in which all the members took part.

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. G. Morrow was in Toronto yesterday.

Mr. A. G. Gould, of Queenston Heights, is visiting his son, Mr. Carmen Gould, East Ward.

Mr. Ben Simpson, of town and Mr. Nelson, of Otonabee, returned to the Normal College, Hamilton, yesterday.

Miss Shaw-Hillier will give a lecture in the Mark street church on Wednesday afternoon, January 11th, at 3.30 to the ladies of the town. No admission.

Mr. F. E. Fry D.D.G.M. of the I.O.O.F., and the members of the District Committee, will be present to install the officers of the two lodges on Thursday, January 12th.

Mrs. A. T. Dorland wishes to thank the friends of town for the many kindnesses shown to Mr. Dorland during his illness, and for the tender expressions of sympathy to her in her great sorrow.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, of Carstairs, Alberta, has been visiting friends here for the past week. He left today to visit his old home in Hastings. Mr. Fraser was a captain in the Royal Canadian Regiment, which saw service in South Africa.

The Toronto Star contains an admirable report of the Bal Poudre recently given by the Work Depository. Never was a prettier ball room scene presented in Toronto than when the minuet was danced. Among those taking part were Mr. Vernon McGill and Miss Madge McGill. The function was a magnificent success.

Mr. W. A. King, real estate agent of Souris, Manitoba, accompanied by his daughter, are in town for a few days. Mr. King is a former resident of Peterborough and is succeeding admirably in the west. He has a large real estate business and also represents the Peterborough Cordage & Manufacturing Co.

Payment of accounts confirmed.

ANNUAL FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Mr. Fair presented the estimates and a statement of receipts and expenditures for the current year, which will be published to-morrow.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Hill, chairman of the Committee on Appointments, presented the report of the committee to the effect that, according to instructions, the committee advertised for a teacher to fill a vacancy on the public school staff, and that Miss Minnie R. Walker, of Meaford, had been appointed at a salary of $350.

The report was adopted.

Mr. R. Fair moved, seconded by Mr. F. J. Jameson, that the Town Council be and are hereby required to pay the treasurer of the Board of Education, in monthly instalments, the sum of $33,000 for current expenditure of the Collegiate Institute and Public Schools.

RETIRING TRUSTEES.

Moved by Mr. W. H. Hill, seconded by Mr. F. J. Jameson, that in view of the retirement of Messrs. W. H. Wrighton and J. J. McBain from membership of this board, after respectively twenty-five and thirteen years' service that this Board place on record its regret, both at losing the benefit of their services, and also association in the meetings of this Board, and also place on record this Board's high sense of appreciation of the faithful and efficient services rendered by them, and of their devotion to the best interests of education in the town, and that the secretary be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the above mentioned gentlemen.

Mr. Hill, in moving the resolution, paid a high tribute to the efficiency and faithfulness of the services given by these gentlemen, to which the chairman in putting the motion, added his own tribute, and the motion was unanimously adopted.

SUPERVISION MATTERS.

Mr. Pringle, chairman of the Supervision Committee, verbally, and briefly, reported that little of importance took place during the first part of the year. In regard to the contract for text books and supplies, Mr. Pringle stated that Mr. A. H. Stratton had very fully carried out the terms of the contract. The system had worked satisfactorily, and no complaints had been received, and the financial features were very promising. The success of the system was largely due to the Inspector, whose systematic habits were responsible for its smooth working. During the past year there had not been reported a single complaint concerning the town schools, showing to how gratifying an extent harmony and good feeling prevailed. Mr. Pringle said that we had an excellent public school staff, both in the matter of scholarship and personal qualities. There had been some little difficulty with two members of the Collegiate Institute staff, but changes had been made, and of the two new teachers appointed, Miss Weir, modern languages, was an excellent choice. With the appointment of Mr. Hodgson, also an efficient teacher, the staff was now in an excellent condition. We had a strong Collegiate Institute staff, each a specialist in his or her subject, and well known throughout the province as efficient and capable teachers. Mr. Pringle concluded by hoping that we should have at no distant date an Institute building to correspond in character with the present Institute staff.

Mr. Eastwood verbally reported that the heating apparatus in the Central School building was receiving attention, with a view of remedying defects in radiation in two of the lower rooms, and that he expected that during the week the work of overcoming defects would be satisfactorily completed. He also made reference to the conditions in some of the other school buildings.

Mr. Stevenson offered a few words of criticism in regard to the mode of making repairs and alterations, without inviting tenders. He was perfectly justified in objecting to such work being done by day work. The Board had thrown away $3,000 in the matter of this heating affair.

The Board then adjourned.

A NOTABLE MEETING.

Held in the Interest of "Woman's Rights" in 1701.

The first recorded public meeting in the interest of "woman's rights" was held in the town of Medford, Mass., in 1701. The gallery of the church was occupied by the young unmarried people of the congregation, one side and one half the front gallery being given to the young men, the other side and the other half being given to the young women. But in the seating in this eventful year the young men were given the entire front of the gallery as well, and the young women were only allowed one side of the gallery.

Then it was that things began to happen. Treatment like this wasn't to be tolerated even for a moment. The blood of the future mothers of the Revolution was fully aroused, and the young women made such an uproar and commotion that it speedily became a town matter, and a town meeting was called to restore to them their rights in half of the front gallery.

The young men of the day were bitterly opposed to extending any new privileges to women, and the fight extended beyond Medford. Shortly after the introduction of "pues" into the churches, by which families were separated from the remainder of the congregation, the selectmen of the town of Newbury gave permission to a group of young women to build a "pue" in the gallery of the church upon their own side of the house. This extension of privilege was resented by the young bachelors to such a degree that they broke a window of the church, forced an entrance and hacked the pew in pieces. For this act of sacrilege the young men of Newbury were fined $10 each and sentenced to be whipped or pilloried. But they were manly enough to confess their folly and ask pardon, so this part of their punishment was omitted. So you see the "woman's rights" movement isn't a modern one.

Remake Body and Brain

BY ADDING NEW, FIRM FLESH AND TISSUE AND INCREASING NERVE FORCE WITH

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The restorative, upbuilding and invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are the features which make it of incalculable worth to the person who is weak, run down and nervous.

It is not a stimulant to whip up tired nerves.

It has not a deadening, narcotic effect.

It cures by forming new, red corpuscles in the blood and creating new nerve force.

If you find yourself restless, irritable and nervous, unable to sleep and easily fatigued, lacking in energy and enthusiasm, subject to headaches, indigestion and bodily weakness you need just such help as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will give you.

This great food cure has become famous because of its power to reconstruct wasted tissues, and to put new vitality into wasted nerves.

You need not expect miracles, because nervous diseases are never cured except by patient and persistent treatment. One thing you can be certain of is that each box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will be of some benefit to you. This is because it is food cure and restorative.

Note your increase in weight while this medicine is being used. Note how the form is rounded out and the healthful glow is restored to the complexion.

Mr. J. Law, 247 Hunter street, Peterborough, Ont., and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Co. states:—

"For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches, and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and began using this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"In death?" asked the half-unconscious man.

"No, in life," answered madame, soothingly.

"But you died; I always wished to meet you after death—and we have met at last—met at last."

He put his hand out as if he wished to take madame's, and she took it in her own.

"It is warm," murmured Sir Ralph. "How strange that it should be warm!"

"It is warm with life," smiled madame, a little wistfully.

"But you are dead. I went to your grave—it broke my heart."

There was something inexpressibly mournful in Sir Ralph's tone as he said this, and madame's eyes filled with sudden tears.

"It broke my heart," he kept murmuring, and then he seemed to relapse into partial unconsciousness, though his lips moved occasionally.

Presently he seemed to sleep; but about four o'clock, when the doctor returned, he woke up, and looked at him as if in astonishment.

"Who are you?" he asked.

"I am the doctor—Doctor Newbridge; and I have good news for you, Sir Ralph Woodland. All the men on board your yacht have been rescued by the life-boat, and the poor fellows are all right, and being well cared for here by madame," and the doctor turned and looked at the mistress of the house as he spoke.

Sir Ralph's eyes followed his, and fixed themselves on the handsome features which seemed so strangely familiar to him.

"Madame?" he repeated.

"Yes, Sir Ralph," said madame, and a soft blush spread over her face as she spoke; "you knew me long ago under another name—Laura Ingram."

Sir Ralph started up in bed as he heard the name, and stared at Laura with wide-open eyes.

"It is long since," she said, falteringly.

"Laura!" gasped Sir Ralph. "Not—not living."

"Yes," answered Laura, a little sadly, "living still. I said I must be as one dead to you when we parted, and I have been—but—"

"Humph!" said the doctor between his teeth, and turned away and quietly left the room. He was too shrewd a man not to see that his presence was no longer wanted.

"But," said Sir Ralph, after he was gone, with a strange yearning, puzzled look on his haggard face, and stretching out his hands toward her, "Mr. Gifford wrote to me that you were dead. I went to your grave —"

"George was deceived then by some mistake," answered Laura, "for I do not think intentionally he would mislead you. I have lived all this time as Madame Vauvert."

"Madame Vauvert, the writer?" asked Sir Ralph, in extreme surprise.

"Yes," said Laura, with a faint smile. "When I first left my husband I went to Mr. Brook, the publisher, and threw myself on his mercy. I asked him to keep my true name and address a secret from every one, and he has most honorably fulfilled his trust. As Madame Vauvert I have done very well, and for the last two years have lived on the coast here."

"Strange! This is, indeed, most strange," exclaimed Sir Ralph, still with his eyes fixed on Laura's face, as if he could scarcely believe the evidence of his own senses. "I have read some of Madame Vauvert's books, and I used to think of you as I did so—though when did I not think of you!"

"That is all past and ended now," answered Laura, gently.

He did not speak for a moment, then he put out one of his hands and grasped hers with nervous force.

"My life has been one long remorse," he said.

Laura was affected; her hand trembled in his. A strange, almost forgotten, emotion stirred in her breast.

"And—you know nothing of—Suffold?" presently asked Sir Ralph, in an agitated voice.

"Nothing. I have been dead to poor George, as I have been to you."

"And you do not know that after your supposed death he married?"

"Married!" exclaimed Laura, looking up in great surprise. The news astonished her. It was a sort of shock, and for a moment she could scarcely realise it.

"Yes," continued Sir Ralph, "nearly three years ago, after old Mr. Gifford's death, he married his cousin, Miss Lindsay."

"Married Anna Lindsay! Impossible!" cried Laura.

"Yet it is a fact. And—I have other news for you —"

Laura did not speak; she looked in his face. She had not courage to ask him what it was.

"You—you are a widow," faltered Sir Ralph, still grasping her trembling hand. "In the spring of last year—'91, Mr. Gifford took influenza, and it ran on to inflammation, and he died after a very short illness."

Laura gave a gasping sigh, and grew suddenly pale. George dead? George! She stood there, and all her past life seemed to come back to her. The dreary days at Red House; the subtle love that had stolen back into her heart, her misery, and her flight. And George, poor George!

She remembered, too, his kindness, his unselfish love.

"Oh, it was cruel, cruel of me to leave him!" she suddenly cried, and then turned and left the room, with tears streaming down her pale face.

But after awhile, after the first shock and pain were over, a sort of relief came to her heart. Poor George was gone, she told herself, and he could not have loved her very deeply since he had married Anna Lindsay so soon. Here she wronged George, but it made her self-reproach lighter, and as these thoughts were passing through her mind the doctor rapped at the door of the room she was in.

"May I come in?" he asked; and when he entered he looked very grave.

"I've no right to interfere, I know," he said, casting down his eyes, "but Sir Ralph Woodland is my patient, and any sort of excitement is bad for him at present. They told me just now that you had left his room, and when I went up to him I found him very much upset. He ought—in fact, he must—be kept very quiet, or with the injury to his head we'll be having a case of brain fever."

"I—am so sorry," faltered Laura; "but he told me some bad news."

"So he told me. But please, madame, go to him now, and try to keep him calm."

And after a few moments Laura went. She sat down by the bedside and spoke soothing words to the injured man, and her voice seemed to have the old sweet charm for him.

"If you are sure it is not all a dream?" he said, wistfully.

"I am sure it is not a dream," answered Laura, gently. "I am sure you are here in my house at Reddrift, and that all your poor men are saved, and that I am going to nurse you and take care of you until you are quite well."

"And then?" asked Sir Ralph, with a restless sigh.

"You must get well first. And now take this and try to sleep."

* * * * * * * * *

Many days passed before Sir Ralph was "quite well." Anxious days to his old friend and anxious nurse, who used to sit by him, noting sadly how changed he was; how his sorrow and remorse for her had eaten into his heart, making him old before his time. But at last—one evening in the gloaming—Sir Ralph spoke of the past.

"There is surely nothing to part us now, Laura?" he asked, nervously, looking up in her half-averted face.

"There is still—my poor father's crime," answered Laura, with quivering lips.

"That is nothing to me; my love for you is everything."

Then Laura bent down and took one of his thin hands and laid it softly against her cheek.

"If that is so—" she half-whispered.

After this everything was soon settled. Poor George Gifford had been dead more than a year, and they had no one to consult. They were married at Reddrift; but when the simple announcement of their marriage appeared in the newspaper two women were almost utterly overcome with rage and consternation.

"At the parish church, Reddrift, by the vicar, the Rev. John Mason, Sir Ralph Woodland, Bart., of Rathbourne Hall, Yorks, to Laura, widow of George Gifford, late of Suffold."

At Red House, Suffold, the supposed widow of George Gifford read these words, and nearly fell off her chair in excitement and dismay. She could scarcely believe the evidence of her own eyesight.

"Not dead; that creature not dead," she cried, panting with passion. Then she began, pale with rage, to realize what this meant to her. She was not the widow of George Gifford. Red House was not hers, nothing was hers except what her uncle had left her. But she was never disturbed in her possessions. Neither Sir Ralph nor Lady Woodland ever made any claims on the property or money which was justly Laura's. Only unamiable people sometimes addressed their letters to "Miss Anna Lindsay," and this was gall and wormwood to Anna's soul.

And the other woman, Patty May—Patty May no longer, but Mrs. Snowe, the vicar of Laytonside's wife—read the announcement of Laura's marriage to Sir Ralph, also, with the utmost astonishment and fury. After her interview with Sir Ralph at Harewood, when he lay injured, Patty had returned to their rooms in town in a state of mind almost impossible to describe. Ella May had advised her sister not to go to Harewood, but Patty had insisted on running the risk, and having much confidence in her youth, beauty, and attractions, had hoped by one bold throw to win back Sir Ralph.

When she failed, for some days she was like a mad-woman. Then she dried her tears.

"I will marry Mr. Snowe," she said to Ella, and she did marry him, but all the same she had never forgiven Sir Ralph Woodland, nor the woman whom she believed had taken him away from her.

His marriage, therefore, was a fresh blow to her, and she wondered how she could best take her revenge. She spoke slightingly of the new Lady Woodland in the parish, yet when, some months later, Sir Ralph brought his wife to Rathbourne Hall she proposed to her husband that they should call on them.

"Yes, of course, my dear," answered the kindly vicar.

And they did call, but were not received, and the next day Patty received a letter which caused her cheeks to tingle. It was as follows:

"Sir Ralph Woodland requests that Mrs. Snowe will not attempt in future to visit his wife, whom she so basely slandered."

Patty was furious, and more furious when she heard that Lady Danvers was staying at Rathbourne Hall, and that all the best people in the neighborhood had called on Lady Woodland. She therefore wisely ceased to abuse her, but has not yet succeeded in overcoming Sir Ralph's prejudices.

And the husband and wife?

"I think sometimes we do not deserve to be so happy," Laura once said to him, softly.

"We paid a heavy price for it, at all events," answered Sir Ralph. And he stooped down and kissed his wife's dear face.

ASTHMA

CLARKE'S KOLA COMPOUND Cures Cases of 15, 20 and 35 years standing

No matter how long you have suffered with asthma, Clarke's Kola Compound will cure you. No matter how many physicians have told you, you would never be free of your sufferings, Clarke's Kola Compound will transform you into a happy, healthy being. We have grateful testimonials from dozens of Canadians who were permanently cured by Clarke's Kola Compound after suffering for 12, 16, 20 and 35 years.

"For sixteen years, I was a constant martyr to Asthma. Many weeks I could not lie down. I spent many hundred dollars in search of a cure, and tried all doctors. My druggist recommended Clarke's Kola Compound about two years ago. I took this grand medicine during nine months. Each week I gradually improved, and am now completely cured. It is now over a year, and I have not had a single attack since."—ALLAN FAULKNER, Dufferin.

Open Your Eyes.

The habit of going through the world with the eyes shut is an inveterate one, common in all times. In old time the prophets and the great Teacher himself reproached their disciples with this failing. "Eyes have ye, and see not," said they. True, it was a failure to perceive spiritual truth in their case. All our faculties, bodily, mental, spiritual, are given to us for use, and we are held to be responsible for neglect of them, as was that servant in the parable who went and hid in the earth that talent that his lord had entrusted to him. Sufficient stress is not laid upon the use and abuse of our bodily faculties or the neglect of them. Do but consider how much pleasure we debar ourselves from when we shut up this the chief of Five Gateways of Knowledge. How beautiful is the world in the cool, clear, luminous air of early dawn, and yet how many, think you, have ever stopped to take in that beauty, if they by chance have been abroad at that hour?—Exchange.

British Military Bulls.

It has often been demonstrated that the schoolmaster is needed among the British officers. Some queer, quaint efforts at composition have been made in brigade orders. A certain major ordained not long ago this: "Reveille will be at 3:30 a. m. The brigade will parade at 4 a. m. The brigade will move at 4:15 a. m. The sun will rise at 5 a. m." It was during the guerrilla war of 1901-02, after the building of the blockhouses, that it became necessary to check the habit of the men of sleeping outside the blockhouses for the sake of coolness and comfort. A certain staff officer thereupon issued the following quaint order: "No one is permitted to sleep outside the blockhouses except the sentries." Though the intention of this order is clear, its phraseology is not. "Men on outpost duty are forbidden to strike matches on the sky line."

—The total vote for local option in Cavan township was 288 against 71.

Gorgeous Gowns.

During the reign of King George I. Lord Hervey, a cultured man, gave this description of the fine dress of a distinguished woman: "The Duchess of Queensberry's clothes pleased me most. They were white satin embroidered, the bottom of the petticoat brown hills, covered with all sorts of weeds, and every breadth had an old stump of a tree that ran up almost to the top of the petticoat, broken and ragged and worked with brown chenille, round which twined nasturtiums, ivy, honeysuckles, periwinkles, convolvuluses and all sorts of twining vines, which spread and covered the petticoat. Many of the leaves were finished in gold, and part of the stumps of the trees looked like the gilding of the sun."

The First Iron Bridge.

The first iron bridge ever erected in the world and which is in constant use at the present time spans a little river in the county of Salop, on the railroad leading from Shrewsbury to Worcester, England. It was built in the year 1778 and is exactly ninety-six feet in length. The total amount of iron used in its construction was 378 tons. Stephenson, the great engineer, in writing concerning it, said, "When we consider the fact that the casting of iron was at that time in its infancy, we are convinced that unblushing audacity alone could conceive and carry into execution such an undertaking."

Still in Service.

"Can't yer do a little somethin' fer an old soldier?" whined Tired Tiffins.

"Well, I don't know," replied the portly citizen. "If you can show your discharge papers, I may do something for you."

"I hain't been discharged yet, boss," replied the hobo. "It's soldier of fortune I am."

Wasn't Wise.

J.—So you told Mrs. Cunningham that she looked as young as her daughter. I suppose that caught the old lady? B.—Yes, but it lost me the daughter.

When the fool has made up his mind the market is gone by.

"LIGHT OF THE WORLD"

Holman Hunt's Great Picture to Pay Colonial Visit.

Right Hon. Charles Booth's Big Idea—After the Painting Is Seen in Canada It Will Be Offered to the Nation As a Gift—Colonial Secretary Lyttelton Expresses Sympathy With This Novel Touch For Union.

London, Jan. 10.—(C.A.P.)—The Right Hon. Charles Booth, is sending Holman Hunt's great picture, "The Light of the World," to be exhibited in the principal cities of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, after which he will offer it as a gift to the nation.

Writing to Mr. Booth, Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, says: "I feel great sympathy with your desire to add to the ties which bind together the various populations of the self-governing states of the Empire by that lofty bond of union consisting in common admiration for the great and elevating works of national and religious art."

Colonies Are Loyal.

Earl Percy, speaking at Selby, said we were standing at the parting of the ways, and it might be that the people of this country would have to choose between the two fundamental conceptions of Empire. The colonies would remain loyal whatever we did, but the question was whether our connection with the colonies was to be based on sentiment and blood relationship or on mutual community of interest.

Get At the Facts.

Sir Robert Finlay, Attorney-General, referring to the proposed conference at Inverness, said that both sides would enter it absolutely free, pledged to nothing. Any recommendation the conference made would be submitted to the electors at the general election. Before any action could be taken the country ought to have the proper facts placed before it. He personally believed that taxation of food was neither desirable or practicable, but they should have the facts.

Lord Durham's View.

Speaking at York, Lord Durham said the Liberals' defence of free trade involved no antagonism to the colonies. It was merely a foolish cry of protectionists to discredit the Liberals. It was the Liberals who gave the colonies the most cherished privilege of self-government. Liberals recognized the loyalty, the power and the importance of the colonies. Even if there were a few Liberals who were not sound on the matter they were less dangerous than those protectionists who said the only way to maintain the integrity of the Empire was by an ignoble system of barter. Liberals regarded the Empire as based upon a far different basis, upon the freedom of Government, religion and commerce.

OPERATIONS NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY.

Doctors Frequently Mistaken.

"I suffered untold agony with piles for over three years. Two doctors told me nothing but an operation would cure me. I tried different remedies, but nothing did me any good until I used Pyramid Pile Cure. I bought six fifty cent boxes at the drug store, and now I can do my work and go out, where before I spent most of my time lying down. I thank God for giving the discoverer the knowledge to make such a cure. I recommend it to all my friends, and if I ever have piles again will certainly use this remarkable remedy. You can use this in any way you wish to make known the wonderful merit of Pyramid Pile Cure." Mrs. Wm. Macky, 81 Marshall street, Elizabeth, N. J.

The experience of this lady is that of thousands of others who have been assured that nothing short of an operation would rid them of this distressing complaint. On the face of it, it appears as if too many surgeons operate in order that they may keep their hand in, and lose no portion of their skill; then, again too many surgeons are anxious to experiment (like the scientific man in Mark Twain's pathetic story of the dog and her little puppy), and do not have proper regard for a patient's physical welfare or condition.

We advise every sufferer to think twice before submitting to an operation for piles, and suggest that those interested write to the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book on the causes and cure of piles, which is sent free for the asking.

—The first meeting of the new County Council will be held on Tuesday January 24th, not on the 17th as Councillors will elect a Wadren and Provincial election it is probable the then adjourn for a few days, as most of the members are anxious to get home to record their votes.

HALF MILE WEST OF LYN

Coach Plunged Over Embankment and Rolled to Bottom.

Fifteen Passengers On the Brockville, West Point and Northern Railway Were Jumbled About Like Peas in a Can, But None Were Seriously Hurt—Conductor Horton, With Blood Streaming Down His Face, Pluckily Stuck to Post.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—The worst accident in the history of the Brockville, West Point & Northern Railway occurred about 5 o'clock last evening at a point half a mile west of Lyn, and was caused by the spreading of the rails while a mixed train was running about twenty miles an hour en route to Brockville. The train was made up principally of freight cars, with a combination passenger and baggage car at the rear, said to contain about fifteen passengers, mostly women and children.

Suddenly the passengers were startled by the wheels of the coach bumping along the ties, indicating that it had left the track. Efforts were made to signal the engineer, but all to no avail, and finally the coach plunged over the embankment and rolled to the bottom, a distance of several feet. The passengers were thrown promiscuously from their seats and while not one escaped from a cut or a bruise, strange to relate, none sustained serious injuries.

They managed to extricate themselves from the coach in the darkness, the lamps having been extinguished. Conductor Horton was severely cut about the head, but pluckily stuck to his post, directing operations with blood streaming down his face. He would not leave the scene until all others had been cared for. Horton will recover. Among those severely cut or bruised were: J. C. Ross of Athens, Miss Laishley of Chaffey's Locks, a little daughter of A. E. Shaver of Brockville, and Harry Johnston of Delta.

The passengers were conveyed to Lyn in sleighs and subsequently brought to Brockville by special train.

Fell Three Storeys to Death.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—A three-storey plunge down an elevator shaft at the warehouse of T. Kinnear & Co. yesterday afternoon resulted in the death of George Stacey of 752 Broadview avenue. How the unfortunate young man happened to fall will never be known, but it is thought he did not get a stable footing when he stepped on to the floor. He plunged backward down the shaft to the basement, alighting on his head and shoulders. He was picked up and hurried to the Emergency, but expired in a few minutes, without regaining consciousness. Stacey was married but a short time ago, and leaves a widow. He was about 30 years of age.

Fireman Jumps to Death.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—Arthur Abraham, 20 years of age, of Three Rivers, a fireman on the Canadian Pacific Railway, was killed Saturday night by jumping from the cab of his engine in the yards of the Angus shop. It is said that Abraham became alarmed on seeing the headlight of an engine approaching on the track next to the one which his engine was on. Thinking the engine was on the same track, he feared a collision and jumped from the cab. In jumping his head struck one of the switch semaphores, fracturing his skull.

This Man May Die.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—W. Weesey, a plumber in the employ of Keith & Fitzsimmons, sustained what may prove to be fatal injuries from a fall while working on the roof of the Hendrie stables yesterday afternoon. Weesey, along with some others, was working on the roof, when losing his footing he slid down the incline, crashed through some scaffolding and plunged to the ground, some 40 feet below. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital, where it was found that he had injured his skull. He lapsed into unconsciousness, and has remained so ever since. His case is critical.

Alps Claim Victims.

Geneva, Jan. 10.—The death roll in the Alps during the recent blizzard reaches a total of 24. Fifteen others narrowly escaped death. The dogs at the Hospice St. Bernard recovered three more bodies from the snow yesterday. Two more Trappist monks died last night of cold in the mountain monastery near Brescia, making a total of four. Thirty guides and villagers recovered six bodies of Italian smugglers Sunday from the summit of the Col. Valsarey and transported them to Bourg, where they were buried yesterday.

Rescued in Mid-Ocean.

New York, Jan. 10.—After a rescue in mid-ocean and narrow escape from death, Capt. William Nelson, his wife and five seamen of the two-masted schooner W. R. Chester, arrived last night as passengers on the Atlantic Transport Line steamship Minniehaha. The schooner was abandoned in latitude 39.30, longitude 59.30, the crew being taken aboard by the steamship Anglo-Chilian, which landed them at Havre. The rudder was broken.

500 Try to Break Jail.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 10.—News from Manila received yesterday tells of an attempt of about 500 convicts at Bilbid Prison to break jail on Dec. 7. Sixteen prisoners were killed and forty wounded. Six of the wounded are not expected to live and twenty-six others are in a critical condition.

Thugs in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 10.—F. Armington, a young artist, was attacked by thugs on a leading residential street here last night. He escaped, but had his overcoat slashed by a knife used in the melee.

PUT ON NEW LOCK.

New Downeyville Public School Was Opened On Monday.

Lindsay, Jan. 10.—The Downeyville Public School opened yesterday morning with an attendance of 19, representing about a dozen families. When the separate school trustees vacated the building on Tuesday last in obedience to Judge Dean's injunction, they took the key of the building and refused to give it up to the public school officials.

On Saturday night Constable John Crawford, on instructions from I. E. Weldon, solicitor for the public school trustees, went down from here, cut the door open and put on a new lock. He was accompanied while about the work by Trustees Bernard Murray, Father Bretherton and Henry Matthews. The teacher of the separate school, which is still being held in the church, demanded of the constable that he show his authority for getting into the building. He did so.

The two Protestants in the section, only one of whom is a property owner, are acting very discreetly. One of them declared that he would rather teach his children at home than be the cause of any unpleasantness in the section. Several Catholics speak very regretfully of the present state of affairs, and a trustee of the separate school said on Saturday that terms of settlement were to be considered by both sides. The case was to have been heard in Toronto yesterday, but it has been postponed till a week from Wednesday to allow time for the preliminary examination of witnesses, which is to take place here on Wednesday next. Hugh O'Leary, K.C., is solicitor for the separate school trustees. Teacher Sutherland, who was in charge of the public school before the trouble, is teaching it now.

THE CONSERVATIVE LEADERSHIP.

Mr. Borden Resigns, But Is Likely to Be His Own Successor.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—It was said on the street yesterday by certain Conservatives that George Taylor, M. P.-elect, and chief Conservative whip, has already in his hands a letter from R. L. Borden, resigning the leadership of the Conservative party, and that the document will be read this evening at the caucus of Conservative Senators and members of the House of Commons.

The ex-member for Halifax has, it is said, taken this step so as to leave the caucus absolutely free to deal with the question of the future leadership.

The party counsellors say, however, that Mr. Borden will be his own successor. He will be requested to resume the Opposition leadership and will at once accept the task.

It is also said that if Mr. Kidd, M. P. for Carleton, will send his resignation to the Speaker as soon as that dignitary is chosen the writ will be issued immediately.

INQUIRY RESUMES.

North Sea Incident Is Now Being Investigated.

Paris, Jan. 10.—The international commission appointed to enquire into the North Sea incident resumed its sessions at the Foreign Office yesterday. Admirals Von Spaun (Austria) and Doubassoff (Russia) were present. The latter's appointment was officially announced, thus making permanent Admiral Kasenakoff's retirement on account of illness. Admiral Fournier (France) was unanimously chosen permanent president. In the course of his speech of acceptance, Admiral Fournier said he hoped the commission would be inspired with the same moderation and wisdom which induced Emperor Nicholas and King Edward to refer the question to arbitration.

HAVE HAD THEIR DAY.

Old Fashioned Medicines For Catarrh No Longer In Vogue.

For many years past the usual treatment for catarrh diseases was with local douches, sprays, inhalers and liquid medicines composed principally of alcohol, all of which never cured but simply give the temporary relief and stimiliation.

A thorough cure can be made only by the treatment which removes the catarrhal poisons from the blood.

A new remedy which meets the requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membrane only.

They can hardly be classed as a secret patent medicine as they are composed of such valuable remedies as blood root, Hydrastin, red gum of Eucalyptus tree and similar antiseptics, combined in tablet form which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous membrane the poisons of catarrh.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant lozenges, to be taken internally, allowing them to dissolve in the mouth, thus reaching the throat, trachea and finally the stomach.

If desired they may also be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However when there is much stoppage of the nose a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use internally will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche.

Dr. Bennett stated "that the internal treatment of catarrh by means of pleasant medicated tablets is rapidly taking the place of douches and local applications" and further says that "probably the best, and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition and all the really efficient catarrh remedies are concentrated in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cts. for full sized package, and he will tell you there is no safer, more palatable, efficient and convenient catarrh cure known to the the trade.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and the pleasures of life. CURES GUARANTEED OR NO PAY. 25 Years in Detroit. 250,000 Cured.

If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous year's, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, JAN. 10, 1905.

DR. BELL IN TOWN.

Medical Inspector of Provincial Board of Health.

Dr. R. W. Bell, Medical Inspector of the Provincial Board of Health is in town to-day. He states that recently, he has been through a considerable portion of New Ontario, visiting the lumber camps and railway construction camps, and that several cases of small-pox have come to his notice. These, however, have all been isolated and no danger is anticipated. The public health of Ontario at the present time, Dr. Bell states is in a very fair condition.

Referring to the progress which is being made on the C.P.R.'s new line from a point near Rumford in New Ontario to Toronto, he states that Foley Bros., who have a contract for laying 60 miles, have about 2,000 men on the job and the work is going ahead very rapidly.

Dr. Bell's jurisdiction is the whole of Ontario and he, of necessity, does a lot of travelling.

His visit to Peterborough is for the purposes f transacting business of a purely private character. He left this town about five years ago and remarks with pleasure upon its progress.

CALCUTT BREWING CO.

Held Annual Meeting—Past Year Was Most Successful.

The annual meeting of the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company was held yesterday. The President, Mr. H. Calcutt, was in the chair. The following officers were elected:—

President and Treasurer—Mr. H. Calcutt.

Vice-President—Mr. H. Neill.

Secretary—Mr. Jas. Drain.

The past year is considered the best in the history of the Company. Extensive improvements were made in the plant and also in the buildings, the facilities thereby having been rendered more suitable for the very large business of the concern. The prospects for the year 1905 are said to be the brightest.

BOTH TEAMS LOST LEAGUE CONTESTS

Lindsay Won From Seniors by Score of 8-4.

JUNIORS AGAIN DEFEATED.

Port Hope Won Exciting Game by 2-1—Seniors Did Not Display Their Usual Form—The Junior Game Was Fast Exhibition.

Both the local O.H.A. teams played away from home last evening and both were defeated. The seniors lost to Lindsay by a score of 8 to 4, and the juniors went down to defeat in Port Hope by a score of 2 to 1. Both were warmly contested games, and in the junior match at least the Peterborough team deserved to win, as they did the balance of good playing. The seniors were away off color in Lindsay, and did not show anything like the form they did against Port Perry on Friday night.

Lindsay gathered in the senior game by a score of 8—4, the half time score being 6—2. It was rather a poor exhibition of hockey, according to the Peterborough people who saw the contest. The Peterborough team was weakened by the absence of Graham and the consequent disorganiization of the forward line. They did not play the game they are capable of, in fact one Peterborough player saying they could not have played much worse if they had tried.

The players state that Lindsay's team is not extraordinarily fast and that they should have no difficulty in running up a score on the Scugog bunch in the game here on Friday night.

Peterborough could not get its combination in working order only once or twice during the game, but when they did a score was the result. Peterborough scored the first goal in twenty seconds, on a rush by Morgan and a neat pass to Cavanah, whose shot went completely through the nets. Several men of both teams adorned the fence during the match, but the game was not rough. The Peterborough team woke up in the second half and they had the best of the playing, each team scoring two goals in that period.

The teams lined up as follows—

Goal—Wasson.
Point—Glover.
Coverpoint—Crowley.
Rover—Meagher.
Centre—Morgan.
Right Wing—Parnell.
Left Wing—Cavanah.

THE JUNIOR GAME.

The juniors lost a most exciting and warmly contested game at Port Hope by the narrowest possible margin of one goal, the score at full time being 2—1, and at the half 1—0 in favor of Port Hope. "Billy" Wood, of Toronto, who refereed the game, said it was the fastest junior O.H.A. game he had ever seen, and that the team winning this district would have no trouble in gathering in the championship. The Peterboroughs played great hockey, and with any kind of luck would have won out. In the second half they played the Port Hope team off their feet, but couldn't score. (Their shooting was very wild and shots were flying all around the Port Hope net. During the last fifteen minutes the game resolved itself into a defence of the Port Hope net, but only one goal was scored, the Port Hope defence staving off defeat by desperate playing. Port Hope scored the only goal in the first half and got another in the beginning of the second half. Peterborough got the last goal just before time was up, McWilliams doing the trick. Parker and McWilliams played nice hockey for Peterborough.

"Billy" Woods, of Toronto, made an ideal referee.

The Peterborough team lined up as follows—

Goal—Fitzpatrick.
Point—Moore.
Coverpoint—Parker.
Rover—McWilliams.
Centre—McFarlane.
Right Wing—Long.
Left Wing—Hall.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The junior game with Belleville scheduled for to-morrow night has been postponed, as the Belleville team did not want to play three league games in one week. The juniors' next game will be on Monday, January 16th, when they journey to Cobourg.

Belleville defeated Cobourg at Belleville last night in a junior O.H.A. game by 11—3.

—The T.A.S. will play a Trent Valley League game to-morrow afternoon with Campbellford. The Abstainers are in good shape and expect a victory.

The Verniers had a good workout at the Brock-st. rink last evening.

The Young Nationals added another decisive victory to their string last evening, when they played a runaway game with the Rough Riders, at the Brock-st. rink. The losers were not in the same class as the Nationals and never had a shot on goal. The score at full time was 12—0 and at the half 5—0 in favor of the Nationals.

The teams were as follows:—

Young Nationals.	Rough Riders.
Goal
L. Giroux	Howard
Point.
Conroy	Clancy
Cover Point
Pentland	Stevens
Rover,
Coughlin	O'Toole
Centre
O. Giroux	O'Shea
Right Wing
Gorman	Primeau
Left Wing
Nicholl	Holland

Referee—Gordon Campbell.

The games in the City League on Thursday night are arousing lots of interest. The Verniers meet the Karnots in the first game and say that they can trim the speedy bunch in purple and white, while the Karnots are confident of adding another to their list of victories. The Farriers clash with the Earl Greys in the second game, which should prove an easy victory for the Farriers.

There will be lots of excitement in town on Friday night when the Lindsay bunch play here. The locals are going to get revenge for Lindsay's win last evening by winning a brilliant victory, and the biggest crowd of the season will be in attendance.

NOT SERIOUSLY DELAYED.

Trains To-day Are Running Pretty Much on Time.

In spite of the blizzard which raged for the greater part of last night, the trains to-day were pretty much on time. The midnight from Toronto last night was not delayed to any extent and the 5.10 C. P. R. from the east passed through about 7.30 this morning. The local was here almost on scheduled time, and today's C.P.R. noon train from the west was only about 10 minutes late.

On the Grand Trunk none of the trains to-day were more than fifteen minutes late. The Belleville and Port Hope flyers both arrived with double headers this morning. The train from the north was not more than fifteen minutes late. In anticipation of the troubles of last winter the railway people have taken extra precautions and snow guards have been freely distributed in places where the snow is inclined to bank.

The street railway people have handled the heavy snow fall in great shape so far, and their schedule has been interfered with but very little.

Street Commissioner Evans has a force of men at work clearing the snow-banks off George-st.

WOODMEN ELECT OFFICERS.

Sherwood Forest Camp, Woodmen of the World, held a largely attended meeting last evening in their hall when the annual installation of officers took place. Past Council Commander Wm Gibbs installed the following officers—

Council Commander—Geo. Dryland.
Adviser Lieutenant—R. N. Jones.
Escort—A. Moore.
Banker—Jos. Kyle.
Clerk—A. A. Haskill.
Watchman—J. Hardwick.
Sentry—Wm. Taylor.
Managers — J. W. Hickey, W. A. Head, R. Wareham.

After the installation a banquet took place and a most enjoyable time was spent. Short, crisp speeches were made by the newly installed officers, including a paper on "Woodcraft" by Mr. Haskill, which was very interesting and gave a complete history of woodcraft.

PUBLIC LIBRARY DIRECTORS MEET

Annual Meeting at Which Reports Were Presented.

YEAR'S RECORD GOOD ONE.

The Financial Statement Was Presented—Rev. J. C. Davidson Throws Out Helpful Suggestions—Officers to be Elected Next Week.

The annual meeting of Peterborough Public Library was held last night, when reports for the past year were presented and Directors for 1905 chosen. Dr. Burnham the president, was in the chair.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The report of the Board of Directors was presented as follows:—

Annual report of the Board of Management of the Peterborough Public Library for the year 1904.

Your Board of Management have pleasure in presenting to the members the following report of the affairs of the Public Library for the year 1904.

The past year was, in most respects, an uneventful one in the history of the Library, through a reasonable amount of progress was made, and a moderate increase in the number of members. The heating arrangements have been improved by placing a large base burner coal stove in the Library which is much more comfortable than in former winters. Other improvements might be desired, but with the limited means at the disposal of your Board, they can not be effected. The income of the library does not increase in proportion to the growth of the town; for while there is an increase in the number of members, the amount received from the Government is much less than formerly, and the magazines and periodicals sold bring in a smaller amount.

The Library has been in existence for 36 years, and as might be expected, a great many volumes have been worn out, or lost, during that period; but as each year a large number has been added, our shelves are well—in fact, too well—filled, and we shall soon need more shelf-room. A large number of books, some of them being the most popular ones, and the more likely, through frequent handling, to be put out of order, are laid aside for repairs, and we should have some difficulty in finding room for them if they were repaired.

The following list contains the number of books added to each class in the Library, and also the number in each class issued during the year,

Auditor.

The above reports were received and adopted.

The following directors were selected for the present year—Dr. Burnham, Messrs. J. S. Knapman, James English, W. H. Hill, H. E. McDonald, Robert Robertson, T.A.S. Hay, Thos. Anderson and John Corkery.

Rev. J. C. Davidson was present and threw out several helpful suggestions, advancing, among other things, the appointment of canvassers to solicit members. He complimented the Board upon the fact that the books appeared to be well chosen. The directors will meet one week hence when officers will be elected.

A joint political meeting will be held in the town hall, Lakefield, on Thursday next, January 12th. Arrangements have been made by representatives of candidates Bradburn and McWilliams and it is expected there will be a large attendance. Mr. Bradburn and Mr. J. H. Burnham will speak on behalf of the Conservative party, while Mr. R. F. McWilliams will talk in the interests the Liberals. Reeve F. J. Moore will be chairman.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Celebration Held at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Pilling, Bolivar St

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pilling, 14 Bolivar street, there was a gathering of more than usual interest. It was the 31st anniversary of their wedding day.

About fifty relatives and friends responded to their invitations and right royally they were treated, no pains or expense being spared to make their guests happy.

Early in the evening ice cream and choice viands were served and later when the two hands of the clock were pointing upward, tea and coffee and more substantial food was passed around.

The time was spent in games and reminiscences of the past. Chairs were placed in the centre of the room for the groom and bride of thirty-one years ago, who were surrounded by all their children, except their only son who is in business in the Northwest.

They certainly looked handsome, hale and hearty. Time has surely dealt very tenderly with them.

The Rev. A. H. Brace, of the Park-st. Baptist church at this stage took the chair and in a short address congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Pilling, speaking of Mrs. Pillings value and industry as a help-mate. He remarked addressing Mr Pilling, "If you survive you can never place this epitaph over her.—

"Here lies the poor woman who always was tired,
For she lived in a house where no help was hired.
Her last words on earth were dear friends I'm going
Where washing aint done, neither mending or sewing,
And everything there is exact to my wishes,
For where they don't eat there'll be no washing of dishes,
I'll be where loud anthems forever are ringing,
And having no voice I'll get rid of the singing.
Don't weep for me now, don't weep for me never,
For I'm going to do nothing forever and ever."

Congratulatory speeches were given by Messrs M. Mowry, G. T. Gillespie, W. C. Barrie and Miss M. Mann and Mrs. M. Mowry.

The chairman then gave a Bible reading and led the company in thanksgiving, etc., thus bringing to a close a most profitable and enjoyable evening. The presents were numerous and valuable.

ST. LUKE'S GUILD.

Met For the First Time in New Guild Room Last Night.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Luke's Young Men's Guild was held last evening, for the first time, in the new Guild Room, 127 Hunter street, and there was a good attendance of the members.

The Guild Room has recently been fitted up for social purposes, and besides the furnishings, which make it homelike and attractive, it is equipped with games, reading matter and a musical instrument and the Guild wish to thank all those who in any way assisted in the fitting up of the room. The room is open to member's every evening except Sundays and evenings on which church services are held.

After the usual routine of business, election of officers for the ensuing year took place, which resulted as follows—

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt—Hon. Pres.
Col. J. Z. Rogers—Hon. V. Pres.
Mr. J. W. Kelly—President.
Mr. A. Kingdon—Vice. Pres.
Mr. G. G. Pratley—Secretary.
Mr B. McWha—Treasurer.
Mr. H. Potter—Correspondent.
Managing Committee—Messrs. W. Ball, S. Whittaker and C. Crane.
Sick Committee—T. H. Adams, W. Turner and H. Potter.

It was decided to hold a literary mmeeting on Monday, January 23rd, when Rev. Mr. Langfeldt will be asked to give a talk on his trip to Germany.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

Semi-Ready Four Button Sack.

This is the suit for the up-to-date conservative business man. The whole figure is slightly traced—it is yet far from close fitting.

The collars are the same which characterize all Semi-ready coats—concaved shoulder and artistically shaped lapel. Made of Cheviots, Scotch Tweeds and Irish Homespuns, hand woven.

This being the every day suit it is the one probably best capable of demonstrating the high class tailoring of Semi-ready necessary to insure shape-retaining qualities.

The inner workmanship is what counts here—but it takes more than labor to make it so—it takes labor and skill.

This is the kind of suit which you are not ready to discard until it is really worn out.

FIVE-STAMP MILL IS NOW WORKING

William Hamilton Co. Built It For Star of East Co.

GOLD MINE THAT IS VERY RICH

Expected That the Yield Will be $20 to the Ton — About 20 Tons Have Already Been Put Through.

The new five-stamp mill, built by William Hamilton Manufacturing Co. for the Star of the East Gold Mining Company, started operations a few days ago, and is doing good work. The mine is situated in Barrie Township, Frontenac County, and is most promising one. Assays have been made which show that the mine is a very rich one, and it is expected that the mill-test will more than substantiate this. About 20 tons of ore have already been put through the mill, and it is expected when things are running smoothly, that the amount put through every day will be ten tons. An authority places the output at about $20 to the ton, which is an exceptionally good yield.

The Company is running the mill by steam at the present time, but the intention is to adopt electricity as soon as possible. There has been built a six-inch pipe line, 4000 feet long, the drop in which is 65 feet, and it is proposed to utilize the water power facilities, thus shown to be easily obtainable, by which to generate electricity. There are at present about 50 men working for the Company, and the main shaft is 155 feet deep.

SUCCESSFUL AT HOME

The At Home held last evening under the auspices of the Karnot Hockey club was a success in every way and was one of the most enjoyable of the year. It was held in the Old Labor Hall, Water-st., which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. About fifty couples were in attendance and all had a most enjoyable evening. The music was provided by Misses Dorris and Quinn. The Karnots will hold another of these At Home's in a short time.

NAVY WAS MOBILIZED

Truth of the Rumoured Anglo-German Trouble.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—It is stated this morning that the truth of the rumoured Anglo-German trouble which occurred just after the Dogger Bank affair was as follows: "After the firing by the Russian Baltic fleet on the Hull fishing fleet, the German navy was mobilized with the intention of supporting Russia if war occured between that country and England. No such eventuality occured, England and Russia coming to at least tentative terms. The British Government then lodged a protest with Germany against the latter's mobilization, and Germany, deprived of Russia's assistance, has hastened to conciliate Britain.

NEW PARLIAMENT NOW IN SESSION

House of Commons Was a Lively Scene To-day.

EARL GREY WILL OFFICIATE

R. F. Sutherland, M.P., Invested With Honor as First Commoner—Members Signing the Roll.

(Special to the Review)

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The House of Commons was a busy spot all the morning with members elect signing the roll.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock Sir Henri Taschereau, Deputy Governor, convened both Houses in the Senate Chamber and made the formal request for the election of speakers.

—On the Commons resuming session Sir Wilfrid Laurier nominated R. F. Sutherland, M.P., as First Commoner and Mr. Sutherland was accordingly invested with the honor accompanied by the usual formalities and amidst generous applause.

The House then adjourned to be officially opened to-morrow by Earl Grey.

KEENE LOST FIRST GAME

Campbellford Won Trent Valley Match by 7 to 6.

Keene lost their first game in the T. V. L. series last night to Campbellford by a score of 6 to 7. The game was rather slow and both teams appeared the worse for lack of practice. Keene's combination was weak, but their shooting was superior to Campbellford's and they are faster skaters. Weir, at coverpoint and McIntyre and McCarthy, forwards, did especially clever work, but the team is considerably weakened by the loss of Dickson, Miller, McCarthy and Walsh of last year's aggregation. At half-time the score was 5—3 in Keene's favor, but during the second half they only managed to score once. The game all the way through, but especially in the second half, was a great deal too rough.

The teams—

Keene — McIntyre, goal; Quinn, point; Weir, coverpoint; Lundy, rover; Walsh, McCarthy, McIntyre, forwards.

Campbellford—Shaw, goal; Smith, point; Tate, coverpoint; Pessag, Shannon, Lowry, Garvey, forwards.

Referee—W. Parnell, Peterborough.

ST. PAUL'S GUILD.

The regular meeting of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild was held last night. There was a good attendance and Mr. A. P. McLean was in the chair. The feature of the evening was a very interesting address by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun on Victor Hugo's great novel, Les Miserables, with special reference to the story of Jean Valjean. At the conclusion of the meeting, a cordial vote of thanks was tendered the speaker.

—A carnival will be held in Keene skating rink on the evening of Jan. 27th. It is also intended to hold one on February 17th.

Splendid ice and the 57th Band at the Brock st. rink tonight.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., is in Ottawa attending the opening of Parliament.

—Divine service and study of Sunday school lesson at St. Luke's tonight at 8 o'clock.

—The Strangers' Fellowship Club of the Y.M.C.A. will meet on Saturday evening at six o'clock.

—Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen will speak at the Y.M.C.A. again next Sunday. The male quartette will sing.

—The German Conversation Club will meet to-morrow night at 7.30, at the residence of T.A.S. Hay, McDonnel-st.

—Dr. Scott will give a lecture to the "First Aid" Class at the Y.M.C.A. this evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the class should attend to-night.

—The regular weekly prayer meeting of St. Andrew's church will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. There will be a meeting of the session at 9 o'clock to-night and also of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

—The collectors of the Bible Society contributions have about completed their work. In case they have overlooked any one, such subscribers will please hand in their donations to Mr. John Crane, Ontario Bank, treasurer of the society.

—In the report of the T.A.S. concert the Review quite unintentionally forgot to mention the name of Miss Carrie White, who contributed two excellent recitations. She earned hearty applause and has evidently a bright future before her as an elocutionist.

—Two two-storey residence of Mr. L. H. Kirkpatrick, Norwood, was yesterday badly gutted by fire, the cause of which is unknown. During the progress of the fire the roof of the kitchen collapsed, falling on Charlie McNichol, who was rendered unconscious. There were three other men on the roof, but they were uninjured. There is an insurance of $600 on the house. The contents are also insured.

—The nomination convention of the East Durham Liberal Association was held at Millbrook yesterday. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, B. E. Powers, M.D.; vice-presidents, Jas. Graham, Manvers; T. A. Kelly, Cavan; A. A. Smith, Millbrook; W. H. McCallum, Hope; J. H. Helm, Port Hope; secretary-treasurer, R. H. G. Long. Dr. W. W. Nasmith, of Janetville, was chosen as the candidate for the provincial contest.

—As it is necessary that the annual report of the Board of Health should have the necessary number of cases of typhoid fever treated during the year, it is urgently requested that every physician in town who has not already reported the number of cases which he treated, should do so at once. The Health Act makes it necessary under a penalty to report all cases of typhoid fever same as any other infectious disease. J. BINGHAM, Medical Health Officer; GEO. I. ROSZEL, Sanitary Inspector.

—Mr. Ed. Corkery, of Ennismore, was recently elected Reeve of that township by acclamation. The result of the elections there on January 2nd was as follows:—Wm. Harrington, 113; Dan Kennedy, 109; Michael Perdue, 109; Timothy Crough, 98. These four are elected, and with the reeve will constitute the council for 1905. The other gentlemen who ran were:—Samuel Kellen, 96; Michael O'Connor, 86; W. J. Cavanagh, 68; John Shanahan, 68.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 11, 1905.

Vote for Bradburn and redeem West Peterborough.

The Conservatives should not lose victory through overconfidence. Perfect the organisation.

While you are "remembering" this man and that thing, remember poor old Ontario in her disgrace, and help her out of it.—Hamilton Spectator.

Perhaps those bogus five dollar bills just drifted into town during the big storm. The present windy weather will doubtless keep them in circulation.

Two weeks from today and the fate of the Ross Government will be sealed. Even strong Liberals admit that its chances of success are about as bright as the possibility of Ross keeping his pledges or raising the standard of morality in the Province.

The Globe says, "there is not a sign that the province is taking Mr. Whitney seriously." Perhaps after the 25th the Globe will be bewailing because the province took Mr. Whitney too seriously.

One week from today will be nomination day, two weeks election day, and three weeks from today—Mr. Whitney will be Premier of the Province. The general returns will show that he has the confidence of the people—by a majority of 12 to 15 in the Legislature.

Blood will tell—like father, like son. Classic quotations from the educated Kerrs in their dignified discussion of Conservative principles—

Senator Wm. Kerr (vide Globe, report, January, 1905) "Emptying their political swill barrels."

Mr. F. D. Kerr, his son, (vide Examiner report, November, 1904) "Indulging in sewer pipe politics."

Probably the two best abused men in the present campaign are Rev. D. C. Hossack for his expose of Liberalism under Ross, and Editor P. D. Ross, of Ottawa, heretofore an Independent, who has the temerity to run against the Ross candidates in the interest of a cleaner and purer administration of provincial affairs.

Sam Clarke, in West Northumberland, said things about Rev. D. C. Hossack anywhere from 6 to 26 years old, but took precious good care that he did not attempt to reply to any of the statements contained in Mr. Hossack's open letter. Mr. Clarke should remember any person two should remember that any person two can indulge in gibberish.

The Stouffville Pilot, heretofore a strong Liberal journal, is out against the Ross Government. It speaks its mind pretty freely and in its last issue adds:—"As well might one expect that crime would decrease and be swept out of our land by the judges freeing every criminal that comes up before them for the next four years." The Pilot believes that the last year of the Ross administration "was the most corrupt in the annals of our provincial politics."

Senator William Kerr, at the Liberal nomination in West Northumberland, said that there was no Liberal crisis. It existed only in the Conservative imagination. Dear Mr. Kerr; if there is no crisis why is Ross appealing to the Province? You know very well it is because he has not a majority in the Legislature and no longer commands the confidence of the electors. If there was, or is, no crisis, why was the "great Liberal gathering" called in Toronto, and the old rickety, rotten party platform partially replanked and the Cabinet changed, whereby tried and experienced men deserted the outfit, and green, glib, second raters selected after much delay to fill their places? No, there is no Liberal crisis. Just wait until the 25th, and if you do not see and believe it now, you will have ocular and aural demonstration enough on that date.

It is gratifying to learn that the Conservative members of the Federal House have expressed the unanimous wish that Mr. R. L. Borden continue as leader of the party.

It is a high testimony to his worth, efficiency and standing, not only as a political leader and a broad minded statesman, but to the unselfish, energetic work that he has done on behalf of the party. Mr. Borden, of course, resigned the leadership to leave the Conservatives perfectly free in the matter of a choice of a new leader, but there was only one name mentioned and that was Mr. Borden's. He will be given a seat in Carleton County, Mr. Kidd, the present member resigning. Carleton is a safe constituency and it is rumored that Mr. Borden will remove from Halifax to Ottawa where he will practice his profession. As a leader he was unfortunate in the last fight, but he never spared himself. By his high minded, manly appeals to the electors he won the admiration of not only his political friends, but foes. He is respected and esteemed by all his fellow associates in parliament for his great ability, splendid courage, unimpeachable character, indomitable industry, graciousness of manner and true gentlemanly instincts. Mr. Borden is the type of public man of which Canada has too few and as a representative Canadian he stands in the forefront. Mr. Borden has many years of usefulness, activity and service before him and the Conservatives are to be congratulated on his consenting to remain at the head of his party at their unanimous request. All honor to Mr. Borden.

DID ROSS APPOINT JACKSON ?

Mr. Ross in his speech at Ingersoll the other day was interrupted by the query, "What about Jackson?" "Jackson" answered Mr. Ross "was a bad man in some respects." "Jackson did what was very wrong for him to do." "And he has got a good position" came back from the interrupter. "Yes, but he did not get it from the Ontario Government" answered Mr. Ross. What arrant hypocrisy! Does Mr. Ross think he can thus easily fool the electorate and escape the responsibility for the appointment of Jackson to a fat job as a reward for nefarious acts committed by him on behalf of the Ontario Government? The ... in the South Oxford election trial are now well known.

J. B. Jackson was one of the Counsel for the Liberals who were striving to unseat Mr. Donald Sutherland, the Conservative candidate at the last election for the Local House.

Jackson was put into the witness box by Mr. S. H. Blake, the counsel for Mr. Sutherland and was compelled to admit that he had negotiated for the purchase of testimony to bolster up the Liberal case and that he had as a fact paid a large sum for such testimony.

Notwithstanding Jackson's efforts thus to subvert the course of justice all charges against Mr. Sutherland were disproved and he retained his seat. The evidence disclosed such a shocking state of affairs that Judge Street, one of the trial judges, felt impelled to say amongst other things:—"I must call attention to the improper, reprehensible means which have been proved here to have been devoted to an absolutely improper purpose. We cannot—it is impossible—to follow ramifications of such extent." "Mr. Jackson (the attorney in the case) has associated with men of the lowest possible character. It is evident he must have desired evidence to have been made to procure the proving of charges in this petition."

Did the Attorney General's department take steps to bring Jackson to justice? No! On the contrary, for his rascally efforts in the interests of the Ross Government Jackson receives from the Ottawa Government a fine berth carrying a big salary as representative of Canada at Hull, England. He is thus at the same stroke rewarded and also got out of the country where his presence might be a constant menace to Mr. Ross.

The position briefly is:—

Jackson, counsel for the Liberals, is found guilty of the basest misconduct, subornation of perjury and otherwise tampering with the wheels of justice.

The wily Mr. Ross recognizing that he could not directly recompense his friend with a job under the Ontario Government, passes him over to his friends at Ottawa and Jackson gets his reward.

It is idle for Mr. Ross who proudly dubs himself and his followers as "the right arm of Laurier" to deny responsibility for the appointment.

On the 25th instant the electors will pronounce their opinion in no uncertain sound.

Was Cured of Asthma

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. VanBuskik, Robinson Street Moncton, N.B.

WOES OF AN EDITOR.

Owing to a mix-up of the editor, a dog, and the "forms" of the Echo last week, as we were just going to press, we made more "Pi" than we could re-adjust single handed and get the paper out for that week. Our readers will please blame it all on the dog. With the present issue we are sending out last week's instalment of the continued story.—Minden Echo.

MARVELOUS SALES OF RED ROSE TEA

All Canadian Women Interested in Story of Its Success

How T. H. Estabrooks First Captured the Fancy of Tea Users — The Enormous Quantities Now Used.

Canada always likes to learn of her leading enterprises and the men who made them, or their conception, growth, and why and how they grew. And the Review likes to tell its readers about these great enterprises. The following interesting story, as told by Mr. Estabrooks gives some idea of how he built such a remarkable business in so short a time.

No trade connection; a small warehouse in St. John, N.B., and one clerk was the beginning in 1894. The largest tea warehouse in Canada, over seventy employees, branch warehouses in Toronto and Winnipeg, and a name that is a household word from British Columbia to Newfoundland in 1894 ,is the result of the first ten years.

This wonderful growth is not the result of mere accident, or a streak of good luck. Great businesses do not grow that way.

When commencing business, Mr. Estabrooks found that the tea trade of Canada was being chiefly done by the large tea houses of London, Eng., who sent their travellers regularly through Canada. He knew that the expenses generally in connection with handling and shipping teas there were heavy, and he believed it was a business that could and should be done to advantage by Canadian firms.

In order to be in a position to compete with the London firms and secure the Canadian business, he engaged agents in China, India and Ceylon to buy and help ship teas direct to St. John, and, in order to buy to the best advantage, he arranged through his bankers to pay for the teas as soon as they were shipped.

In freight rates, concessions were secured for direct shipments which showed a material saving.

Having made these arrangements for buying and shipping, he then studied very carefully the varieties of teas which seemed to best suit the Canadian trade. He found that Indian and Ceylon teas were rapidly gaining favor in England, and, as Canadians used the same class of teas as had been used there, he believed that if Ceylon's and Indian's were introduced in this country, they would be equally as successful here.

The result was that the well-known brand of Red Rose Tea was put on the market. From the very first it was a success. The name was a proper one and the tea seemed to be just the kind that people liked best.

For the first two years Mr. Estabrooks travelled himself. He always believed in good goods, and tried to sell merchants better teas than they had been using in the past. The repeat-orders came easy when merchants found that their customers were asking for more of the same tea they had last.

The business grew so, that other travellers became necessary, until now the number on the road is seventeen.

Another very important element in his success is the fact that he has made a specialty of the tea business—deals in nothing else. This is an age of specialists. Nearly every successful man is a specialist in some business or profession.

Another factor in Mr. Estabrooks' success is the very favorable location of St. John as a tea importing and distributing centre. St. John is the winter port of Canada, and, on account of so many steamships plying there, a lower freight rate from India and Ceylon is obtained than to any other Canadian port. Teas from there are distributed all over Canada, without having incurred any rail freight, such as would be the case where teas are shipped through to inland cities, and often shipped back again over the same road, paying freight twice; it is also a great advantage to be able to inspect the teas immediately on landing from the steamer, as, if the teas are in any way damaged, it is ascertained at once.

The increase of the tea business through the port of St. John has been phenomenal, and is best shown by the following figures from the Blue Book; the figures also give a good comparison of the imports of St. John with Toronto and Montreal:—During the year ending June 30, 1894, St. John imported 1,545,089 lbs.; Toronto 2,832,189 lbs; and Montreal 6,491,514 lbs. During the year ending June 30, 1904, St. John imported 6,706,673 lbs; Toronto 5,232,275 and Montreal 9,090,056 lbs.

His business soon grew beyond the capacity of the first warehouse and he moved to another, which was one of the largest in St. John, but that soon became too small, and a year ago not being able to find a larger building, he was compelled to build for himself. He erected a five-storey brick building, with a frontage of 114 feet, 70 feet deep—the largest tea warehouse in Canada, probably the largest in America.

Having built it specially for his business, it is of course, equipped with every facility that experience and forethought could suggest, including the latest and most up-to-date labor saving machinery.

To give an idea of the capacity of this building, it may be noted that on the top floor can be stored 10,000 chests, or about 1,000,000 lbs. of tea, and here it may be stated that in January and February of this year Mr. Estabrooks imported no less than 885,586 lbs. of tea—a record in Canadian imports—and it will be seen that the build is none too large.

Besides Red Rose Tea in lead packages, he deals in bulk tea of all kinds, his aim being to sell to the merchant whatever best suits his trade and Mr. Estabrooks lays special emphasis on the fact that his business has been built up on the merits of his teas, as is evidenced by the fact that he has spent comparatively little in advertising; but he is a firm believer in newspaper publicity and is now beginning an extensive advertising campaign. From what the Review has seen of the copy to be used, the ads. will be both interesting and educative about teas, and should be well worth reading.

ONTARIO, ONTARIO!

Ontario! Ontario— how far are you to go!
Thy morals and great men are surely getting low,
Men all over Ontario, disgraceful to be seen,
Are supporting ballot-stuffing and everything that's mean.

There are men in every Riding who claim to be upright.
Thy clergy and lawyers are mixing in the fight,
To uphold this ballot stuffing and such dirty tricks.
Ontario, Ontario, you are in a bad fix.

Let all men poll an open vote, it seems to me most fair,
If each man shouts his vote, no trickery can be there,
Then send that cheating ballot-box to that eternal fire,
Then morals of Ontario will be a step higher.

Officials of Ontario, I pray for your release
From bondage to freedom, where freedom never cease
I would send all ballot boxes where trickery should belong,
To that awful, eternal fire, and to oblivion. John Bell.

IN WEST PETERBOROUGH.

(Mail and Empire)

The Liberals of West Peterborough have practically abandoned all hope of carrying the constituency. Their candidate, Mr. R. F. McWilliams has proved anything but a man the people can cheer for. The canvass made on his behalf has proved to be most disappointing, and many old-time Liberals who have been active workers in past elections, have absolutely refused to interest themselves in his campaign. This disquieting state of affairs has been brought to the attention of the Government, with the result that Hon. J. R. Stratton, ex-Provincial Secretary has been urged to again run for his old riding. Every effort has been made to induce him to reconsider his determination to drop out of provincial politics, but without avail. Mr. Stratton declines to re-enter public life in Ontario.

Monday Mr. Stratton was a visitor to the Parliament Buildings, and had a long interview with Premier Ross regarding the situation in West Peterborough.

The Mail and Empire saw the ex-Provincial Secretary at the Trusts and Guarantee Company's offices, where he makes his headquarters when in Toronto.

"It is said that the Government desires you to run for your old constituency of West Peterborough. Is that so?"

"It is not my intention," was Mr. Stratton's reply, "to be a candidate at the coming election. When I retired from the office of Provincial Secretary I stated my reasons for doing so, and I am not one of those who changes his mind every day. Upon the occasion of my resignation I made it clear that for business reasons I would not be a candidate again. I have not altered my mind since I made that announcement. Besides, Mr. McWilliams is contesting the constituency in the support of the Ross Government against Mr. Bradburn, the Conservative candidate. Both of these gentlemen are making a strong fight for a seat in the next Legislative Assembly."

LOCAL OPTION PASSED

Smith Township Council Gives the Third Reading to the By-law.

Smith Council met on Monday. After making the necessary declarations of office and qualification, the members took their seats as follows:—

R. N. Scott, Reeve; Thos. H. Graham, W. J. Northey, J. H. Garbutt and Richard White, Councillors.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Moved by Messrs. Graham and Northey, that James A. Young and Jos. Sucie be appointed auditors at a salary of $6.00 each.—Carried Moved by Messrs. Garbutt and Graham, that R. J. Edmison be appointed assessor for the year 1905 at a salary of $100.00.

Moved by Messrs. White and Northey, that Dr. Morgan be appointed Medical Health Officer for the coming year.—Carried.

A by-law confirming the above appointments passed its several readings and was signed and sealed.

Moved by Messrs. Graham and White, that a by-law to appoint a member of the local Board of Health for the township of Smith for the year 1905 be read a first time.—Carried.

On motion of Messrs. Garbutt and Northey the council went into committee of the whole on the second reading of the by-law, Mr. Northey in the chair. Council resumed. Chairman reported by-law read with name of A. Morrison filled in.

Moved by Messrs. Garbutt and White, that W. T. Cullen be and is hereby appointed Sanitary Inspector for the current year.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Northey and Graham, that a by-law to prohibit the sale of liquor in the township of Smith be read a third time and passed.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Graham and White, that the sum of $5.00 be granted to the Hospital for Sick Children and that the treasurer pay the same.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Graham and Garbutt, that the treasurer be instructed to order six copies of the Municipal World, for use of the councillors and clerk.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Northey and White, that the following claims be paid:—

W. T. Cullen, services as constable, $1.50; Peterborough Review, account, $56.25; P. T. Udy, account, $2.50; D. O'Connell, refund of taxes and expenses re Fobert lot sold for arrears of taxes, $2'.40; R. Coon, cutting wood for Mrs. Smith, 75 cents.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned to Monday, the 30th inst.

ELEVEN WERE BLOWN UP

Only Seven of the Crew of the Ship Marpesia Escaped.

Vessel Was a Loaded Bomb and Naphtha Explosion Wrecked Her After Terrible Experiences With Winds and Waves—In a Moment, the Entire Ship Was Wrapped in Flames—Survivors Arrive in New York.

New York, Jan. 11.—Seven survivors of the ill-fated Norwegian ship Marpesia, which was wrecked at sea on Christmas Day arrived here yesterday on the steamer Trinidad. They had been rescued by the Danish steamer Gallia, which was at hand when the Marpesia was blown into a shapeless mass and the seven men who survived the shock were taken from the sea. They were landed at Bermuda by the Gallia, which was bound from Hamburg for Savannah. The Marpesia sailed from New York for Cette, France, on Dec. 9, with a cargo of naphtha and had been out only a day or two when her troubles began. One gale succeeded another, but all were weathered until Dec. 17, when the ship was battered and knocked about, her ventilators carried away at the decks, her hold began to fill and soon the cases of naphtha began to give way under the strain, and in a little while the freed naphtha was floating around on top of the water in the hold. Gas from the fluid accumulated steadily and by Christmas Day the Marpesia was a loaded bomb, needing only the slightest spark to blow the whole structure to atoms. How the spark reached the highly charged hold never will be known, but suddenly there came a terrible report, the forward deck shot up into the air with a crash and a roar and in a moment the entire ship was wrapped in flames. Those of the eighteen men on board who had not been caught in the first burst threw themselves over the side of the flaming ship into the sea. They were only seven. The Gallia came down to their aid.

Crew Barely Escaped.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 11.—The American schooner Landseer has been sunk in the Bay of Islands. Her crew barely escaped with their lives. The schooner Robert Mason, coal laden, was sunk at St. Pierre in the same gale. The schooner Albion was driven from her moorings at St. Joseph's and probably will be a total loss. The crews of the last two vessels are safe.

Caught in Main Gears.

East Angus, Que., Jan. 11.—John E. Cameron, mechanical foreman of the mills here, and a highly esteemed resident, was caught in the main gears of the paper mill yesterday afternoon and instantly killed.

Alderman in a Runaway.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 11.—In a runaway on Henry avenue yesterday afternoon Ald. Moses Finkelstein, received a severe shaking up. Each of his sons, Manley and Kenneth, aged 4 and 6, had a leg broken, and Samuel Coppleman of Moosomin received a scalp wound.

HOLD FAST TO EMBARGO.

Irish Leaders See Danger to Cattle Trade of Ireland.

London, Jan. 11.—(C. A. P.)—The proposed admission of Canadian store cattle into Great Britain is still the foremost topic for Irish cattle associations and societies. At a committee meeting of the South of Ireland Irish Cattle Trade Association, letters from J. E. Redmond and William O'Brien were read. Redmond said the Irish party was quite active to the importance of the affair and would watch any attempt to introduce Canadian store cattle. O'Brien said he fully recognized the ruinous consequences for Ireland in the rumored removal of the restrictions on Canadian cattle. It would be corrupt to bribe Canada to enter into Chamberlain's schemes.

Nervous Dyspepsia

Mr. George Bolan, Spry, Bruce Co., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia for some years, and after using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt better than I had for years. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

DIE BY A CONTACT MINE

Twenty Japanese Killed By Explosion Inside Port Arthur.

According to Stories of Port Arthur Prisoners Major-General Kondrachenko, Killed Dec. 15, Was the Real Defender of the Fortress, Gen. Stoessel Having Been Inclined to Surrender As Far Back As Last August.

London, Jan. 11.—The correspondent at Port Arthur of The Daily Mail says that on Jan. 9, twenty Japanese were killed by the explosion of a contact mine inside the forts, and two mines in the town also exploded.

The Daily Telegraph's Port Arthur correspondent says that, according to stories by prisoners, the real defender of the fortress was Major-General Kondrachenko, commander of the 7th East Siberian Rifle Brigade (who was killed Dec. 15), and that had he lived it is probable that the fortress would not have surrendered.

Gen. Stoessel, the correspondent adds, was inclined to surrender as early as last August. The garrison, he concluded, included 10,000 Poles, who were indifferent fighters.

Jap Squadron At Diego Garcia.

Port Louis, Island of Mauritius, Jan. 11.—It is rumored here that a Japanese squadron is at Diego Garcia, Chagos Islands. The Russian admiral was informed Jan. 20 that Japanese warships were proceeding to meet the Russian squadron and the vigilance of the latter was redoubled.

Japs Off Labua.

Sandakan, British North Borneo, Jan. 11.—Two Japanese transports were reported off Libau on Jan. 4. Two colliers for the Russian second Pacific squadron were at Labua on Jan. 7.

More Prisoners At Nagasaki.

Nagasaki, Jan. 11.—The Japanese Government transport Tosa brought 28 Russian officers, who were landed here, and 1,000 men, who were transhipped to Kokura.

Have Exploded 395 Mines.

Tokio, Jan. 11.—The Navy Department says that the district covered with submarine mines had a radius of forty miles outside of Port Arthur. It reports the destruction and explosion of 395 of these mines to date.

Russians Slain in Mongolia.

Marseilles, Jan. 11.—A mail steamer which arrived here yesterday from the Far East reported that Col. Bogodonoff of the Russian army and three companies sent by the forfer Viceroy Alexieff on a mission to Mongolia, were assassinated by natives.

Workers See Chief of Police.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—An extraordinary delegation of factory hands called on Gen. Fullon, the chief of police yesterday, as the result of an indignation meeting held, by the factory hands of St. Petersburg. While no recognized union exists, factory workers to the number of several thousands have a strong secret organization. General Fullon received the deputation and promised such inquiry as the proposition permitted. The working people express themselves as being exceedingly aggrieved, and say they have not hitherto participated in demonstrations, but that the present situation, if not remedied, is full of potential trouble.

Kaiser Rewards Bravery.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—Emperor William has conferred on Gen. Stoessel and Gen. Nogi the order of "Pour Le Merite," in recognition of the bravery of themselves and their troops at Port Arthur. His Majesty has asked the Russian and Japanese Emperors to authorize Gens. Stoessel and Nogi to accept the decorations.

PREPARE FOR WAR.

Turkey and Bulgaria Get Ready For Eventualities.

London, Jan. 11.—The active preparations already reported to have been made, both in Turkey and Bulgaria, for a possible war this year are fully confirmed by a private letter received in London from a minister accredited to the Balkan courts. This minister, who has just completed a tour of the Balkan capitals, writes that the Turkish and Bulgarian Governments are energetically preparing for eventualities. Large shipments of arms and ammunition have been made and recruits from Asia Minor are arriving at Salonica weekly for service in the Turkish army. The Bulgarian and Greek bands in Macedonia are increasing daily and are fighting each other and the Turks. This three-cornered guerrilla warfare threatens to assume the bloodiest phase in the spring.

Turkey to Change Face.

London, Jan. 11.—Discussing the effect of the fall of Port Arthur on the Far Eastern question, the correspondent at Sofia of The Times says that belief in Russia's invincibility has received a severe shock, the result of which among the Balkan States, is rather exaggerated fears of Turkish encroachments in Macedonia.

These nervous apprehensions tend to increase Servian efforts at rapprochement with Bulgaria. The effects produced in Constantinople, the correspondent says, are likely to be more serious. Turkey is quick to appreciate the military significance of events in the Far East and is likely to stiffen in her attitude towards the reforming leaders in Manchuria.

Already there are indications that Turkey is preparing severe repressive measures to forestall the apprehended rising in the spring, but there is reason to fear that these measures may hasten rather than avert the outbreak.

Peterboro, Jan. 11.—There are several counterfeit $5 Bank of Montreal notes in circulation here.

STEEL RAILS FOR THE G.T.P.

Large Orders Placed in Great Britain Within Past Few Days.

London, Jan. 11.—(C.A.P.)—The Canadian Press learns that the G. T. P. have placed large orders for steel rails during the last few days with prominent firms in Great Britain.

Doesn't Think Its True.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—President Warren of the Soo industries, doubts the report that the G.T.P. are placing large orders for rails in England. "The company is at present negotiating with us, and I have no doubt but that we will be able to fill all their requirements," he said. "Yesterday we booked an order of 7,000 tons of rails for the Pere Marquette Railroad."

Horse Thieves Punished.

McLeod, Alberta, Jan. 11.—At the sitting of the criminal court, presided over by Justice Harvey, a number of cases of horse stealing were disposed of with the result that the convicted parties will spend various terms in McLeod jail. The sentences were as follows: Tom Daley, two years; Percy Steele, two years; Black White (Indian), year and a half; Mrs. Percy Steele, one year; Joseph Shaput, bound over in two thousand dollar bonds and released on suspended sentence for receiving stolen horses, and, Hungry Crow, is held as a witness against Tom Spotted Bull, who will be tried on the 23rd for stealing horses.

Countess Grey Accepts.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—On behalf of the National Council of Women, Lady Laurier and Lady Ritchie waited upon the Countess of Grey and asked that she accept the honorary presidency, which she very graciously consented to do. The countess will be present at the executive meeting of the council in Ottawa on Friday.

Pentecath and Matheson.

Winnipeg, Jan. 11.—On the fourth ballot, the Synod of Rupert's Land selected Archdeacon Pentecath of Vancouver and his, together with the name of Bishop Matheson, will be recommended to the House of Bishops as the successor of the late Archbishop Machray.

The Real Shillalah.

The shillalah, accounted Ireland's national weapon of defense, was originally a common blackthorn stick, but in modern times it has been replaced by the more wiry ash sapling. The real shillalah is a young shoot of the sloe shrub or blackthorn pulled by the root from the crevice of some rock. After being trimmed it is placed in the smoke of turf peat, which softens the hard fiber, and when it has reached a condition as pliant as rubber it is straightened. When cooled in the air it becomes as strong and firm as iron. The trimming process is then continued, and when it is desired to make a particularly handsome weapon the spus, so effective in a melee or faction fight, are ornamented with small brass nails.

Natural Preference.

Miss Violet had made a rapid tour of the European continent and found little to impress her, either favorably or otherwise.

"You say you saw all you wanted to of Italy," said a friend on Miss Violet's return to her native heath in Kansas. "What did you think of the lazzaroni?"

"Don't talk to me about it," said Miss Violet briskly. "I'd rather have a good dish of plain American macaroni baked with cheese any time."

A Curious Superstition.

The ancients believed that the marrow of the human backbone often transformed itself into a serpent. Pliny ("Natural History," volume 10, page 66) says that the marrow of a man's backbone will breed to a snake. The Chinese (Werde's "Eastern Travels") burned the backbone to "destroy serpents that might hatch therefrom."

Twinkling Stars Mean Bad Weather.

I have constantly observed at sea that steadily burning stars indicated calm, fair weather, and the more they twinkled the worse the weather was likely to be. The forecast given by this variation in scintillating was almost invariably correct in the high latitudes, though it failed sometimes in the tropics.—Nature.

NO RECIPROCITY.

Sir Wilfrid Declines to Have Joint High Commission Meet.

New York, Jan. 11.—The New York Times' Washington correspondent says: "Earnest efforts of Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the American representation on the Joint High Commission, to secure a re-assembling of that Commission to discuss Canadian reciprocity and other subjects, have met with signal failure, Sir Wilfrid Laurier having finally advised the Vice-President-elect that it would be impossible for the Commission to reconvene.

"The Canadian Government rejects every overture looking to a re-establishment of reciprocity in trade relations. The official announcement of the effort and its failure will be made public from the White House at an early date, together with the correspondence which has passed between Mr. Fairbanks and Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

Scheme Is Not Abandoned.

It is admitted that no meeting of the British American Joint High Commission will be held before March 4. It is explicitly denied by prominent officials that the proposed arrangement of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada through the Joint High Commission has been abandoned. It has only been postponed.

DARES THE INSPECTOR.

James Haverson Invites Prosecution Galt Hotelman.

Galt, Jan. 11.—That it is not an offence under the License Act of Ontario to keep open bar for the sale of non-intoxicants on the polling day of any municipal or Parliamentary election was affirmed yesterday by Lawyer James Haverson, legal adviser of the licensed victuallers of Ontario, in connection with the case of a Galt hotel-keeper who opened his bar and sold "soft stuff" on the occasion of the late municipal polling day.

Mr. Haverson points out that the act only prohibits the sale of liquor on such days, not the keeping open of the licensed premises. He says he dares License Inspector Knowles of this riding to prosecute the hotel-keeper in question. The fact that the inspector has not gone on with the case indicates that he is duly impressed with the point raised.

Mr. Knowles yesterday said that he had submitted the matter to his superiors, adding that, if the open bar be allowed, then good-by to the peace and order of the provincial polling day.

President of French Deputies.

Paris, Jan. 11.—M. Paul Baumer (former Governor-General of French Indo-China), was yesterday elected President of the Chamber of Deputies.

As the Child Saw It.

A New York tenement house child who had spent a happy day in the home of a settlement worker describes the visit in the following letter, according to Charities:

"Miss —— lives in a big beautiful house. There are three floors and lots of rooms. I should think it would be hard for them to find each other, there are so many rooms. It is not so hard to find each other when you live in part of one floor. The floors were hard and shiny, with little pieces of carpet on them. No piece was big enough to cover a whole room."

An Insurance Story.

They tell this story down on Wall street: The executive officer of a great insurance company, happening one day to meet a friend in the street, found himself violently upbraided because his company refused to invest in the bonds of an enterprise with which his friend was connected.

The insurance man stood it a few minutes, then said carelessly, as if he were ordering a box of a new brand of cigars, "Oh, well, send me up a million and a half of them."—World's Work.

$13,000 For Man's Death.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 11.—Yesterday the special jury in the case of Mrs. F. H. Hackett against the Grand Trunk Railway Company brought in a verdict for 13,000 damages for the death of Mrs. Hackett's husband, who was killed in the Richmond railway wreck last August. Mrs. Hackett sued for $20,000 damages, on behalf of herself and two infant children. The railway company admitted liability and merely left it to the jury to fix the amount of damages, which they did as above after being out a little over an hour.

Escape From Lock-Up.

Galt, Jan. 11.—A daring escape was made from the lock-up last night. Two prisoners, Bernard Trevitt and wife, a young couple, held on the charge of larceny from the Royal Hotel, kept by ex-Policeman Stewart, late of Toronto, removed the bars from a window and regained their liberty. The chief of police sympathized with the couple and had accorded them special indulgences. They took advantage of his kindness.

To Revise U.S. Tariff.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 11.—President Roosevelt favors the earliest possible action looking to a revision by Congress of the tariff. He so informed the Senators and representatives at the conference at the White House last Saturday. He thinks the time has come when the schedules should be thoroughly examined and there should be certain re-adjustments.

Leaves Estate of $265,000.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—Administration of the estate of the late Catherine Mary Vickers is sought by the National Trust Co. The estate is valued at $265, 616.21.

—The Charity Board will meet on Monday evening.

Four Reasons

Why you should use Red Rose Tea have appeared in this paper.

They have explained that

Red Rose Tea

is composed entirely and solely of the rich, fragrant teas of India and Ceylon; that it is made by men who are skilled in the tasting and blending of teas; that it has a rich, syrappy liquor; it is always uniform in quality, economical to use, perfectly clean and pure.

A number of other reasons will appear in subsequent ads.

In the meantime would you not like to try a pound of the tea? By doing so you will appreciate more fully the force of the reasons which appear later.

Red Rose Tea will substantiate every statement made about it.

A Town For Men Only.

On the borders between China and Russia, in Asia, almost due south of Lake Baikal, is a good sized town known as Maimatchin, which is exclusively inhabited by men. The place has a considerable trade and is also a military post. An old law forbids women to live in this territory, and they cannot pass the great wall of Kalkan nor enter Mongolia at all.

Her Rest.

"So Mrs. Gedderly took the rest cure?"

"Yes."

"Did it cure her?"

"No, it didn't do her a bit of good. She's just as anxious to rest as she always was."

A New Danger.

"I see they are talking of making clothes now out of some sort of wood."

"Gee whiz! Then I guess we'll find woodpeckers and squirrels in our clothes hereafter instead of moths."—Exchange.

Mean Thing.

Mrs. Ferguson—George, dear, how do you like my new hat? Mr. Ferguson—Do you want my real opinion of it, Laura? Mrs. Ferguson—No, I don't, you mean thing.

Started off With a Hurrah !

The extraordinary sale of Winter Suits, Overcoats and Furnishings at H. LeBrun & Co.'s, which has started off with so many inducements, is an occasion of interest to men, young men and boys. The surprising reductions in the tailoring department, especially in black dress suits, and Scotch tweed and worsted suits, made to order, come in good time. Gentlemen who need a dress suit for the long social season ahead, will save good money by leaving their measures at LeBrun's at once. Full Dress Suits that formerly were made to order for $30, are now reduced to $25, formerly $35 and $40, reduced to $28 and $30, with a very large stock of cloths to choose from. Men's Dress Trousers, that were formerly made to order for $7.50, are reduced to $6, and Scotch Tweed Worsted Trousers are reduced from $4 and $4.50, to $3 and $3.50. We take your measure and make up just as carefully as if you were paying the full price. Our cutter, Mr. Thompson, will fit you just as fashionably and as accurately as he always does.

BIBLE CLASS MEETS

Officers Elected by St. Luke's Organization — Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr. Entertains

The members of St. Luke's Bible class met last night at the residence of Mr. J. J. Turner, junior, for their annual meeting and election of officers. Mr. Turner, who is the efficient teacher of the class, combined duty and pleasure, and with his hospitable wife, entertained the class after the meeting. Mr. Turner, as chairman, called upon Rev. Mr. Langfeldt to open the meeting with prayer. After reading the minutes of the last meeting, business of much interest was transacted, and the election of officers proceeded with, which resulted as follows:—

Hon. President—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A.
President—Mr. J. J. Turner, jr.
Vice-President—Miss Mabel Scott.
Secretary—Mr. W. F. Turner.
Treasurer—Miss Florence Butcher.
Sick and Visiting Committee—Miss Gaskins, Miss Cochrane, Miss Calcutt.
Organist—Miss K. Calcutt.

Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., was also elected delegate for the forthcoming Diocesan Church Sunday School Convention to be held in Toronto February 7th and 8th.

Reference was made to the leaving of Miss Addie Armstrong, a faithful member of the class. The rector made a few remarks, commending the zeal and loyalty of Mr. Turner, jr. He personally was much indebted to Mr. Turner for the faithful assistance he received from him in church work. He also thanked Mr. and Mrs. Turner on behalf of the class for their kind hospitality, and the many opportunities afforded the class of spending pleasant hours in their hospitable home.

Social games were then indulged in and refreshments served. After a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Turner, and after singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King," the meeting closed

Indigestion and Headache

Mr. Duncan McPherson, Content, Alta., writes:—"I was for many years troubled with indigestion and headache, and derived no relief from the many remedies I used. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking four boxes, the result is that I am once more in the full enjoyment of the blessings of good health."

MR. J. P. WHITNEY WILL SPEAK

Conservative Rally in the Opera House, Jan. 19th.

WELCOMING ARRANGEMENTS.

Ontario's Coming Premier Will Address Electors in Interest of Mr. Bradburn and Clean, Honest and Decent Government.

Mr. J. P. Whitney, the able and progressive leader of the Conservative party in Ontario, will address a big mass meeting in the Opera House on Thursday evening of next week, January 19th, in the interest of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the popular Conservative candidate in West Peterborough.

Arrangements are being made to extend a hearty welcome to the talented opposition chieftain and it is expected the demonstration in his honor will be one of the most enthusiastic and successful ever accorded a public man in Peterborough.

Mr. Bradburn will also address the gathering as well as other speakers whose names will be announced later.

COL. J. P. WHITNEY,
"The Man Ontario Wants."

The electors of the town and district will all be anxious to hear Mr. Whitney and cheer him on in his brave and determined fight for clean, honest and decent government and to remove from the fair name of Ontario the stigma of corruption, deception and malfeasance of office which has characterized the Ross regime.

Mr. Whitney is appealing to the people on a sound, patriotic and broad platform. He asks all honest, right thinking and independent people to unite in punishing the men who have been so recreant to the trust imposed in them, and thereby take the only way of rehabilitating that party to a position where it can take its rightful place as a great power for good and honest government in the councils of the country. He is confident that the moral sense of the province will reassert itself and turn out of power a Government that has countenanced and profited by such a disgraceful carnival of corruption. For the incoming Conservative Government he asks that they be judged by the same high standards of public morality and be likewise punished unless they do their duty honestly and faithfully to the people.

WALTER JOHNSTON DEAD.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston, 69 Chamberlain street, will be grieved to hear of the loss they have sustained in the death of their son, Walter, which unhappy event occurred this morning at Nicholls Hospital. The deceased was twelve years of age and had been ill for about twelve weeks with typhoid fever. Yesterday an operation was performed on his knee, which had been troublesome for some time. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2.30.

Y.M.C.A. GYM.

Each month the different junior gymnasium classes of Y.M.C.A. have a series of contests, consisting of races, games, etc.

The contests between the junior school boys for December were captained by Max Dobbin and Max Fife. Max Dobbin's side won by one point. The side consisted of Max Dobbin (Captain), E. H. Mann, Wallace Armstrong, Harold Meldrum, Grant Potter, Lesley Fife, Melville Turner, Thos. Fitzgerald, Arthur Dawe, Hugh McGee, Elmer Sanderson and George Adams.

CARPENTERS' UNION.

The local branch of the Carpenters' Union met on Monday evening, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year—

President—Napoleon Trombley.
Vice.-Pres—William Roberts.
Rec.-Sec.—W. J. Johnston.
Fin.-Secretary—R. G. Ritchie.
Treasurer—Henry Carveth.
Conductor—Philip Johnston.
Warden—John Alexander.
Trustees—Napoleon Trombley, Geo. Young, Walter Evans.

The auditors' report for the past six months showed that the Union had made great progress, their being a cash balance on hand of $800.

Splendid ice and the 57th Band at the Brock-st. rink tonight.

ROYAL TEMPLARS MEET.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Royal Templars of Temperance was held last evening in their hall on George street. There was a very large attendance of members. All the regular business was transacted and a considerable amount of fees paid in to the secretary. Arrangements were also made for the holding of a social for members only at the next meeting, Tuesday, Jan. 24th, when all the officers for the ensuing year are to be elected.

At the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild, held last evening, the members entertained their fellow Guildsmen of All Saints' church. There was a large attendance of the young men of both guilds the members of All Saints' coming in a body. They were made to feel thoroughly at home, St. Andrew's extending them a most cordial welcome and hearty reception. These re-unions do much to increase the interest and promote pleasant relations between the guilds of the town and St. Andrew's are to be congratulated on the way they treated their visitors last evening.

The members of both guilds first assembled in the guild room, where the regular routine of business was gone through. President Chas. Anderson presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A communication which aroused much interest was one received from St. Andrew's Guards challenging the Guild to a game of hockey. A motion to accept the challenge was enthusiastically carried.

The main feature of the program then followed, a debate on the subject "Resolved that Canada offers more advantages to young men than does the United States." Guildsmen Elliott and Lloyd spoke for the affirmative, while Guildsmen VanEvery and Campbell championed the cause of the negative. The addresses were admirably given, each speaker handling subject well and bringing out many points in support of his arguments. The young men who took part in the debate are to be congratulated upon the excellent manner in which they presented their case. The judges Rev Mr Potter, Rev Mr Wright and Mr. Bruce Rickey after a careful study of the different points presented decided that the arguments offered by the affirmative overweighed those produced by the negative and consequently gave their verdict to the former, congratulating both sides on their excellent addresses.

Guildsman Reid of All Saints' who had been selected as critic also congratulated the speakers for the admirable manner in which they had carried on the debate. He pointed out a few defects in the addresses, but said that on the whole the debate had been most enjoyable. Mr. H. Dunslow also added his congratulations upon the excellence of the debate.

At the conclusion of the debate the members adjourned to the Sunday school room where an enjoyable repast had been prepared by the ladies of the church.

After this had been done full justice to, a short toast list was run off. The toast "Our Guests" was proposed by Mr. H. H. Edminson and responded to by Mr. George Morgan, of All Saints'. Mr. Gilbert Scott contributed an enjoyable song. The toast "Canada" was proposed by Mr. Peter Kerr of St. Andrew's and responded to by the company singing the Maple Leaf Forever. A song by Mr. M. M. Wilson added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The toast "The Ladies" was proposed by Mr. Coleman, of All Saints' and responded to by Mr. Gilbert Scott, of St. Andrew's. All the speeches were bright and enjoyable.

The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought a delightful evening to a close.

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

Splendid Programme Rendered by Miss Alexander and Mr. Field.

The Field-Alexander concert in the opera house last night under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. was well attended, and from a musical and elocutionary standpoint will long be remembered in Peterborough.

It was a treat—a decided attraction from start to finish—and the appreciative audience manifested its appreciation again and again. Mr. H. M. Field, the brilliant pianist, and Miss Jessie Alexander, the celebrated Canadian reader, could not have been more enthusiastically greeted. Their work was of the highest character. Mr. R. N. Jolliffe was the only local contributer, and his reception was a flattering one. Mr. Jolliffe needs no lengthened reference, but it may be said he never sang with better effect than last night. He rendered Adams' "The Veteran's Song," and "The Yeoman's Wedding Day." He responded to two pressing encores. Prof. C. E. Milner ably played the accompaniments.

Miss Alexander's versatility and cleverness were demonstrated in pathetic, humorous, dialect, and juvenile renditions, in all of which she appears equally proficient. Her expression and enunciation are as pleasing as ever. Her graceful gesture and effective poses in certain of her selections would properly interpret the meaning to her auditors, provided the fair artist spoke not a word. She was particularly happy in "I hae changed ma mind." "The Kindergarten Tot" was sweet and simple. "The Song in the Market-place" and a scene from "Romeo and Juliet" were equally well contributed. But in her last number, an Irish narration of a five o'clock tea episode, in which a socially ambitious and supercilious lady invited three of her commonplace neighbors to this unique function was intensely amusing, and the different characters admirably portrayed. Miss Alexander was encored many times.

Mr. H. M. Field, piano virtuoso, in his piano selections—difficult, high class and exacting interpretations from Mozart, Chopin, Liszt and Mendelssohn—demonstrated his complete mastery over the instrument with which he has been such an ardent and devoted lifelong associate. The piano used was a Gerhard Heintzman grand kindly loaned for the occasion.

Mr. Field is eminent in his profession and has long stood at the very forefront of Canadian exponents. His expressive tones, delicacy of touch, amplitude of technicque, true and artistic conception are wonderful and instantly captured the admiration of the appreciative and responsive audience, which insisted upon many recalls, to which Mr. Field generously yielded. His work evinced a depth of feeling, a power of interpretation, an abandon and sincerity that appealed to all. He furnished during the evening over a dozen numbers. The programme is as follows:—

BIG SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Mr. E. B. Stone, Formerly of Town, Acting in Galt Case.

Mr. E. B. Stone, of London, formerly a well known Peterborough lawyer, has entered suit against Jaffray Brothers, Limited, for an alleged libel contained in an article in the Galt Reporter bearing on the flotation of the Western Cordage Company, of London. Mr. Stone was one of the promoters of the concern, which, it is declared, was smothered by what that journal said. The suit grew out of a series of binder twine articles published by the Reporter at various times since Feb. 1st, 1901.

A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed for the case, which opens to-morrow before Justice Meredith in London. Mr. George C. Gibbons, Western Ontario's leading barrister, will conduct the case for the defence. Great interest exists among binder twine manufacturers as to the outcome of the suit.

Mr. J. P. Jaffray and Mr. A. G. Donaldson leave for London to-night and expect to be in the witness box to-morrow.

Splendid ice and the 57th Band at the Brock-st. rink to-night.

MRS. SPEER HONORED

Presented With China Cocoa Set by Mark Street Ladies Aid.

A most enjoyable social event took place last evening when the active and associate members of Mark street Ladies' Aid gathered at the home of Mr. John Speer on Munro Avenue and presented Mrs. Speer with a beautiful china cocoa set.

The following address was read by Mrs. S. Taylor, president of the society, and Mrs. J. G. Lewis, vice-president, made the presentation.

To Mrs. Speer,

Dear Friend,—The Ladies' Aid of Mark Street Church felt they could not allow the happy occasion of your marriage to pass without expressing to you in some slight way the good feeling that exists towards you and the wish that you may be spared to many years of happiness and continued usefulness in the Master's work. In asking you to accept this token of our good wishes we do so that it may prove a tangible expression to you of the high esteem in which you are held amongst us. Our prayer is that God's blessing may rest on you in your new home and throughout life, and that finally we may all meet to spend the great future in the better home above.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies' Aid of Mark Street Church,—

WILLENA TAYLOR, President
EVA BOWERS, Secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Speer responded in words of warm appreciation.

Dainty refreshments were served, and after a most delightful social evening, the gathering broke up with renewed and hearty expressions of best wishes for a long and happy life for the newly wedded pair.

THE CURVED BALL.

It Is the Atmosphere Which Causes Its Eccentric Shoots.

Most any ten-year-old youngster can curve a ball, even though he does not know why he can do so except that the leather must be held in a certain way. Possibly a half dozen of the major league twirlers know something about the science of the curve, but comparatively few understand why they can produce their "benders." The Scientific American gives the following as the scientific explanation of the matter:

"The pitcher in the field tells us that the ball curves because he gives it a twist, but scientifically this will not do. Why will the twist make the curve? If a ball were thrown in a certain direction and if the force of gravitation were not at work the ball would continue on in a straight line forever. Some force of resistance is then at work when a ball is made to deviate in a curve from its straight course. If a feather is dropped in a vacuum in an exhausted receiver of an air pump it will drop like a shot, but if it is dropped out in the air it will go down irregularly and slowly, shifting from side to side.

"It is the atmosphere which causes the ball to curve. Bearing in mind that the atmosphere is a compressible, elastic gas, we find that when the ball leaves the hand of the pitcher with a rapid rotary motion it 'impinges upon a continuous elastic cushion,' and this moderate resistance, or friction, changes its course in the direction which is given to the rotary motion. Take an outshoot of a right handed pitcher, for instance. He impresses upon the ball a rapid centrifugal rotary motion to the left, and the ball goes to the left because the atmosphere, compressible and elastic, is packed into an elastic cushion just ahead of the ball by the swift forward and rotary motion, and the friction, which is very great in front of the ball, steers it in the direction which it is turning."

The Poor Missionary.

"Now, my child," said the cannibal mother to her youngest hopeful, "I want you to be on your good behavior and not make a pig of yourself."

"What for?" demanded the young savage.

"Because we're going to have that new minister for dinner."—Exchange.

"Some people insist on referring to flats as 'apartments.'"

"It's wrong," answered the discontented man. "They are compartments."

Cold Congests the Kidneys

TO PREVENT INFLAMMATION SET THE KIDNEYS RIGHT BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Sitting in a draught, exposure to cold and dampness, sudden changes of temperature are the [illegible] frequent causes of [illegible] congestion of the kidneys.

Pains in the back over the kidneys may be your first warning.

Other symptoms are a constant and pressing desire to urinate. The urine is scanty and highly colored and sometimes passed with much pain and smarting.

Then there are headache, loss of appetite and flesh, deposits in the urine, sleeplessness, pains and cramps in legs, constipation and diarrhoea alternating and general feelings of discomfort and distress.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills bring relief and cure more promptly than any other treatment because of the direct and combined action on kidneys liver and bowels.

All the excretory organs work in sympathy and can greatly assist one another in carrying off the waste matter.

Hence it follows that when the kidneys, liver and bowels are at once invigorated by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills relief is prompt and certain.

If neglected constipation of the kidneys is almost sure to result in inflammation and Bright's disease.

Mr R. Beach, 225 Sherbrooke st., Peterborough, Ont., states:—"About two years ago I became subject to cramps, which were caused, I was told from acute digestion. I was so bad that I would be laid up for weeks at a time. These attacks came on periodically and distressed me greatly.

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and have found them a wonderful medicine. They have entirely prevented a recurrence of my trouble, corrected the derangement of my digestive organs, and made me feel like a different person."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

OLD AND NEW COINS.

Interesting Facts About Coinage at the Different Mints.

The director of the mint is called on to answer such a wide range of questions concerning the values of old and new coins and medals that he has found it necessary to issue circulars covering matters of this sort. They tell some interesting facts. It appears that the mint does not buy old coins or paper money except some rare colonial coins in fine condition, which are desired for the mint cabinet. Mutilated or uncurrent United States gold and silver coin is purchased as bullion. The mint has no pattern pieces for sale. The government pays no premium for the return of any of its coins or paper money. New coins cannot be struck until authorized by an act of congress. The mint supplies United States coins only and not of any past date. The fifty dollar goldpiece and the half dollar and quarter dollar pieces in gold were struck by private parties on the California coast during the 1849 period and not by the United States government.

The coinage of the following coins ceased in the years named: Half and 1 cent, copper, in 1857; 1 cent, nickel, 1864; half dime and 3 cents, silver, and 2 cents, bronze, in 1873; 20 cents, silver, 1878; trade dollars, 1883; $1 and $3, gold, and 3 cents, nickel, 1889. The Columbian half dollar was coined in 1892 and the Isabella quarter in 1893. The Lafayette dollar was struck in 1899, the date on the coin (1900) being that of the unveiling of the memorial.

There are certain markings on every United States coin that enable the place of its coinage to be located. Those struck at the Philadelphia mint have no mint mark, but those struck at all other mints are distinguished by a small letter on the reverse, near the bottom. These letters are C for Charlotte, N. C., discontinued in 1861; CC for Carson City, Nev., discontinued in 1893; D for Dahlonega, Ga., discontinued in 1861; O for New Orleans and S for San Francisco. The coins of the United States now authorized by law are: In gold, double eagle, eagle, half eagle, quarter eagle; in silver, half dollar, quarter dollar and dime; minor, 5 cent, nickel, and 1 cent, bronze. A person may buy a proof set of gold coins from the mint for $38.50 and a proof set of silver and minor coins for $1.50. When the business of the mints is slack medals may be struck from dies furnished by individuals, public institutions and incorporated societies at a charge sufficient to cover the cost of the operation and the value of the metal.

WHY DON'T YOU?

Why don't you answer your friend's letter at once?

Why don't you make the promised visit to that invalid? She is looking for you day after day.

Why don't you send away that little gift you've been planning to send? Mere kind intentions never accomplish any good.

Why don't you try to share the burden of that sorrowful one who works beside you? Is it because you are growing selfish?

Why don't you speak out the encouraging words that you have in your thoughts? Unless you express them they are of no use to others.

Why don't you take more pains to be self sacrificing and loving in the everyday home life? Time is rapidly passing. Your dear ones will not be with you always.

Why don't you create around you an atmosphere of happiness and helpfulness so that all who come in touch with you may be made better? Is not this possible?

Early Tobacco.

According to John Aubery, who wrote a celebrated work on "the very queere Indian weede," there was a time when tobacco was worth its weight in silver. Among other things Aubery says: "Sir Walter Raleigh was the first that brought tobacco into England, and in our parts—North Wilts—it came in fashion through Sir Walter Long. They used silver pipes, but the commoners used a walnut shell. It was sold then for its weight in silver. I have heard some of your old yeomen neighbors say that when they went to Chippenham to market they always culled out their shillings to lay in the scales against the tobacco. Now the customers of it are among the greatest that his majesty hath."

A Test of Sobriety.

Gentlemen who have put an enemy into their mouths are recommended to try a very simple test for the purpose of finding out whether their brains have been stolen. They must stand erect with their eyes closed, and if they can perform this feat for a brief period they may come to the conclusion that they are all right. Two individuals who were accused of drunkenness at Pontefract proved that they had honorably stood the test, and the cases against them were dismissed. The great merit of the plan is that it can be put into operation anywhere and at any time.—London Tit-Bits.

Merits His Fate.

"I see that an eastern editor says that as a matter of fact women form clubs simply as an excuse for eating and drinking between meals."

"Horrid thing! Is he married or single?"

"Why?"

"Because if he's either he doesn't deserve to be."

When Phyllis Took Me Seriously

By Hubert McBean Johnston

Copyright, 1905, by Hubert McBean Johnston

"Phyllis," I asked, "will you marry me?"

"Seven!" said Phyllis.

I looked at her in astonishment.

"Seven?" I questioned. "Seven what?"

"Why, the score, you silly," she responded demurely. "Some one has to keep track of it."

That's the trouble with Phyllis. If her sense of humor were not so highly developed, I'm quite sure I should have had her ages ago. She never will take me seriously.

"Bother the score!" I cried desperately. "Anyway we'll not count the other six times."

"But I would very much rather."

Phyllis was staring into the fire. I didn't know just what she meant. I never was much good at guessing.

"Well," I answered indifferently, "just as you please. Count them if you like. All I meant was that none of them mattered so much as this time."

"Positively your last chance, ladies and gentlemen!" she cried gayly.

I assented in my most dignified manner. Phyllis laughed. I do wish she would take me seriously once in awhile.

"Why do you keep on proposing to me like this?" she asked me.

I shrugged my shoulders.

"If you must have it," I replied flippantly, "I suppose it's my little form of diversion—my hobby, if you will. We all have our hobbies more or less, you know."

Phyllis frowned. I like that frown immensely. Then she looked at me quickly when I was not expecting it.

"You appear to be enjoying yourself," she complained.

"Me?" I queried in mock innocence. "Oh, I protest! Really I'm not!"

Phyllis frowned again.

"Well, then, you ought to be."

"I know," I agreed; "I ought to be. Seven times ought to be productive of more than it has shown so far. I wonder," I concluded dreamily to myself—"I wonder if eight will do it."

"You haven't been answered for seven yet," said Phyllis.

"No," said I, "nor for any of the other six either."

"Now, there was Darcy Graham," said Phyllis inconsequentially. "He asked me to marry him nineteen times and swore eternal devotion each time whether I would have him or no. There's a man for you!"

"And then went and married Kitty Macpherson," said I almost to myself.

"No," corrected Phyllis. "Kitty married him."

"Willie Atkinson came next," I ventured.

"He only ran up to thirteen," said Phyllis.

"Which accounts for his failure," I suggested.

"I think the little fellow from the bank whom I met in the summer came after that?" she murmured interrogatively.

"Surely you don't count him?" I questioned in surprise. "Why, you told me yourself that he only lasted till the second round."

"He would probably have stayed longer if you hadn't come down that Sunday," said Phyllis in a vexed way. "You always do turn up at the most inopportune moments."

"Had I only known you didn't want me"—I began.

"I can't remember who was next," said Phyllis quickly. "Do you know?"

"I think," said I reflectively, "I added about two to my own score that day. I always liked you in white, you know."

"One," said Phyllis, consulting her tablets.

"Hold your head that way again," I said. "What long eyelashes you have!"

Phyllis deliberately turned the other way.

"Hold it round," I commanded. "I want to look at it."

Phyllis held it round. Phyllis likes to be commanded at times, only a fellow's got to know when to do it.

"A rather pretty mouth, too," said I gravely, "and your color is also very fair yet. One would never guess you were getting up in years."

"I'm not," denied Phyllis, with a certain assumption of dignity. "I'm only twenty-three."

"You don't show it," I responded gallantly. "Were I asked to make a guess I should say 'sweet sixteen and' "—

"Quite so!" said Phyllis dryly.

"How awful it must be to be laid on the shelf!" I remarked sympathetically.

"I'm not!" asserted Phyllis indignantly.

"The very idea!" I murmured in a surprised sort of way. "I never even insinuated such a thing. But you know," I concluded dismally, "you haven't had a proposal in three weeks."

"I have," insisted Phyllis. "I had one just tonight."

"Oh, but that doesn't count!" said I. "You told me so yourself. These are only sort of trial heats to keep you in form, you know."

"Oh!" sniffed Phyllis.

"Besides," I added, "I need material for my stories."

"What a risk you are willing to run for the sake of material," said Phyllis.

"It is necessary that one make some sacrifices for the sake of art," I explained.

"Suppose, though, I were to accept you some time?" queried Phyllis in an awful tone.

"I would have a new climax for the next one," said I. I flatter myself I said it indifferently.

I had expected Phyllis to be affected. Instead she burst out laughing. That's the trouble with Phyllis. She never will take me seriously.

"You're a goose," she complimented me.

"Aw, thanks," I murmured. "So good of you."

Phyllis regarded me gravely. Now, it's an odd thing, but whenever Phyllis looks at a fellow just like that he feels sort of funny all over, you know. I don't just know what it is. I think it must be what they call personal magnetism.

"Jack," she said, "you have some gray hairs."

"It's not polite of you to remind me of it," I said.

"And your complexion isn't as good as it used to be," she continued. "Besides, there are a lot of little things, particularly about your clothes."

"Nothing serious, I trust?" I asked in alarm.

"No; nothing serious," said Phyllis. "But an awful lot of little things. I think you need some one to take care of you."

"Parks is an exceptional valet," said I in his defense.

"Now, a wife"— began Phyllis musingly.

I laughed.

"Yes," said Phyllis, taking no notice, "I think you need a wife. Why don't you propose to some nice girl, Jack?"

"I have," said I stoutly.

"Huh!" snorted Phyllis in disbelief. "How many proposals have you ever made?"

"Seven," said I.

I think Phyllis was pleased. Anyway she smiled a little.

"There was the Rawshaw girl," she said warningly.

"Nice girl," I assented warmly. "Nothing particularly queenlike about a girl's carriage, though, when she's only five feet three."

"And Bessie Fleming?"

Phyllis was getting back at me.

"A sweet creature," I agreed. "But I really prefer blonds."

"And then there's a whole host of others you might have if you wanted them. You're a catch, you know."

"I know," said I wearily. "You might have been nicer, though, and said that I was very popular. It all means the same, perhaps, but there are prettier ways of saying it."

"Oh, no," said Phyllis sweetly. "You're rather nice as well."

"Thanks," I replied. "But with a score of seven it does not seem to have benefited me greatly. Will it do me any good to make it eight?"

Phyllis toyed with the corner of the sofa cushion.

"You might do a great deal better," said she deprecatingly.

"Then I don't have to make it eight?" cried I, for once in my life comprehending.

"I did not say just that, sir," said Phyllis saucily.

I don't believe I ever saw Phyllis look so beautiful, and the odd part of it was I couldn't see her eyes either. She was staring full into the fire all the time. If it makes her look that way I wish she would look into the fire always.

"But I do make it eight, Phyllis," said I soberly.

I took hold of her arm and turned her round so that she was facing me, but she still held her head down and I could see only her eyelashes. Phyllis has long eyelashes.

"And you'll marry me, Phyllis!" I whispered. I don't know whether I raised my tone interrogatively or not. I hadn't the same control over my voice that I had the other seven times.

Phyllis looked at me, with a funny little smile. She never will take me seriously.

"I suppose this will make a new climax," said she.

But her looks belied her words, and for once I was bright enough to see.

"No," said I as distinctly as my throat would let me. "This is not a climax. This is a beginning."

GROWING UP

There's something the matter with the child that fails to grow up. A child that grows up too much, however, without proper filling out of flesh, is almost as badly off. Nothing will help these pale, thin "weedy" children like Scott's Emulsion. It supplies the rounding out of flesh and the rich inward nourishment of blood and vital organs which insures rapid growth a healthy and uniform development.

The Youth of Mozart.

Mozart played the harpsichord at three! At six he and his sister, who was but eleven, went with their father on a musical tour round Germany. At nine he took London by storm by his organ playing, while all the symphonies which he played at his farewell concert there were his own compositions. Before he was ten he composed for the dedication of the Church of the Orphans at Vienna a mass and conducted the concert himself. Through it all the child Mozart seems to have remained unspoiled, unaffected, the plaything of queens.

At the age of six in Vienna, while he amazed the imperial household by his genius, he charmed them by his childishness. The emperor sat by his side as he played and called him his "little magician." The empress was delighted when at the close of the performance the little fellow sprang upon her lap and kissed her. When he slipped and fell on the polished floor the archduchess, Marie Antoinette, afterward the hapless queen of France, lifted him up and was amused at being thus thanked: "You are very kind. When I grow up I will marry you." In London also the royal family made much of him, and the child even accompanied the queen in a song.
